Before I was ordered to attempt to blow up an enemy's ship I was given time to get used to my submarine. This did not take long, though at first I confess sinking down under water made me creep a bit. When I had had a couple of weeks of it I was ordered on several attempts that were all failures. The difficulty in handling a submarine is that when beneath the surface you can't see anything and when above it, if you are near an enemy's ship, you are liable to get knocked out by a shot.

I was ordered one afternoon to go for a cruiser. The time I chose was between daylight and dark, my object being to steal upon her to within a few hundred yards, get my bearings, duck, lessen the distance between me and her and fire my torpedo.

The weather favored the attempt, it being a murky evening, with just enough light for me to see a big ship and not enough for her to see all of my boat there was above water—the periscope. I gave the order to lower the horizontal rudder, and we went down, intending to make a curve I had figured out, coming up near the cruiser amidships. Everything looked well for success, and, having completed the first half of the arc, I gave the order for a gradual elevation of the rudder.

What was my horror to find that my boat did not obey it! I knew at once that my attempt would be a failure, and I knew furthermore that I, my crew and the submarine were in danger of going to the bottom and staying there. Unfortunately when I gave the order to stop her, to keep from going any lower, the engineer lost his head and, turning the wrong handle, put on power instead of taking it off. This gave us so much momentum that before we could take any measures to right our direction we were scraping bottom.

There was nothing for it but to let the water out of the tanks in order to rise straight up to the surface. What I feared occurred. We were under so much pressure that the pump was not able to overcome it. This indicated another danger—if the pumps could not overcome the outside pressure we would not be able to lift the cap of the periscope, which in case we couldn't get the boat to the surface meant that we would not be able to escape through the conning tower.

I sprang to the hand pump. I didn't need to give an order to the crew, for they knew as well as I that this was our only hope, and a very thin hope, because it was hardly to be expected that we could do what a mechanical force could not do. Knowing that our lives depended upon our success, we worked with that superhuman power that is given to man when some great object is to be achieved.

All in vain we worked till we found that our efforts were growing less; then one after another in quick succession abandoned the effort.

Not a man of us but saw certain death ahead. We could not make the rudder work, and neither of the pumps was sufficiently powerful to expel the water from the tanks. The most fearful part of it was that we must die a lingering death.

Our chief thought was of those we would leave behind us, and, thinking that the boat might eventually be recovered, some of the men set about writing letters to leave in her, bidding loved ones goodby and telling them of our last moments in the flesh. I, knowing that it would be some time before death would come to us, thought only of a possible means of escape. The only hope was that when it became evident that we had sunk and could not rise an effort would be made to save us. But how could wreckers work within a few hundred feet of an enemy's guns?

Suddenly a thought struck me. Desiring to have as much depth room as possible, I had consulted the almanac and found that the floodtide corresponded with the hour of approaching darkness. We had gone under at high tide, the difference between flood and ebb being sixteen feet. In other words, we had sixteen feet more of water pressure on us than we would have at the ebb. I electrified the crew by telling them the situation. Here was a hope. If our engine could empty the tanks at low tide we would be saved.

That was a long six hours. In four hours we made a trial, but without success. In five hours we tried again. There seemed to be occasional rises of, say, a foot or two. In another half hour we tried it again and could feel ourselves rising, but very slowly. However, as the pressure above lessened we went up more rapidly till we reached the surface.

Shall I ever forget that first sight of the upper world?

Two days later I tried again and blew up the cruiser and 400 men.

HEART WOULD PALPITATE.

HAD WEAK and DIZZY SPELLS.

Palpitation of the heart is one of the most common of all heart troubles. The heart will beat fast for several seconds, then slow, then start to flutter, and a feeling of utter depression will come over the system accompanied by weak and dizzy spells, making you feel that you are surely going to die. When you feel this way what you require is a real good heart and nerve tonic; one that will strengthen the weak heart and build up the nerve system. For this purpose we know of nothing that can equal Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. J. S. Nicholls, Listowel, Ont., writes: "I was weak and run down, my heart would palpitate, and I would take weak and dizzy spells. A friend advised me to try your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I started at once, and found that I felt much stronger, and my heart was ever so much better within a short time. I cannot praise your medicine too highly for it has done me a world of good. My husband has also been bothered with heart trouble ever since childhood and finds great relief in using your valuable pills."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Versions Exaggerated.

LONDON, March 3.—In the House of Commons yesterday Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, was asked by Robert L. Outhwaite whether the demands presented by Japan to China encroached upon the integrity of China. The Foreign Secretary responded that the Government was not in a position to give information on this subject. Further questions were asked, however, concerning Japan's demands, and the Foreign Secretary said that "some versions were much exaggerated."

FOUR DIRIGIBLES GONE.

Military Value of Zeppelin Slight—French Aviators Active.

PARIS, March 3.—Efforts of the French aerial forces in the past few days have been efficacious, and some brilliant feats have been accomplished, according to a note issued by the War Office.

As an example, the exploits of one aviator are described. It is said that on Feb. 17 he discovered the location of twenty-one German batteries, and the next day located a heavy battery, which immediately was bombarded, causing an explosion of caissons. The night bombardment of the barracks at Metz is cited as another incident.

The War Office note declares that during the period mentioned there has been little aerial activity on the part of the Germans. The military value of the Zeppelin is declared to be slight. The note tells of the destruction of four dirigibles.

An Encounter With Soldiers

LINDSAY, March 3—Monday evening, about the midnight hour, Constable Woods came to grips with a soldier who was using language on Kent Street not heard in well regulated society and of such a character as to almost bring a blush from an Indian sign in front of a cigar store. The Constable requested the man to curb his unbridled tongue, but he resented the officer's admonition. There was nothing left to do but escort the offender to the civic Bastile, where it was hoped his exuberance would receive a cooling. The officer proceeded with his man, but when near the corner of Kent and Cambridge Streets he was pounced down upon by a number of the prisoner's chums, who undertook to rescue him from the custodian of the law. This gave the prisoner fresh courage, and he resisted the officer, with the result that the baton was introduced, and a few love-taps administered which caused the claret to flow copiously. Constable Woods was up against unequal odds, and he had to flourish his revolver in order to try and quell the onrush. The prisoner was taken by his chums.

A police court case will follow.

King Albert is Fighting With Back Against the Wall to Save Strip of Belgian Soil

WITH THE BELGIAN ARMY, Feb. 28 (by mail)—The romances of swash-bucklers are daily outdone here among the floods of Flanders where the army of King Albert stands with its back to the wall, fighting to hold the little strip of Belgian soil still to be called its own.

For instance, there is the secret band of "The Hundred-And-Fifty." It is composed of volunteer soldiers, picked men who snap their fingers in the face of death, and who, when the worst comes to worst, meet their doom with a jaunty smile on their lips, a smile tinged just a little with scorn and which says to the grim firing squad: "Shoot and be hanged! It's little I care!"

The general public knows little or nothing of "The Hundred-And-Fifty," but there isn't a Belgian trooper who doesn't know of the band and speak of it with something of awe and mystery in his voice. When an enterprise is on foot, requiring supreme daring, unfaltering courage, a do-it or-die determination of an almost superhuman sort, the Hundred-And-Fifty is called upon—and it never fails. The band furnishes the necessary man or men and if these do not deliver the goods, another man, or more men, come forward until the thing required is accomplished. Impossible as it may seem, of the 150 men in the organization some 250 have met death; in other words the band has been wiped out more than twice.

The lay of the land, so to speak, brought the dare-devil group into being, a necessary result of the strangely peculiar fighting now going on hereabouts. Imagine an almost treeless stretch of marshes extending for many, many miles in all directions, a river, whose bed is higher than the surrounding country, cutting through the middle. Checker boarding this, imagine long straight highways, built up, but barely emerging from the seawater which has inundated the whole landscape save a few islands which dot the waste of water here and there. In short, imagine the dreariest, wettest spot on earth and you will have the scene of the battle of the Yser as it [illegible] between the Belgians and the Germans.

The two fronts pass along the course of the Yser in a general way, the battle line occupying the roads and islands. The only means of advance in the ordinary way is along the roads, practically an impossibility since one machine gun can hold off a regiment. To take the islands troops must wade from knee to neck deep in the ice-cold sea water or cross on rafts or scows, an equally impossible feat during daylight hours. Stealth must be the keynote of every advance along this part of the line and black nights are the only screens available for troops here. It is the work of the "Hundred-and-Fifty" to prepare these surprises or, as frequently happens, since attacks by large numbers of infantry have become impossible on account of the water, to make the dash themselves.

Here is an illustration: It was learned that the Germans had established themselves on one of the many islands jutting out of the inundation and were using it for various effective operations. An observer, posted in the massive tower of a medieval church there, was giving most deadly instructions by telephone to the German batteries of eight-inch guns situated so far back that the much lighter Belgian guns were ineffective against them. Something had to be done to put this observer out of commission.

The first night 20 men went out to capture the island, it being believed that it was occupied by only or 10 men. None of the 20 came back.

The second night one of the 150 left the Belgian lines alone, swimming. When he returned shortly before daylight he astonished everybody by reporting the tiny island held by two lone centries. A large island, however, some 300 yards further back, held some 250 men and between this island and the tower ran a causeway, made of brushes tied in bundles. The sentries threw up illuminating bombs at regular intervals and, upon discovering the approach of the enemy gave the alarm whereupon reinforcements ran over the causeway, took positions about a tiny fort built around the tower and by the aid of machine guns stood their ground. The following night 50 men started for the island in scows which swimmers and waders pulled silently through the flood. They halted just outside the range of the illuminating bombs and the scout of the night before went forward alone. Two bombs in succession would be the signal for the party to land quickly. Fifteen minutes of absolute silence followed, then two balls of fire rose and floated in the black night.

The 50 men shot forward. They landed without opposition. The body of a dead German lay on the ground. It was sentry No. 1. His helmet was missing as was his coat. On the breastworks about the tower a few feet away, stood what appeared to be a German, beckoning to the Belgians. This was their own man, wearing the coat and helmet of the German sentinel. Inside the trench, beside a machine gun, lay sentry No. 2. The Belgian had slain both without sound with his thin sword, the first by surprise, the second by impersonating the first.

While destroying the brush causeway the Germans on the little island nearby found out what was going on and attacked. They were repulsed and the 20 Belgians of the night before were more than avenged. Today the Belgians occupy the island and its tower, though daily battered by German artillery, serves as an observation post. In their turn, besides keeping a permanent defence force on the island, the Belgians have connected it to their first line of trenches.

The men of the 150 are anonymous. It is said that many of them are nobles. The man, who, single-handed, captured the Tower without making a sound, so the correspondent was told, was a Brussels lawyer of nation-wide reputation who, when he volunteered for the service, presented himself in a frock coat and silk hat.

Green-Colored Liquor of France Was Essential Drink of Country

The London Times in a Paris despatch on the suppression of absinthe drinking in France, says:

The vote of the Chamber readers perpetual the temporary prohibition —which has been in force since the beginning of the war—of the sale of absinthe. France thus follows in the footsteps of Russia, who, through the mouth of the Tsar, several months ago, declared that the imperial government had decided to abolish forever the government sale of vodka.

By these two ordinances Europe loses two of its most characteristically national forms of alcoholic liquor. The French variety derived its peculiar aroma from various species of wormwood (artemisia absinthium. The well known green colouring was imparted by maceration with green leaves of this plant, together with hyssop and mint. Among its other ingredients were angelica root, sweet flag, dittany leaves, star anise fruit, and fennel. Another constituent was elecampane, which, in old English parlance, was reported to be "very affectual to warm a cold and windy stomach, and the pricking and stitches therein, or in the sides caused by the spleene, and to help the cough, shortness of breath and wheezing in the lungs."

These aromatic herbs, however, merely served to render palatable the seventy to eighty per cent of alcohol, of which the best absinthe was composed. The toxic properties of the drink were acknowledged. None the less absinthe remained for many years, next to her wines, the essential drink of France. It was the favourite aperitif. It lived to see and to help many versifiers into their graves and inspired the higher flights of not a few among the greater poets. To "absinthe" one's self had even become a verb; "dans le doute, absinthe-toi" ("when in loubt, absinthe yourself") was a proverb of the bars. Paris and cafes will know the anisette tribe no more. What Paris loses, the country, which as a whole had suffered from the ravages of the inferior brands, will stand to gain.

WHAT DYSPEPTICS SHOULD EAT

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE.

"Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten, due to acidity; therefore stomach sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in its nature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, such a rule eliminates most foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building properties. This is the reason why dyspeptics and stomach sufferers are usually so thin, emaciated and lacking in that vital energy which can only come from a well fed body. For the benefit of those sufferers who have been obliged to exclude from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty food, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten products, I would suggest that you should try a meal of any food or foods which you may like, in moderate amount, taking immediately afterwards a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be formed, and instead of the usual feeling of uneasiness and fullness, you will find that your food agrees with you perfectly. Bisurated magnesia is doubtless the best food corrective and antacid known. It has no direct action on the stomach; but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of 90 of the acid irritation which inflames the delicate stomach lining, it does more than could possibly be done by any drug or medicine. As a physician, I believe in the use of medicine whenever necessary, but I must admit that I cannot see the cause of doctoring an inflamed and irritated stomach with drugs instead of getting rid of the acid the cause of all the trouble. Get a little bisurated magnesia from your druggist, eat what you want at your next meal, take some of the bisurated magnesia as directed above, and see if I'm not right."

THOSE CUSTOMS TAXES.

The Mail and Empire rushes breathlessly up to bat and disposes of all Liberal criticism of the government's increased taxation by the assertion that since the borrowing of $150,000,000 for war expenses is approved, the taxation must be approved also, because $7,000,000 is needed annually for interest and sinking fund charges on this. "After commending the borrowing, the opposition cannot object to the taxing on account of the loan," it declares.

The trouble with the Mail's hasty argument is that it is based on an incorrect promise. The opposition is not attacking the taxation, but the nature of the bulk of the taxation, which in order to extract extra revenue from the consumer, also takes additional dollars out of his pocket to enrich the Canadian manufacturers. The customs method of taxation adopted by the government not only provides revenue for the government, but it increases the profits of the manufacturer who is ever on the alert to take advantage of any means to increase his prices in the absence of competition.

Except in pointing out that, with timely economy, the new customs levies would not be necessary, the Liberals are not objecting to having additional taxes imposed. In mentioning the $7,000,000 interest and sinking fund charge the Mail also weakens its argument, because the government proposes to raise not $7,000,000, but $20,000,000 by the extra taxation. Twenty-two millions are needed, not to pay this year's share of the war expenses, but to meet the deficit due to lack of proper economy on the part of the government.—Ottawa Free Press.

4,000,000 TEUTONS FIGHTING THE ALLIES

PARIS, March 2.—"It is untrue that the Germans have fewer men on the Allies' front now than they had in January," says an official note which was issued dealing with the distribution of German forces on the French and Russian fronts.

"Only one German army corps was taken from the Allies' front, and this was replaced later by other formations. It is true that Field Marshal von Hindenburg's offensive was carried out with strong reinforcements, but these were made up of new formations and those taken from sections along the eastern front.

"The German Army fought the battle of the Mazurian Lakes with reinforcements of six army corps. The total number of German corps on the eastern front is thirty, to which should be added Austrian troces numbering twenty-two.

"On the French front the Germans have forty-seven army corps. These figures have not varied since December."

As an army corps consists of 40,000 men, the figures of the French Government indicate that there are 2,080,000 Germans and Austrians on the eastern front and 1,400,000 Germans on the western front.

With Mayor Hett dissenting, the Police Commission of Berlin has decided to maintain a force of eight men and a Chief this year at an estimated cost of $8,370, a decrease of $130 from last year's estimates. CREWS WERE SAFELY LANDED

SANTIAGO, CHILE, March 4. — Crews of the French Bark Jean and of the British steamer Kinaldon, sunk on Jan. 1, were landed safely at Easter Island, according to the Navy Department statement to-day. The censor prohibits further details regarding the sinking of the ships. It is assumed that the Jean and Kinaldon are victims of German sea raiders, possibly of the Karlsrhue, which has been reported in South American waters.

CLEARS THE HEAD, OPENS THE NOSTRILS STOPS SNEEZING, CURES CATARRH

You Get Instant Relief by Inhaling the Soothing Vapor "Catarrhozone"

Catarrh is bound to come with this weather. Slight colds become more offensive and sickening every day. The inflammation extends further into the head. Soon the ears begin to buzz and ring. The head aches, the eyes pain dreadfully, the nose gets plugged up and this forces the patient to breathe through the mouth. Vile, filthy secretions are forced back into the throat, requiring a great deal of coughing to keep the air passages free. Finally this foul matter finds its way into the stomach, causing Dyspepsia and general ill-health. By this time the patient has SYSTEMATIC CATARRH, which saps strength, depletes the vital energies, till consumption is the unhappy result.

There isn't the slightest use in trying to cure this condition with tablets, snuffs or sprays, [illegible] treatments are wholly inadequate. You must employ Catarrhozone, the only remedy that possesses power to kill the germs of Catarrh. The healing vapour of Catarrhozone is carried by the air you breathe to the most minute cells of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs. Its antiseptic medication goes everywhere that air can go. No case is too chronic and no person too old—everybody that has catarrh of any kind can be cured by this grand treatment which is endorsed by thousands of physicians throughout America, who say: "The only way to permanently get rid of catarrh is to use Catarrhozone."

ACID IN STOMACH SOURS THE FOOD

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion is nearly always due to acidity — acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, flatitulence, waterbrash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive acids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts, and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast while it is effervescing, and furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousand of people for tomach trouble with excellent results.

"God Save Ireland."

DUBLIN, March 3. — Recruiting posters, which are being displayed all over Ireland bear across the bottom the inscription, "God Save the King. God Save Ireland."

The Irish Times comments on this inscription: "We welcome what is we think an official innovation. In the national harmony of these two prayers lies the hope of Ireland's future peace and greatness."

CANADIAN SOLDIERS FIGHTING AGAINST TURKS

German Advance Near Arras Is Admitted

MASSED ATTACK BY GERMANS RESULTS IN LOSS OF TRENCHES

North of Arras Enemy Captures Advanced Positions of Allies--French Continue Their Gains in the Champagne District Where They Hold a Portion of the Town of Scarrend--Rheims Bombardment Continues

MANY BUILDINGS ARE DESTROYED

PARIS, March 4.—(French official.)—Some German gains in the fighting north of Arras, and around the Lorette hills, were admitted in the official despatches from the battle front to-day. The enemy pressed forward in masked attack and took the advanced trenches of the allies over a considerable distance. The Germans are again pouring hot shell fire into Rheims, completing their work of ruin. All day yesterday at intervals of three minutes shells crossed the valley and into the heart of the city knocking many buildings into the streets.

Two Prussian Guard Regiments, the Kaiser's prize troops, were partly destroyed in a violent attempt to retake the positions captured by the allies in the Champagne region. The Prussians stormed the French trenches north east of Mesnil but were beaten back with heavy losses. French troops have made fresh progress on the plateau of Vauquois, near Searens, and now hold the south portion of the town. There is street fighting at all hours. At different points in the Argonne the Germans have been repulsed.

LONDON, March 4—Reuter's Athens' correspondent says the bombardment of the inner forts of the Dardanelles was resumed on Thursday morning. Ten big warships took part in the operations, and according to a British officer, only two of the Turkish forts now remain intact. The allied landing parties found charred remains of soldiers in the damaged forts, showing that the Turks had burned their dead before evacuating these positions.

OTTAWA, March 4.—At the parliamentary enquiry into the question of the soldiers' boots supplied to the various contingents for overseas service, Colonel Brown of the Quartermaster-General's Department, was closely questioned regarding the various reports of the different commanders as to the boots issued to their men. Several of the reports said the boots were like so much blotting paper, and came apart after only a few days' wear. Colonel Brown was asked where such reports would go to, and who would be responsible for acting on them? He said the Quartermaster-General was. The enquiry was adjourned till Monday.

BERLIN, via London, March 4.—The North German Gazette announces that the daily bread ration throughout the Empire has been fixed at 200 grammes, less than half a pound of bread or flour, per capita, from March 15th, instead of 225 grames, the amount previously permitted.

BATTERIES SILENCED.

PETROGRAD, March 4.—Russian shells have silenced several of the Austrian batteries at Czernowitz, according to despatches via Lemberg to-day. General Ivanoff has established his advanced base at Sadagora, recaptured three days ago, and is directing an energetic attempt to retake the Bukowina capital. The civilians have been ordered to leave Czernowitz. The war office to-day declared that German gunfire at Osswetz had done no damage to the fortress. At all other points in Poland, notably toward Augustof, the Russians are making progress. In a memorandum to-day it was pointed out that despite the costly efforts by the Germans and the Austrians to advance to the relief of Przemysl and to retake Lemberg, the enemy has made no progress but actually has lost ground in the last fortnight of fighting. Along the railway leading through the mountains from Munkaos to Stryj, and thence to Lemberg, the Germans have been defeated. Two companies were slaughtered in the snow-filled passes by the Russian machine guns. The Austrians have been forced to evacuate Krasna, south west of Stanislau.

10,000 PRISONERS

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, March 4.—Ten thousand Boer prisoners were taken prisoners during the recent rebellion against British authority in the South African dominions and the losses on both sides totalled about 1,000, Finance Minister Smuts announced in the Assembly to-day. This is the first intimation of the real seriousness of the uprising which has been passed by the censor. It has suddenly become known that with so large a number involved in the uprising that only a few of the ringleaders will be prosecuted. From the fact that the announcement is now publicly made of the extent of the revolt, it is probable that the backbone of the resistance has been broken.

NO HOPE FOR RECOVERY

LONDON, Ont., March 4.—To-day no hope is held out for the recovery of Major George Abel, commander of the machine gun section of the Canadian Mounted Rifles, second contingent, here, who fell with his horse while manoeuvring, and fractured his skull. He is a veteran Hussar and one of Ontario's largest apple shippers.

COMPLIMENTS TO THE BOERS

LONDON, March 1.—Telegrams from South Africa report that the army under the leadership of Gen. Botha, Premier of the Union of South Africa, and Commander of the forces of the Union, continues to make slow progress in German Southwest Africa.

This, however, is hardly as interesting as the news, that at the opening of the Parliament of the Union of South Africa the guard of honour for the new British Governor-General was composed entirely of burghers in khaki—a duty, which heretofore had devolved upon British soldiers.

In a letter to the Parliament Premier Botha, who is still at the front, said he anticipated the speedy conclusion of the operations. He appealed for leniency for the rebels, especially the rank and file, who, he said, "in most cases acted under compulsion, or were the victims of wrong leaders."

TO MAKE SHELLS

Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Co., of Peterboro Has Received a Big Order From the Imperial War Office

GOOD NEWS FOR MEN

The Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Co. have to-day received the offer of a large order from the Imperial War Office for the manufacture of 35 pound lyddite shells. The order will necessitate some minor changes in the company's plant and will be accepted at once. Shells are being assembled in a large number of Canadian factories and for some time the Canadian General Electric Company has been busy at this work. 18 pound shells are being assembled in their plant. The order for 35 pound shells received by the Wm. Hamilton Company is the first of that kind to be obtained by local firms. It will keep the plant busy for months.

Mr. and Mrs. York have been working at Buckhorn for some time, but lately could not secure work. Becoming hard up they are supposed to have asked for help from some of their neighbours. The charge of vagrancy arose out of this circumstance.

Mr. J. A. New student with Messrs. Gordon and Widdifield, appeared for the defendants. He explained that the circumstances were very unfortunate and said that his clients would undertake to go to Mr. York's parents at Uxbridge if allowed to do so.

They were discharged, upon their promise to go to Uxbridge.

MAY LEAVE TO-MORROW NIGHT FOR OTTAWA

B Squadron C.M.R. Expect Orders at Any Time—22nd Battery Arrives Safely at Queenstown

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

It is likely that B. Squadron of the 8th C.M.R. will leave for Ottawa tomorrow night. This is the expectation to-day, although definite orders have not yet been received. In the meantime there is feverish activity at the Armouries where the balance of the equipment is being issued to the men. The great coats and caps arrived this morning, and to-day's operations were confined for the most part to issuing these articles. The men are delighted that they will be able to wear their service uniforms leaving Peterborough.

Major G. R. Hall, O.C., of the 24th Field Battery, commenced recruiting for the new overseas battery this morning. A number of recruits presented themselves this morning, but will not be examined until this afternoon. It is not expected that the recruiting of two batteries in this division will take very long, so that local recruits should not delay applying if they want a chance. The physical conditions are the same as for the other contingents, a minimum height of 5 ft. 3, and a minimum chest measurement of 33½ inches, but the proviso is added on this occasion that the men must be good riders.

Batterys' Safe Voyage.

A cablegram was received to-day from Capt. C. P. Fee, of Peterborough, second in command of the 22nd Battery, 6th Bribade, C. F. A., 2nd Contingent, which left Kingston a few days ago, stating that the battery has arrived safely at Queenstown, Ireland.

May Go To Petawawa.

OTTAWA, March 3.—It is generally expected in military circles that as soon as the spring arrives the troops in training in this division for the third contingent will be moved to Petawawa to put on the finishing touches to their war preparations.

Accommodation for soldiers is becoming quite cramped here at present, and as there is ample provision at the famous camp on the Ottawa river for from 10,000 to 15,000 men, this spot is likely to be selected.

Petawawa is equipped with a splendid water and drainage system, rifle ranges, and has many other advantages from a military standpoint. It is believed that much better progress could be made in whipping the men into shape there than in the cities, where they have so many other attractions to divert their attention.

From the standpoint of health it is generally admitted it is almost impossible to improve on the plains of Petawawa. The camp is near Ottawa and has splendid railway facilities.

Cavalrymen to Stay at Home.

It has been announced that the order providing for the sending of thirty-nine men from the 8th C.M.R. to England with a shipment of horses has been cancelled. No reason for the cancellation of the order is obtainable.

Capt. G. G. Murphy, medical officer of the 8th C.M.R., left to-day for Prescott and Kingston to examine recruits of the 4th Hussars. Yesterday a detachment of nine men arrived at the Howick Hall barracks from Kingston, but three were found physically unfit, although previously passed by a doctor, and one refused to submit to being inoculated against typhoid fever. It has been decided that the cheapest way to carry on the recruiting was to have the doctor go to the centres, and only men who are fit will be brought here.

Major A. E. McLaughlin, second in command of the Mounted Rifles, arrived in the city from Bowmanville to take up his duties, to-day. Captain Stewart has been transferred to St. John. It is expected that B squadron from Peterborough, and C squadron from Toronto, will reach the city at the end of the week. Major S. T. Medd commands the Peterborough squadron and Major W. T. Brown that from Toronto.

There is practically no sickness in the ranks of the 8th C.M.R. although Squadrin Sergeant Major C. Keddes was yesterday removed to the hospital suffering from appendicitis.

Captain Happe volunteered to make the flight, knowing that big powder factories were located in the German town. He hurled several bombs upon the magazine and ten minutes later flames wer leaping 400 yards into the sky.

CANADIAN CAVALRY AT DARDANELLES

Strathcona Horse and Royal Canadian Dragoons Are Part of the British Expedition Against Constantinople--Forces Have Just Been Landed

TORONTO, March 4.—That Canada's Mounted soldiers are now fighting the Turks with the British expeditions against Constantinople, seems to be indicated in Reuter despatch from Athens published this morning, stating that the first detachment of the troops forming the allies' military expedition, incuding the Canadians and the Sengalese, has arrived, and landed at the Straits of Dardanelles. It has frequently been stated that Canada's cavalry with the first contingent would go to Egypt, as the operations in France and Belgium at the present time would not open to the work of the mounted troops. The "Extra Division" Mounted Troops with the contingent are made up as follows: The Royal Canadian Dragoons from Toronto and St. John's, Quebec, the Strathcona Horse of Winnipeg, and the Royal [illegible] are regulars" but were sent to England strongly reinforced with drafts of men from all over Canada specially enlisted for the war.

CROWN PRINCE IN DISGRACE IS REPORT.

GENEVA, March 3.—For nearly two months nothing has been heard of the German Crown Prince, either from military headquarters or from Berlin. A report that he has been killed is wholly discredited, but his sudden retirement into obscurity has been the cause of much speculation. News received here from Innsbruck states definitely that he is in disgrace and by the Kaiser's command is living in strict seclusion in Berlin.

TONS OF GIFTS AWAIT PRISONERS REACHING GENEVA FOR EXCHANGE

GENEVA, via London, March 3.—The exchange of maimed prisoners through Geneva began to-day with the arrival of 1,300 Frenchmen and 800 Germans. The transfer was made under the auspices of the Swiss Red Cross Society. The soldiers travelled in special cars, which were guarded by the military. Approximately a ton of gifts are here awaiting the unfortunates, who probably will number from 4,000 to 5,000 men from each country. The Geneva Red Cross has begun negotiations with the German authorities with the object of opening a postal service through Switzerland with the French territory occupied by the Germans. The society is daily in receipt of pathetic appeals from French families for the opening of such a service.

ADMIRAL JELLICOE RARELY AT HOME.

LONDON, March 3.—Addressing a meeting held at Eastborne yesterday in connection with the opening of a Union Jack club for women, Lady Jellicoe mentioned that since the outbreak of the war Sir John has been at home for only twelve hours, ten of which he passed at the Admiralty.

GERMAN FORCES INCREASED FOR NEW DRIVE ON CALAIS.

On the Belgian Frontier, March 3—The Germans have stopped all traffic on the roads between the frontier and towns in Western Flandors, fearing disclosures of details concerning a new concentration of troops for the next effort against Calais.

A message received from Maastricht describes preparations to billet additional reinforcements from East Prussia. The inhabitants of Liege have been ordered to billet 20,000 infantry. Seraing has been ordered to billet 5,000 and Louvain 10,000. There are said to be 50,000 men now in Lille, mostly Bavarians.

ITALY WORSE OFF THAN AMERICA.

ROME, March 3—Signor Luzzati, who was at one time Premier of Italy, says Italy's position as a neutral whose economic and financial position is seriously affected by the war is more difficult than that of the United States, which is profiting by the European deadlock. The Italian silk industry, he says, badly needs American orders.

ASKED TO LOCATE THE LOST HUSBAND

Chief Thompson Receives Letter From Detroit Woman About Jacob Dursh

Chief of Police Thompson has received a letter from Mrs. Jacob Dursh of Detroit, Mich., asking his assistance in locating her husband, who left her some time ago. She has reason to believe he came to this City.

Mrs. Dursh, who gives her address as 115 Florence Ave., Highland Park, Detroit, Mich., describes her husband as being 41 years of age, with brown hair, and a light moustache, 5 ft. 10 in. in height, weighing about 160 pounds. He is a furniture finisher and auto varnish rubber. She thinks he may have become despondent, as he was out of work for some time in Detroit. His baby cries for its "papa" and Mrs. Dursh wants her husband.

To Pass Relief Ships.

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, March 4.—(Via London.) — The German Government yesterday informed the American Minister to the Netherlands that arrangements had been made to grant safe passage through the naval war zone to American relief ships bearing supplies for the people of Belgium.

The German Government will at once ask the American Ambassador at Berlin to explain to the British Government that only such ships as are really engaged in this service may carry the commission's marks.

"Germany, however, cannot grant safe conduct for the commission's ships to and from England," it is stated.

THURSDAY, MARCH 4, 1915

THE WAR IS "PLAYING FAVOURITE."

Not very many of us here in Canada foresaw the war or laid any plans with it in view. Therefore, if it has helped our business we are simply fortunate—if it has hurt us we are unfortunate, but not to blame.

Is it any more than fair, then, that those of us who have profited should take some thought for those who have not?

Farmers are getting more for their crops—some manufacturers are selling more goods than they ever sold in times of peace—some business and professional men are making more money than usual.

On the other hand, thousands of workmen have had their hours shortened and their pay cut down because the wave of economy has lessened the demand for the goods they make.

The fortunate ones have it in their power to even up the scale—to spend their money for goods "Made in Canada." This will so increase the demand for Canadian products as to keep practically every Canadian factory working full time, and so give to all that prosperity now enjoyed only by the fortunate favourites.

WAR AND FOOD PRICES.

(Toronto Star.)

Mr. Cockshutt, of Brantford introduced in the House of Commons a motion authorizing the Canadian Government to exercise supreme control over the price and export of foodstuffs during the war. The resolution was condemned by Liberals and Conservatives alike and was declared lost. It was regarded as a reflection upon the Canadian farmer, and the general Parliamentary opinion was favourable to the farmer.

It may be interesting to observe that the price of food is a very live question in England. Workmen are asking for higher wages, largely because of dearer food. Mr. Asquith has made a very interesting statement on the question. Speaking on the 11th of February, he said that the range of prices for January and February during the war was somewhat lower than that which prevailed in the corresponding period after the conclusion of the Franco-Prussian War, from 1871 to 1875. He went on:

"The average weekly price of flour in this year 1915 is not higher than the price which prevailed in most of the years in 1875 to 1885. The House must not suppose that I am trying to minimize the present position, but I think we ought to get ourselves into perspective and realize what the past experience has been before we deal with the problem now presented to us. Coal is no higher in London to-day than it was during the period from 1875 to 1885; sugar is at about the same level as it was in the later seventies, and potatoes this year are plentiful in quantity and moderate in price."

Mr. Asquith then went on to analyze the causes of the rise in prices. In the case of wheat he mentioned the failure of the Australian crop; the high "bazaar prices" in India, leading to a temporary embargo on wheat; delay in the marketing of the Argentine crop; the closing of the Dardanelles against the Russian crop; the devastation caused by war in France and Belgium, and the reduced production in the Balkans.

Naturally it would be supposed that the increased price was largely due to freights—to the cost and hazard of carrying wheat by sea. Mr. Asquith says that this element in price, while important, is exaggerated. The Liverpool price of No. 1 Northern Manitoba wheat rose from $1.00 a bushel in July, just before the war, to $1.74 in January. Of this increase of 80 cents, 25 cents was ascribed to the increased price in New York and only 11 cents to the increased freight:

"Though I do not in the least degree minimize the importance of the question of freights, as I shall show presently, it is desirable that we should realize that it has not been the determining factor but only a contributory cause. The determining factor in the market has been the price in the Chicago and New York markets. These high prices in America may be, and, I suspect, are due to a large extent to other than the legitimate causes I have mentioned—curtailed supply and increased demand—to speculation. The market there is in a very sensitive—what I believe they call a nervous or jumpy—condition."

The Chicago and New York prices are the results of various factors, but it is not likely that the Canadian farmer is the chief cause, or that any attempt to regulate him would make life substantially easier for the workman in England. The operations of the allies at Constantinople are intended, among other things, to allow Russian wheat to be transported by the Black Sea and the Mediterranean to France and England. The success of these operations would greatly relieve the situation. It will have occurred to many people, no doubt, that it was especially calculated to excite recriminations from the farmers that a manufacturer so peculiarly identified with the highest form of protection as Mr. Cockshutt should tactlessly introduce a motion of that kind.

OUR PROVINCIAL FINANCES.

(Toronto Globe.)

Ontario is as a foolish youth endowed with perfect health and phenomenal strength wasing his substance in thoughtless debauchery simply because he has sufficient endurance to do so without paying immediate penalties. Every foolish waste must some day be paid back, and great strength and endurance cannot do more than postpone the day of reckoning. Direct liabilities now aggregate $40,405,000, a really sobering total compared with $20,668,000 for the year ending with October, 1909, and still more sobering when compared with ten years ago, the total for the fiscal year 1904 being $11,709,650. Of the debt of that earlier year about half, or $5,840,0004, was treasury bills issued on account of the Timiskaming Railway. Indirect or guarantee liabilities at the earlier date were $2,600,000. These had grown to $9,080,000 in 1909 and $9,647,340, chiefly composed of the Mackenzie & Mann guarantee, in the fiscal year ending with October last.

In 1904 the total revenue of the Province was $5,977,779. Of this the Dominion collected $1,314,660 and turned it over to the Provincial Treasury as subsidies. The sale of assets, deceptively treated as revenue, brought, through the Woods and Forests Branch, $2,650,782. The Province levied about a million of its own taxation, $420,627 being obtained through the taxed corporations and $458,679 in succession dues. The sale of assets, which is the chief support of Provincial expenditure, has continued from year to year. Last year it yielded $2,340,650 of a total income of $8,196,196. This is one of the most serious features of Ontario's financial position and operations. Had a reasonably provident timber policy been adopted the annual growth could be made to restore the annual depletion. The timber yield would then be virtually an assured crop, and could be honestly classed and safely treated as revenue. But as every sale leaves the Province poorer in timber and brings nearer the time of exhaustion, the Province is merely sitting idly and tolerantly by while the Government plays the prodigal with its inherited estate.

Plunging deeper and deeper into debt while at the same time selling assets is an exhibition of the rake's progress, for which the full penalty must be made in burdensome taxation. Last year's grand total of expenditure was $20,076,461. The revenue to meet this, omitting the two and aquarter millions received from the sale of assets, was $8,236,000. As this situation is not due to the war or any other exceptional influence, there is no outlook, under existing conditions, for anything other than more borrowing, more expenditure, and more debt from year to year. Ontario's prosperity has been largely due in the past to immunity from taxation. A great estate well managed provided for real needs, and could provide for real needs on the present scale of development. But improvident sale and alienation, expanding extravagance, and an easy neglect of opportunities have brought their natural result.

The Province can safely bear the burden. Great debts to be contracted can also be carried. There is the poor satisfaction, often advanced in apology, that most Provinces and States are in no better financial position, while many are worse. That is no excuse for reducing the Province to do what may be regarded as a common level of debt. The burden will be felt though the cause of the pressure may not be discerned. It will be felt in every factory and workshop, in every store and office, and in every domestic circle. knowledge of this should make the people detrmined to retrieve what has been lost, to equalise income and outlay, and to restore the easier conditions of a wisely economical regime.

Minister-To-Be Shot Robbing Safe.

ROCHESTER, N.H., March 4.—While trying to rob the office safe of the Genic Manufacturing Co. at Gonic, a suburb of this city, Walter Marlson, aged 23, a Boston theological student, was shot and probably fatally wounded by Adelbert Lyte, a substitute night watchman at the mills, after a desperate struggle.

Marlson, who has been preaching in New Hampshire towns while on his vacation, when told by physicians that he could not live a few hours, confessed he was after money, saying he needed it to pay his evening school tuition.

CANADA'S SHARE IN THE PACIFIC PANAMA INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION

(Written Expressly For The Examiner)

Your correspondent since struggling with his maiden letter to the Examiner over two score years ago, has not been up against so herculean task as the feat to describe the opening programme of the Pacific Panama International Exhibition, and give any adequate birdseye view of the "greatest show on earth."

This is what the editor and owner of the leading evening daily of S. F. himself, a Canadian, and a graduate of McGill University, has to say:

Inadequacy of the English Language.

A most spectacular editorial—a regular whooper, in fact—have been planned for to-day, to do preliminary justice to to-morrow's importance. It was to have been a masterpiece worthy of the eve of a day which marks the culmination of such years of hope and preparation.

But there will be no such editorial. We have examined the dictionary carefully and there are no words that meet the need. In this grave emergency the English language has utterly failed us.

I would be a welcome duty to describe the dedication exercises of the Canada building and the truly Californian welcome extended to Hon. M. Burrell, representative of King, British Empire and Canada. Governor Johnson paid the highest tribute to Canadians, among other things naming some of the natives of Canada who filled positions in all lines of public life, to the Senate in Washington; also to give an idea of the unique display of actual varied life, city, farm, mining, natural scenery, etc., etc., never shown anywhere hitherto, but as writers often, in a strait for a word or idea, quote a strange language for safety, so now utra vires!

Life is young in Canada. A great section of the neighbouring dominion is in its pioneering days. Scenes of '49 in California are re-enacted to-day in British Columbia.

You see the wonderful building up of a country, the growth of cities in the space of five years, the transformation of the humble pioneer into a prosperous land owner by taking a half hour trip through Canada via the Canadian building of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, a short trip full of thrills and wonders.

The Canadian government has poured in $600,000 to make its exhibit at the World's Fair one of the most attractive and informative, and it has succeeded.

Compressed in the 70,000 square feet which the exhibit occupies is a most diversified epitome of the industrial and agricultural history of Canada, of its mineral wealth, of its immense forests which supply the paper upon which so many newspapers of the world are printed.

Here, too, is to be seen the wonderful scenery of that country, the mountains and streams and all that lives near and under the water. There is at the exhibit the trunk of a tree which measures fourteen feet in diameter. The animals of the dominion—the bear and the buffalo, the fox and the mountain goat—are reproduced in life-like sizes and postures and scattered through a wonderful panoramic outlay.

The beaver, symbol of untiring labour and the national emblem of Canada, has built his dam in the Canadian Palace at the Exposition. His labours over, Mr. Beaver and family now lie close to the water and enjoy the gasps on the part of the thousands of thrilled visitors.

The harbour of Vancouver is reproduced with wonderful lifelikeness. So is the town of Cobalt, famous for its silver mines. Directly across from the "silver south lies the "golden north" of Canada with a life-like reproduction of the Dawson City and its gold mines.

The largest collection of minerals in the world is to be seen at the Canadian exhibit. Here too, one sees asbestos in its crude form as it lies between layers of stone. Of the asbestos used all over the globe 85 per cent. comes from Canada.

It is the Canadian wheat fields and prairies represented with remarkable skill, both in the painting of the background and in the laying out of the exhibits that hold the visitor longest.

Here the story of the successful farmer tells itself. He comes to a prairie, 160 acres of which was given to him by the Government. He builds a little shack for himself and family. The place looks lonely and foreign at first. But a period of two, three or five years has elapsed. The original shack has now been converted into a granary. A new farmhouse stands proudly amid a beautiful lawn. A big barn towers at one end. In the distance a herd of cattle grazing. From a wilderness the labour of man has transformed the country in a land of milk and honey.

The pioneer whose picture is seen is only one of thousands. Where there is so much activity cities become indispensable. And so a city rises in the background—a young city, a proud city, a city free from slums and poverty and filthy tenements, a city breathing health and happiness and self-respect, a city whose men grow up strong and self-reliant.

The Canadian building, besides its wonderful exhibits, is among the best equipped buildings in the matter of providing rest and comfort for the visitor to the Exposition who may have become weary from continuous marching through the grounds. There is on the second floor a large reception room for women and a smoking room for men. You can lounge here and rest and ponder about the beauties and the wonders you have seen at the exhibits of the Dominion Government.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, March 3.—Altho wheat advanced most of the time today, on account of liberal export sales, the market at the close was weak owing to assertions that the entire Argentine surplus for 1916 had been purchased by Great Britain. Gains were narrowed to 1 5-8c and 2c, compared with last night's level. Corn finished 1 1-8c to 1¼c up, and oats at a rise of 1¼c. In provisions, the outcome varied from a loss of 5c to a like upturn.

WINNIPEG, March 3.—The market during the first two hours of business was very nervous and unsettled, May in that time showing a range of 4⅝c, July 4¼c, while October fluctuated 1⅛c.

There was more activity in the cash department, and fair sales of No. 3 northern wheat were put thru, presumably for export delivery for opening of navigation. Good sales of low grades of oats were also made.

Prices closed higher following extremely nervous conditions.

Wheat futures closed ⅝c to 1⅜c higher, cash ⅝c to 1c higher; oats ⅛c to ⅜c up, and flax ⅝c to ⅞c up.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, March 3.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 1607 cattle, 2096 hogs, 196 sheep and 227 calves.

The bulk of the cattle offered as fat were common to medium, and the prices paid were good.

Stockers and feeders, of which there were a few sales made, sold at unchanged quotations.

Milkers and springers were in demand, and considering the quality of those on sale good prices were paid. The values ranged from $60 to $85 for the bulk.

Veal calves were plentiful and prices were 50c easier.

Sheep and lambs were firm, but the quality of the lambs was not good enough to bring Tuesday's prices.

Hogs were again firmer by 10c to 15c per cwt.

Butchers' Cattle.

Choice steers $7.50 to $7.75, and four extra quality sold at $8; choice butchers' cattle, 1000 to 1200 lbs., at $7.25 to $7.50; good butchers, $7 to $7.25; medium, $6.60 to $6.90; common, $6 to $6.50; choice cows, $5.75 to $6.25; good cows, $5.25 to $5.75; medium, $5 to $5.25; canners and cutters, $3.75 to $4.50; bulls, $5.25 to $6.60.

Stockers and Feeders.

Feeders, 700 to 800 lbs., sold at $6.80 to $6; medium feeders at $5.25 to $5.75; stockers at $4.75 to $5.

Milkers and Springers.

Veal Calves.

Choice veal calves sold at $10 to $11.50; good, $8 to $9; medium, $7 to $7.50; common, $5 to $6.50; eastern calves, $4 to $5.

Sheep and Lambs.

Choice light lambs sold at $10 to $10.60; heavy lambs at $9 to $9.50; light sheep at $6.50 to $7.25; heavy sheep at $5 to $6.50.

Hogs.

Hogs sold at slightly higher prices. Selects, weighed off cars, $8.10 to $8.15, and $8.25 to $8.65.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, March 3.—At the C.P.R. live stock market cattle were firm owing to small offerings and the fair demand to fill actual wants. There were no choice steers for sale, and the top prices paid were $7 to $7.25 for good steers, and the lower grades sold from that down to $6.75 per cwt. Butchers' cows brought from $4.50 to $6, and bulls from $4.50 to $6.50, while canning stock sold at $3.50 to $3.75 per cwt.

There was no further change in the market for sheep and lambs, but the feeling is firm, with a continued demand and small offerings, and sales of Ontario lambs were made at $9, and Quebec at $8.50 to $8.75, while sheep brought from $4.50 to $6 per cwt. Hogs were weaker, and prices declined 10c to 25c per cwt., with sales of selected lots at $8 to $8.25, and heavy weights at $7.75 per cwt., weighed off cars. The supply of calves was somewhat larger, for which there is an active demand, and sales were made at $5 to $15 each.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Cattle—Receipts, 11,000; market firm. Beeves, $5.75 to $9.25; cows and heifers, $3.50 to $7.70; calves, $6.50 to $10.

Keep Old Flag Flying.

NEW YORK, March 4.—"I'll fly the British flag from here to hell, and I'll not take down that flag for any German submarine on the seas," declared Captain J. B. Ransom, of the White Star liner Baltic, just before his ship sailed yesterday for Liverpool. While Captain Ransom was thus declaring himself stevedores were loading forty armored automobiles, consigned to the British army. The cargo included 18,000 tons of war supplies. The merchandise and foodstuffs on board would fill 1,500 freight cars.

Stallings' Braves Have Been Training at Their Macon Camp

Bill James the Star Hold Out—Miracle Man Looks Forward to Another Big Year

BOSTON, March 3.— The world's champion Braves have arrived at Macon, Ga. There, under the critical ,requiring eye of Manager George T. Stallings, they have begun to prepare for another season's campaign which, everyone is confiding will prove quite as successful as that of last year.

James is to-day-an old-fashioned, before-the-war hold-out. He has been going up and down the Pacific Coast announcing that he will not play ball this season unless Gaffney will pay him more money. He has even wired the Boston Club that he will not report in 1915 for spring training. Gaffney has taken James at his world. James understands that he will receive another $1,000 bonus at the end of 1915 if the club wins the pennant, but that is the only concession Gaffney has made to him. James's contract calls for $4,000 a year ,has two more years to run, and James was tickled as a schoolboy the day he signed. "I am not going after James in any way, shape or manner," said President Gaffney. "If he wants to report well and good; if he doesn't all right.I do not propose to take off my hat and go out and see him. I haven't even sent him transportation. He wired that he would not report this year at the salary called for in his contract and that closes the incident with James as far as I am concerned. If the boy changes his mind well and good. But he will not get a penny more than the $4,000 and that $1,000 bonus. I told him he was foolish to sign up for three years. He told me that he knew his business. And there you are." Judging from Gaffney's attitude he means every word he says in the way he says it.

For pitchers it will be Rudolph, Tyler, Davis, Strand, Crutcher and Hughes as the regulars with a strong likelihood that the veteran Otto Hess will be carried along. Cochean and Cottrell look like doubtful members. Gowdy and Whaling will be behind the bat with the infield of 1915, providing Evers starts the season, and with Whitted as infield utility. Fred Mitchell will be kept for coaching at third base and for working with the pitchers which leaves places for three or four youngsters when the cut-to-fit comes on May 1.

Ottawa Has Already Chosen Town to Replace Peterboro

If Peterborough stick to their decision to drop out of the Canadian baseball league, it is likely that Niagara Falls will replace them. The Falls backers are anxious to get into the series and, as they have a good ball town, it might pay the Canadian League even better to take them in than to have Peterborough remain.

The next meeting of the League takes place in Toronto Friday. President Fitzgerald's circuit will be comprised by six teams: Ottawa, London Brantford, Hamilton, St. Thomas, Peterborough or Niagara Falls.

Manager Frank Shaughnessy of the local club, has received the signed contract of Louie Peterson, of his twirling staff, and Frank Smykal, Frank Kubat, his star left-hander, and Dolan have accepted terms. Art Lage, Rogers and Gero are hold-outs, having kicked over the terms offered them. George Nfll was not reserved by the Senators, and he is a free agent.

There is no chance of the Ottawas re-purchasing Jack Mitchell, as he is going to the coast with Indianapolis. The manager of the local club is satisfied with the way his players are returning their contracts and accepting terms. Dad Stewart of course, has been given his release to manage St. Thomas.

Frank Chance Hands Out Good Advice to Youngsters

Frank L. Chance, who managed the Yankees for a couple of sad seasons, and before that managed the Chicago Cubs, when they were at their best, has taken up a new occupation. He is now engaged in giving advice to young men who have ambitions to become great ball players.

Chance has several things to say to young baseball players. Here is some of the peerless leader's advice:

Remember one thing, boys, I am not going to preach to you, although at times I may appear to be doing so. I know that a "kid" hates to hear his elders moralizing over some topic or other that has to do with his play and amusement. But I am going to give you some pretty stiff lessons in leading a clean, athletic life, and these lessons I learned by what I saw in looking over the thousands of young players who passed before my eyes while I was managing big league ball clubs.

Physical condition is the greatest asset of a professional baseball player. As a matter of fact, the same is true of any person, whether he be boy or man, no matter what vocation he may follow through life.

A boy possessed of a delicate constitution, who is growing up into a frail, sickly appearing youth may become a great athlete and a wonderful ball player if he sets about it right, providing, of course, that he has the natural ability and inclination to play ball.

Temperance in all things is one of the keynotes of success of the modern "hero of the diamond." If a ball player leads an intemperate life he doesn't last long in the big leagues. He flames up like a comet to-day, but to-morrow he is gone, relegated to some "bush" league, where he either bitterly reproaches himself for having thrown away his life's opportunity or else tries to shift the blame from his own shoulders and unjustly accuses something else of being the cause of his failure.

Good physical condition means good health. Good health is founded on clean living, and the average boy who follows certain rules of living can acquire good health, even if he has the misfortune to be naturally frail physically. Good physical condition is one of the most important things in the make-up of a future big league star.

One of the first rules that the future ball player should lay down for himself is in regard to personal cleanliness. Nearly all ball players are scrupulously clean. They have to be. After every game the whole team breaks for the clubhouse and for half an hour there is the sound of shouting and splashing as the players soap themselves and stand under the shower baths. Boys, develop the habit of the daily bath. It will send you to school or to work feeling twice as fit as the man who bathes irregularly.

If you want to be a Ty Cobb don't smoke. But if you do smoke, at least use tobacco in moderation.

Here is one of the most important rules for a ball player, no matter what his experience, to follow: Be temperate in your eating. Gluttony, to my mind, is one of the worst sins of the decalogue. The average baseball fan doesn't know it, but many a great ball player has fairly "eaten himself out of the big league."

Wiarton Are Favourites For Intermediate Title

Wiarton and Orillia meet in the first game of the O. H. A. Intermediate series and here is how Lou Marsh sizes them up in the Toronto Star:

Wiarton will know that they have been to the races before they defeat Orillia in the intermediate finals. The Orillia squad are a good, husky crew with a good, sound defence, and plenty of method to their attack. Their two and three-man attack with a railer is always dangerous, and they have adopted the professional habit of quick back-passing with the man who makes the pass dodging out of the road of the shot and doubling back for the rebound.

Orillia's defence pair, Harvey and McNabb, are big, husky, rangy boys, who both weigh around the 170 mark. Ross, at centre, the ex-Peterborough boy, is a 160-pound lad, and so is Macdonald, the wing man. Draper, the ex-Collingwood junior, and Jupp, the speedy Orillia junior wing man, are the smallest men on the team Draper is a 148-pound boy of good, sturdy physique, and while Jupp probably does not register over 135 pounds, he is well-knit, and can give and take a bump with any of them.

Orillia has a team with a whole lot of speed. They like hard ice and lots of it, but notwithstanding that they can step on the slush, too, for they are both strong and resourceful and ready to adapt themselves to changed conditions.

Two Wiarton men with a cool thousand each to wager on the team's chances for a championship were in Orillia last night. They will not be burdened with the kale long. Some of Orillia's staunch supporters will unbelt one of these days, and Jack Hessey of the Orillia House will have another $2,000 in the old safe awaiting the decision of the final game.

Wiarton will go into the finals, with Orillia topheavy favourites. The north and west are all supporting the team which defeated Seaforth, Sarnia and Berlin. They certainly look good on dope.

"We beat them once, and we can repeat," is the Orillia war cry for the Wiarton series. Orillia fans say the year's team is fully 30 per cent. stronger and faster than last year.

MANY CLOSE SCORES MARKED OPENING OF LOCAL BONSPIEL

The Ice Was in Fine Shape and the Curlers Had a Big Night—First Round Will be Played This Evening—No Hitch in Schedule Arrangement.

Marked by close scores and exceptionally good curling the local bonspiel opened at the Charlotte Street rink last night with the entire fourteen preliminary games completed according to schedule. The ice was keen and invited good work. Everything went along smoothly in spite of the fact that quite a number of substitutions had to be made on account of the absence of some of the members. One result possibly was that on the whole the rinks were stronger. This is not intended to apply to skips, but is merely a general observation which may or may not be true. In any event the great majority of the games ran to close finishes, and if last night's curling is maintained the finals should furnish narrow margins.

To-night the first round of the primary games will be played and the consolation series begun. Referring to the substitutions an example is provided in the fact that George Morrow skipped R. M. Waddell's rink, and Dr. Wightman took Dickson Davidson's place. There were also substitute leads, seconds and vices, but in the appended scores the listed personnel is given and not the rinks as they actually played in each case:

WINNERS IN THE Y. BASKET BALL LEAGUE

Three good games were pulled off in the "Y" Basketball League last night, and interest is growing in the league as shown by the large group of both ladies and gentlemen in the gallery. The type of basketball that is being displayed is about fifty per cent. better than that in the last league, and by the time the play-off comes between the winners of A and B Divisions the teams should be showing a very high type of combination and skill.

In the first game between the Beavers and Collegiate it was nip and tuck right through the first half. At no time was one team more than two points ahead of the other, and the half finished 9—8, in favour of the Collegiate. In the second half, however, the Collegiate boys got their eye on the basket and succeeded in caging the pill from all angles. Canniff and Jobbitt did all the scoring, but Stuart played a fine game at centre, and Lewis and Eastwood stopped pretty nearly everything that came their way on the defence. The scoring for the Beavers was well divided up as usual. Capt. Dobbin played his usual game, covering all the floor all the time. The whole team played like trojans, but fate was against them. This was, from the spectators' point of view, the best game of the trio and there was something doing all the time.

In the Cressman-Unknowns game, it was all one way. The Unknowns led from the sound of the whistle, for which there is only one explanation—Cressmans had their off night. There was not a man in the team that played in his usual form. On the other hand the Unknowns were at top-notch and nothing could stop them; and if they continue to put up the brand of ball for the remainder of the competition that they have thus far they will make a big bid for the honours. W. Flowers was high scorer. He simply couldn't miss them and scored twenty out of the thirty-eight points made by his team, the others eighteen points being divided between the other members. Geo. Robertson and M. McCarrell of veteran fame showed that they have not lost any of their old-time form. McCarrell, at centre, was a tower of strength, and Robertson played his usual heady game. Smith and Mulhern both put up good ball. For the Cressman team the scoring was divided. Now that this team have had their off night they should come back hard for the next game. Tiny Palmer, one of the most consistent players on the team was off last night. This may have had something to do with the slump. The first half ended 13—3 in favour of the Unknowns, the final score being 38—11.

De Laval succeeded in capturing the scalp of the Junior Business men to the tune of 31—14. The first half was close, neither side being at any time in a position to feel at ease, and the half ended with the score 15—10, in favour of "Creams". In the second half the "Cream" continued to rise to the top and the Engineers did not seem to have enough current to stop it, with the result that the score was 31—14 in favour of De Laval.

The line-ups were:

Beavers—Lees, H. Flowers, Dobbin, Weers, Gilchrist.

Collegiate—Canniff, Jobbitt, Stuart Lewis, Eastwood.

Cressmans—H. Cressman, F. Cressman, Bartlett, Baynor, Darling.

Unknowns — W. Flowers, Smith, Robertson McCarrell, Mulhern.

De Laval—Taylor, Hamilton, Downing, Fitzgerald, Spratt.

Jr. Bus. Men—Cranfield, Metheral, Smyth, Bisson, Turner.

Time, 15 minute halves.

BOB STURGEON'S RINK GOT THE OTHER CUP

R. J. Sturgeon's rink brought home the consolation cup from the Campbellford bonspiel yesterday, Peterborough's two entries thus capturing everything in sight. The Sturgeon four defeated Cole, of Cobourg, in the final game by 22-6. The rink was composed of Percy Fitzgerald, Geo. Hill, Archie Moore, and R. J. Sturgeon, skip. Two cups added to the club's silver cabinet is a fairly good day's work.

R. M. WADDELL REACHED FINAL AT OSHAWA

By only one point R. M. Waddell dropped the consolation final to J. W. Brandon, of the Aberdeen Club, Toronto, in the Oshawa bonspiel yesterday. At the ring this morning it was stated that on the last end Waddell was lying three, sufficient to give him the game, but Brandon drew a pretty shot that gave the locals only a one end. The score was 19-11 and the Oshawa House Cup went to Aberdeens. As runners-up the locals won umbrellas. The rink was composed of John Brightman, Jas. Skinner, Geo. Benore and R. M. Waddell, skip.

They arrived home this morning and reported that they had been royally entertained.

UNFAIR TO FARMERS

Government Gives Agriculturists the Worst of it Says Mr. McCoig

OTTAWA, March 4.—The House adjourned at 6 o'clock to permit members to attend the reception at Government House, and the budget debate made little progress. Upon the orders of the day, E. M. MacDonald asked the Minister of Militia for some authoritative statement respecting the whereabouts of the first Canadian contingent and the casualties so far reported.

General Hughes said in reply that the 1st, 2nd and 3rd Brigades with the artillery were at the front and had behaved with great gallantry under fire.

Mr. Stevens (Vancouver) concluded his speech of yesterday on the budget, defending the Government against charges of extravagance. It had been objected, he said, that we were still maintaining a large and expensive staff of immigration officials, although immigration has practically ceased. Those officials, however, were on duty at every port of entrance in Canada, keeping a sharp lookout for spies and other alien enemies.

Mr. McCoig (West Kent) complained of the policy of the Government with respect to the purchase of horses. A maximum price of $175 had been fixed in Ontario and farmers were not allowed to export to the United States, where the British and French buyers were paying $217. Mr. McCoig complained that not a single member of the Government could be considered as a representative of the agricultural or laboring classes. They had, therefore, brought down a tariff which would bear heavily upon the farmers.

Mr. Wilcox (Essex) adjourned the debate.

Big Store Fire-Swept

BRANTFORD, March 4.—Starting in the basement of the E. B. Crompton Co.'s four-storey departmental store about noon yesterday fire, which swept through the whole store, completely gutted the building and did damage to the extent of 180,000.

Within fifteen minutes the blaze had gained so much headway that the roof at the back fell in. Both brigades turned out in full strength, but the firemen were unable to enter the building, and all their efforts had to be made from the outside. The employes of the store were not able to save their wearing apparel, so rapidly did the fire spread, and they were forced to the streets without hats or coats.

By quick action they were able to reach the streets in safety, and with the exception of the girls they all got out by the door ways. The girls who were employed in the lunch room being cut off from the exits climbed down the fire escape on Queen street

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, March 4.—The wage dispute of the engineers in the shipbuilding yards engaged on Government contracts was settled yesterday by an award of a committee representing the various interests concerned. THE HAGUE, March 4.—The German Legation announced yesterday that on March 1 a yacht opened fire with two small guns upon the German submarine U-21 in St. George's Channel. The extent of damage was not mentioned.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

DISTRICT REPRESENTATIVE ENDORSES THE POLICY OF THE EXAMINER

Norwood, March 3, 1915.

To the Editor, The Examiner,
Peterborough, Ont.:

Dear Sir,—I have noticed in the last two or three issues of your paper that you have given much valuable space for the purpose of urging city people to cultivate their back yards and vacant lots. In my humble opinion the City Board of Trade could do nothing better than inaugurate a similar scheme to that adopted by the Board of Trade of Moose Jaw. In this western city, the Board is endeavouring to have all owners of vacant lots give up their property for the cultivation of garden produce. If such a system were developed in Peterborough and all garden plots utilized for gardening, it would mean a direct saving annually of many thousands of dollars to your citizens.

There are many city people who would, doubtless, be glad to undertake the cultivation of their vacant plots but who may hesitate, owing to a lack of knowledge of the principles involved in the growing of garden crops. In view of this fact, the services of Mr. Macoun, the Dominion Horticulturist, have been secured for the evening of Friday, March the 5th, to discuss the question with the city people. This, therefore, is an opportunity which the citizens of Peterborough should not miss. I trust that a large number of people will turn out to hear an expert discuss this question.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, in anticipation of having this published, I remain,

Very truly yours,
F. C. McRAE,
District Representative.

RHEUMATISM HAS A FOE

Only those who have suffered the agonizing pains of rheumatism recognize the value of a remedy which gives relief. Rheumatism has met a foe in SLOAN'S LINIMENT. Its attacking qualities send the warm, red blood to the painful or congested part, bringing quick relief.

This most satisfactory and vouched for remedy has its further uses in all allied troubles, as bruises, swellings, sprains, or in fact anything which requires a good liniment.

Dr. Greer was in the rink at the time, and they both retired to the doctor's office where the minor wound received attention.

Young Doctor Testifies In His Own Behalf

Tamworth Physician Admits That the Girl Died in His House

DOCTORS BEAR HIM OUT

NAPANEE, Ont., March 4. — Dr. C. K. Robinson, of Tamworth, charged with the murder of Miss Blanche Yorke in that village in the month of July last, went into the witness box in his own defence here yesterday and confessed that the woman died in his bedroom about 1.30 on the morning of July 9; that he subsequently lost control of himself, and after attempting to conceal all evidence of her death, cut off the legs and hurled the body in the cellar of his house. Her death, he said, was the result of a homerrhage. She came to his home at 8.15 bleeding and suffering pains. He treated her and she started home, but returned about 10.30, bleeding worse than ever. The doctor said he saw she was about to have a miscarriage and took the only course possible and led her to his own bedroom to attend her.

He found complications which forced him to have recourse to immediate delivery.

"I stayed alone with her, trying everything in my power to save her life, but she became unconscious and died in the night," stated the young doctor in the witness box.

He told the court he had used no instruments whatever on the girl.

Again the court was packed to capacity, but at noon, when the large crown refused to leave the building during the intermission, each in fear he would not be one of the lucky ones to regain admission, Mr. Justice Sutherland ordered the room cleared.

A new and startling piece of evidence introduced in the morning was that of Provincial Inspector William Greer, who testified to finding a torn letterhead of Dr. Wilson of Tamworth between the bodies of the mother and child where they lay buried in the cellar.

Everybody, even Defence Counsel Robinette, was surprised at the announcement of this strange find, and afterwards admitted to the court that its introduction was the first he had known of its existence.

Robinson in the stand said he never saw it before and never had one of Dr. Wilson's letterheads in his possession.

Defence Counsel Robinet and Herrington put in the witness box two expert surgeons who backed up in practically every detail of Robinson's surgical proceedings over the dead girl. The court was visibly impressed by the practitioner's emphatic statements that his treatment and attempted operation was regular in every particular, and that if the conditions he said he had to deal with really existed the operation might easily have been unsuccessful with any physician.

Referring to Dr. Robinson's statement, that he was completely unnerved by the girl's death, Mr. Robinette asked Dr. J. W. Campbell, of Kingston,, what he imagined would be the mental condition of a physician after undertaking and failing in the treatment administered by Robinson.

"Well, as near as I can imagine, it is getting pretty close to hell itself," was the startling and emphatic reply.

It was nearly 4 o'clock in the afternoon when Mr. Robinette called Dr. Robinson from the prisoner's box to testify in his own defence. Owing to a crowd at the outlet of the dock, Robinson had to climb a little railing, and he nimbly leaped over it and walked confidently into the witness box.

Instantly every court room whisper died out, and Robinson's footsteps on the carpet sounded in the hush like the bang of a hammer. While he advanced to the box his young wife's head bowed still lower, but the eyes of his sister and other relatives, who have stuck alongside the young doctor all through the trial, followed his every movement.

Prosecutor Hutcheson put Dr. Robinson through a severe cross-examination lasting over three-quarters of an hour, but he did not shake the physician in any of his previous statements in the least.

At 8 o'clock in the evening, all the evidence was in and to-day the opposing counsel will address the jury. A verdict may be reached by tonight.

Labour Council Heard Report Of The City Father's Doings

Pursuant with their recently inaugurated policy of keeping tab on the City Council's proceedings, the Labour Council apparently had a member at Monday night's meeting. At a meeting of the Labour men last night there was a comprehensive report of what the City Fathers had done and their method of doing. It is understood that the Labour representative reported that Mayor Buller was to blame for the tangle over the voting on the question of giving the Medical Association a grant for the coming convention. It was stated that His Worship did not call for the negative vote, with the result that the Council reached one stage where they were not sure what they had done. Mentioning the fact that the Labour men have raised a periscope to watch the Council's activities may not be an incentive to more expeditious methods. It might be remarked that at times the Mayor would have a good excuse if he did overlook a detail.

PARIS, March 3—Mr. Take Jonescu, Roumanian Minister of the Interior, informed a meeting of conservative democrats who were discontented with the party's policy, according to special despatches from Bucharest, that he had not attacked the government because Mr. J. J. O. Bratiano, formerly Premier and Minister of the Interior, had concluded a formal agreement for common action with the Triple Entente Powers (Great Britain, France and Russia). Proof of this would be found, Mr. Jonescu said, in the Roumanian loan made in London, which it would have been impossible to arrange if the Bucharest Cabinet had not made a categorical statement of its position.

A Bucharest newspaper has announced that ten classes of reserves have been called out for March 13th, and that senior students in the military colleges have been drafted into the regular army, with the rank of non-commissioned officers.

The confident belief has been expressed in Great Britain and Russia that Roumania eventually would enter the war on the side of the Allies. A despatch from Paris on February 24th said the Matin's Bucharest correspondent had obtained information that Mr. Nicholas Misu, Roumanian Minister to London, soon would return to his post with a note assuring the British Government that the Roumanan Army would take the field in April.

An agreement was signed in London on January 27th, providing for a loan of $25,000,000 from the Bank of England to the Bank of Roumania against Roumanian treasury bills. The loan was the result of a trip to London of the Roumanian Finance Commission.

ELOQUENT ADDRESS BY DR. CAYLEY

At the usual Wednesday evening Lenten service at St. John's church last evening, Rev. Dr. Cayley of Toronto delivered an eloquent and inspiring discourse on the subject of Faith heroes. In the course of his remarks, he drew attention to the tremendous life people were now living, and the call came to all to rise the best and loftiest within reach. The heroic life was open to all. It could be realized in the domestic and business life as well as in the military sphere.

The principles of a life of heroism were to be found in the Bible. To-day men would take a fresh interest in the Bible. He referred to the twelfth chapter of Hebrews, recounting the different equipment of heroes of Faith, and citing the widely different characters of men who have achieved religious distinction in the Bible.

Rev. Dr. Cayley continuing, spoke of the present war and the wonderful possibilities before the world which might be attained through it, if Christian men everywhere made the most of the

Are you getting satisfactory results from your hens and milch cows? If not, there are two ways of doing so, and here's the recipe: For hens—Get a package of Pratt's Egg Producer for 25c and follow directions. For milch cows—Get a package of Ideal Stock Food and follow directions. Then take the eggs and butter to A. F. Choate's at Warsaw and get the highest price for the product. The Pratt's Egg Producer is guaranteed to increase the egg supply, and the Ideal Stock Food is the highest quality government tested food on sale in Canada. These are both for sale at Choate's.

On account of the high price of sugar and sugar products this year gives promise of being a very profitable one for maple syrup making. If you have 25 maple trees it will pay you to get pails and spouts and go into the business. These supplies should be ordered now at Choate's so that there will be no delay when the first and best run of sap comes.—A. F. Choate. 1d-53-1w-10

What's Doing in Civic Circles--Items of Interest Concerning Municipal Administration

So far as can be learned there is little prospect of a decrease in the civic tax rate. Practically all over Ontario, similar conditions exist as regards the tax rate. Municipalities are finding it difficult to hold down the rate at last year's level.

A Building Permit.

A building permit has been issued to the Bethany Tabernacle authorizing them to construct a partition in the driving shed adjacent to the church at an estimated cost of twenty dollars.

A Bye-Election.

If Alderman Johnston insists on resigning from the City Council a bye-election will have to be held. Alderman Johnston is the senior member of the Council, and his retirement will create a gap that will be hard to fill under the present trying conditions.

WITH OTHER COUNCILS.

That St. Marys has had no fire loss in over two years was reported to the Council by Chief Moyes. To be exact, there has not been a fire in 26 months.

EIGHTY UNIVERSITY ATHLETES IN ARMY

LONDON, March. 4.—Lord Kitchener's call on Oxford and Cambridge universities for recruits has been met with what the Premier, Mr. Asquith, termed, in addressing the House of Commons, a "magnificent response." Mr. Asquith's remarks were made in support of a bill granting to the universities special powers in financial matters to enable them to tide over the period of the war.

Two-thirds of the undergraduates of the two universities have joined the army, the total being close to 6,000. All undergraduates who are physically fit for service and are still in residence at the universities have joined an Officers' training corps.

Eighty of the eighty-nine members of athletic teams at the two universities have joined the army. Eighty-nine members of the staffs of the colleges at Oxford have gone into active service.

'Round the Stores

Already "housecleaning helps" for the annual spring renovating campaign are being advertised. The attention of housekeepers will be attracted by the Peterborough Hardware Company's handy and complete list of articles that come into demand as soon as the weather permits starting house-cleaning and renovating. There is such a generous host of home suggestions that the reader will be repaid by a careful perusal on the last

From curtain stretchers to paints and varnishes, the herald of the firm announces an array of requisites that should cover almost every want of the most thorough and painstaking housewife.

At Richard Hall & Sons.

Signs of spring are in the thought, if not in the atmosphere. Just yet there are no tulips to be seen above the ground, but the showing of apparel for spring at Richard Hall & Sons gives early glimpses of the spring shades and styles. New wash goods, with prices so little for such beauty. Don't think we can remember when there were ever such dainty and lovely designs and colourings as this firm shows this season. The new cool dress goods, so far shown, are worth a trip down town. Lovely wood taffetas, black French serges, and poplins, and new black and coloured silks—some of the "new things" you have heard a lot of talk about. Stylish spring top coats for women and misses are here in models suitable for street and auto wear is a variety of fabrics of decidedly good values. A few of the new spring suits are in, and more are coming, that the firm have induced the makers to add those telling little style touches that mean so much to the women who trade at this fine, big, resourceful store. Advices have just been received from Richard Hall & Son's London offices that the steamer "Carpathian," which has just been sighted, has on board a large consignment of new European novelties for the firm which was not expected to reach here. The "Carpathian" was one of the vessels that was recently reported chased by a German submarine.

At Cressman's.

Added efficiency in every direction is characteristic of the grouping of kindred departments by the Cressman Co. Since opening their new frontal department on the third floor, the increase of sales in allied goods, such as curtains, bedding, rugs, draperies, etc., have, it is said, been very noticeable. This new department means much for customers, who can make selections of almost everything required for the home furnishings without leaving the floor. First-class service is the rule at Cressman's.

At Porter S. White's.

A housewives' economy sale of foodstuffs was the feature in Porter S. White's grocery store all day to-day. It was called a "79c. day," in which various tempting options, comprising lists of various items of foodstuffs figuring up to over a dollar were sold for 79c. The combinations attracted attention in these days when every penny counts. It was plain that the buyers saved money, and it was a unique departure from regular selling.

At Barrie's.

The firm of Barries Limited, fur manufacturers, are busy making preparations for their long contemplated removal to their own new and modern store and factory building, next the Custom House. The particular part of these preparations, which will be of special interest to the public just now, are the firm's determined efforts to make final clearance prices on all their beautiful furs, which will result in saving the trouble of moving the greater portion of their goods. The expense of building has necessarily called for a large outlay of money, and thus the last month in their temporary premises will witness the sale of beautiful furs at prices which only the ready cash could warrant.

Canadian General Electric Company's

Annual Statement—Sharp Cut in Profits Reported, But Liabilities Heavily Reduced—New Directors

Unusual interest attached to yesterday's meeting of shareholders of the statement of the year's business submitted, in view of the abnormal conditions prevailing, and while the statement showed a decided falling off in profits, it is notable that, notwithstanding the financial situation that has existed during the past year, the company have been able to entirely wipe out their bank indebtedness, and also reduce their accounts payable to the extent of nearly a million dollars, the statement showing a reduction of liabilities in all of over $4,200,000.

In past years when profits have been at the highest, there has always been more or less criticism of the extent of the liabilities outstanding, but the rapid manner in which the current assets have been collected proves that with this company the assets are really liquid, and, although as stated above, the liabilities have been reduced by over $4,200,000, the company still has remaining liquid assets to an amount of nearly eight million dollars.

While the earnings this year were little more than sufficient to pay the dividend, it will be noted that the amount at the credit of profit and loss is now $940,762.88, which, added to the amount carried as reserve of $2,700,000, makes a total surplus of $3,640,762.88. In the directors' report there will also be noted a reference to the inactive reserve of $1,517,968.89, which, if added to the surplus, brings the total available reserve to over five million dollars, being 50 per cent. of the paid up capital, both common and preference.

Another significant item, particularly in these days of inflated capitalization, is the fact that notwithstanding large sums have been disbursed from time to time for the acquirement of patents, contracts and other manufacturing rights, all this expense has been written off, so that all the items that might properly be chargeable to good will, are carried on the books of the company at the nominal value of $1.00.

The company subscribed $50,000 for patriotic purposes. Mr. H. C. Cox, president of the Canada Life Assurance Company, and Col. the Hon. J. S. Hendrie, Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Ontario, have been elected to the board of directors.

MAPLE SYRUP SUPPLY LIKELY TO BE LIGHT

Wind Blows From Wrong Quarter, No Snow in the Woods and No Frost in the Ground, Other Reasons too, Probably If the Old Folks Could Recall Them

Around the market they have begun to speculate about the maple syrup output in the vicinity of Peterborough this year. Just now, apparently, things are in a bad way. First of all there is not sufficient snow on the ground. There are a lot of people around the City who are inclined to the opinion that there is too much snow for their liking, with a probability of more on the way before May flowers appear. But the maple woods refuse to liquidate — which means to produce liquid — unless there is considerable snow round about. Possibly there are just cantankerous, like some mortals we know. For it would be a cinch for the farmers to tap the trees and gather the sap if the woods were free from snow and the work offered but little difficulty. The trees are wise old bodies and in this particular case they act on the general principle that you work for all you get.

At any rate the wiseacres declare that the present lack of snow does not promise a copious flow of sap. Then again the wind has been blowing from the wrong quarter. It has been attacking the northwest gables of the houses too long to loosen up the sap. It is not known which wind encourages the maples to loosen up, but as a finality the northwest wind does not.

Then there is a third baneful influence, to wit, the lack of frost in the ground. Sappers on the G.T.R. (those who dig the postholes for the endless fences) have stated that there is next to no frost. And so it goes for what ever the report is worth, that the maple syrup season is likely to be a

Outcome Will Likely Depend on Decision of the Attorney General--Said to be Leaving Town

Crown Attorney Hatton is in Toronto to-day. His presence there may have something to do with the recent investigation into the death of Helen Brown, and the culminating tragedy of two nights ago. While it is generally understood that further investigation would cause the Attorney-General's department of Toronto may authorise a fuller investigation into certain matters of evidence that are in possession of the authorities. The death of the girl, upon whom an illegal operation is said to have been performed, and also the Doctor who was charged with the offence, eliminates the crucial point in the case. It remains to be seen whether the authorities will pursue their efforts to round up the parties who were in any way connected with the proceedings.

City Being Depopulated?

Among other things it is claimed that the police are in possession of the name of the person who put up the money for the operation, and that it eventually reached its destination, forms a part of a statement that is in the hands of the authorities. That is a point that will likely be traced out should further investigation be in order. They may even stick the probe in farther and unearth some of the movements of the parties connected with the case, prior to the death of the unfortunate girl.

Dame rumour has been working overtime during the past few days. Now that the first shock has passed over, people are beginning to speculate as to the number of persons that have left town as a result of the exposure. Any individual who takes a train out of town nowadays is apt to be regarded as a fugitive from justice. As a matter of fact nobody has had any justification for leaving town, with one possible exception.

As both Chief of Police Thompson and Crown Attorney Hatton are out of town to-day, it is impossible to say whether any additional investigations will be made. The Chief is in Agincourt in connection with another matter.

NEW LIGHT ON MASONIC CAREER OF WASHINGTON

From Early Manhood Active in the the Craft, He Sets an Example of Democratic Simplicity in His Fraternity Conduct

To draw a picture of the fraternal side of George Washington's career, a phase of American history that quite naturally has not crept into the books, one cannot do better than give the impression of an honest, critical boy who came into contact with the commander of the revolutionary force in the field.

Benjamin Russell, who was a grand master of the Masons in Massachusetts in the early years of the last century, was a boy when the battles of Lexington and Concord took place. In fact, on the morning of April 19, 1775, he was attending Master Carter's Town School in Scollay's buildings when the sound of martial music caused an unceremonious dismissal of school and the boys followed the soldiers. Young Russell enlisted in the cause and a little later this incident occurred, reference to which has been made before.

In camp one day he was passing a certain tent when the wind blew the flap aside. He saw inside many comrades assembled. One, a non-commissioned officer, seemed to be presiding, while General Washington sat among the men on the ground as one of them. Being accustomed to regard the commander-in-chief with the utmost reverence he could not understand why one of the least should be exalted in that meeting while the general was subordinate to him. Upon inquiry he was informed that the assembly he had seen was a lodge of Masons. So impressed was the boy with what he had seen that he resolved that he would become a Ma-

[illegible] old enough.

And he did become a Mason with honour to himself and to the commonwealth of Massachusetts.

But when the lodge meeting in the tent was over and the soldiers came out "Brother" Washington instantly became the general again and the master took his place humbly with his company.

Humble in Victory.

In the archives of the craft it is also recorded that immediately after the conclusion of negotiations at Yorkton, Virginia, in 1781, by the terms of which Cornwallis surrendered and the war was closed, General Washington, Layfayette, Marshall and Nelson went together to attend a meeting of lodge No. 9 in Yorktown, and there by their union gave testimony to the beautiful tenets of Masonry. Seated in the lodge room fresh from the victorious field and possibly contemplating the destiny of the new nation that had sprung into the world by the event of that day he again sat at the feet of Wisdom—simply, humbly, forgetful of glory, and lost in the thought of his own relation to God and man.

A few years later this same man stood, trowel in hand, the principal figure at the Masonic ceremony attending the laying of the corner-stone for the Capitol of the nation. And on April 30th, 1789, decorated with the Masonic emblems that had come to him from honourable service to the craft he took the oath of office as the first President of the United States.

Throughout the Masonic record of George Washington one fails to find any evidence of self seeking. Whatever Masonic honour came to him was the result of service he was asked to perform. He was initiated into Masonry while very young, as he was not twenty-one when he took his first degree. His second, however, was not conferred till he had arrived at the lawful Masonic age. He received his degree in Fredericksburg Lodge, No. 4, which was organized in Virginia under dispensation from the grand lodge of Massachusetts. — Christian Science Monitor.

Montreal Italians Demand Work.

MONTREAL, March 3.—Five hundred out-of-work Italians yesterday marched to the City Hall and asked for work. The City Hall and approaches to it were filled with police, though the members of the procession were most orderly. Getting no satisfaction, the Italians laid their case before the Italian authorities.

BRITAIN IS SATISFIED.

Imperial Government Approves Nickel Situation, Says Ferguson.

TORONTO, March 4.—The exportation of nickel came up for a brief discussion in the Legislature yesterday.

Sam Carter (Lib., Wellington) claimed that the nickel taxes were too light. The companies were getting away with stupendous profits and robbing Ontario of rightful income. His suggestion was that the Imperial Government take over the whole business on a public ownership basis. The Federal Government had invested millions in helping the wool industry and here was a better cause.

Mr. Ferguson, in replying, stated that without going the radical distance of confiscation, they could not control the export. The situation was unique and experts claimed that home refinement was impossible if world markets were to be retained. Twice had the Imperial Government declined to recommend nickel control and now they assured Ontario that they were satisfied. The commission would report on all phases. Messrs Bowman, Studholme, Proudfoot and Gamey joined in the discussion.

BELGIAN ARISTOCRATS LIVE ON $3.75 A WEEK

LONDON, March 3.—Harrington House, a famous mansion of London, overlooking Kensington Palace Gardens, presents a scene probably without counterpart since the days of the French Revolution. Its great halls are filled with homeless aristocrats, Belgians of high title and historic estates, who are now penniless and forced to accept support by private charity at the weekly expenditure of 2.75 each.

Exalted personages such as the Princess Christian, daughter of Queen Victoria, and the Princess Clementine of Belgium, have visited them, and at their Thursday afternoon receptions lords and ladies of Britain share their tea and bread and butter.

Three great mansions of London have been turned over to the use of the upper class refugees of Belgium. In them are about 125 guests, including not only titled personages, but also professional men of high attainments — lawyers, artists, musicians, architects, and the like—whose clients have been scattered.

This special refugee work was founded by Lady Lugard, organizer of the Belgian Relief Committee of London, which has already handled more than 100,000 homeless Belgians.

A Thursday afternoon reception in Harrington House is like any other large tea in a London drawing room —and quite unlike it. The room is magnificent, but the furnishings are few, simple, and cheap. The company acts in the manner of an aristocratic London gathering. The conversation is almost wholly in French, and has a tendency to cling to one subject—the war. Just now these owners of barren estates are excited over the German ultimatum to refugees to return to their country by the middle of March under the penalty of a heavy fine, to be paid by the sale of their properties. So far as regards land, the refugees know that such sales would be annulled in event of reoccupation, but they fear the loss of their movable possessions.

One thing which links these persons to their old life is their servants, who followed them to London and now serve them without pay.

SOUGHT TO EXCUSE RAIDS.

German Statements False Says British Foreign Office.

WASHINGTON, March 4. — A statement was issued last night by the British embassy, denying that Great Britain had declared all English harbors to be fortified places, and that women and children had been interned in civilian camps in Great Britain. The statement follows:

"The statement of the German Government in recent announcements to the effect that his Majesty's Government had declared all English harbors to be fortified places and naval ports, is wholly untrue. The object of circulating this statement is probably to offer an excuse to neutral powers for recent attacks on the civil population, and for contemplated operations of an illegal character against merchant shipping in British waters.

"The British embassy are authorized to declare that statements that have recently appeared implying that women and children were at any time interned in civilian camps in Great Britain are devoid of all foundation."

Sikh's Disk or Quoit.

Sikh soldiers can certainly claim to possess a unique form of weapon. This is a hand thrown missile composed of metal similar in shape to the discus, familiar in Roman history. Its edge is sharpened like a razor, and the weapon, when thrown with a peculiar circular motion, has extraordinary penetrating power. It cuts like a knife through paper when it strikes any object in its path.

At a distance of a hundred yards the disk is capable of cutting its way through a piece of hard wood two inches thick. It is the peculiar twist given to the weapon when it is thrown which causes the cutting edge to bury itself so remorselessly in anything that it meets. It is doubtful whether any but the Sikhs could effectively use this unique weapon.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Peterborough, Ont., March 3, '15.

Editor of Examiner,

Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—In to-night's issue of the Examiner it is stated that the investigation into the circumstances surrounding the death of Helen Brown will cease."

Why should the investigation cease now? Is there not room for further investigation, or is it now to cease lest the names or characters of some of the young and married men, implicated in the case, might be exposed?

Should not the young men who belong to the "Smart Set" bear the same exposure as the poorer class would have undoubtedly to bear?

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for space in your valuable paper, I am,

Yours, etc.,

"JUSTICE."

It is possible that the Attorney-General's department may authorize further investigation into the affair. Crown Attorney Hatton is in Toronto to-day and will probably take the matter up. As a matter of fact, if the authorities intended to pursue the investigation it is hardly likely they would go out of their way to inform the public until some actual developments occur.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—The war has made new conditions and our people are thinking about the present more than the future, but the future will shortly be the present, and it won't do to ignore that fact. Our taxes are high and our rents are not increased so it behooves the Council to take knowledge of the fact that economy is the order of the day. The people must economize, but the Council stand for all the people, and they must keep down expenditures and lessen the loads the people have to carry.

The fact that the money the Council grants and spends is the people's money should cause them to go slow. Yet there are some expenditures that should be made to enable the people to make the most of what they have. Our Street Railway was extended to Browntown, which was entirely outside of the Corporation, while a large section of the finest part of the City is kept back for want of street railway extension to accommodate that fine residential section of the City lying around the Normal School.

This extension would cause a rapid growth of population north of Smith Street, and this in turn will make the new extension profitable. It is suggested that the Street Railway has been paying well and this proposed extension will so increase its earning power as to more than justify the required expenditure.

Yours truly,

"Economy."

APPEAL BEING HEARD TO-DAY AT OSGOODE HALL

Mr. G. N. Gordon is in Toronto To-day in Connection With Currie vs Stares Case

The appeal of Frederick Stares against the judgment of His Honour Judge Huycke, in which Samuel Currie was awarded $25.00 in the County Court for alleged slander and false arrest, comes up at Osgoode Hall this afternoon in the Second Divisional Court. Mr. G. N. Gordon, who appears for the plaintiff, is in Toronto in connection with the case.

The case was tried at the General Sessions of the Peace. The jury on that occasion awarded Currie $25.00 on each count. The $25.00 for false arrest was eliminated in the judgment rendered by Judge Huycke. Some months before Currie had secured judgment for false arrest against a man named McGregor, who it is alleged, co-operated with Stares in effecting the afrest of Currie while the latter was attending a funeral. The Court held that Currie was not entitled to damages from two parties and threw out the second award of $25.00 awarded Currie for false arrest, in the second action.

POSTOFFICE AT SPRINGVILLE TO BE RETAINED

SPRINGVILLE, March 4. — The citizens of Springville are wearing a pleasant smile notwithstanding the chilly March winds. The cause of their rejoicing is the retaining of Springvile Post Office. A deep shadow crossed the path of our quiet hamlet just prior to Christmas, caused by a [illegible] served on our Post Mistress announcing the intention of the Post Office Department to close Springville Post Office. The announcement caused a general protest. Mr. F. E. Wilson, whom the community recognizes as a man of action, whose enterprise has secured such public conveniences as the Kendry Station, and the rural telephone service, realizing the very serious setback to the vicinity such an action would entail, was determined, if possible, to have the office retained. The assistance of Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., was solicited. His courteous request to the Department to further investigate, stayed the carrying out of the decree for one month. When the second notice was received, announcing the closing of the Office, a public meeting was held. A largely signed petition was in trusted to Mr. F. E. Wilson to present to the Postmaster-General, at Ottawa, with instructions to, if possible, retain the Post Office. Thanks to the Justice of the Department and the largely signed petition, so ably presented by the bearer, Springville Post Office still remains.

Mr. J. J. Herron, our enterprising storekeeper, reports business very satisfactory.

The increasing popularity of Rev. Geo. Crow is such that the congregation of the Presbyterian Curch, here, are considering extensive improvements to their Church.

Boles Bros. sold a team of draught horses to Mr. Gus White of Peterborough. The price was considerably over $400, evidence of the quality and condition of the stock of these enterprising horsemen.

Business at Kendry seems to boom these days. There is special demand for corn and hay. Our grain dealer, F. E. Wilson, being a practical farmer himself, knows their needs and tries to supply their wants.

There seems to be a revival of Shorthorn breeding in this section. Mr. H. Cathcart, Mr. Walter Bowles have invested in some young stock.

Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Mulligan who have been visiting at Mr. Cathcart's, anticipates an early return to the West.

Mr. L. Grandy of St. Thomas, Dakota, is visiting his uncle, Mr. Jos. Grandy.

Mr. H. Brown will soon reside in his new home.

Mr. Sidney Armstrong will occupy Mr. Brown's farm.

Miss Bertha Warem, who has been visiting Mrs. H. Clark, has accepted a position in Cleveland.

Miss Minne Warem has returned to Hamilton after a pleasant visit with Springville and Peterborough friends.

RECALL OF BRITISH SUPPLY BUYERS IS DEEMED SIGNIFICANT

CHICAGO, March 3.—Four English army officers from Montana, [illegible] and California met here on cable orders to return at once. They interpreted their recall to mean that England believes the Allied fleet by forcing the Dardanelles, will enable the Allies to utilize Russian supplies instead of buying from the United States.

The officers are Captain Thomas Ralston Webb, of the Royal Artillery; Captain Edward Force Stridmore, of the Royal Lancers; Captain Herbert Claxton, Second Northamptonshire Infantry, and First Lieutenant Earnest Howe St. Leonard, of the Subsistence Department. They have been stationed in the West and Northwest since the outbreak of the war, buying horses, mules and food supplies.

"The significance of these orders," said Captain Webb, "is that the Allied Powers have begun to see the beginning of the end. Millions of dollars have been expended in the United States by Great Britain and France. The imminent forcing of the passage into the Black Sea will put an end to this. Russia's immense surplus will be rushed to the Western nations by way of the Mediterranean."

FRENCH FLOTILLA DESTROYED A GERMAN SUBMARINE

FURTHER PROGRESS IN FORCING THE DARDANELLES

IMPRESSED BY IMMENSITY OF RESOURCES IN FIELD

Correspondents First Visit to the Front---Fall Will See the End of the War, They Say

Special Cable:

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS, France, March 5.—For the first time accredited correspondents have been allowed to enter that zone where men in khaki speaking English hold a portion of the allied line. Where the trench crosses a road French and British are elbow to elbow facing the Germans. French peasants and villagers are living and working under fire near the British guns concealed from German aeroplanes, guns which shake the houses as they fire.

Signs in English at the French crossroads give directions to traffic, and all French names are pronounced according to the English spelling, so that soldiers or officers will not fail to understand them. An impression of the immensity of the English resources is given by the great numbers of motor trucks, the completeness and thoroughness of all equipment, all food and all supplies brought from England, while French shops are thriving on English luxuries which they sell to the troops.

The French are learning to say, "Top dog." That expression is one I most often heard on my first day at the front from officers and men. "Top dog," says Tommy Atkins and the generals. You get it in broad Scotch, Irish and Cockney and in broken French. It expresses the opinion that the turn of the tide has come and that the worst is past.

FALL WILL SEE VICTORY.

The British artillery fire, which was weak early in the campaign, is now stronger than the German fire all along the line.

Once correspondents are allowed at the front everybody talked with perfect frankness about the scope of the operations ,and instead of long luncheons and dinners and the functions which generally characterize such tours, we were usually awakened at 6.30 o'clock in the morning and kept going until 8 o'clock at night, with first aid packages served out at the breakfast table. You might think from the stability of all our appointments that the British had no expectation of a long war. Yet the universal opinion is that Fall will see victory and the end of the conflict.

The thin line of troops which comprised the British front in the battle for the coast cities is now much deeper.

My surprise at the excellence of the aeroplane service, since the corps is only three years old, is not due to the superior flying, but to the thoroughness of the equipment of the mechanical department and the prodigality of expenditure for all the necessary assistants and resources. Everything except the actual manufacture of engines is accomplished at the front. The engines are assembled and the wings are made in different shops near the aeroplane base. Successful reconnaissances have become a matter of mechanical care and organization. The British aviators are proud of the fact that whenever they start to chase a German flies, whether over their own or over the enemy's lines, the German always avoids risking his machine in combat, while the Briton seeks a fight all for the sport of it.

VERY LITTLE SICKNESS.

In the office of the medical corps there are charts of sickness, which is less than among the troops at home, despite the strain when the men take their turn in the trenches. This is the result of giving them all the wholesome food they can eat, plenty of air when they are not in the trenches, the enforcement of all sanitary regulations and remorselessly strict discipline. Frostbite, which was frequent in December and January, has been overcome by making the men loosen the cloth puttees, which became wet and binding, stopping circulation, and by taking off their boots at intervals.

"We change shifts in the trenchees," said a British brigadier at the front, "sometimes every forty-eight hours, sometimes less or more frequently. All depends on the hardships keeping the men fit."

This brigadier pointed out places where the positions on both sides, despite attacks and counter-attacks, are the same as they were last October, and there might as well have been an understanding to rest for the winter and start in the spring when the ground is dried. Though dead from the various attacks lie between the trenches even close to the parapets, the Germans would not agree to an armistice to bury them .

NO HATRED OF GERMANS.

Much has been heard of the hatred which the Germans entertain for the British. But here at the front I found no evidence of hate by the British despite their determination to fight to the finish.

"The Germans hate us because we are going to be 'Top dog' soon," says Tommy Atkins.

From the commander-in-chief down simple living and the duty of keeping well are rigidly followed. Sir John French occupies a private house. His office is in the drawing-room, where the appointments are undisturbed. He dines with his aides in the dining hall and the other rooms are used for the staff officers. Dinner there one finds is much like a dinner at mess in England, the talk running on other subjects than war, and it is hard to realize that the fighting front is no near. Sir John, ruddy and alert, shows no signs of the strain of the last eight months.

Dr. Robinson Goes Free on Jury's Verdict

"Not Guilty" Their Decision Yesterday Afternoon After Three Hours' Deliberation

Special to The Examiner:

NAPANEE, MARCH 4.—Dr. C. K. ROBINSON, OF TAMWORTH, WAS THIS AFTERNOON FOUND "NOT GUILTY" OF THE MURDER OF BLANCHE YORK. AFTER BEING OUT FOR NEARLY THREE HOURS THE JURY RETURNED SHORTLY BEFORE FOUR O'CLOCK. AS A RESULT OF THE VERDICT, DR. ROBINSON IS NOW A FREE MAN.

NAPANEE, March 4.—After the jury had filed from the court room at a quarter to one o'clock this afternoon, Mr. Robinette rose to ask that they be charged on certain points which he claimed his Lordship had not touched. He also disagreed with the instructions given by the judge that the jury could, if it saw fit, render a verdict of manslaughter. If it were not murder, he contended, it was nothing, and he read extracts from the Criminal Code on the point.

The jury was called back at 1.15 o'clock, the judge explaining that they could find a manslaughter verdict only if gross negligence on the part of the prisoner was proven. He also charged them on most of the points mentioned by Mr. Robinette.

Six German Submarines Lost to Date

SPECIAL CABLE:

LONDON, March 5—Six German submarines have been lost since the beginning of the war, it was asserted at the Admiralty to-day, following the announcement from the French Ministry of Marine that the German U-8 was sunk by French destroyers in the Channel off Dover. These include the U-15, sunk by the British Cruiser Birmingham, August 9th; the U-12, rammed by a British patrol boat, Nov. 23; the U-8, sunk by the French, and three other submarines, whose identity has not been established. The Admiralty, in compiling this estimate, gives full credence to the story of the Captain of the collier Thoredis, that he sank a German "unterseeboote" on Jan. 23.

TURKISH STRONGHOLD WILL SOON CRUMBLE

Heaviest Fighting Inside the Dardanelles is Yet to Take Place---Allied Fleet Will Meet With Strong Resistance

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 5.—Pounding away at the forts Kilid Bahr and Chanak, 145 miles from Constantinople, the allied fleet has made further progress in its attempt to force the Dardanelles, Athen despatches asserted to-day. Chanak's fire has become more feeble and Vice-Admiral Carden is confident that the Turkish stronghold will crumble within 48 hours.

But in spite of optimistic reports from Athens the Admiralty officials declared to-day that the heaviest fighting inside the Dardanelles is yet to begin. Steaming past Kilid Bahr and Chanak, the allied fleet will meet the plunging fire of modern Krupp guns for a distance of nearly twenty miles before they emerge in the Marmora sea, for the final dash upon the Ottoman capital.

From the high hills overlooking the waterway more than a mile in width, German and Turkish artillerymen will hurl ten after ten of metal down upon Carden's great fleet, which will be further menaced by mine fields. The Admiralty issued a warning to the British public not to expect the fall of the Sultan's capital without an obstinate and prolonged resistance. Fort Namazieh, overlooking Kalid Bahr on the European side, is pouring to latest despatches from Athens the British battleships, accord- [illegible] Athens. The [illegible]'s modern guns, evidently manned by Germans are keeping the bombarding fleet at a distance of several thousand yards from Kilid Bahr, whose weaker guns are sending shells that fall short of the battleships. None of Namazieth's three batteries has been silenced.

Woman Crazed By War Leaps From Window

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, March 4—Overpowering two nurses, after she had beaten and scratched them and torn off their dresses, Mrs. Anna Huebner, who had been driven insane by the European war, leaped from a third floor window of Dr. Hanson S. Ogilvie's sanitarium, at No. 3. West Eighty-sixth street, last night, and was killed.

Residents of a large apartment hotel adjoining the sanitarium on the Central Park West side and of the dwellings on the other side and in the rear heard the screams of the nurses as they struggled with the insane woman, and for half an hour there was much excitement in the neighbourhood.

Mrs. Huebner, forty-two years old, and her husband, Henry Huebner, of No. 250 West Ninety-second Street, went to Europe in the early part of last summer to see their relatives, whol live at Furtzheim, on the Rhein. While they were there the war began, and Mrs. Huebner saw her three brothers go to the firing line and her three sisters become nurses.

Before Mrs. Huebner and her husband were able to leave Europe for America she heard of the death of one brother and the wounding of the two others. This caused a severe mental depression. When she reached New York in September she was melancholy.

Then she read most of the newspapers each day, spending most of her time in going over the war news. This tended to deepen her depression, and for several weeks Mr. Huebner had an attendant with her day and night.

She became so violent on Sunday that she was sent to the Sanitarium of Dr Henry Krueger, of No. 191 West Ninety-first street. There two nurses were assigned to be with her all the time.

Miss Esther Westergreen and Miss Mary Mealy, nurses, were with her at 7 o'clock last night when she made an excuse to go to a lavatory. They insisted upon accompanying her. Inside the small room Mrs. Huebner locked the door and then tried to reach the window.

Mrs. Huebner was a large woman, and the nurses were quite small. They siezed her, and in the struggle, in which the nurses continued to scream, their faces were scratched, and their dresses torn off. Mrs. Huebner raised the window and the nurses clung to her, but she beat them almost savagely with her fists.

Suddenly her night dress ripped when the two young women had fastened their holds. She beat them into a corner and then dived from the window, head first. Her head struck on the edge of an extension roof and she bounded into the courtyard, uttering a scream as she went.

In the meantime the screams of the nurses had been heard throughout the sanitarium and other nurses and two physicians tried to enter the room, but were balked by the locked door.

Mr. Huebner, who is in business at No. 2743 Broadway, said that since the war began he had feared his wife would end her life.

TWO FRENCH SPIES SENTENCED TO PRISON TERMS IN GERMANY

Special Cable to The Examiner:

BERLIN, (by wireless telegraph to Satville, L. I., March 4—Included in the news items given out to-day by the Overseas Agency are the following:

"The Leipsic Fair was opened yesterday. About two thousand five hundred exhibitors had goods on view and all the neutral countries sent buyers. There was to be seen, among other things, a special exhibition of goods designed to replace products which formerly were supplied to Germany by countries now at war with her.

At a recent meeting of the Budget Committee of the Prussian Diet all the members present expressed their appreciation of the excellent service rendered by the German railroads during the war. About one hundred and thirty-five hospital trains are now being operated in Germany, with a total of 4,000 cars. The sum of 407,000,000 marks ($102,000,000) was allotted for new railroad construction. Of this amount the East Prussian railroads got from 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 marks ($4,000,000 to $5,000,000).

"The Supreme Court of the Empire has sentenced two French spies, one to six years' and the other to eight years' imprisonment, for transmitting German military secrets to Belfort, France."

"THE GRELL MYSTERY"

By Frank Froest

The necessity of a conference broke up further conversation. Gathered in the building were some thirty or forty departmental chiefs of the C.I.D., the picked men of their profession. Most of them were divisional detective inspectors who were in charge of districts, and some few were men who had special duties. They were ranged about tables in a lofty room, its green distempered walls hung with stiff photographs of living and retired officials. Men of all types were there, from the spruce, smartly groomed detectives of the West-end to the burly, ill-dressed detectives of the East. Between them they spoke every known language. Here was Penny, who had specialized in forgeries; Brown, who knew every trick of coiners; Malby, the terror of race-course sharps; Menzies, who had as keen a scent for gambling hell as a hound for a fox; Poole, who was intimate with the ways of railway thieves and shoplifters. Not one but thoroughly understood his profession, and knew where to look for his information.

Foyle took the chair, and the buzz of conversation became general. It was a business conference of experts. Views were exchanged on concrete problems; the movements of well-known criminals discussed. "Velvet-fingered Sed" had disappeared from Islington and reappeared in Brixton. "Tony" Smith was due out of prison. Mike O'Brien had patched up the peace with "Yid" Foster, and when they got together—

So the talk went on, and so every district learned what was taking place in other districts. The superintendent sat silent for a while, listening. At last his smooth voice broke in.

"The man Ivan, whose description was circulated, is not to be touched now. Tell your men to let him alone if they come across him."

There was a deep chorus, "Very good, sir," and Foyle, with a nod of dismissal, left the room. He stopped to make an inquiry in the clerk's office, and passing along the corridor unlocked a door and pressed a bell.

In under half an hour a big labourer, with corduroys tied about the knees, lurched unsteadily out of the Lost Property Office and passed into Whitehall. Rough, tousled hair, an unkempt moustache, and a day's growth of beard on the chin were details warranted to stand inspection. Heldon Foyle rarely used a disguise, but when he did he was careful that nothing should get out of order. Hair and moustache were his own, dyed and brushed cunningly. Yet, when he reeled against Green near the Albany, the inspector, who was an observant man, pushed him roughly aside with an anathema on his clumsiness.

"Didn't 'urt you, did it?" stormed the labourer aggressively. "'Course I look where I'm going.' Then in a lower tone: "Im Foyle. I got your telephone message. Anything moving now?"

"If you don't go away I shall call a constable." Green had been quick to see his cue and spoke loudly. He went on rapidly. "He hasn't stirred it. A post office messenger has just gone in with a letter for him. I said I was expecting one, and got a glimpse at it."

"All right, old pal. Don't get excited. You go home and tell the missus all about it," retorted the labourer.

Green walked rapidly away, spoke a few words to a man who was standing on the other side of the road, deeply interested in a bookseller's window, and departed.

The superintendent felt in his pockets and produced a couple of boxes of matches. A constable strolled up, dignified and stern. A swift word in an undertone sent him away with burning cheeks.

In half an hour Foyle had sold a box of matches, for which he received sixpence with profuse thanks and inward disgust. If he sold his second box and still hung about, his loitering without excuse might attract undesirable attention. The contingency, however, did not arise, for a minute or two later Fairfield himself strolled into the street. Foyle rushed to open the door of a taxicab, which he hailed, but another tout was before him. Nevertheless, he heard the address.

"Grave Street, Whitechapel," he murmured to himself, as the cab slipped away. "Ivan has got to work."

A short argument with a second cabdriver, who distrusted his appearance, was cut short by a deposit of five shillings as a guarantee of good faith, and the superintendent also began the journey. Behind him a third cab carried the man who had been so deeply interested in the bookseller's window.

CHAPTER XIII.

Grave Street, Whitechapel, is not a savoury neighbourhood. One may pass from end to end of its squalid length and hear scarce a word of English. Yiddish is the language most favoured by its cosmopolitan population, although one may hear now and again Polish, Russian, or German. In its barrack-like houses, rising sheer from the pavement, a chain of tenancy obtains, ranging from the actual householder to the tenant of half a room, who sublets corners of the meagre space on terms payable strictly in advance. A score of people will herd together in a room a few feet square, and never realize that they are cramped for space.

Here you will find petty thieves, versatile rascals ripe for any mischief, and sweated factory workers; here sallow-faced anarchists boldly denounce the existing order of things to their fellows and scheme the millenium. Slatternly women quarrel at the doors, and horse-flesh is a staple article of diet.

The neatly dressed Fairfield descending at the end of the street from his taxicab was as conspicuous among the unshaven idlers who hung about the pavements as the moon among the stars.

Sir Ralph picked his way towards a newspaper shop, his mind full of the message that had brought him to the spot. The letter delivered by the messenger had contained but a few words in printed characters.

"If you would learn the truth about the murder in Grosvenor Gardens, come immediately to No. — Grave Street."

There was no signature, no clue to the identity of the writer. Fairfield had leapt at the chance to do something. Even if it were a hoax it would occupy his mind for a time, and take his thoughts away from the sinister shadow that overhung him. So anhow, however, he did not think it was a hoax.

The newspaper shop displayed the number given in the note on its grimy facia. The baronet, as he moved towards it, was unconscious of the slouching figure of the labourer, who had been selling matches near the Albany, a few paces behind him. His foot was on the threshold of the shop when a man, black-bearded and swarthy, pressed an envelope into his hand.

Foyle watched the incident and his pace quickened. Before Fairfield had time to do more than glance at the inscription of the envelope he was abreast. He lurched inward and his fingers snatched quickly at the note. The next instant he was running with long, even strides for the open of the main road.

It was barefaced robbery, of course, but he had not the inclination to stick at trifles. That the note had some bearing on the case he was investigating he felt certain. There was only one way to get it at once, and that was to steal. Anywhere else but in Grave Street he would have waited to face the matter out. Not that Grave Street would have frowned upon a theft, but that he would have been forced to reveal his identity, and Grave Street was not a healthy neighbourhood for solitary detectives.

Sir Ralph stood thunderstruck, but some one else acted. The black-bearded man had disappeared. From somewhere there were a couple of dull thuds like a hammer falling upon wood, and Foyle heard the whistle of bullets over his head.

"I'll get even for that," he muttered between his teeth, but his headlong flight never slackened.

Behind him was a clatter of pursuing feet. Fairfield, recovering himself, had raised a cry and it was taken up.

"Stop thief! Hold him!"

He passed the man who had been so eagerly intent on the bookshop. The man made a clutch at him, missed and fell headlong right in the path of Fairfield, now a few paces behind. The baronet tripped over his body and was thrown violently to the ground.

Foyle made a mental note in favour of Detective-Sergeant Chambers, who had, so adroitly, [illegible] the pursuit. As he [illegible] main road he slackened [illegible] a sharp walk, and dived into an underground station. He breathed a sigh of relief as he passed down the steps to the platform.

He had anticipated trouble, but pistol-shots in broad daylight, even in Grave Street, had been outside his calculations. He had recognized the peculiar report of an automatic pistol. His adversaries, whoever they might be, were obviously very much in earnest. Pistol-shooting at detectives is not a commonplace pastime even with the most reckless of criminals. Foyle decided on another and early visit to Grave Street, and promised himself grimly that the target should be some one else, if it came to shooting again. He was in danger of losing his temper.

Not until he had got in the train did he open the note that was still between his fingers. He frowned as he read it.

"Curse it! This comes of acting on impulse. Why couldn't I have waited! I had the whole thing in my hands."

The note said simply:

"I am alive. I must see you. Follow the man who gives you this note.—R.G."

Heldon Foyle had seen much of Robert Grell's writing during his search of the house in Grosvenor Gardens, and had no doubt that the note was his. His peace of mind was not increased by the reflection that had he waited and continued to shadow Fairfield he might have discovered the whereabouts of the missing diplomat. Now he had merely given notice as plainly as though he had shouted from the housetops that Fairfield was under observation. He had committed a blunder, and he did not forgive blunders easily, especially in himself.

Even a bath and a change into his normal clothing did not restore his equanimity. In his office he found Green, with a strange excitement in his usually stolid face.

"Hello, Mr. Green. What's wrong?" he demanded.

"Waverley missing! That's nonsense. He was put on to relieve Norman in shadowing Abramovitch."

"He's missing," repeated the other doggedly. "Ivan went into a shop with an entrance in two streets, and the man who was assisting Waverley slipped around to the other side. He waited there an hour, and then went to look for Waverley."

The superintendent gave a short, contemptuous laugh.

"Green, I guess you've been working too hard lately. You ought to apply for a fortnight's leave. Can't you see, Ivan came out and that Waverley never had time to give the tip to his man, but followed him straight away? There ought to have been three men on the job."

Green drew himself up stiffly. Foyle had not recovered from the irritation caused by his own mistake, otherwise he would not have spoken as he did. Green was not the kind of man to hastily jump to conclusions.

PIMPLES
APPEARED ON HIS FACE AND HANDS.

The primary cause of pimples arises from the blood not being in a good condition. When the blood becomes impure you will find that pimples will break out all over the body, but more particularly on the forehead, nose and chin, and although they are not a dangerous trouble, they make you appear unsightly both to your friends and yourself. What you need, when these pimples break out, is to get a real good blood purifying medicine such as Burdock Blood Bitters. One that will build up the system by cleansing the blood of all the impurities and poisons which cause the skin to break out in these eruptions.

Mr. F. A. McKenzie, Portage La Prairie, Man., writes: "Last summer I was all run down and unfit for work of any kind. All kinds of food seemed distasteful to me. Pimples appeared on my face and hands, and I seemed to grow worse every day. One day a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. Half-heartedly I did so, and the results obtained were marvellous. I regained my health, I took on flesh, and in a short time the pimples and skin eruptions disappeared entirely; thanks to the healing powers of B.B.B. I freely recommend it to all sufferers."

Justice of Peace Praises Dr. Chase's Ointment
After Nine Years of Agony He Escaped an Operation by Using This Great Healing Agent.

As a means of healing sores and wounds that defy ordinary treatment Dr. Chase's Ointment has long stood supreme. It is known far and wide as a positive cure for eczema and piles. Whatever uncertainty there may be about the results obtained by the use of medicines taken internally there can be no question of the healing of the skin when Dr. Chase's Ointment is applied. You can actually see with your own eyes just what takes place. The sore parts are cleansed and gradually the new skin is formed and the sore becomes smaller and smaller, until it finally disappears. It is often wonderful the results which are accomplished in a single night by the use of this great healing ointment.

MR. HEATH.

Mr. N. A. Heath, J.P., Pitch Bay, Que., writes:—"Nine years ago I was taken with an abcess, and cannot begin to describe what I have suffered as a result. I was examined by two doctors, both of whom said I would have to undergo an operation to be cured. Thanks to Dr. Chase's Ointment, it has rendered an operation unnecessary, and has completely cured me. I cannot say enough in praise of this wonderful ointment which cured me after nine years of agony."

THOU ART OF PURER EYES THAN TO BEHOLD EVIL

There is no question which has drawn more copious explanations from the orthodox churches than that of the existence of evil in a world created by a God who is of purer eyes than to behold it. The explanations have been many and lengthy, but the fact that not one of them has ever been found conclusive enough to settle the matter exposes the measure of their futility. Archbishop Whately, who possessed the mental agility sufficient to prove, in a brilliant jeu d'esprit, that Napoleon Bonaparte never existed, gave up the theological riddle in despair, dismissing it as "the problem of the ages." It has been the problem of the ages most emphatically, even more so than the attempt to square the circle, or to discover the philosopher's stone. The remarkable thing is that the world, having had the whole matter fully explained to it by Jesus of Nazareth, industriously sought the solution for eighteen centuries, and then, when it was again offered to it by Mrs. Eddy, crossed the road like the priest and the Levite, to avoid seeing it, or became vituperative like the Scribes and Pharisees.

The fact is that, for some totally incomprehensible reason, the man in the street, though the problem is an indissoluble puzzle to him, resents any solution which deprives him of the satisfaction of believing that God is conscious of his suffering. It is a species of fatalism founded on a picture of God as a glorified human being and the actual cause of the irrin of orthodox theology, at the best of being deprived of the satis-
on of a God conscious of its suffer-far less logical. Coquetting with tural science, he commits himself to sort of Darwinian theory by which rough some curious process of evolun, Adam, in process of time, is nverted into Gabriel, very much as the mollusc becomes man. It is an ingenious attempt to solve "the problem of the ages," but it is one, we may be tolerably sure, from which the keen logic and wit of Whately would have revoltde, even as Jesus so emphatically pointed out, "That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit," a fairly clear indication that matter and not Spirit would continue to be born of matter. The third method is the one commonly adopted by popular theology. Eternal Life is somehow cut short by death with the effect that after the corruption of the body in the earth, eternal life is somehow resurrected in a material body doomed to punishment in hell or a spiritual body destined to joy in heaven. The first of these three methods denies God altogether, and the remaining two require His consciousness of sin, disease and death.

The human mind, being itself material, can conceive only in terms of matter. It is generally incapable of grasping the abstract fact, perfectly clear to materialistic metaphysicians, like Plato, Spinoza, or Kelvin, that matter is merely an appearance produced, as darkness or inharmony, from a suppositious absence of a positive. It is quite true that the materialistic metaphysician has always described matter as unreal, simply because it was to him only a phenomenon resulting from a material noumenon which was real. This, however, was specifically where he differed from the relentless idealism of Jesus, who insisted not only that matter was a phenomenon, produced by a material noumenon, but that that noumenon was itself only the lie about a spiritual noumenon, God, the only reality.

The Bible makes this perfectly clear from Genesis to Revelation, but orthodox theology accepts the premises of the Bible only to reject its inevitable deductions, for the reason that these deductions, not being material, are outside its method of thinking, which is only in terms of matter. God, the Bible says, is Spirit, and this Spirit made everything that was made, and made it good. The human being, again, was made out of the dust, matter, and the flesh profiteth nothing. Did, then, Spirit make unprofitable matter, and describe it as good? The very idea is unthinkable and illogical, and is disposed of in the saying of Jesus, that the flesh is of its father, the devil or evil, and abides not in the truth, in other words, in reality it never has existed.

Now this is a metaphysical statement of absolute Truth, and is, consequently, capable of demonstration. Demonstration is exactly what was demanded by Jesus when He said that those who believed in Him or understood His teaching would be able to do His works or repeat his demonstrations. Here, then, Mrs. Eddy, on page 329 of Science and Health, repeats Jesus' demand for proof, just as she has restated His premises: "In Science we can use only what we understand. We must prove our faith by demonstration."—Christian Science Monitor.

Broad Brimmed Hats.

Toward the end of the thirteenth century big broad brimmed hats were fashionable in Austria. They were of such huge dimensions that it was under one of them could not be recognized. A poem written by Johannes Hadlaub expresses disgust with the style and the hope that the hats might be consigned to the Danube "so that the pretty faces of our women might once more become visible."

LEARNING TO SWIM.

Army Horses Are Given a Thorough Training In Aquatics.

There is a saying that the May colt swims best—that is, that colts born in the month of May take naturally to water.

Such a proverb must not be taken too seriously, but certainly it is a fact that some horses are much more fond of water than others. The contributor once owned a pony which would wade out into a small lake and deliberately swim across to an island where the grazing was good, and later on come back to his stable quite on his own account.

There are other horses which flatly refuse to face deep water.

An army on the march may at any time encounter a river which it is necessary to cross, and, in the case of a cavalry raid or reconnaissance, there may be no time to find a bridge.

Consequently, all army horses are taught to swim. Swimming lessons are carried out under the eye of the veterinary officer or of the riding master of the regiment, and only experienced men are permitted to be in the saddle.

Every care is taken not to frighten the animal; for a horse, being naturally timid, will never get over the scare if forced roughly into deep water.

The riders are dressed in old suits of fatigue clothes which will not suffer from a wetting, and on the first day the horses are simply walked into the shallow edge of the pond, no deeper than enough to cover their fetlocks.

Of course, there is a lot of snorting and shying, but by dint of coaxing this is soon overcome.

Next day saddles are taken off and the horses are persuaded to go a little deeper—perhaps up to the belly. Day by day they are induced to go a little farther in, and by the fourth or fifth day most start swimming quite naturally.

At first their riders swim beside them, in order to give them confidence. It is a risky business for a man to swim beside a horse until he is thoroughly accustomed to so doing. If he swims too close he may get a dangerous blow from the animal's hoofs.

As soon as an army horse swims easily he is next taught to swim beside a boat. Light collapsible boats are used, and as many as five or six horses can be taken across a river behind or alongside each boat.

The last lesson is to swim with a rider on his back. A horse naturally swims rather low in the water, and, with the weight of a man on him, the animal has only his head above the surface.

When a cavalry regiment crosses a river it divides up into troops, and one man swims across with a line. Then a boat or raft is pulled across, and a strong rope made fast the far side.

Meantime, saddles have been taken off and, with only their head collars and head ropes on, the horses are brought alongside the boat, five or six at a time, and the boat worked across by the rope.

In this way even green horses can be forced to swim; for, the boat being hauled by the rope instead of worked by oars, the animals are simply dragged behind it.

REGIMENTAL BADGES

Famous Corps Proud of Special Marks of Distinction

In the stories of the origin of the regimental badges and crests which decorate the uniforms and helmets of famous corps can be found many soul-stirring episodes of Britain's military glory. The official badge of the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry is similar to that of a number of other line regiments—namely, the united red and white rose. But they also have a special badge made up of a bugle with strings, a turreted archway, and two red feathers. The former commemorates the defence of Lucknow, while the two feathers recall an incident in the history of the 46th (South Devonshire) Regiment of Foot and the 2nd Battalion of the present regiment, in the American War of Independence, when the 46th harassed the Americans so effectively that they swore that they would give no quarter to this unit. So to prevent mistakes the 46th dyed their feathers red, and this distinction has been retained by them and by no other regiment.

A distinctive feature, too, of the badge of the Royal Sussex is the white plume, which, with the Maltese Cross, forms the collar badge of the regiment. This badge was the outcome of the prowess of the predecessors of the 1st Battalion, the 35th, who at Quebec took the plume from the Royal Rousillon French Grenadiers.

The 14th Hussars carry the Prussian Eagle as a badge, which they were accorded the doubtful privilege of wearing in 1796 by the Duke of York, second son of George III., then Commander-in-Chief of the British army, in honor of his wife, a daughter of King Frederick William II. of Prussia.

The Brigade of Guards are fortunate in possessing company badges, which are borne in rotation on the regimental color of each battalion. The Grenadiers have thirty of these badges, including "a stock of a tree putting forth a green shott," "a silver falcon within a golden fetterlock," "the sun in splendor," "the sun in the clouds," and "the white greyhound with golden collar and chain." The Coldstreamers and the "Jocks" each have two dozen company badges, those of the former including "a spotted panther," "a centaur," "a dun cow," "a white boar with golden bristles," and an "escarbuncle," while the baby of the brigade, the Irish Guards, has eight of these special marks.

Suffered Intense Pain in Her Back.

Could Hardly Do Her Housework.

If a pain attacks you in the back "stop and think" what it is and what causes it.

If the kidneys are at fault—and in a large majority of cases of pain in the back they are—doctor them at once, and doctor them persistently, as it is impossible to have a well strong back unless the kidneys perform their functions properly.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all forms of kidney trouble, and cure them to stay cured.

Mrs. H. F. Jacob, Lavant Station, Ont., writes: "I take pleasure in telling you how much good your medicine has done me. I had suffered from intense pains in my back, and was so bad I could hardly do my housework. My kidneys were also bothering me a great deal. I tried several kinds of patent medicines, and was almost discouraged, and was looking for some other kind of medicine to try when I noticed your advertisement of Doan's Kidney Pills, so I thought it could not hurt to try them. I noticed a great difference when I had used one box, and to my great relief when I had used three boxes I was entirely cured, and I have not been bothered since. I will not hesitate to recommend them to all I know."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c a box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

HIRED HANDS of WARFARE

PIKEMAN IN POSITION TO RESIST CAVALRY
FROM "FAMOUS LAND FIGHTS BY A.H. ATTERIDGE. PUBLISHED BY LITTLE, BROWN & CO., BOSTON, 1914

COUNT THOMAS ARTHUR LALLY, WHO LED THE CELEBRATED IRISH BRIGADE AT THE BATTLE OF FONTENOY, MAY 11, 1745 AND WON A VICTORY FOR FRANCE.
FROM "HISTORY OF THE IRISH BRIGADE" BY J. C. O'CALLAGHAN. PUBLISHED BY P.M. HAVERTY, NEW YORK 1870.

By Richard G. Conover.

"General, with the gold you have received from France for the use of your Swiss, a good, broad road might be paved from Paris to Basle," said the Minister of State, with a wry smile.

"True, monsieur," replied Pierre Stupa, "but with the Swiss blood that has been shed in the defence of France one could fill a canal stretching from Basle to Paris."

THE "hired hand" of war has no place in the present great international strife—there is no sword or powder job for the mercenary in the ranks of the eight Powers now in conflict.

Yet, from the very dawn of martial history the buyable battler has been a feature of fray. He sold—or had sold for him—his brawn, his skill and his courage, regardless of the merits of the fight in which he energetically engaged. He was a uniformed scrapper, careless of the color of his coat but particular as to how he acquitted himself in it. Nothing much has been said about him as a factor in the big European upheaval. Is he in it?

Under an out and out armed mercenary arrangement no addition to its fighting strength has been made by any warring nation now in action. Perhaps in a very minor way small bodies or troops have entered the ranks through the inducement of special promises. It is possible that such troops are not of the direct kindred or nationality of the people they serve, and would not have enlisted had they not heard the preliminary clink of gold. But in the main, the most stupendous war ever waged on this earth does not disclose the uniformed mercenary as a fighting feature.

Nevertheless, there are warologists who maintain the battling mercenary still exist. Of course in another guise, but still in existence. His caption may be different, but his incentive to action is the same. This is figured out on the basis of contention that no soldier of the present day fights unless he is paid for it, and even some of those paid for it have no heart in the cause they back. Exactly similar was the attitude of the soldier mercenary during three or four centuries. And, asks the warologist, what is the difference between fighting for A or fighting for B, so long as you will not fight unless you are paid for it? Answer that query and you have placed an excellent identification tag on the latter day mixed up mercenary and at the same time interestingly analysed the hired hand of war to a comprehensible finish.

It is true that all battlers may be divided into at least five classes, with respect to the reasons and rewards for their fighting. A partial list would be:—

1. The soldier fighting for pay, and absolutely without sentiment for the flag he defends.

2. The soldier fighting for pay and enthusiastic for his flag.

3. The soldier fighting for pay and hating the flag he serves.

4. The soldier fighting without pay through love of the flag.

5. The soldier fighting and donating his own money to help keep the fight a-going.

The uniformed mercenaries of the Republic of Switzerland and of the Landgrave of Hesse-Cassel are the most famous in the world's fighting annals. They are to the dot the complete exponents of the Type 1, hired hand of war. And strange to say, although both the Swiss and the Hessian soldier shed their blood and gave their lives in the service of a foreign country, history has made a sure favorite of the soldier from the soil of Arnold von Winkelried. The Hessian has been roundly cursed as a despicable hireling—especially by the American indignantly reading of the German mercenary in our Revolutionary War. But the Swiss pay-me-to-fight soldier has somehow evoked admiration for his lusty battling far from home. Romance was never more unjust, as a review of the chronicles will show.

The Hessian really merits the sympathy of mankind. He was hired out to fight to endure all kinds of hardships, to shed his blood and to yield up his life, with no more to say about it than a livery stable horse being harnessed up for a pace killing journey. He had been brought up to believe that the Landgrave of Hesse-Cassel was God's particular representative on earth, and that his life, as well as the time and mode of his death, were all in the hands of his ruler.

THAYENDANEGEA (JOSEPH BRANT) THE MOHAWK INDIAN CHIEF WHO WAS SUBSIDIZED BY THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT IN THE REVOLUTION.
FROM "HISTORY OF ALL NATIONS INDEPENDENCE OF THE NEW WORLD" BY J. PISKE. PUBLISHED BY L.B.A. BROTHERS & CO. PHILADELPHIA & NEW YORK.

AND WHERE THE HESSIANS EMPLOYED BY GREAT BRITAIN WERE INSTRUMENTAL IN DEFEATING THE COLONISTS.

The Hessian is probably remembered best for his defeat at Trenton by Washington, December 26, 1776. Three regiments were surprised and a thousand officers and men forced to surrender. The commander, Colonel Johann Gottlieb Rall, was killed. The Landgrave of Hesse-Cassel was very much provoked when he got the news and roundly reprimanded by letter Lieutenant General Wilhelm von Knyphausen, who was in command of all the Hessians in America. If any one was to blame it was Rall, but the Landgrave had received a dressing down by the British Cabinet because the Hessian hired hand was not whipping everything in sight. The fact is, however, war records show that the Hessians fought hard and courageously, many times saving the British contingent of the mixed brigades at critical moments in battle. At the battle of Fort Washington, it was the mercenary from Hesse-Cassel who led in the storming of the fort. Knyphausen himself was in the thick of the fight. It was to Knyphausen that Colonel Robert Magaw, the American commander, surrendered. And it was the same way in the battles of Long Island, Assanpink, Brandywine, Red Bank, Newport, Stone Ferry, Charleston, Springfield, Baton Rouge, Pensacola, Guilford Court House and Yorktown—the German hired hands of war behaved very creditably as fighters.

Long before the American Revolution the German cousin of the Hessian in many cases his direct forebear—had served as a soldier mercenary. In the fifteenth century tens of thousands of fighting men of Austria, Swabia and the Tyrol, called Landsquenets, were regularly hired to back up the quarrels of rulers. At the siege of Pampeluna when their employer, the Earl of Suffolk, ordered a brigade of them to attack a castle 4,000 replied that they wouldn't move a peg unless he guaranteed them double pay. At Flamanges they sold their General for a small sum and surrendered the castle to the Count of Nassau, who in turn paid them in money of a base coinage.

German cavalry was hired out by minor German potentates during the war between Spain and the Netherlands. They went to the highest bidder and often served in opposing armies. In 1676, Landgrave Carl of Hesse-Cassel arranged to have a contingent of troops who had finished a term of service for the German Emperor in the war against France transferred directly to Christian V. of Denmark, the same as a common merchant would divert a car of goods from one shipping point to another en route. In 1687 he lent 1,000 men to Venice—for a substantial consideration—to be used by that republic in its war against Turkey. And a year later he sent 3,400 soldiers to the States General of Holland for service against France. He had a running contract with England and Holland to supply them with fighters during the war of the Spanish Succession. Four years later he rented out 10,500 for the wars in Italy.

These Hessian hired hands are declared to have been the saviors of the famous Marlborough at the battle of Blenheim after the French had forced the English to begin a retreat. Twelve newly styled Helvetian republic by France, they willingly remained in the French army for the same money return that characterized their loyalty to the French kings. Of Napoleon's foreign born marshals and generals fifteen were Swiss.

The pinnacle of the fighting fame of the Swiss mercenary was reached in his devoted defence of Louise XVI. and the French royal family at the storming of the Tuileries, August 10, 1792. Eight hundred of the brave hired hands of war resisted the mob and the hundreds of rebels of the National Guard who attacked the palace. Mandat, the commander of this Swiss force, was summoned before the Commune to receive its orders. As he turned to depart he was shot down, and his men at the Tuileries were left without a head and puzzled as to what action to take.

Fifty pieces of cannon were trained on the palace. This did not scare the Swiss, and they gave way but slowly from the outer grounds, to the entrances, to the great halls, and finally to the stairways and upper apartments and balconies. Between six and seven hundred were massacred by the mob, most of them at close quarters after their ammunition had been exhausted. Dr. John Moore, an English traveller, tells of his visit to the Tuileries the next morning:—

"I was horrified to behold this noble body of infantry, which I had seen mount guard only yesterday, the superior in point of stature and appearance and equipment to any body of troops in Europe, lying there annihilated. Many of the bodies were naked, having been stripped by the mob for their clothes. All of them showed at least half a dozen wounds and there was not an expression of fear on any dead countenance. Around me walked leering Parisians with pieces of the red uniform of the massacred Swiss pinned to their coats."

The survivors of the massacre were confined in a Paris prison until the mob demanded more deaths. The murders of September 2 to 7 included these brave hired hands of war. The trick of sending an accused from one Paris prison to another on the pretence of a temporary respite engulfed them. It was whispered that a mob stood outside the court room where they were being heard, and when they were ordered to depart to La Force for a moment they drew back shudderingly. Only for a moment, however. Then their leader, with a disdainful look and a proud step, passed through the court room door and advanced right up to the knives, pikes and pistols that slew him. The other Swiss followed his example and just as bravely.

It was Louis XI. of France who began the practice of regularly employing Swiss Guards, shortly after his accession in 1461. At one time there were 10,000 Swiss infantry in his pay. During an invasion of Italy by his successor, Charles VIII., the avants garde was composed of 8,000 Swiss. Following them came the German Lansquenets, and last of all the native French infantry! The great Francis I. employed both of these classes of soldier mercenary. Both were under pay and fought hard at Fontenoy. At the battle of Arques they brilliantly repelled an attack of cavalry and earned the warm praise of their adversaries.

Louis XIV. was a lavish employer of the Swiss hired hand of war. It was during his reign that Pierre Stupa, the Swiss commandant, made the famous retort to the French minister in the dialogue quoted above. The minister had planned on a good share of the gold paid the Swiss Guard for his own purposes, and boiled over when he found he was foiled.

With the exception of the Regiment d'Ernest, the Swiss battler fought for the French Republic. At the restoration of the Bourbons in 1815, a new Swiss legion—the legion d'Etrangers—was created and given to the Count d'Artois, the brother of King Louis XVIII. This body fought hard for the cause of Charles X. up to the time of his forced abdication in 1830. At Lucerne, Switzerland, there is a magnificent memorial to her sons who perished in a foreign country—at the defence of the Tuileries in 1792.

The celebrated Irish Brigade might be classed as Type 2 of the fighters for pay. This brigade certainly did not fight for Ireland, but it had an enthusiasm for the flag under which it served. Its first commander was Justin MacCarthy, Lord Mountcashel. It began its existence in 1698 and took part in the Stuart revolutions following that date up to the revolution in France under Louis XVI. It served in the War of the Spanish Succession, and in campaigns in Italy, France, Flanders, Germany and the Peninsula.

The most famous commander of the Irish Brigade was Count Thomas Arthur Lally, son of Sir Gerard Lally, also a commander in the same brigade. Count Lally saved his father's life at the battle of Etlingen, May, 1734. At Fontenoy Count Lally clearly saved the day for France, insisting that his brigade take a more active part at a critical time, because his men were "getting impatient for action that gave them a chance to do something." Macaulay, the poet-historian, has immortalized the work of the Irish Brigade on this fateful May 31, 1745, when a body of Irish turned the tide that put to flight the combined English, Dutch and Hanoverian army. At Cremona, earlier in the brigade's history—1702—Burke and Dillon led them effectively against the enemy. Of course they were all under pay, but they fought with their heart in the fighting.

The celebrated Scots Brigade was in the service of the United Netherlands for over two centuries—1572 to 1782. Their heart was not always in their work, although they fought vigorously and valorously. By 1586 two regiments were in Holland and in 1603 Lord Buccleuch brought over another one. These three formed the permanent brigade, and were recruited constantly to standard. They fought in the campaign against Don John of Austria; at the siege of Bois-le-duc; in Marlborough's campaigns, and finally in battles requiring cavalry, which arm was added, together with a fourth regiment, between 1747 and 1753.

The status of this Scots Brigade was hard to determine. The King of England, their own commanders and the government of Holland all claimed them. But they fought hard for pay and had considerable to say about what they would do. Once the English King tried to recall them. The States General of Holland refused to send them back, and had them converted into National Dutch. Think of a Scotch battler being dubbed a National Dutchman! In 1782 Holland made it mandatory that the brigade should renounce allegiance to any country save Holland. Fifty-five officers refused and this ended the Scots Brigade.

The renowned "King's German Legion" was organized in 1803. Former Hanoverian soldiers—officers and men—who would not take service with the French who had seized their country enlisted in this Legion in England. Lieutenant Colonel Van der Decker and Major Colin Halkett raised the corps, which was composed of one dragoon and one hussar regiment, five battalions, and two light and four line battalions. The Legion took part in the German expedition of 1805; the expedition to Copenhagen in 1807; Sicily campaign in 1808; Walcheren campaign in 1809, and in the campaign of 1813 against Napoleon. It was in the Peninsular War that the Legion gained fame. It was considered the corps d'elite in the fights under Wellington. The cavalry especially was rated high. Two dragoon regiments at Garcia Hernandez charged and broke up two French infantry squares and took 1,400 prisoners. The Legion lost heavily at Waterloo in a gallant defence at La Haye Sainte. Its strength at disbandment was 1,100 officers and 23,500 men. During the Crimean War the British government raised another King's German Legion, but history records nothing of moment concerning it. The German Legion might possibly be called Type 2.

There was a British Legion recruited in 1835. It was about 10,000 strong and approximately the Swiss-Hessian idea of service. It served two years in the Carlist war on the side of the Queen of Spain. It won great credit for its gallantry on several battlefields of Northern Spain, where it displayed great fortitude under trying conditions. It was its boast—and it has never been refuted—that no prisoners were ever taken from its number and that it never lost a gun or an equipage. All told its captures from the enemy amounted to 27 guns and 1,100 prisoners. It was Sir de Lacy Evans who raised the Legion. He received several Spanish orders and on his return in 1839 was made a colonel and a K. C. B.

The celebrated Foreign Legion now in the service of France, was created by King Louis XVIII to replace French army regiments of all nations. At present it forms the Eighty-sixth regiment of the line. After its creation it was merged into the regular army and lost its identity until 1830. On May 9, 1831, the French Chambers decreed there should be a Foreign Legion, which was not to be employed on the soil of France. It was made up of seven battalions each of eight companies, composed of Swiss, German, Spanish, Italian, Dutch, Belgian and Polish soldiers. This was finally increased to ten battalions. At first they were all battalioned according to nationality, but as this led to frequent feuds it was decided to mix them.

The Foreign Legion has been called the finest fighting machine in the world, and yet it is decidedly of Type 1. There is this difference, the men want fight first and pay second. They might be termed a Type 4, for their pay is small indeed, but with no particular love of a particular flag. They take no oath. A simple contract is made. The motto on their colors is "Valeur de Discipline." General de Negrier said of them:—"With a French regiment in Tonkin I could not go two hours; with a company of the Legion I could make the tour of Tonkin."

The Papal Zouaves was another fighting organization formed in defence of the Papal States by Lamoriciere in 1860. After Victor Emmanuel occupied Rome in 1870 the Zouaves served the government national defence during the Franco-Prussian War. They were disbanded after the entrance of the German troops into Paris. A dozen nationalities were in their ranks. There was considerable sentiment—but also a considerable demand for pay.

Without doubt the North American Indian was a hired hand of war during the American revolution. The famous chieftain Thayendanegea, sachem of the Mohawks, was under British pay at the massacre of Cherry Valley. His braves were not always paid in money, but it was stipulated exactly what each was to get as a reward for fighting in a fight that was not their own.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Story of the Pan-European War.

By F. A. MITCHEL

It was during the furious attacks on Ypres. Hundreds of thousands of Germans met hundreds of thousands of French, English and Belgians; tens of thousands of men in both armies were killed or mutilated, and there was nothing gained or lost. Whatever of romance there may have been in war during past ages was denied those who participated in this latter day struggle. The leader, instead of waving his sword and calling on his men to follow him, either marched doggedly against the machinery of death that had been perfected under the influence of a developed civilization or stood waiting to be cut down by the same marvelous contrivances.

Curious, is it not, that the same ingenuity which produced the printing press brought forth the rapid fire gun?

For weeks Lieutenant Adolph Trelawney, a young Englishman who had left home to enter the great contest as a soldier, faced death, not in a battle, but in a succession of battles, the one following the other in rapid succession. It had become simply an active waiting for death. Why the bolts had not already taken him he did not know.

There was one reason why Trelawney of other men. The younger son of a British peer, a match had been made for him with a girl of his own social standing. He had but just returned from the honeymoon when the war broke out. At the same time a secret had been imparted to him. A woman who had wanted but had lost him took revenge upon him by telling him that his bride, at the instigation of her parents, had broken with a man whom she loved to marry him.

Trelawney was in London at the time, and, holding a commission in the army, he joined his regiment without seeing his bride before leaving for France. Several weeks passed, during which the letters he received from her were all that a husband could wish. But they were turned to bitterness by the belief that they were forgeries of feeling. The young officer glanced through them, then tore them into bits.

After one of the unsuccessful attempts of the Germans to break the British lines a force sallied forth in pursuit. A number of jackies from the fleet had been landed and took part in the fight, occupying a position on the flank of Trelawney's regiment. The enemy were followed for awhile then they turned and drove back the allies. It was during this struggle that the missile fate had prepared for Trelawney struck him. He was left on a field where neither allies nor foes could give him succor, for by this time both sides were back in their trenches and any one standing on the field would be a target for a thousand rifles.

Trelawney was knocked senseless. When he came to himself he lay in a pool of his own blood. His head rested on the dead body of a sergeant of his regiment, and a leg of a midshipman was thrown over his own person. His head being thus raised, the lieutenant could see the heaps of dead and dying about him. They reminded him of swaths of grain that had been cut by a scythe.

Feeling something tickling the back of his hand, he looked and saw an ant crawling over it.

"Singular!" he muttered. "This insect with a brain to plan, inhabiting the same world as humans, but a far different sphere, is no more concerned in this death storm which has passed over it than that dead leaf blown about by the wind."

The leg of the midshipman was burdensome, and Trelawney made a move to get rid of it. He was unable to do so, but his effort brought a low moan from the sailor. Then he opened his eyes and looked Trelawney in the face.

"Where are you hit?" asked Trelawney.

The sailor put his hand to his right side.

The two lay there near each other for a period which seemed to both interminable. The midshipman held his own while the lieutenant grew weaker.

"I say," said the latter, "I'm Trelawney of the —th infantry. If you get out of this and back to England find my wife and tell her about me. I shall probably be burned, and she won't know what has become of me. You can say positively that I'm dead, for I know I shall be dead pretty soon and say that if there is any man who will make her happy as her husband it is my wish that she marry him without waiting for proof that she is a widow."

"I'll do it if I get back," was the reply, "but neither of us will do that."

This brief dialogue was spoken with difficulty, especially by Trelawney. After the midshipman had made the promise, with much effort he raised himself on an elbow to get a view of the surroundings.

"There's a truce," he said. "They're coming with spades and fuel to burn or to bury us."

He glanced at Trelawney and saw that he had closed his eyes and gave no sign of life.

"He was right," mused the sailor. "He'll either be burned or buried and that pretty soon. Not much time to spare for the dead. There'll be a new crop before long. Hope they won't begin before they get me. Here comes a Red Cross man."

* * * * * * *

At a country place in England a bride whose husband was fighting in France sat trying to pass the hours embroidering. She had tried reading, but, though her eyes passed over the words, her mind refused to receive them. She had therefore resorted to working with her hands while her thoughts were with the dreadful slaughter going on in France. While thus occupied the butler entered with the morning mail, including newspapers from London.

The lady seized both and, glancing hastily at the superscription of the letters, tossed them on a table, then tore off the covering of one of the newspapers. Turning over the pages, she came to one, every column of which was filled with names. With wildly beating heart she ran her eye down the column till she came to a list under the caption of "—th infantry." Among the officers reported missing she saw the name of Trelawney.

While to learn that a soldier was the inference was that he had been buried or burned as unknown. Mrs. Trelawney had read of the fight during which her husband had disappeared, but had not learned that prisoners were taken on either side. Now with the list of casualties before her she knew that there were many chances that her husband had been killed and his body had received no more individual treatment than a spear of wheat cut down.

A month passed, when one day a card was handed to Mrs. Trelawney bearing the name of Edgar Furniss, royal navy. A young man was received breathlessly. He told the widow that he had seen her husband dead or dying, that a detachment approached for burial purposes and Red Cross workers at the same time. If Trelawney had not died he would have been taken in by the Red Cross men. Having destroyed all hope, the sailor gave the widow her husband's dying message, intimating that she should take another husband if there was any man who would make her happy.

Trelawney when the burial and the rescue parties came along was left by the latter for dead, and before there was time for the former to attend to him the truce ended. He lay where he was till midnight, when the spirit of evil again swept the field on which he lay under the direction of powerful searchlights. This time the Germans held the field long enough to take in the wounded, and Trelawney, whom a surgeon pronounced to be still alive, was removed to the rear.

The record of the next few weeks in the officer's case was, except for frequent removals, one continuous dull life in hospitals, during which he was slowly recovering from his wound. Long before he was supposed to be well enough to be transferred to a concentration camp for prisoners of war, tired of the life he led, one evening under cover of the darkness he walked away.

A few days later Trelawney reached England, but there was little likelihood of his being recognized, for he was the shadow of his former self. His hair had considerably whitened, and a long beard had grown on his formerly clean shaven face. Clad in khaki he appeared in the region of his former home as an invalid soldier on leave recovering from wounds. No one guessed that he was the young soldier who had so proudly marched away some months before.

Supported by a stout cane, he was walking along a road leading toward his former residence when who should drive by in a dogcart but the man whom he had been told his wife had formerly refused to marry, and Trelawney saw the vehicle stop before the door where his wife was living.

The soldier had come home incognito to prove the truth or falsity of what had been told him before going to the war. On seeing what he considered a confirmation of the story he paused. Should he go away and continue dead to the world, leaving the woman he loved to be happy with the man who could best make her happy?

A man came trudging along the road whom Trelawney recognized as an old tenant of his father's. But the man did not recognize Trelawney, who entered into conversation with him, Trelawney's subject nearest his heart.

"They say," said the soldier, "that the young widow who lived down the road and who lost her husband in the war in France is going to take another husband."

"Who says that?" asked the man, bristling.

"Isn't it true?"

"True? There's a man been trying to get her, and he tried to get her before she was married. But she never will marry, because her heart is with the soldier who was killed in France. She has put up a headstone on her grounds with the word 'Unknown' on it. She keeps it covered with flowers."

When Trelawney walked on he stood up straighter and made his way with less difficulty than before. The next day he sought the place where the headstone to his memory stood. While there his wife, seeing an invalid near it, came out to talk to him. She looked into his face and despite his altered appearance knew him at once.

Describing the Grand Canyon.

As for the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, it affects those who behold it with a kind of literary asthma. They desire to describe it passionately, but they only wheeze and look as though they might explode. Since it is generally admitted that no one who has seen it can describe it the task would manifestly devolve upon some one who has not seen it and that requirement is filled by me. I have not seen it. I am not impressed by it at all. I am able to speak of it with coherence and restraint. But even that I shall not do.—Julian Street in Collier's Weekly.

BAD COLD IN THE CHEST.

"I am happy to tell you that I used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and was promptly cured of a very bad cold in the chest," writes Miss Josephine Gauthier, Dover South, Ont. You can depend on Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine to relieve and cure all inflammations and irritations of the throat and bronchial tubes.

His First Bird.

Many of the best stories told by Lord Charles Beresford, who is known as the wittiest of our admirals, are about Irishmen. One in particular of a certain son of Erin who described his first day's shooting in the following very Hibernian way: "The first bird I ever shot was a squirrel and the first time I hit him I missed him altogether, and the next time I hit him I hit him in the same place. After that, I took a stone and dropped him from the tree, and he fell into the water and was drowned, and that was the first bird I ever shot."

The Upstart.

The upstart doesn't always rise to the occasion.

PILES Do not suffer another day with Itching, Blinding, or Protruding Piles. No surgical operation required. Dr. Chase's Ointment will relieve you at once and as certainly cure you. 60c. a box; all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Fond Recollections.

"Speaking of old times," said a member of the Reminiscence club, "I can remember when a waiter would say 'Thank you' out loud for a twenty-five cent tip."

"That's nothing," replied his companion. "I can remember when I would look at the list of dishes on a menu to see what I wanted instead of looking first at the prices to see what I could afford."—Washington Star.

Electric Currents.

Whether an electric current is alternating or direct may be determined by holding a magnet near an incandescent lamp burning in the circuit. If the current be alternating the filament will vibrate; if direct it will bend toward the magnet without vibrating. — Exchange.

Embarrassing.

In South Africa General French earned the title of "the shirt sleeved general," Mr. Chisholm says in "Sir John French." General French was often to be seen walking about in easy in shirt sleeves. One afternoon a correspondent rode up to the lines and, seeing a soldier sitting on a bundle of hay smoking a dilapidated looking old briar pipe, asked where the general was.

"Well, just hold my horse while I go and search for him."

"Certainly, sir," and the smoker rose obediently and took the bridle.

"Can you tell me where the general is?" inquired the correspondent of a staff officer farther down the line.

"General French? Oh, he's somewhere about. Why, there he is, holding that horse's head!"

City of Magnificent Distances.

When the government was moved to Washington in 1800 it was far from being a satisfactory place of residence. The city was laid out in the wilderness. They "took to the woods" for a capital city. It was the first time that a government had actually gone into the wilds and selected a site for a capital and laid out its city on a well defined plan. As beautiful as we consider Washington today, the minister from Portugal, the Abbe Corea, who was considered one of the greatest wits of his time and who in 1816 called it "the city of magnificent distances," so named it purely in derision. In that day there was little but distance in the city. As late as 1842 Charles Dickens, after his visit, wrote that "its streets begin in nothing and lead nowhere."—Frederick L. Fishback in National Magazine.

Coral Powder.

The debris left from coral, after it has been made into articles of jewelry, etc., is crushed, scented and sold as tooth powder at a high price by East Indian perfumers.

Grierson's Medals.

Not many soldiers were so loved or had so many decorations as the late General Sir James Grierson. A typical John Bull, his broadening figure was of late years the subject of much chaff amongst his brother officers. To one of them who remarked, "You get broader every day," he replied. "Don't you bother about my growing bulk; it's badly needed. I now have more room to hang my medals." The army knew him as "Whistling Jimmy," and an old gunner was once heard to say apropos of his numerous decorations, "He ain't a soldier, he's a bloomin' Christmas tree!"

As for the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, it affects those who behold it with a kind of literary asthma, passionately, but they only wheeze and look as though they might explode. Since it is generally admitted that no one who has seen it can describe it the task would manifestly devolve upon some one who has not seen it and that requirement is filled by me. I have not seen it. I am not impressed by it at all. I am able to speak of it with coherence and restraint. But even that I shall not do.—Julian Street in Collier's Weekly.

You can depend on Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine to relieve and cure all inflammations and irritations of the throat and bronchial tubes.

His First Bird.

Many of the best stories told by Lord Charles Beresford, who is known as the wittiest of our admirals, are about Irishmen. One in particular of a certain son of Erin who described his first day's shooting in the following very Hibernian way: "The first bird I ever shot was a squirrel and the first time I hit him I missed him altogether, and the next time I hit him I hit him in the same place. After that, I took a stone and dropped him from the tree, and he fell into the water and was drowned, and that was the first bird I ever shot."

The Upstart.

Embarrassing.

In South Africa General French earned the title of "the shirt sleeved general," Mr. Chisholm says in "Sir John French." General French was often to be seen walking about in camp in shirt sleeves. One afternoon a correspondent rode up to the lines and, seeing a soldier sitting on a bundle of hay smoking a dilapidated looking old briar pipe, asked where the general was.

"The old man is somewhere about," coolly replied the soldier.

"Well, just hold my horse while I go and search for him."

"Certainly, sir," and the smoker rose obediently and took the bridle.

"Can you tell me where the general is?" inquired the correspondent of a staff officer farther down the line.

"General French? Oh, he's somewhere about. Why, there he is, holding that horse's head!"

City of Magnificent Distances.

When the government was moved to Washington in 1800 it was far from being a satisfactory place of residence. The city was laid out in the wilderness. They "took to the woods" for a capital city. It was the first time that a government had actually gone into the wilds and selected a site for a capital and laid out its city on a well defined plan. As beautiful as we consider Washington today, the minister from Portugal, the Abbe Corea, who was considered one of the greatest wits of his time and who in 1816 called it "the city of magnificent distances," so named it purely in derision. In that day there was little but distance in the city. As late as 1842 Charles Dickens, after his visit, wrote that "its streets begin in nothing and lead nowhere."—Frederick L. Fishback in National Magazine.

Coral Powder.

The debris left from coral, after it has been made into articles of jewelry, etc., is crushed, scented and sold as tooth powder at a high price by East Indian perfumers.

Grierson's Medals.

Not many soldiers were so loved or had so many decorations as the late General Sir James Grierson. A typical John Bull, his [illegible] figure was of late years the subject of much chaff amongst his brother officers. To one of them who remarked, "You get broader every day," he replied. "Don't you bother about my growing bulk; it's badly needed. I now have more room to hang my medals." The army knew him as "Whistling Jimmy," and an old gunner was once heard to say apropos of his numerous decorations, "He ain't a soldier, he's a bloomin' Christmas tree!"

AUSTRO-GERMAN SCHEME HAS BEEN OVERTHROWN

Enemy Has Been Forced South Into Hungary---Austrian Army Has Made Its Final Effort Against Russia

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PETROGRAD, March 5.—Throu ghout the Carpathian front as far as the borders of Bukowina the Russians have naw succeeded in overthrowing the great Austro-German scheme for a spring campaign in Galicia. After the conference between the German and Austrian staffs at Breslau in December the movement was initiated with great numerical strength in an attempt to get under the Russian left wing approaching Cracow. Subsequent operations extending over a month enabled the Russians to distribute a strong army across the Carpathian passes and hold them against four armies which were attempting to force the passage northward. At the same time the Russian force facing the Cracow defences entrenched itself along the Dunajec and Nida.

The Austrians had a month of terrible fighting with their German auxiliaries. The later suffered appalling losses during incessant attempts from Munkacz road to pierce through Tukolla Pass and enter the Etry valley. Instead of making progress the Austrians and Germans were steadily forced through the rocky ravines into Hungary. With all the new formations that could be raised and strong backing by the Germans they brought a great new army through Bukowina, and again attempted to envelope the Russian left, which lies facing southward near the Roumanian border.

FIGHTING AT STANISLAU.

This new army, under Archduke Joseph Ferdinand, pushed northward through Nadvorna by forced marches upon Stanislau, an old Polish town of many historical monuments. The Russians, who had had a small force there for six months, were reinforced, and had dispositions chosen for a great battle. They drew outside the town and entrenched themselves eight miles north, while another Russian ramy crossed eastward from the mouth of Wyaskow Pass against the advancing Austrians.

The earlier fighting among the bushy hills was conducted entirely by infantry, until the Austrian flank protections were driven into more open country; then the Russians brought forward all their arms for an attack. The Austrians retreated eastward from the Lomnitza River and the left wing was threatened with envelopment. It began to break away from the main column and hasten backwards on Nadvorna and the River Pruth, suffering terribly under a magnificent charge by Russian troops. Austria's third army, which had been resting exhausted outside the middle Carpathian passes, was ordered to bring relief to Archduke Joseph, who was in a perilous position, by again attacking the difficult passes from the sources of the San River, forty miles westward to the Ndava River. They made six general storming charges Sunday, Monday and Tuesday against the Russian prepared positions and each ended disastrously.

EAGER TO SURRENDER.

A strech of 300 yards which the Russians had cleared before their entrenchments became thickly strewn with Austrian dead after each onslaught. About a thousand prisoners were taken. They threw their rifles away and ran into the Russian lines and surrendered. This third Austrian army probably has made its final effort. With its failure and the destruction of the Archduke's advance into Bukowina, Austrian strategy against Russia is laid in ruine.

Von Hindenberg's disappointments in the north are beginning to multiply. The Russians have secured for themselves positions all along from the line of the Niemen around through North Poland, which is far too open to suit German plans. Only westward at Ossowetz are the Germans attempting to maintain a position. They keep outside the range of the fortress guns and the rear communications of the fortress continue always uninterrupted. Most of the troops from the north are hastening from the Nieman to support a line of possible retreat for the besieging force to East Prussia. The Russians are again in the fringe of the Augustowo forest.

Anarchists Attempt To Destroy St. Patrick's Cathedral

While Hundreds of Worshippers Were at Mass---Remarkable Work of a Young Detective

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, March 4.—While hundreds of worshippers were at mass in St. Patrick's Cathedral, in Fifth avenue, yesterday morning, daring young anarchists attempted to destroy the edifice with a bomb, as the initial step in a conspiracy to overthrow the government.

Through the remarkable work of a young detective, less than a year in the Police Department, Emilo Poligtani, a catastrouhe was averted, even after the fuse of one of two bombs had been ignited. Detectives disguised as scrub women leaped upon the principal plotter and aided in overpowering him. Another detective who had posed as a sedate elderly usher, with white beard and gold rimmed glasses, snuffed the fuse of the lighted bomb, while from every part of the great auditorium other detectives, fifty in all, posing as worshippers or ushers, rose and were prepared for any emergency.

Following the arrest of two men the police said they had revealed a plot of wide ramifications in which the homes and lives of such men as Andrew Carnegie, John D. Rockefeller and his son and Cornelius Vanderbilt were to have been destroyed by bombs. Then, one of the dynamiters said it was purposed to attack the financial district with guns and mobs, overpowering the police and seizing the treasure stored in vaults.

Like a Fiction Tale.

With St. Patrick's Cathedral as the stage for their first depredation in a campaign of terror, this group of anarchists, who had consecrated their murderous work to the memory of Gaetano Bresci, the Paterson anarchist who killed King Humbert of Italy, conceived a plot which reads like a tale from a book.

To Detective Polignani, who was highly commended by the Mayor and the Police Commissioner, belongs the credit of balking the conspiracy, after the lives of hundreds in the Cathedral had been placed in jeopardy.

Since December he had been living day and night with the conspirators. So completely did he deceive them that he knew every move as it was made, knew where the bombs were being made, who was making them, and was even selected by the band to carry one of the bombs to the Cathedral.

How he kept in touch with Police Headquarters has not been fully told yet, but he was able to send complete details of the conspiracy as it developed and to give to his superiors a complete list of all the plotters involved. Therefore other arrests are expected.

From statements made by the prisoners and through information obtained by Polignani the police now believe that it was this same group of anarchists who exploded the bomb at St. Alphonsus Church and at the Cathedral on October 13 last, and at the Bronx County Court House. Yesterday was the seventh anniversary of the killing by George M. Shippy, Chief of Police of Chicago, of the anarchist, Lazarus Averbuck.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is Sign You Have Been Eating Too Much Meat

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about two ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Lustre and Abundance

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns grey and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay grey! Look young! Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully and removes dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the grey hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural colour is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

OBITUARY

MRS. JAMES BUCHANAN.

Death knocked softly on the door Sunday evening, and summoned away the gentle spirit of Anna Carr McLarty, widow of the late James Buchanan. Eighty-six years ago she was born in Lichgilphead, Scotland, and came to Canada with her parents when a child, the family locating in Otonabee. In 1850 she was married to her late husband, who passed away in August, 1913. For the past thirty-three years Mrs. Buchanan has been a quiet respected resident of town, devoting herself to her home and family. Until greatly weakened by failing health, the deceased had been a faithful attendant of the Presbyterian Church, of which she was a lifelong member.

Three sons, Messrs. John, of Gravenhurst; James, of Belleville; Archie, of Preston, and six daughters, Mrs. Thos. Lancaster, of Peterborough; Mrs. G. R. Pearce, of town; Mrs. J. A. Sexsmith, of Preneveau; Mrs. E. Broows, of Leamington; Mrs. Jas. Turk, of Toronto, and Miss Eliza, at home, are left to cherish the fond memory of a kind and loving mother. One brother, Mr. James McNeil, of Keene, and two sisters, Mrs. Peter McNeil, of Keene, and Mrs. Wm. Sharpe, of Westwood, also survive.

The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon to Mount Pleasant cemetery.—Campbellford News.

MOTHER! IF CHILD'S TONGUE IS COATED

A laxative to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

Late Robert Wilson.

The funeral of one of Emily township's most highly respected residents took place on Tuesday last in the person of the late Robert Wilson, aged 70 years. Death of the above gentleman took place on Sunday last after an illness of but four weeks, during which time the sick man received the best of attention from kind and loving members of the family.

The late Robt. Wilson, who was one of the pioneer settlers in Emily, was born in Ireland, coming to Canada in 1851 and settling in Emily township, living there almost continuously. He cleared the present home stead and built a fine comfortable house some 35 years ago, and the same thrift and industry which marked his early career was manifested all through his life. He followed the occupation of farmer successfully and in passing away to the realm above he left his family in comfortable circumstances.

In the spring of '67 he married a daughter of the late William Kennedy of Emily, who survives him, along with a family of three sons and four daughters there are: John of Port Hope; Robert, of Emily; Wesley, on the homestead; Mrs. Creut (Mary Jane) of Oshawa; Mrs. John Bradburn (Rebeca), of Janetville; Victoria, teacher at Rockcroft in Harvey township, and Susan at home. Two brothers also survive, namely, John Wilson of Lindsay, and W. H. Wilson of Ops. The only sister, Mrs. John Carew, mother of John Carew, M.P.P., died several years ago.

The deceased gentleman took an active interest in political matters, and was well read on important topics of the day. He was a staunch Conservative. In religion, he attended the Methodist Church. He also took a deep interest in educational matters and for years was trustee of the Orange Line school section.

The funeral, which took place on Tuehday from the family residence, one mile and a half north of Omemee, was largely attended, the pallbearers being the three sons of the John, Robert and Wesley, and the three sons of Mr. W. H. Wilson of Ops, Messrs. John H., George H., and William.

Mr. Armstrong of Lindsay was in town on business last week.

THE ALLIES WIN FIVE DAYS' BATTLE

The Capital Of Bukowina Is Evacuated By Austrians

LOST TRENCHES RETAKEN BY ALLIES YESTERDAY

Greater Part of the Village of Vauquois Has Been Captured ---Germans Again Shell Rheims Cathedral---Heavy Russian Bombardment Drives the Austrians From Czernowitz.

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PARIS, March 15.—(3 P.M. Official.—After a five days' battle, the allied troops have occupied the greater part of the village of Vauquois, southwest of Varennes, according to the official despatches received here to-day.

North of Arras, in the region of Notre Dame de Lorett, the allies have recaptured the greater part of the advanced trenches they lost to the Germans on Wednesday, taking in addition about 150 prisoners. German shells are again falling upon the cathedral at Rheims.

RUSSIANS ON AGGRESSIVE.

PETROGRAD, March 5.—The Austro-Germans at one time of the East Galicia campaign actually threatened the Diester river, crossing at Halitz in their march on Lemberg, the War Office admitted for the first time to-day. But this menace has been removed.

The Austrians were in superior force in the fighting earlier in the week. By a series of forced marches the right wing of the army, under Archduke Joseph Ferdinand, crossed the stream leading into Dniester north of Stanislau. From Jezupol south, along the line leading east of Stanislau and along the Stanislau-Nadvorna railway the east Galician battle continues for twenty miles, with the enemy being steadily pressed back.

Elsewhere in Galicia and the Carpathian fighting, the Czar's troops are on the offensive.

CZERNOWITZ EVACUATED.

LONDON, March 5.—Czernowitz, the capital of Bukowina, has been evacuated by the Austrians under a severe Russian bombardment, according to a despath received here this afternoon from Bucharest.

THREATS OF FAMINE.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The threat of famine hangs over Germany like a pall, according to a report received at the Department of Commerce from Vice Consul General Louis G. Dreyfus, Jr., in Berlin, which has been made public to-day.

The report is dated January 28th, and therefore it is felt in Washington that with conditions so serious more than a month ago, the constant drain of war must by this time have made the situation infinitely worse.

SUBMARINE SUNK.

LONDON, March 5.—The Admiralty made an official announcement today that an examination of the collier Thordis confirms the statement of Captain Bell that the collier rammed and sank a German submarine which had fired a torpedo at her.

Figured in One of the World's Greatest Battles

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 4.—Chalons, rich in history, brave in defence, suffering under the clash of armies at its doors, is described in a statement just prepared by the National Geographical Society, which says:

"Just back of where the battle line sweeps in a wide curve over the world-famed grape lands of the Champagne lies Chalons-sur-Marne, one of the principal military training camps in France. It is a brave town; and no other community in Europe appears through the pages of 1,900 years of Christian history with more honour or with fewer memories for regret. A natural mobilization point for the defence of northern France, Chalons has been the objective of many invasions from the east and north, and is again the aim of mighty invading forces.

"Chalons is small, of but little commercial importance, old-fashioned and decidedly bourgeois and commonplace. It is remembered by Americans, who have tarried there a few days in their eager journey between the German Rhine country and Paris, only as a quaint, somewhat shambly place. Nevertheless it is able to boast itself one of the proudest cities at whose gates an enemy in the present war may knock.

"Its history reaches back of Roman occupation. Caesar found on this site the chief town of the Catalauni. On the plains nearby, Attila, 'The Scourge of God,' with his wild Huns, whom all Europe had come to fear, was defeated in 451, in what, according to the authority, was one of the 15 decisive battles of the world. It was called 'The Battle of Chalons' by the ancient historians, who reported that some 300,000 dead were left upon the field. If this were so, the battle which wrecked Attila's dream of world dominion was the bloddiest ever fought in Europe, and, probably, in the world. So fierce was this battle between the East and West for supremacy—according to tradition—that the byriad, embittered ghosts of the slain renewed the conflict every night for years after the event.

"As a kind of independent State under the leadership of its bishops, courageous Chalons — as bourgeois then as now—maintained the high honour which remains its brightest characteristic to-day. Later, when the French armies had been beaten again and again, with the British in possession of a great part of the homeland, and with discouragement and lethargic hopelessnes boding the strangulation of all national sentiment in France, the citizens of Chalons met the high standard of their glorious past, and twice rolled back the victorious English from their walls—in 1430 and in 1434.

"The Camp of Chalons, the great French training centre for troops, was fittingly established near this city in 1856. It lies 10 miles from the town on the railway line to Rheims. It occupies an area of about 30,000 acres.

"Chalons, capital of the Department of Marne, lies 107 miles east of Paris, on the main railway line between Paris and Frankfort-am-Main. It is 25 miles southeast of Rheims, and is situated on the river Marne in the renowned French wine country. To the visitor from the New World, the houses of Chalons are picturesque, many of them are unstable affairs of wood and plaster, and few of them possess any degree of elegance. There is little of outward interest in Chalons, and to visit it in a properly appreciative mood, one must prepare by leaving behind his guide books and by reading-up French history."

Stares Appeal Is Dismissed At Osgoode

His two brothers followed him in the second contingent and are in training at Kingston with the 21st Battalion. They come of fighting stock. Their grandfather, the late Sergt. Holly, of the 64th Staffordshire Regiment, was a veteran of the Indian Mutiny and the Persian War.

MOUNTED RIFLES WILL NOT LEAVE CITY TO-NIGHT

No Order Received as to Definite Time of Departure Although the Squadron is Ready to Go at Any Time

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

The Mounted Rifles will not leave for Ottawa to night as was expected, and as yet no difinite time has been set for their departure, although it is not thought that it will be long delayed. The squadron is ready to go at any time.

The 89th Battalion is in the same position. At yesterday afternoon's parade the men were warned that they must be prepared to leave for Belleville at very short notice. It is thought that the local company will go on Monday, although as in the case of the Mounted Rifles there is nothing definite.

Quartermaster Sergeant Francis of the Ordinance Department, Kingston, visited the local Armouries this morning on business in connection with that department.

Letter of Thanks Is Received

From Miss Plummer, Canadian Sealed Comforts Commissioner

Mrs. Duncan Walker, Secretary of the Women's War Fund Committee, has received a letter of acknowledgement from Miss Plummer, Canadian Sealed Comforts' Commissioner in England.

It is as follows:

The Vicarage,
Amesbury, England,
February 17, 1915.

Dear Mrs. Walker,—We received six cases from you last week containing 139 pairs of socks, seven belts, etc. These were very welcome. The socks were in time for the last of our men before their departure.

Thank your ladies very much for sending them. Nothing was more appreciated than the socks. The men certainly felt pleased to get them. We were very glad to cover all requests in division before they moved off. We are now gathering our supplies and preparing ourselves, to move. I think we have enough caps and wristlets for the present, but always want more socks, shirts, extra underwear, gloves, handkerchiefs and luxuries, such as gum, sweets and tobacco.

Thanking you again very much indeed, I am,

Yours Sincerely,
MARY PLUMMER,
Canadian Sealed Comforts' Commissioner.

CONSTANTINOPLE WILL CAPITULATE TO THE ALLIES

Old Turks Have Sent Word to Britain That the City Will Be Handed Over to Prevent a Bombardment

READY TO FLEE

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 5.—Special cable).—Constantinople will not be bombarded. The old Turks have sent word to Britain that once the allied fleet batters its way through the Dardanelles, they will flee to Asia to save Islam's capital from destruction.

This sums up the statement made to me to-day by a high official of the British government. For, the present at least he insisted that his name be not used. "The old Turk party is overwhelmed at the show of England's naval strength," he told me. "The battering in of the outer forts of the Dardanelles astounded the Turkish leaders. They want to make a show of resistance at the remaining forts to save their faces before the Turkish people, but above all things they have sent word they want to preserve the Turkish moslems from devastation by the shells from the allied fleet.

From another source I learned today that the government is assured that once the allied fleet passes the Dardanelles narrows the Islamic Turks will flee from Stamboul and the Ottoman capital will be surrendered to the British-French fleet. According to rumours prevalent the Russians will be permitted to take possession of Para, the suburb of Constantinople, but the Dardanelles will be declared neutral forever. A deep feeling of satisfaction prevails in England to-day, as rumours spread of the plan to surrender Constantinople. In every quarter the fall of the Ottoman capital would be considered the turning point of the war. The English public does not want to see Constantinople bombarded into ruins.

Tenders For New School

Has been Awarded to Local Contractors

The tender for the erection of the new school building has been given to Messrs. McIntyre Bros. and J. J. Hartley, of Peterborough, and this, with the plumbing system definitely decided upon, the whole contract price will be well within the amount of money raised for this purpose, viz., $12,000.

THE CITY WILL PAY THE SUM OF $5,250.00

For That Part of the Distributing System Located Outside of the City Limits—Higher Than Previous Offer

INCREASE IN RATES

The Utilities Commission has arranged for the purchase of that part of the distributing system located outside of the city limits. The price to be paid is $5,250. This is $250 less than the price that was agreed upon by the Peterborough Light and Power Company. The Commissioners, on a valuation made by the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario previously offered the company $4,450.55. This was refused and the offer subsequently withdrawn. The company's valuators had placed the value of the outside system at $8,104.00.

When the recent arbitration commenced between the city and the power company to determine what price the city would have to pay for the distributing system of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, the question of disposing of that part of the system located outside the city limits came up. Finally, the arbiters requested the Commissioners to declare their intention so as to pave the way for the final settlement. This was done with the above result.

Higher Rates.

The Commissioners have also decided that subject to the approval of the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario, the rates for electric light for domestic purposes, outside of the city, be four cents per 100 square feet floor space plus 3 cents per kilowatt, with a discount of 10 per cent for prompt payment.

Judge Morson Wins On Income Tax

WHITBY, March 5.—The default judgment obtained against Judge Morson by the City of Toronto for unpaid income tax was set aside here by Judge McGillivray. Mr. R. A. Reid attended before the County Judge and argued the matter on behalf of Judge Morson, and the case will now be tried on its merits.

An execution has been issued against the City of Toronto on behalf of Judge Morson and the bailiff authorized to seize sufficient goods and chattels belonging to the city in order to satisfy a judgment amounting to $72.60 due and owing to Judge Morson for income tax paid by him under protest. Interesting developments in this matter may happen at the City Hall when the bailiff arrives in the office of the City Treasurer.

PLANT WILL COST THE CITY $154,615.00

Besides a Few Incidentals, Such as Costs, Interest and a Number of Items That Did Not Figure in the Arbitration--The Award of the Arbiters Exceeds the City's Estimate by Over Fifty Thousand Dollars.

Honours are about equally divided in the award that has been handed down as a result of the arbitration between the city and the Peterborough Light and Power Company. The award which is represented by the sum of $154,615.00 is about fifty thousand dollars higher than the city expected to pay and about fifty thousand dollars lower than what the company expected. The arbiters practically split the difference. The city paid one hundred thousand dollars into court for an electrical distributing system that was valued by the company at approximately two hundred thousand dollars. To this must be added the sum of $54,615.00 with interest on the whole amount at five per cent. dating from the first day of October last, besides $5,250 that the city has agreed to pay for that part of the system located outside the city, and possibly fifteen hundred or two thousand dollars for a few items that did not figure in the arbitration, and last but not least, the costs. The whole may amount to about $165,000.

The Award.

Following is the award as made by the Board of Arbitration, comprising His Honour Judge Huycke (chairman), Mr. R. A. Ross, of Montreal, for the city, and Mr. Wallace Nesbitt, of Toronto, for the company:

IN THE MATTER of an arbitration between the City of Peterborough and the Peterborough Light & Power Company, Limited:

WHEREAS, under the Statutes of Ontario, being 2 Geo. V. cap. 117; 3-4 Geo. V. cap. 114, and 4 Geo. V. cap. 87, the matters in difference referred to under the said Statutes were referred to the arbitrament and award of His Honour E. C. S. Huycke, Judge of the County Court of the County of Peterborough, Wallace Nesbitt, and R. A. Ross.

AND WHEREAS, the said arbitrators having taken on the burden of the said reference, were attended by the said parties, represented by counsel, and also counsel for the bond holders of the said Company appearing and submitting to be bound by the award, did, on the 26th, 27th and 28th days of January, and the 15th, 16th, 17th, 18th and 19th days of February, 1915, hear evidence and argument, and after considering the evidence and arguments the said arbitrators do, under the said Statutes and following the directions thereof, award as compensation under said Statutes to the Peterborough Light & Power Company, Limited, the sum of $154,615.00, one hundred and fifty-four thousand six hundred and fifteen dollars;

AND, We do further award interest at the rate of five per cent. from the first day of October, 1914; and do further award to the said Company the costs to be taxed on the scale of the Supreme Court.

SIGNED by the said arbitrators at Toronto this 25th day of February, 1915.

E. C. S. HUYCKE,
R. A. ROSS,
WALLACE NESBITT.
Witness: LOUIS COOKSON.

Had Strange Hallucinations

Lindsay Warder: There was quite a sensational hearing given a man from Somerville before County Magistrate F. D. Moore, K.C., in the police court at 10 o'clock this morning. There were present:- Dr. Jeffers (jail surgeon), Constable Wm. Thorbury, Dr. Graham of Haliburton, and Mr. John Jones, Chief of Police of Fenelon Falls, and the defendant in the case who is a Somerville farmer. The defendant's wife did not appear until after the hearing was given the defendant.

The story of this case, without going into detail as told, is that the defendant has a hallucination that individuals and a mob are endeavouring to injure him and that he has been doped, the latter having the effect of making him commit acts which he should not be guilty of. He told his story to the Magistrate of getting liquor which at one interval was all right, but on taking a drink out of the same bottle later on it was altogether different and put him in a most hilarious mood. He is the father of a family and a fairly prosperous farmer.

His wife was afterwards given a hearing and she stated that her husband had been acting strangely for some years, that he slept with a loaded revolver under his head at night and a loaded rifle beside him. He at times got up in the quiet hours of the night and fired several shots from the open window in his bedroom. She also stated that he talked incessantly and incoherently all night falling asleep in the morning. He seemed to have a dread or feeling against some of the neighbours, though according to her statements, was not justified. He also thought there was a crowd surrounding the house at times and had storm doors tightly barred and windows securely nailed down. Thought he possessed those traits of character he was attentive to business and was a successful farmer. He at one time consulted a fortune teller at Fenelon Falls and paid her 75c. to foreshadow the future, still she did not believe in such, nor yet had he any belief in witchcraft.

After hearing the statements of husband and wife Magistrate Moore had him placed in jail for a week, when his case will be fully dealt with.

Attacked the Trenches

LONDON, March 5.—The Havas Agency Service says some Canadian soldiers, on March 3rd, made a bold attack on the German trenches, near Bethune, losing one killed and one wounded in the effort.

New Store Is A Handsome One

Will Be Thrown Open to Public by Mr. H. Abrahamson To-morrow

A worthy addition to Peterborough's already large number of beautifully appointed stores is the one that will be thrown open to the public to-morrw by Mr. H. Abrahamson, at the old ten-cent store stand, on George Street. One will hardly recognize the old-fashioned shop that ranked among Peterborough's first places of business. The transformation that has been wrought is wonderful and Mr. W. G. Ferguson, the owner of the building, is to be congratulated on the splendid ideas that have found execution in the hands of competent and expert workmen. The store is large and spacious, giving ample accommodation for a large display of goods.

It is fronted by two very handsome show windows of the most modern style, and ones that will readily meet the eye of the passerby. The interior has been tastefully decorated in attractive shades and a feature that commends itself to every shopper is the excellent light provided.

The first floor, at the rear of which is a commodious gallery office, will be devoted to ladies' ready-to-wear dry goods and millinery. Mr. Abrahamson is carrying a high-class stock of new goods that should be very popular. The second floor is the men's department. Ready-made clothing and furnishings are shown here.

The new store will be open to-morrow and the public generally is invited to come and look over the new premises.

More Trouble Reported From Lindsay Soldiers

The Port Hope Guide says: The Lindsay soldiers, still sore on account of the arrest of one of their comrades on Tuesday night, started out on Wednesday night to make things different for the night policeman. The Policeman took refuge in a fruit store and with his revolver drawn held his pursuers at bay. The fire alarm was sounded and the brigade and the members of the third overseas contingent not engaged in the mix-up soon dispersed the unruly soldiers. They were marched to their quarters at the point of the bayonet. At the request of the military authorities no reference was made in the Lindsay press to the disturbance.

FRIDAY, MARCH 5, 1915

A BOON FOR THE SOLDIERS.

(Toronto Mail and Empire.)

Stories of the terrible suffering of the British troops standing for hours and even for days in trenches half-filled with water may not have been exaggerated, but in the future such reports should be received with some reserve. What are called "wader stockings" have been invented by a couple of Englishmen, and recently have been subjected to some very severe tests. The wader stockings have done all that was claimed for them, and there is little doubt that as fast as they can be manufactured they will be sent to the front, and the British and French troops equipped with them. The waders are said to be both lighter and stronger than those used by fishermen. They are made of an absolutely waterproof material, and are lined with wool. They are worn on the bare foot and inside the ordinary army boot. Should they be punctured by a nail in the foot or from any other cause they can be mended like a bicycle tire.

Some of the tests to which the wader stockings have been subjected are reported in the Illustrated London News. One began on January 6. The soldier wearing the waders spent four hours in the trench, which was full of water, the temperature being 39 degrees. The following day he spent four and a half hours in the trenches, with the water up to his knees. On January 8 and January 9 he was in the water for six hours. He reported that all this time his feet were warm and comfortable. Another test began on January 9, and continued until January 14th. The four men who wore the waders had different sized feet, 7, 8, 9 and 10, but the same stocking fitted them all. Part of the time the water in the trench was frozen over with three-quarters of an inch of ice, and the temperature varied from 28 to 42 degrees. The men did not remove their boots for 118 hours, and they all reported that their feet had been comfortably warm all the time. Other experiments proved equally successful, and the Illustrated London News does not exaggerate the importance of the invention when it says that the stockings are proving an "inestimable boon" to the troops. Being light, and fitting closely to the leg, they do not impede the men when marching or when on the charge. Their general adoption by the British army will remove one of the greatest discomforts that the soldiers have so far had to endure, and will to an appreciable extent improve their fighting qualities.

AVOID NEEDLESS ECONOMY.

Economy is contagious, says the Toronto Globe. Talk of hard times, whether warranted or not, is certain to cause a tightening of purse-strings. That industrial corporations not injured, but aided by the war, have reduced wages is a natural, though lamentable, development, the glut of the labour market making it possible. The encouragement toward business as usual will have but little influence on men who see a chance of increased profits by proving opportunities, but there is no ground for a general tendency toward personal economy by those who do not feel any pressure in that direction. Farmers have not lost their market by the war, and so far as prices have been affected the tendency has been upward. Their position, so far as production and returns are concerned has been improved. But it is worthy of note, and perhaps to be regretted, that they have been affected by the contagion of the economy irresistibly forced on many city workers. Instead of more freely patronizing mercantile and industrial establishments in accordance with the better markets they are enjoying, the farmers have been inclined to fall into line with the prevailing habit.

The prosperity of agriculture is a matter for congratulation. The farmer has borne the heavy end of the load, and it is always cause for general satisfaction when he comes into his own. Our dependence on him is revealed and confessed in the request that he increase his output. The individual farmer, knowing how ignorant the wisest adviser must be regarding the personal considerations surrounding the operation of his farm, may resent advice as to methods or general operations. But the advice to enjoy the good things within reach and extend liberal patronage to other industries new feeling depression may be regarded from a broader outlook. The farmer has no ground for fearing the influence of the war. His business can never be ruined. He may be injured by taxation or by the obstruction of trade routes, but the world will continue to demand all the can produce. In the matter of markets he has nothing to fear. It is in the interest of the Province and the Dominion at large that the farmers fully enjoy the prosperity that has fallen to them through the necessities of an unprecedented situation. By thus benefiting themselves they will confer a still wider benefit on their fellow citizens now, in many cases, sadly in need.

A LOT DEPENDS ON THE BRITISH GUNNERS

Price of Wheat, Bread and Flour Lingers on Result of the Bombardment—Tea is a Centre of Interest Just Now —The Market Situation

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs will appear in Canadian Grocer this week:

Office of Publication, Toronto, Mar. 4.—The situation in the flour market is still interesting, though we are not just now treated to a picture of a soaring market. The breaks in wheat on both the Chicago and Winnipeg Exchange make for temporary weakness in flour. The big factor is, of course, the likelihood of wheat getting through the Dardanelles. Latest reports seem to favour an early date for this. Sixty-five million bushels of Russian would naturally bear the market here and over the border considerably. Even the possibility has done so during the last few days. Flour men contend, though, that their prices have never been figured on the outside prices of wheat. This is an important point. At present, therefore, they do not feel justified in reducing quotations. Meanwhile many a farmer sits tight, and apparently the possibility of a lot of Russian wheat saving the situation from the public's point of view has no terrors for him. He won't sell his wheat at less prices till he's got to. The farmer—particularly the Ontario farmer—is from Missouri, if it isn't a paradox to say so. It is by no means sure that flour prices are going to get cheaper yet.

New laid eggs are down considerably. Doubtless the hen has seen the Government's slogan: "Patriotism and Production," and is imbued with the necessity of doing her duty. Right along now we should see easier prices on new laids, and neither retailers or consumers will complain. United States storage eggs are coming into our markets in quantities. Evidently they fear no tariff across the line.

There is considerable discussion in Montreal as to whether or no coffee should be exempt, as is tea, from the new duty. Coffee men are said to feel there is no reason for any of higher prices the public is going to feel it. And, as we pointed out some time ago, the task of explaining just why tea will cost more will be up to the retailer.

Tea is a centre of interest just now. There seems to be no let-up in the advancing tendency exhibited by both the Colombo and the London auctions. Tea is higher in Colombo than it has ever been. Tea men here must advance prices very soon. Indeed, one concern has already increased their prices in territory west of Winnipeg and it seems pretty certain that others will have to follow suit. If anybody is aggrieved about it, and some are certain the tax will be taken off. This is problematical. One view is that instead of the duty being taken off coffee, Hon. Mr. White will come like a thief in the night—metaphorically, not literally—and put a tax on tea, when stocks are considerably lower than they are now. This would level things up, and from the Minister's point of view would be killing two birds with one stone:

Bakers are said to be cutting down their cake output, and they are talking freely of raised prices. Flour of course is costing them more. So is peel and the like. It is said, too, that bread will generally, be increased in price, though the situation there will doubtless hang fire until it is seen just what turn the flour market will take. What a lot depends upon the British gunners making good on the Dardanelles!

Cocoa is very high, and firm. Italy and France and England are all buying heavily. The latter two countries were prohibited for some time, but they have come back into the market, and prices—according to Trinidad advices—have materially increased. Unofficially we learn that prices have advanced 80 per cent. in New York in one month. One Canadian firm has put us its quotation, and an all-round advance looks likely, so that it would seem to be horse-sense for the retailer to buy what cocoa he needs right now.

Oysters have advanced about ten cents, and the increase is solely due to the new duties. This advance has come towards the end of the season when quantities are sold. Most banquets and so forth are over now, and the demand is not so large.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, March 4.—Sensational reports that millions of dollars in orders for war materials from the United States had been canceled in the last 48 hours nearly knocked the bottom out of the wheat market here today. After a fall of 7½c to a bushel, prices closed wild at 4¼c to 4 7-8c under last night. Corn suffered a net decline of 1½c to 1 3-8c, oats 1 1-8c. Provisions made a ragged finish, ranging from 10c off to a rise of 5c.

A weaker feeling developed in the local market for oats and prices scored a further decline of ½c to 1c per bushel. Local buyers bought flour freely from mill and the net result was a lower. There was no improvement in the demand for local or export account and business is dull. Bran and shorts were reduced $1 per ton, but all other lines of millfeed remain steady.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, March 4.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 779 cattle, 1917 hogs, 155 sheep and lambs and 63 calves.

"Roland" is the alarm bell in the belfry of Ghent cathedral, and on it is engraved an inscription which may be thus translated: "My name is Roland; when I toll there is fire, and when I ring there is victory in the land." The bell has been immortalized by Longfellow in his poem "The Belfry of Bruges:"

"I am Roland! I am Roland! There is victory in the land!"

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The militia authorities at Ottawa say that it is unlikely that a Canadian force is sharing in the positions along the Dardanelles.

The strike of coal heavers, which has delayed the departure of Atlantic liners for several days at Liverpool, was settled yesterday.

Jeff Mansel and M. M. Canby, white fishermen, accused of stealing hogs, were lynched in the woods near Camden, Arkansas, yesterday.

Another Big Blaze In Brantford.

BRANTFORD, March 5.—About 12 o'clock yesterday the fire brigade received a call to another big fire, which occurred in the Gem Theatre, recently remodelled. It is located just across the road from the Crompton store, which was burned on Wednesday, and is situated in the centre of a long block. Firemen, policemen, soldiers and street railway men fought the flames, and after two hours they had it completely under their control.

The building is owned by A. C. Lyons, and is valued at $15,000. It is stated that the blaze was the result of an explosion of chemicals used in developing films of the Crompton fire.

SESSION GROWS WARM.

House Spends Hours In Debate on Dr. Shortt's Statements.

OTTAWA, March 5. — A heated party debate raged in the House all day. It began upon a question of privilege raised by Sir Wilfrid Laurier respecting the criticisms of Prof. Shortt, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, by Hon. Robert Rogers, the Minister of Public Works. Mr. Rogers a few evenings ago in the course of the budget debate denounced Prof. Shortt's recent deliverance on the dismissals and appointments of the Government as dishonest, dishonorable and unfair. As the chairman of the Civil Service Commission can only be removed by the Government upon an address from the two Houses of Parliament, Sir Wilfrid maintained that a question of privilege was involved. Subsequently Sir Robert Borden moved that the House go into commission of supply and upon this motion the debate continued for several hours.

Interfered In Quarrel.

HALIFAX, N.S., March 5.—Harry Allen, arrested Wednesday night on the charge of murdering Jame R. Johnston, a lawyer, confessed yesterday morning, according to the police, that he had shot and killed his brother-in-law. Allen was arraigned before Magistrate Fielding in the Police Court yesterday morning and remanded until Monday.

MILITARY BALL A SUCCESS

The military dance in the Foresters' Hall last night under the auspices of the non-commissioned officers of B squadron of the 8th Mounted Rifles and the local company of the 39th Battalion was one of the most enjoyable and successful affairs of its kind of the season. The attendance was large and the scene presented was a brilliant one with the pretty dresses of the ladies contrasted with the Scarlet tunics of the 39th and the khaki uniforms of the men of the Mounted Rifles. The dance programme was a long and varied one, with English and Canadian dances intermingled, for which most enoyable music was provided by Tucker's orchestra, with Pte. Follis of the 39th at the piano. Dainty refreshments were served at midnight and the delightful affair came to a successful close at 3 a.m. Among the officers present were Capt. Nelson and Lieuts. Rogers and Sneath of the 8th C.M.R.

The committee in charge, who are deserving of every credit for the success of the affair, were as follows:

Sergt.-Major R. T. Biggs, 8th C.M.R. President, and Sergt.-Major Harry Willford, 39th Battalion, Secretary, who formed the music committee.

Refreshment committee—Sergts. Patterson, Shurety and Farrance, and Quartermaster Sergt. Kent, 8th C.M.R.

Hall committee—Sergt. H. Barrett, 39th Battalion and Sergt. H. Portsmouth, 8th C.M.R.

"Memories Flowers" A Tuneful Number

Music Was Composed by Mr. Asa Huycke of This City

"Memories' Flowers" is the title of a song that already has attained a very wide popularity, and is of particular local interest. The words are by Mr. J. Lewis Milligan, formerly of this City and now on the editorial staff of the Toronto Globe, while the composer of the music is Mr. Asa Huycke, the well-known Peterborough baritone and pianiste. For purposes of advertising the name of Mr. Albert Greenlaw, the coloured singer who was with Rev. Dr. Gordon, is metioned on the cover of the song as the writer of the music, whereas the real composer is Mr. Huycke.

"Memories' Flowers" is a decidedly tuneful number, written in waltz time. It can be sung either as a solo, or by a male quartette, the setting for the latter being by Mr. Huycke and is appended at the end of the song.

It is also being arranged for orchestra and band. Copies may be purchased at the Peterborough Music Store.

Pte. Heber Rogers Says the Rainy Weather Is Following the Canadians Around

The following letter has been received by Mrs. R. B. Rogers, East City, from her son, Pte. Heber Rogers, with the machine gun section of the 2nd Battalion of the First Contingent:

Somewhere in France, Feb. 15.

Dear Mother,—We have at last left Salisbury, but the rainy weather seems to follow us all around. It is snowing and raining now. The train stopped in a little village near here Saturday, and after dertraining we marched about three miles to our billets. Billets, yes; we are in a barn here. fortable billets, but if we go from here to the front soon it will be all right.

This place here was held by the Germans in October, and there are many graves around. Also pieces of guns and plenty of live ammunition lying around. Our barns have had shrapnel through the roofs.

I got father's letter of Jan. 4th. This will be all for this time. Hope you are all well. I am fine. Love to all.

Your loving son,
HEBER.

Relief Was Blown Up

German Mine Destroyed Trench After Canadians Left

LONDON, March 4.—One of the latest arrivals at Shorncliffe is Armitage Lawton, Toronto, who is suffering from rheumatism and strain thru a fall while making for the trenches. Despite his injuries, he did his forty-eight hours of trench duty along with the rest. In fact, it was some days later when his condition forced him to go sick.

Speaking to a Canadian Press representative today, he described how his platoon went forward to the trenches.

"We had the enemy's machine guns on us from the first moment that we moved forward from the trenches," said Lawton. "We were advancing in the dark, but rockets kept going up. Then we used to fall flat. Just as I was getting into a trench it was necessary to repeat the falling down business. Unfortunately, I fell more than I bargained for. I had been moving right on the edge of the trench and I fell to the bottom. I was badly shaken up. However, there I had to stop, and during forty-eight hours I fired away with the rest.

"Our men happened to be lucky, for as far as I know not one of them was hit. Another party came off much worse. Three were warming themselves round a pail close to me when a shell came along and took their heads off. Our party was relieved by another party who had not been in the trench above an hour when eighty of them were blown out, the trench having been undermined."

Lawton added that he had been in four different hospitals before reaching Shorncliffe. He emphasized that nobody at the front knew what was going on except in his own immediate neighborhood.

"All our boys want is for the Germans to come out," was Lawton's comment when asked as to the spirit of the Canadians.

Major George Higginbottom of the Q.O.R., Toronto, who was operated on Tuesday, is progressing slowly.

Message To Canadians

King George Issued Farewell to Troops Leaving For Front

OTTAWA, March 4.—Following his inspection of the Canadian first contingent, on Feb. 4, on Salisbury Plain, His Majesty th King wrote a gracious message to the troops, to be read to all units on board ship, after their embarkation for France. The government today issued the text of the farewell, which follows:

"Officers, Non-Commissioned Officers and Men:

"At the beginning of November I had the pleasure of welcoming to the mother country the fine contingent from the Dominion of Canada, and now, after three months of training, I bid you godspeed on your way to assist my army in the field.

"I am well aware of the discomforts that you have experienced from the inclement weather, and abnormal rain, and I admire the cheerful spirit displayed by all ranks in facing and overcoming all difficulties.

"From all I have heard and from what I have been able to see at today's inspection and march-past, I am satisfied that you have made good use of the time spent on Salisbury Plain.

"By your willing and prompt rally to our common flag you have already earned the gratitude of the mother land.

"By your deeds and achievements on the field of battle I am confident that you will emulate the example of your fellow countrymen in the South African war, and thus help to secure the triumph of our arms.

"I shall follow with pride and interest all your movements, and I pray that God may bless you and watch over you."

EXERCISE AND GRECIAN BEAUTY

WHAT IT MEANS

Many thousands of women are now-a-days paying attention to physical culture and the proper exercise of their body muscles, where, thirty years ago or fifty years ago there was no thought expended on this science, which is quite necessary to physical beauty. The reason the Greeks, both men and women, excelled in beautiful and symmetrical forms was because of the attention they paid to the proper exercise. Then, too, they were untrammeled by corsets, shoes and the inconveniences of clothing. To the minds of some women the idea of physical exercise conveys only the idea of hard fatiguing work. Mild exercise continued day after day is best for the body and spirits and health. Without proper exercise there can be no health, and without health there can be no real beauty.

There is no stronger proof of the sound remedial value of Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription than that it restores the wasted form to its wonted roundness.

The mighty restorative Prescription speedily causes all womanly troubles to disappear, removes pain and misery at certain times and brings back health and strength to nervous, irritable and exhausted women.

It is a wonderful prescription prepared only from Nature's roots with glycerine, with no alcohol to falsely stimulate. It banishes pain, headache, backache, low spirits, hot flashes, dragging-down sensations, worry and sleeplessness surely and without loss of time.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. Address Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N.Y. —Advt.

PREPARING FOR DEFEAT

Germany May Not Get Extra Territory

NEW YORK, March 5.—A London Daily Express despatch to The Herald, dated Amsterdam, Wednesday, says:

Significant paragraphs appearing in the German daily and weekly press make it clear that the Government wishes the people to become accustomed to the notion that the peace Germany will be able to gain will not give her one inch of surplus territory.

Even a pan-German newspaper like The Berliner Post, whose active contributor Gen. von Bernhardi was for years, admits that "it is not wise to force German nationality on people who are not German and who are not worthy of being turned into Germans."

In several reviews the same notion is impressed on the readers with significant insistance. Suddenly Germany discovers that the Alsatians, the Poles, and the Danes have given her enough trouble and that a "good peace" must assure for her a "much-needed rest for inner rebuilding."

WHY PEOPLE FEEL DEPRESSED IN THE COLD WEATHER

Why is tiredness and langour so prevalent just now? A physician explained that the cold of winter drives blood from the surface of the body to the liver. Normally one-fourth of the whole blood supply is in the liver, and when more blood is accumulated in that organ everything goes wrong.

No better remedy exists than Dr. Hamilton's Pills which are composed of such vegetable extracts as Mandrake and Butternut, and possess wonderful liver stimulating powers. It's a marvel the way Hamilton's Pills clear the blood of the poisonous humours. They put new life into worn out bodies, build up the appetite, bring back a reserve of nerve energy, tide folks over the cold days of winter and the depressing days of spring. For your health and body comfort get a 25c. box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills to-day.

German People Deceived Regarding Food Supply, Declares Berlin Lawyer

Well Known Attorney, Now a Prisoner, Says War Was Precipitated Too Soon to Permit Delivery of Great Store of Cereals Ordered Abroad.

IN NORTHERN FRANCE — At the hospital here I had a talk with a wounded Berlin lawyer of some distinction. He had been promoted from his office to the ranks, went through the fighting lines and has received a single ticket to London, all in six short weeks.

He lost his left arm at Bethune, and when I saw him he held in his solitary hand a copy of the Daily Express and other less important London papers, so I said, "I see you read our journals."

"Oh, yes," he answered. "It is as I predicted. We shall have a bread famine in our country. It means great suffering."

"Have you not good bread in Germany?" I asked.

"No; it was bad enough when I was there, but now it is worse."

"But how did it happen that when you were so perfectly equipped in all else the very staff of life was neglected?"

Without answering me directly he asked, "Do you have white bread in England?"

"Did you say bread or people?" I ventured.

"Why do you say that?" he asked.

"Because," I answered, "your Berlin papers say that we have black, red, yellow and even spotted soldiers in our ranks, but I can assure you we have white bread."

"We have but little," he went on. "Before last harvest our government circulated a report that our harvest would be the greatest ever known, and, as a fact, it was the poorest.

Says Nation Was Deceived.

"Knowing war was at hand, the government—I and all my family are socialists—without consultation or sanction secretly sent emissaries through the Americas to purchase all available cereals. This was during June and July last, and even after an endless line of lighters filled with grain began climbing the Rhine-fed canals of Germany from all the western ports the farmers, believing there was a surplus, forced their stock by overfeeding, and grain was lavishly used in many ways.

"The government was morally afraid to undeceive the people before the war repositories were filled, and so the farmers went on feeding. Before even a quarter of the grain had been delivered from abroad war was precipitated—two months too soon.

"The Emperor could not, as a sane man, allow to pass an opportunity he had been praying for, because our socialist party was daily growing stronger and pressing hard to reduce taxation, which would have meant a reduction in the army, and that would have provoked a civil war. So the cyclone of war was saddled, and it is being ridden to end"—

"But how can bread," I inquired, "be more a question of the day than ammunition?"

"Because," he said, "not one-fourth of the cereals bought was ever delivered, and after the war began England's fleet saw that it should not arrive. When the harvest lie was laid bare we began to retrench, but it was too late. Now, naturally, the German army's upkeep is considered before the people's, and even the most refined families are forced to eat a class of bread at which the stomach not only rebels but after a while rejects.

"Since being in the hospital here I have read the English papers, and I find that this blockade comes as a despairing protest against the outrage England is committing. Wait another month or two and there will come a cry from every mouth, from the finest mansion in Berlin to the lowest tenement in the Essen coalfields—a cry for bread.

1915 Harvest To Be Light.

"If we could but expect a coming harvest it would help a little, but women can raise beets, not cereals, and from the prisoners we have at work there can be but a half-hearted result. In the meantime the supply is dwindling, and for an army like ours bread is as necessary as powder."

"But you have a few million horses yet to eat," I said.

"You cannot eat the cake and have it," he replied. "We need all the horses for the war."

"You mentioned powder a moment ago," I said. "Will you have a powder famine, too? Du Pont and other great experts say that if the war continues to expend powder at the present rate the powder famine will come first."

"We do not need meat, men, iron or even copper, and we will not be stopped for either; powder is another question. If England's fleet and her domination over the smaller countries starves us out of everything we cannot fight on."

"I am surprised that you should acknowledge such a possibility," I observed.

"Don't be," he said. "My father spent his life, as I have mine, battling for socialism against this militarism, which may reduce our country to begin again on the foundation we have been fighting for.

"It was not until I saw Germany from the outside that I realized the united and almost invincible strength against her, and although it was against my principles I fought for the Fatherland—and now?"

Then he silently walked away.

The total horse-power represented by the automobiles of the United States exceeds 22,800,000.

TWO SOLDIERS ARE KILLED

Galt Street Car Strikes Cutter in Which They Were Driving

GUELPH, Ont., March 4.—Percy Whalley and J. E. Ganhan of Galt, who were attached to the 34th Battalion C.E.E., which is stationed here, were the victims of a terrible accident which occurred on the street car system tonight.

In the morning they engaged a cutter to go to Galt to see friends, stating that they would return in the evening. Returning about 8 o'clock along Waterloo avenue, on the wrong side of the road, they endeavored to cross over the street, but failed to notice the approach of a trolley car, which was traveling south at a fast rate. The motorman was unable to avoid the accident owing to the suddenness with which the cutter turned on the tracks.

Not being able to find evidence of a wrench when the car was brought to a standstill the street car continued on its trip until Edinboro road was reached, when the conductor and driver were horrified to see a body dropping from the truck, and another caught in the motor. Both bodies were terribly mangled and could not be recognized. It is believed the horse bolted when crossing the tracks, and that the soldiers were thrown in under the trolley, where they were caught by the truck.

On the coroner being summoned the bodies were removed to an undertaking parlor. An inquest will be held.

A COMMITTEE OF CITIZENS WILL CONSIDER HYDRO PROPOSALS

Havelock is Confronted With a Street Lighting Problem—Curfew Bell May Ring—Meeting of the Town Council

HAVELOCK, March 5—All the members of the Town Council were present at the regular monthly meeting and a goodly number of citizens also attended the session.

A number of accounts were passed, including those for the removal of the recent big fall of snow, and some of the labourers employed on that occasion complained bitterly of the smallness of the wage, $1.50 per day.

Auditor Skene presented the report of the 1914 audit, which was accepted, and the auditors salary of $10.00 each, ordered paid.

Coun. Lynch, who is especially strong on economy this year, evidently forgot his convictions for the time and urged the granting of more money to Mr. Skene, and even went so far as to leave his seat and urge that gentleman to ask for more, assuring him that the Council would give more. Mr. Skene, however, refused to yield to Mr. Lynch's appeal and the matter dropped.

Rev. Mr. Holdsworth addressed the Council on behalf of the Social Service Association, asking the Council to consider the advisability of a curfew bell for the youngsters of the town, and also on behalf of his congregation, asked the Council to instruct the constable to prevent the loafing of boys and men, on the street corners when service was being held in he Church. The constable was instructed to see to the latter request, and the first was laid over for further consideration.

Dog Tax.

The delinquent tax list came up for discussion and on motion of Scott and Wright the Collector was instructed to hand the names of same to the constable, who is to give them one week's notice and then in default of payment the chattels of the defaulters are to be distrained for the taxes.

By a motion the Clerk was instructed to draw up a resolution asking the Commissioners of North Hastings not to grant a shop liquor license in Marmora, as per the request of Rev. Mr. Clark of that Village.

The letter from the Hydro Commission was read, and after the Reeve had intimated that Norwood did not purpose coming in on the scheme, and the Clerk had reported that he had no answer to his request for figures for Havelock alone, it was moved, on motion of Couns. Coon and Lynch that the Clerk write the Hydro Commission and ask them to send their engineer down to confer with the Council and the following committee of our citizens: Messrs. Squire, Jack, A. C. Denike, Lancaster, Curtis, E. Williams, Wm. Mathison, Fennell and Job Coon. This committee, with the Council, is to obtain all possible information as to the reqquirements of the Village in regard to light and power, and to frame up the Hydro by-law for presentation to the electors.

Street Lighting.

The matter of street lighting then arose. Manager Holderoft claimed that the town was getting better rates than Norwood or Tweed, Norwood, he said, paid $680 for 2,440 watts, or 61 lamps at 40 watts each. Tweed paid $1012 for 4980 watts, while Havelock was paying $1080 for 5620 watts. Couns. Lynch, Coon and Wright thought that the local Company were getting far too much money. The Reeve and Coun. Scott thought that it would be a big mistake to cut out the lights even at present rates, and that Coun. Lynch's motion that $60 a month was away too low and in fact prohibitive. After a long discussion in which Coun Wright declaimed against the Company for not carrying out the improvements recommended by the Hydro last year, Coun. Coon seconded Coun. Lynch's motion. Coun. Scott moved an amendment, that the lighting rates be left as they are until after the conference with the Hydro Engineer. Coun. Wright refused to second the amendment and the motion carried.

EXTORTIONATE PRICES PAID BY GOVERNMENT

Oats, Tires, Trucks and Horses Cost Far Above Market Price

BIG DISPARITY SHOWN

OTTAWA, Ont., March 4.—While no request has so far been made to the Government by the Opposition for a general enquiry into military contracts let since the war commenced, information contained in returns ordered by Opposition members, and tabled in the House from time to time would indicate that there are other purchases than those of boots which merit investigation. So far the question of price has figured but little in the boot inquiry, the cost being uniform one set by the Department.

Apparently, however, this is about the only portion of the equipment of the Canadian soldiers which has been purchased at a uniform price, the disparity in the cost of other purchases being in many cases startling and difficult to understand. This disparity has been shown by returns brought down so far to characterize the prices paid for horses, oats, binoculars, motor trucks, medical supplies, and many other articles of more or less normal standard value.

Someone Made Big Profits.

The only inference which can be drawn from these disparities is that there has either been an absolute lack of system in buying, or that some of the Government's purchasing agents have made more than a legitimate commission upon their purchases. It has been demonstrated for instance, that one agent, recommended to the Government by W. F. Garland, M.P. for Carleton County, had made 31 1-2 per cent. upon medical supplies of various kinds. It has been further shown that the average prices of horses supplied for the first contingent, and purchased in Eastern Canada varied from something over $156 in Ontario, to something over $188 in Nova Scotia.

An inkling of what promises to be one of the most outstanding instances of price disparity in connection with the purchase of war supplies is to be found in a return brought down by the Minister of Militia in response to an order secured by William German of Welland. The returns show that the Government purchased from the Canada Cycle & Motor Co. for replacement purposes of the trucks which went with the first contingent 28 3-4 sets of various sizes of motor truck tires at an average price of $390.18. When later the Government had secured prices from various other companies the tires for the second contingent motor trucks were purchased for $247 per set on the entire outfit of 150 trucks. It would, therefore, appear from the figures in the return that the tires procured for the first contingent's trucks cost an average of $143 per set more than those for the second.

Tires Went Even to $400.

It is a matter of general knowledge, however, that the tires purchased from the Canada Cycle & Motor Co. are only a small proportion of the total number of tires purchased for replacement purposes by the Government for the 142 trucks sent over with the first contingent. In fact, it is stated on good authority that the average price paid for tires for the first contingent is much higher than that paid upon the contract given to the Canada Cycle & Motor Co., and it is stated that when all the facts are made public it will be shown that there was a spread of nearly $400 between the prices paid for tires for the first contingent and those paid for tires for the second. In fact, it is understood that the spread does not apply to tires merely, but that a very startling disparity exists between the prices paid for the motor trucks themselves.

Purchase of Field Glasses.

Rreturns brought down show further that heavy commissions have been paid upon the purchases of binoculars by the Government. Correspondence between the Auditor-General and the Militia Department shows that P. W. Ellis and Co., of Toronto, received ten per cent. commission, amounting in all to $9,011, on the binoculars, telescopes, and compasses purchased for the first contingent from that company. In the correspondence the Auditor-General is recorded as having asked the department why $48 apiece were paid for some binoculars and $33 for others.

Further startling disparities in prices is to be found in the purchase of oats last autumn. The quantities purchased are given at 6,000 bushels at 67 cents per bushel, 5,000 at 67 1-2 cents, and 3,300 at 70 cents. In connection with this purchase the "Watchdog of the Treasury," Auditor-General Fraser, felt constrained to write to the department in the following terms:

"In my letter to you of December 29, I stated that the market price of the best oats in Canada was 54 cents per bushel. For No. 2 white, the quality you now say was supplied, I find the market price was even lower. I find by the Montreal market report that there was an ample supply of 1913 oats available in the warehouses any time between the date of tender and delivery, consequently I do not understand why it was not possible to secure a much better price."

The above disparities are only instances of many which may be required to be explained during the coming session.

The Home Merchant

The home merchant. Who is he?

He is the chap who gives you credit when you are financially broke, and carries your account until you are able to pay.

He is the chap who gives you back your money or makes exchanges when you are not satisfied with what you have bought.

He is the chap who stands behind his guaranty and makes restoration of all losses that you may sustain on the goods you buy.

He is the chap who meets you at the door with a handshake, and lets you out with a message to the "kids" and a real come-again good-bye.

He is the chap who meets and greets you on the street every day in the year, and takes a neighbourly interest in your family and your affairs.

He is the chap whose clerks and bookkeepers and other employees live in St. John and spend their money with you and with other St. John people.

He is the chap who pays heavy taxes to help support Peterborough schools and build Peterborough's streets, and maintain Peterborough's fire department and police department, and parks, and lighting and water service.

He is the chap who helps support Peterborough churches and hospitals and charity organizations, and Peterborough lodges and commercial clubs, and talks for Peterborough and boosts Peterborough every day in the year.

He is the chap who visits you when you are sick, sends flowers to your family when you die, and follows your body out among the trees and tombs, as far as human feet may travel with the dead.

He is the home merchant — your neighbour—your friend —your helper in times of need.

Don't you think that you ought to trade with him, and be his friend and his helper in the time of need?

Don't you know that every dollar that you send out of Peterborough for merchandise, is sent to strangers —to men who never spend a dollar in Peterborough, to men who would not trust you for a box of matches, to men who would turn you over to the police if you should enter their offices?

You don't save much, frequently nothing, when you send your money out of Peterborough and you take all the risk yourself, of short weight or measure and of getting damaged or inferior goods. And don't you know that the growth and prosperity of Peterborough depends very largely upon the success and prosperity of the home merchant? Out-of-town people judge our city by the appearance of our stores and the degree of enterprise shown by our merchants. And our home merchants can not succeed unless home folks give them loyal support.

HELP OR SHUT UP!

Advice of Neutrals Regarding Belgium Not Needed, Says Grey.

LONDON, March 5.—"Unless neutral nations are prepared to assist in throwing the Germans off Belgium, no suggestions from them in the matter of preventing the further devastation of that country are wanted," said Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, in the House of Commons, yesterday. The Foreign Secretary's statement was made in response to an inquiry from Frederick W. Jowett, whether the Government was "willing to invite suggestions from neutrals with a view to avoiding further devastation of Belgium by the great powers which are contending for its mastery."

"The only solution of this question," Sir Edward continued, "is the evacuation of Belgian territory by German troops, the restoration of her independence, repatriation, and remuneration for the wrong done her. Unless neutral powers are prepared to assist in securing that solution, I don't see what could be gained by the course suggested."

How to Look Years Less Than Your Age

The most aged face will look years younger after the use of ordinary mercolized wax for from ten days to two weeks. This remarkable substance, because of its peculiar absorptive power, actually removes the thin veil of faded or withered outer cuticle, a little at a time. Gradually the fresher, more youthful skin underneath is revealed. This absorption process being a purely hygienic one, an entirely natural complexion is acquired—quite different from the artificial complexion, which appears anything but girlish, though often bearing painful evidence of childishness. An ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, is sufficient to rejuvenate any complexion. It is put on like cold cream at bedtime, and removed mornings with warm water.

To eradicate crow's foot age marks as wrinkles and furrows, make a wash lotion by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel. This lotion exerts a marvelous astringent and tonic properties. It quickly effaces all kinds of wrinkles, no matter how caused, making the skin firm, smooth and young looking.

Mary Roberts Rhinehart Goes To War Zone In Search of War Adventures For Fiction

DUNKIRK, March 4—Mrs. Mary Roberts Rhinehart, American writer of mystery stories, humorous sketches, magazine articles and books, landed here one afternoon this week in search of war adventures. A few hours later, before the feeling of the ship's motion had worn off, fourteen German aeroplanes circled over her hotel and dropped eighty bombs about her. Here is her story:

"I had just landed and settled myself comfortably at the hotel when the fun started. I was finishing dinner, about 9 o'clock I should say, when the fog siren in the lighthouse began blowing and the alarm bell in the old tower around the corner from the hotel told of the presence of the German aircraft. Whether aeroplanes or Zeppelins we did not know from the alarm. Then the first bomb fell. Shortly afterwards I discovered that of the civilians I was practically alone in the dining room. And I didn't remain there long.

"A Belgian officer recommended that I sit in the second floor lobby. This part of the hotel had the virtue of being situated several floors from the roof and at least one room removed from the street. So I got in a corner. Then the lights went out, leavig the place in darkness thick enough to smother. A candle was placed on a little round table in front of me, but the light it gave only emphasized the gloom. And all the time, at intervals of from one to two minutes, came the terrific crash of a German bomb or the thunder of an anti-air-craft gun on the beach. I was not at all happy. This was my initiation to being under fire. I like adventure, but would rather be eased into it. Plunges like this are always upsetting.

"There was but a handful of people where I was. I don't know and never have discovered where the others disappeared to. I do hear, though, that the hotel cellar is a large one. I remember one man, a civilian. He came up, holding a candle in both hands. Approaching an officer he inquired in a shaky voice if there was much danger and where had be better go? The candle flame trembled so the light on his face remeinded me of motion picture flickers.

"The firing continued about two hours and we finally had coffee served. The bombs dropped all about the hotel, but none upon it. After it was all over we discovered we had chosen the worst place in the whole hotel to hide from bombs. Had a shell fallen above the stairway after piercing the roof it would have dropped right down to where we sat and probably exploded on our coffee table.

"I decided to retire. I left the company I had been in during the bombardment with much misgiving for clearly the officers regarded the visit of the German taubes as the harbingers of Zeppelins which would in all probability arrive between midnight and 3 or 4 o'clock. Still I needed the rest and off I went.

"Once in my room I opened a window looking upon the big square. The night was superb. There was not a light to be seen anywhere, but the moon made things almost as bright as day. The statute of Jean Bart in the middle of the square cast a shadow sharp as if by the sun. Not a soul was to be seen but ambulances were dashing about as though of their own accord, picking up the dead and wounded. I shivered and went to bed by candle-light.

"I don't know how long I lay there dreading the coming of the Zeppelins. I frankly confess I was very nervous. The Zeppelins, I had heard, carried bombs much larger than aeroplane bombs and one such could wreck a large house from roof to foundation. Finally I dosed.

"I awoke with a painful start. The bells in the tower around the corner were clanging away. A hoarse siren was sounding from the direction of the harbour. The Zeppelins had arrived! Dunkirk would now be wrecked.

"I got out of bed and found a dressing gown to throw about me. I located the door to my room and went out into the hall. It was as dark there as in my room. Not a soul seemed to be stirring. The bells had stopped now and the siren had hushed, probably so as not to give the Zeppelins' pilots their directions. I groped down the hall, miles and miles, it seemed to me, and for hours, through a silence as deep as the night was dark.

"Then I heard a noise. I stopped. It seemed to come from a room at my left. It came rythmically! Swish, swish, swish—swish, swish! For a minute I was too much a-tremble to make out what it was, then all of a sudden I recognized the sound. Some one was blacking boots!

"You can't imagine how good the noise of someone shining boots can sound. With a sigh of relief I went back to my room. If a maid could be calmly shining the shoes of the guests of the hotel I was certain no Zeppelins could be hovering over her head. I know the maids of that particular hotel too well. Also if it were the shoe shining hour, it must be about daylight. The bells I had heard were the six o'clock chimes.

"Closing the curtains tight and snuffing the candle, I tumbled back into my bed and did not wake up again until nearly noon."

Appeal Dismissed With Costs

The following case was tried in Peterborough before Mr. Justice Kelley. The appeal was heard in the appellate division of the High Court, Toronto:

Bank of Ottawa v. Hall—G. F. Shepley, K.C., and G. W. Hatton (Peterborough) for plaintiff. G. H. Watson, K.C., and S. J. Birnbaum for defendant. Appeal by plaintiff from judgment of Kelly, J., of December 19, 1914. Action to recover $11,870.89, alleged to be due by defendant on promissory note by him to Canadian Cordage & Manufacturing Co., and endorsed by the company to plaintiff. At trial judgment was entered dismissing action with costs. Appeal argued and dismissed with costs.

Boots Unfit For Service

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, March 5 — Members of the Boot Inquiry Committee are pursuing the reports received from Divisional Headquarters in connection with the supply of boots to the second contingent. These reports were made at Halifax, Fredericton, Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg, Ottawa, Kingston, Calgary and Lethbridge. In all of these reports there is singular unanimity of opinion that the boots were unfit for active service purposes and new issues were almost invariably called for.

Bill Reported To The House

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, March 5—A quorum in the Committee on the question of the pollution of navigable streams was finally secured this morning and G. Bradbury's bill was reported to the House. The bill, which provides against the pollution of navigable waters, was slightly amended to meet the views expressed in the House by Sir Wilfred Laurier and others. By this amendment the Government has power to name the bodies of water which shall come under the provisions of the bill.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Dear Sir and Editor of the Peterborough Examiner,—As a stranger in this city, but likely to remain for a few months, I beg of you to publish the following letter:

Many words I hope are not necessary to take up too much of your valuable space, but I should like to express my humble opinion upon the concert held by the Peterborough Choral Society, which was postponed from Tuesday, Feb. 23rd to March 2nd. We all have observed that a postponed entertainment is most often poorly attended, but I cannot see why this should be the only reason for so slim an audience at this concert. I very much admire the pluck, on the part of the chorus and also the other performers for turning up in larger numbers than the audience. I enjoyed the music very much, for the price, but how regrettably shameful on the part of the public, for not supporting a concert postponed for their benefit. But perhaps the public are not wholly to blame. For instance, there were no tickets of admission, but the programme was sold and used for admission. There was no place printed on the programme of where the concert was to be held, or the time for commencing, of the application of the proceeds. All this contributed no credit to the management of the Choral Society, but shows a deficiency on their side. What should exist is the co-operation of the Socity with that of the public, which would contribute an improvement to the Society, as also the public. Lastly, who is to blame for the imperfection of an excellent entertainment, performed by a large choir, attended by a small audience. Believe me,

Another Heavy Fine.

THE HAGUE, March 5 (via London).—The Municipality of Antwerp, according to The Handelsblad, has been fined 50,000 francs ($10,000) by the German authorities because posters announcing the German East Prussian victory were damaged.

The population of Antwerp has been warned, the newspaper adds, that in future the inhabitants of houses situated near where posters are damaged will be held responsible for the damage, and severely punished.

Austrian Interpreter Convicted.

OTTAWA, March 5.—John Martin, Austrian interpreter in the alien enemy registration office here, was found guilty yesterday of collecting money from aliens under false pretenses. It was shown that he had exacted fees for registration and in some cases took money from foreigners on the ground that otherwise they would be interned.

A French aviator has invented a safety belt to keep airmen from being thrown from their machines and to absorb part of the shock of a fall.

Dog Bite 15 Years Old, Kills Girl

NEW YORK, March 4—A dog bite in the calf of the left leg, which she suffered fifteen years ago, caused the death of Miss Ella Frances Hobby, thirty-one years old, in her home, in Clinton Place, Far Rockaway, L.I., Tuesday. Miss Hobby had had treatment from thirty-five physicians in twelve hospitals, and nine unsuccessful operations had been performed.

The injury was not at first considered serious. The wound was cauterized. Tuberculosis of the bone developed. The most recent operation, six months ago, seemed successful, and for a time Miss Hobby was able to walk without crutches.

She was the daughter of Thomas J. Hobby, city marshal, who died a week ago. During this lifetime Mr. Hobby spent thousands of dollars for specialists to treat his daughter.

Farmers' Schools

The Grand Trunk Pacific authorities report that the various Provincial Governments in Western Canada are co-operating in a very enthusiastic manner with the Federal Government's "Patriotism and Production" campaign.

The Government of the Province of Alberta is lending practical assistance to the better farming movement by enlarging the scope of agricultural instruction. During the week ending February 20th, a school was held at Tofield, Alta., at which lectures and demonstrations were continuously given without charge.

A special train of eight cars of live stock were handled over the Grand Trunk Pacific to Tofield for the purpose of demonstrating the good points of different classes of animals.

At the first session of the school there were from one hundred and fifty to two hundred farmers present, and interest increased during the week. At night when lectures were held in the Town Hall, the building was crowded and not all who wished could gain admission.

Football Game Was Played in "Camera"

Crowd Demanded Admittance—The Revised Draw for the Fourth Round—Old Country Football Comment

For the first time in history an English Cup-tie was played "in camera," when Wednesday, at Lincoln, Bradford City and Norwich City met in their third attempt to decide their English Cup dispute. Following is the official report:

London, March 3—In obedience to the ruling of the Football Association that no mid-week English Cup-ties should be played during the war, Norwich City and Bradford City were supposed to make their third attempt to settle matters yesterday, within closed doors. At the start a few hundred people had assembled around the gates in the hope that some chance might offer for them to be admitted, but as this was not forthcoming the situation became so ugly that Football Association members present were obliged at half-time to permit the gates to be opened, when the crowd, numbering over a thousand, rushed in. Bradford won by two goals to none.

The revised draw for the fourth round, to be played Saturday, is as follows:

Chelsea v. Newcastle.
Bradford City v. Everton.
Bolton v. Hull City.
Oldham Ath. v. Sheffield United.

English League—Division 1.

Chelsea 0, Bradford 1.
Sheffield Wed. 7, Bolton 0.

Second League.

Birmingham 1, Fulham 0.

Southern League.

Millwall 1, Plymouth Arg. 1.

Leonard Moore and Benfield, both County's inside forward, have each in turn headed their markman's list. At present they stand as follows: Moore 20, Leonard 17, and Benfield, 14.

Bobby Parker, Everton's centre forward, has scored 28 goals up to date, and with ten more games to play he has a great chance of beating Bert Freeman's record of 38. He has accomplished the hat trick five times this season.

It is interesting to note the way in which Barnsley have advanced this season. At the end of September they were 17th in the table; October, 10th, November, 9th; December, 7th; January, 5th; February, 4th.

A gate of less than 1,000 at a home match of the First Division leaders must certainly be a record in its way This is what happened at Oldham.

Though he is his side's leading goal scorer, with 14 to his credit, Rodgers of Stockport County, has never found the net twice in one afternoon.

Harry Low of Sunderland has made a perfect recovery from the knee injury sustained at Blackburn, and he is in training again.

Manchester City have made a good offer to the United for the transfer of George Wall, their famous outside left, but they were told there was nothing doing.

George Elliott, the Middlesborough centre forward, scored ten goals for their reserve team in a Northeastern League match, the other week, out of fifteen.

There has always been heavy scoring in the games between Middlesbrough and the Spurs in First Division contests. This table is astounding:

	3	1
1910-11	2	0
	2	6
1911-12	2	1
	1	2
1912-13	2	1
	3	5
1913-14	6	0
	1	0
1914-15	3	3
	3	0
Total	35	26

This shows that in twelve matches no fewer than 61 goals have been registered, or a fraction over five goals for each match. This sounds like a record for any dozen matches of late years. Of the 24 points involved, Middlesbrough have annexed 16, leaving Tottenham with a share of 8. But it is hard, very hard, to notch five goals away from home and lose, and Jimmy Cantrell scored four.

ORILLIA HAVE FOUR GOAL LEAD OVER THE WIARTON INTERMEDIATES

ORILLIA, March 4.—Orillia O. H. A. intermediates demonstrated their superiority over Wiarton here this evening in the first game of the O. H. A. final by making a score of five goals to Wiarton's one. The game was brilliant from start to finish and was the finest exhibition of hockey played in Orillia this season.

Orillia had the best of the combination play in the first period, Wiarton making a feature of long shots, the puck often being sent from one end of the rink to the other. Johnston, in goal for Wiarton, was a star and as the play was largely in front of his net, he was kept busy. "Dad" Ashley played left defence for Wiarton, and was undoubtedly the strongest man on their team. Simmie and Myers were fast, and the latter scored Wiarton's only tally.

Corbould, in goal for Orillia, was very good. Long shots or shots near at hand were all the same to him. The only one that got past him was a fluke.

In the first period Orillia got the first goal after ten minutes of play. Draper shot and Ross took it on the rebound and dropped the puck into the net. Wiarton scored one shortly before time was called and the period ended one all.

In the second period Wiarton played better combination than they did in the first, but Orillia scored two more, Jupp and Ross doing the trick.

Both teams commenced the third period in good form and play was very even. Toward the close, Orillia got two more past Johnston, Macnab and Draper taking the honours. The game was clean and the penalties were few. The line-up:

LAST NIGHT'S SCORES IN THE FIRST ROUND

The local bonspiel is out in the second round of the primary, also in the consolation series. Three draws are slated for this evening, at 7, 9 and 11 o'clock. Probably the primary finals will be reached. At any rate the club desires to clean the board without delay.

McDermid, skip, 8; W. G. Morrow, skip, 9.

Hicks, skip, 7; Dr. Wightman, skip, 11.

W. Thompson, skip, 10; Dr. Greer, skip, 9.

Giroux, skip, 11; W. Taylor, skip, 8.

Matthews, skip, 10; Lang, skip, 6.

Geo. Stevenson won by default from Robt. Harstone.

The only game in the second round put President Kenner in the semi-finals. He defeated Mr. Neill by 11-6, and the gallery is pulling for him to win.

J. E. A. Fitzgerald 4, W. D. Campbell 10.

H. Foot 9, E. L. Bowe 4.

T. Brightman 9, S. J. Stubbs 7.

W. G. Ferguson 6, J. A. Cameron 8.

R. G. Sturgeon (won by default), R. M. Waddell.

J. H. Ferguson (won by default), D. Davidson.

W. T. Hall 7, W. H. Denham 6.

"Grand Opera" In Ottawa

OTTAWA, March 5.—Announcement was made yesterday that T. H. Brownlee and Company and P. M. Moyle, had purchased the famous Canadian pacer, Grand Opera, 2.09 1-4. At the time of the Hull Driving Club's ice race meet in February there was a deal on between Messrs. Moyle and Brownlee to purchase Grand Opera from the owner, F. J. Daley, of Peterborough. It fell through. However negotiations were reopened last week, with the result that the sale was completed Wednesday. The sale price was not announced. Grand Opera paced a mile at Ottawa in 2.13 1-4.

Do Postmen Get Letters?

Do you suppose the postoffice clerks care to receive letters? I have my doubts. They get into a dreadful habit of indifference. A postman, I imagine, is quite callous. Conceive his delivering one to himself without being startled by a preliminary double knock!

Pleasure at Death.

A wise man shall not be deprived of pleasure even when death shall summon him, forasmuch as he has attained the delightful end of the best life, departing like a guest full and well satisfied. Having received life upon trust, and duly discharged that office, he acquits himself at departing.—Epictetus.

Slow Delivery.

Mrs. Gotham—Who spoke at the dinner tonight, dear?

Mr. Gotham—Well, one of the speakers was the owner of that big department store.

"No wonder you're late, then."

"Why?"

"I happen to know his delivery is awfully slow."—Yonkers Statesman.

In the Wrong Place.

Little Kitty had fallen down and cut her knee. Her mother promptly rendered first aid; but, as it was rather dark and she could not see the wound properly, she consequently placed the bandage rather too low. "Oh, mummie," complained the child, "this bandage is not in the right place! I fell down higher up!"

Mountain Lakes.

The Uinta mountains of Utah, included within the Wasatch, Uinta and Ashley national forests, should become a favorite recreation region because of the many small lakes within depressions scooped out by glacial drifts. Seventy such lakes can be counted from Reid's peak, and one particular township, thirty-six miles square, contains more than 100.—Argonaut.

WAR IN EDEN.

British Troops Encamped Where Eve Tempted Adam.

The British seizure and occupation of Basra, the Turkish port on the Persian Gulf puts Britain practically in possession of the site of the Garden of Eden.

There can be no doubt that the region described in the Book of Genesis as the Garden of Eden is in Mesopotamia, "the country lying between the rivers." These rivers are the Tigris, Euphrates and their tributaries.

The town of Basra is situated on the outlet of Mesopotamia, upon the ocean. It lies within a few miles of the Biblical Garden of Eden. A large force of British and Indian soldiers from India, supported by warships, attacked and occupied Basra. They advanced successfully into the interior, and it is probable that by this time British troops have encamped on the scene where Eve first tempted Adam, and where many of the most interesting events in the early history of the human race occurred.

In making this movement the British are aiming to settle one of the great questions that lie at the root of the present world war.

In their quest for a larger field for their race the Germans have gained a tremendous influence in Turkey, and have many enterprises in Asiatic Turkey, including the Mesopotamian region.

The Germans have built the Bagdad Railway, which has been described as a railway leading to nowhere. Bagdad is now the chief city of Mesopotamia. If this railway were completed, its natural terminus would be Basra, which gives access to the Indian Ocean. But such a development would be a menace to British power in India.

In the meanwhile British subjects have long had important interests in Mesopotamia. Sir William Willcocks, the British engineer who was formerly director of irrigation in Egypt, has constructed a system of dams on the Euphrates river that has already added 5,000,000 acres of cultivable land to Mesopotamia, and aims to do for that country what the Assouan dam has done for Egypt.

If the German ambition to control Turkey and her Asiatic territories were to be accomplished, it is evident that the British engineers and promoters would be driven out of Mesopotamia, or the Garden of Eden, to express it more poetically. If the British schemes had been successful before the war, they would have connected Mesopotamia by railway with the Mediterranean and with Basra, making it independent of the German Bagdad Railway. Now, if the British win in the war, it is assured that the Germans will be turned out of Mesopotamia altogether, and that they will lose the vast sums of money they have invested there.

Penitence.

"I suppose you're sorry now?" asked the prison visitor, according to the Philadelphia Ledger.

The young man who had stolen $17,000 and spent it in sixteen weeks sighed through the bars. "Oh, yes!" he answered. "I tried to cut too much of a splurge. The money ought to have lasted me a week longer."

HOCKEY

The Farm and Dairy and Peterborough Hardware Co's. teams had a lively battle at Brock Street Rink last night, with the final score, six all. The teams were as follows:

Referee, P. LeFave.

Tests by German scientists have proved that the old plan of tightening a man's belt to lessen hunger pangs is the scientific method for accomplishing the desired result.

A Colorado Springs garage owner has invented automatic apparatus that opens the doors of the building when an automobile nears them and closes them after it has passed.

Practically every part except the diaphragm and horn of a new talking machine that reproduces the usual records is made of cement.

LOVE IN A COTTAGE.

(Up to Date.)

I rented me a cottage,
Within a woodland nook;
I bought me pans and pottage;
I captured me a cook.
All life seemed rapt and rosy;
Birds sang in every tree.
"Here, with my sweet, how cozy,"
I thought, "the days will be!"

My love has lips like peaches,
As sweet as ever kissed;
But she is fond of speeches—
She is a feminist!
And so my pans and pottage,
They failed to hold her thrall.
She said "Fie on your cottage!
You'd better hire a hall!"

Hay Used To Make Beds For Soldiers

Many Victims of Pneumonia and Erysipelas Found as Result of Sleeping in the Filthy Beds of Hay

VERMIN FOUND IN EVERY CORNER

WITH THE BELGIAN ARMY IN FLANDERS, Feb. 9. —(By mail to New York) —The Belgian army surgeons who sat opposite me in the compartment of the train which carried us as far as Calais, on the way to Dunkirk, had been prisoners of war in Germany since October. Now they were on their way to Calais, where they had been ordered to report after

Of the two officers, one ranked as captain, as the two golden and one silver stars on his collar testified. Two golden stars on the collar of the other's overcoat showed him to be a lieutenant. Leaving outside conversation the captain's story, as brought out by questions, put to him directly, was this:

"I was taken prisoner near Antwerp. For a few days I was detained in Debeln, in Saxony, together with a dozen other officers, some French, some English and some Belgian. We slept in two small rooms in a barracks, rooms which in times of peace serve as common soldiers' quarters. Our bedding was sacks filled with hay. I can not say, however, that while at Debeln we were badly treated, considering the circumstances. This is war and prisoners must not expect too much.

"Soon, however, we were transferred to Ebersdorf. We found a number of officers were already prisoners there along with 4,000 French, Russians, Belgians and English— if one English prisoner in all this number may be allowed to represent England. Of the Belgians some 200 were civilians. Why they were there no one seemed to know. It was a very unhappy lot.

"The officers slept, as at Debeln, in small rooms of a barracks. Several had to occupy the same room. The ordinary soldiers and other prisoners slept mostly in stables, in straw which had not been changed since the beginning of the war. It was alive with vermin and reduced to powder by constant trampling. Each of us was allowed a single blanket, and we were often cold. Of course, none of us had more than a change of clothes —the majority not even that —yet I do not know of a single case where anybody was provided with clothes by the German authorities. Most of us went without underwear and shirts while we washed and dried what we had.

"Theoretically both the barracks and stables were heated. A heating plant had been installed, but the actual heating had been let by contract to a civilian, and he economized on coal most shamelessly."

"Was there much sickness?" I asked him.

"A great deal," the cauptain answered. "There was little or no typhoid, for the sanitary precautions against such epidemics as this were perfect. There were many victims of pneumonia and erysipelas, scores of soldiers contracting erysipelas by lying in the filthy hay."

Officers were given special treatment. They were allowed to eat at the canteens if they had the money, thus sparing themselves the very bad, though plentiful food furnished the other prisoners. These were given coffee in the morning, soup with vegetables in it at noon and soup and cheese, herring or something like that at night. Meat was allowed three times a week. Officers were mixed as far as possible. For instance, a Russian, Belgian and Frenchman would share the same room, none speaking the language of the other. We were searched for various causes now and then."

"Do the Germans make any distinction between the various allies?"

"Assuredly they do. They despise the English worse than they do the Turcos. They say the Belgians are treacherous and free shooters; the Russians are cruel; the Turcos are the same, but know no better; the French are all right, but are the tools of another nation, while the English are a dastardly, despicable race, deserving of no consideration. They delight in making an English colonel salute a German corporal of the guard, though for that matter all the officer prisoners were required to salute non-commissioned German officers."

"What if they refuse?"

"They would be punished by being put in cells with common German soldiers serving time for various misdemeanors. You can imagine what would happen. The poor officer would be made to suffer every conceivable humiliation.

"For violations of the rules, the Germans have a variety of punishments. For instance, I have myself seen a prisoner with hands tied behind his back tied to a post and kept there from one to three hours.

Occasionally the Germans drive three stakes in the ground about four feet apart and put the prisoner inside his triangle. Then they wind barbed wire around the stakes. If the prisoner barely moves he tears his flesh. He can't lie down, so he must stand motionless for hours. It is terrible torture. I heard that two Turcos were kept tied to stakes until they died. But I didn't see this and I am inclined to disbelieve it."

Folding to about the size of a half dollar, a new combination tool serves as scissors, cigar cutter, glove and shoe buttoner, key ring, and bottle opener.

Burning Steamer Proceeding To Havre

SHELLING OF ASIATIC CITY OF SMYRNA HAS BEEN RESUMED

Nearly All the Civilians of Smyrna, a City of 200,000 Have Fled to the Hills---Big Guns of "Queen Elizabeth" Hurling Great Masses of Metal at Fort Kilid Bahr.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, Eng., March 8.—A French cruiser was put out of action and an English cruiser badly damaged during the Sunday afternoon bombardment of the Dardanelles, the Turkish War Office claimed in an official statement given out to-day and transmitted here by wireless from Berlin.

Unofficial despatches, Berlin wirelessed, confirmed the Turkish claims. Turkish shells exploded on the deck of the French warship, killing many of her crew. She steamed slowly out of the fighting line with her upper works in flames.

The shelling of the Asiatic City of Smyrna has bene resumed by the British East Indian fleet, according to Athens despatches to-day. Rear-Admiral Peers' squadron has been reinforced by a French warship and a flotilla of smaller craft, including mine sweepers, and is pouring an incessant [illegible] upon the Turkish fort batteries.

Nearly all the civilians in Smyrna, a city of 200,000, have fled to the hills, Athens has reported.

From the Gulf of Saros the big guns of Queen Elizabeth, directed by aviators, were hurling great masses of metal against Fort Kilid Bahr, when last reports reached the Admiralty. Her shells, screaming across seven miles of flat peninsula land, were ploughing into the rear batteries of the Turkish fortress.

BURNING FRENCH LINER IS SLOWLY PROCEEDING TO HAVRE

"La Touraine" Was Reported About 100 Miles West of the English Channel Early To-day---Fire is Believed to Be Under Control.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 8.—Steaming slowly through a dense fog, the burning French liner La Touraine was early to-day reported about 100 miles west of the English Channel.

Under convoy of the Holland-American liner Rotterdam, she will reach Havre, either late to-night or to-morrow.

The Rotterdam was less than 100 miles from the La Touraine, when she threw out her call for help, according to a wireless to-day from Captain Harris of the Cornishman. Other steamers closed in so rapidly that passengers and crew of the blazing liner were in no serious danger except from an explosion of her cargo of cartridges.

The Carnishman, Captain Harris messaged, was 85 miles from the La Touraine when she caught "S.O.S." She put about and dished to her aid.

When his ship was only 25 miles away, Captain Harris reported, he [illegible] liner and was escorting her to port.

Because of the fog and of the necessity of steaming slowly through the channel to avoid mines and possible submarine attacks, owners of the La Touraine said to-day that she may not reach port until Tuesday.

FOOD RIOTS REPORTED IN SPAIN

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

MADRID, via Paris, March 8.—Evidence that Spain is suffering more severely economically from the war than any country except the belligerents is contained in despatches from different provincial centres. Notwithstanding drastic measures taken by the Government to prevent monopolistic prices, the cost of food, especially bread and meat, continues to rise. The situation is felt most acutely by the working classes, already hard hit by the industrial stagnation resulting from the war.

At Pampeluna, Seville, Saragossa and Cadiz economic difficulties are becoming so serious that the authorities have been obliged to resort to drastic expedients.

Grave disorders have occurred at Murcia, capital of a mediaeval Moorish kingdom and the modern province of that name. A mob of city residents stormed the bakeshops and civil guards had to bar the gates to keep country people from coming in to increase the tumult.

DOURO LADY MARKED FOWL INCORRECTLY

Sanitary Inspector Found Shortage of Over 5 Pounds on 6 Chickens —Fine of $5.00 Imposed.

CHICKENS FORFEITED

A farmer's wife paid a fine of five dollars and forfeited six nice chickens in the Police Court this afternoon as the result of a charge laid by Sanitary Inspector Spence. She offered the fowl for sale on the Public Market this morning, with a ticket on each bird to show its weight, which aggregated, according to her figures, 26 pounds, 8 ounces for the six birds. The Inspector seized and weighed them on the Market scales, and found that the total weight of the six was 20 pounds, 3 ounces, a shortage of 6 pounds, 5 ounces.

A special meeting of the Police Court was held this afternoon to deal with the case and allow the defendant to get home to-day.

The fowl were exhibited in the Court to Magistrate Dumble and the Inspetor had a ticket from Market Clerk Brown, showing the correct weight of each bird.

The defendant said she had used a small set of scales at home to ascertain the weights last evening when preparing for the trip to the Market. She had never known of any instance when they were inaccurate, but could not account for the shortage in any other way.

The Magistrate said that if the scales at home were not correct the shortage would be uniform according to the different weights. However the fact that the bird marked 4 1-2 pounds weighed only 3 pounds, 2 ounces, and the one marked 4 pounds weighed 2 pounds 1 ounce, did not show uniformity.

Defendant said she was not offering the fowl by the pound but was asking 60 cents apiece for the five smaller ones and 70 cents for the one marked 4 1-2 pounds.

A fine of $5 was imposed by the Magistrate. He said he did this in order that it shall deter everybody from performing acts of cheating the public. The public must be protected from such things as this.

The by-law provides that the fowl shall be forfeited and the Sanitary Inspector took charge of the six birds, which will be given as local charity.

French Offensive in Champagne Still Proceeds Unchecked

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PARIS, March 8.—The French offensive in Champagne still proceeds unchecked. Most of the outlying German trenches have now been captured, and the operations are taking the allied troops against the main fortified positions of the enemy, where progress will necessarily be slower, although there is no expectation that it will not be relatively as successful.

Yesterday the French attacks have been carried out in most unfavourable weather conditions, but despite the handicap the communiques issued by the French War Office records additional advances in this region. The French onslaughts are now being extended over a wider front, and are reaching to a considerable distance west of Perthes, the previous fighting having been centred mainly north and north-east of that village and north of Mesnil-les-Hurlus.

The communique announces that west of Perthes French gained a foothold in a wooded section which the Germans had organized solidly. North of the village they repulsed a counter-attack, while at Mesnil and Beausejour more ground was taken.

The Germans continue their efforts at Notre Dame de Lorette, north of Arras, they atttempted four attacks to-day, but all failed. In the woods north of Verdun they also tried to advance, but were checked, and in the Vosges they were forced back near Munster and were obliged to desist from a series of attacks at Hartmans-Weilker kopf.

The capture of German trenches in the Vosges and the blowing up of a German depot of munitions near Uffholz were the most important features of the official statements of the French General Staff. Both communiques continued to express the note of optimism of the last three days particularly.

The news from Alsace was especially gratifying. It told the extent of the progress made by the French at Hartmanns-Weilerkopf and a repulse of desperate counter-attacks of the enemy.

French Aviator Sets Fire To Large German Powder Plant

Special Cable to The Examiner:

PARIS, March 8.—Further details of the bombarding from an aeroplane of a German powder works at Rottwell, on the Neckar River, the other side of the Black Forest, are given in an official note issued in Paris to-day. This factory is one of the most important powder producing plants in Germany. Here is the latest account of the exploit:

"One of our aviators, Captain Happe, came down to a height of only 1,500 yards above this powder factory in order to throw his projectile with the greatest degree of precision. He thus let fall four melinite bombs, each measuring 90 milli-metres. The first landed on an acid reservoir and the other three on the factory itself. The projectile which fell on the acid reservoir caused blue smoke to arise, which the aviator at first thought came from fire directed against himself. Soon after an immense flame shot up from this same point, along with clouds of thick smoke. The smoke reached the height of the aeroplane—that is to say, 1,500 yards.

"Captain Happe remained for ten minutes over the powder works to observe the effects of his efforts. In this way he was able to see that beyond the fire in the factory itself, where three bombs had been thrown, the flames spread to different parts of the building as a result of the explosion of the bomb in the reservoir."

Canadians Are Unusually Expert In Rifle Shooting

Special Cable to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, March 8—That Canada has good reason to be proud of the Canadian troops who have already reached the firing line is the tenor of despatches which have reached Ottawa from various sources in England and in France.

In addition to these despatches it is understood that the Government is being kept informed from day to day in official communications as to the progress of the operations in France and Belgium, including the work of the Canadian troops. These communications are said amply to bear out the unofficial messages which have come across the ocean with reference to the splendid showing of the Canadians in action.

The Canadians are showing themselves to be unusually expert in rapid and accurate rifle shooting, and in this respect are said to be the equal of any troops in the field.

SATURDAY NIGHT AND SUNDAY DESPATCHES

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, March 6.—A semi-official estimate of casualties in the German army to date place the figures at three million including sick.

LONDON, March 6.—The trawler Bernicia, sweeping for mines in the North Sea was blown up and sunk to-day with her crew of nine.

LONDON, March 6.—The Admiralty officially announced to-day that the Allied fleet had entered the narrows of the Dardanelles and is bombarding forts on both sides. Several are partially destroyed.

PETROGRAD, March 6. — The Austrian army under the Archduke Joseph Ferdinand is in full flight towards the Pruth River pursued by the Russians.

LIVERPOOL, March 6. — The White Star Liner Megantic, with many Canadians aboard, arrived safely here to-day after an uneventful voyage.

LONDON, March 6.—It was officially announced that the British casualties in the Dardanelles forts total nineteen killed, three missing and twenty-five wounded. There have been several clashes between the landing parties and the Turks, who have been driven back towards Constantinople.

PARIS, March 6.—Marine experts say Constantinople may surrender to-morrow or Monday. Such news is confidently expected.

PARIS, March 6.—The Germans claim to have captured British trenches near Ypres, but official French despatches to-night say general conditions are highly satisfactory.

QUEENSTOWN, March 7.—Latest messages from the steamer La Touraine say the steamer Rotterdam is standing by ready to transfer passengers if necessary and will see her safely navigated to port.

PETROGRAD, March 7. — The Przemysl garrison is no longer attempting sorties, but the fortress artillery is firing an enormous quantity of heavy shells which, however, is quite harmless. We brought down a German machine at Sokolka, capturing the aviators.

PARIS, March 7.—Yesterday three cruisers in the Gulf Saros bombarded across Gallipoli Peninsula. The Turkish forts at Kilid Bayr exploding a powder magazine. The bombardment continues very satisfactory.

PARIS, March 7.—It was announced at noon that the steamship La Touraine was proceeding to Havre under her own steam, the five having been mastered. All aboard are safe.

WASHINGTON, March 7. — The resignation of the Greek Cabinet was presented to King Constantine yesterday.

BIG MANUFACTURER SECOND CONVENTION

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 8.—The body of Miss Lillian May Cook, shot through the heart, was found yesterday afternoon on the summit of West Rock, in the Westville section of the city, soon after Virginius J. Mayo, head of the Mayo Radiator Company, in whose offices she had been a filing clerk, had increased his offer of a reward to 1,000 for finding her, dead or alive.

While there seems to be little doubt that Miss Cook, distraught by fears which an autopsy may reveal, took her own life, the finding of the body has disclosed a startling complication in the affairs of Mr. Mayo.

Virginius Mayo, the girl's employer, maintains a luxurious home here in which he and his wife reside alone. They have no children. In Brooklyn, at 666 Fourth street, there lives a woman known as Mrs. J. Dudley. Three girls live with her. Two of them are daughters of herself and Mayo.

"Yes, I know the woman in Brooklyn known as Mrs. Dudley," Mayo said. "She lives in a house I own there. Two of the girls with her are our daughters. I haven't any regard for the conventions and neither has she. I know I'm no angel and I don't care what the people say."

Mayo declared the Brooklyn woman's name is Mois Waterbury. She has adopted the name of Dudley for convenience. He declared she was his former stenographer in New Tavern. They found that they had a great liking for one another, he said, and so she had gone to live in a house he owned in Brooklyn.

THE GERMANS HAVE TAKEN THE OFFENSIVE

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PETROGRAD, March 8. — The Germans have taken a violent offensive in Southeast Poland, the War Office admitted to-day.

For the first time in three weeks the region around Opoczno and Tomasof is being shaken by the boom of big guns. The right wing of Mackensen's army west of Warsaw is delivering infantry attacks against the Russian positions.

The enemy's threat along Plica has developed into a big battle, overshadowing for the instant other operations in Poland. At least two German army corps are reported to be engaged.

There has been no news from the Russian forces around Stanislau or approaching Czernowitz for the last 24 hours.

Easy Way to Remove Freckles and Eruptions

Some women have skin of such texture they occasionally are annoyed by the sudden appearance of freckles, slight eruptions or fine lines. March winds usually play havoc with skins of that kind. In such cases if one will procure an ounce of common mercolized wax at any drug store, apply a little of it before retiring, like cold cream, she can easily overcome the trouble. When the wax is washed off next morning, flaky skin particles come with it. The entire outer cuticle is removed in this way in a week or so, with all its defects. No blemish could so effectively remove freckles or discolorations. The new surface is smooth, clear, fresh looking. No pain or inconvenience accompanies this simple treatment.

In case of wrinkles which start beneath the outer skin, a solution of saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel, makes a face bath which is wonderfully effective.

War Graft Gang Made Millions

Chicago Manufacturer Says Warring Nations Fleeced by Well-organized Gang

CHICAGO, March 6.—A prominent Chicago merchant declared that the nations at war in Europe have been fleeced out of millions of dollars by a well organized band of grafters, exacting a toll of from 15 to 20 per cent. on practically every shipment of war supplies which has left this country. This band, the Chicago manufacturer said, maintained its headquarters at a leading hotel in New York City and had a representative at the capital of each of the Belligerent powers. It also had a representative, he said, in every State in the United States.

"When the complete story of this graft in the purchase of war supplies is told," said this merchant under a pledge that his name should not be used, "the country will be shaken from one end to the other. The men who got the commissions, the illegitimate profit on American supplies, are New Yorkers.

Their sphere of influence extended throughout the financial district. By a system of espionage they knew when an agent was leaving a foreign country to make purchases. The moment he landed in New York the campaign to get the graft began.

"So secretly did this band operate and so powerful was its influence that it defied detection. I am informed that a confidential agent of one of the foreign Governments has been at work for three months and has sufficient evidence at least to stop the operations of the syndicate."

Asked as to the identity of the men behind the plot, the manufacturer declined to give any information. A few details as to the method of operation, however, were furnished.

"For instance, if an article cost $5," he said, "the commission at 15 per cent. amounted to 60 cents. Whether the Government paid $4.60 for the goods or whether the rake-off came from the manufacturer, I do not know. I do know, however, that the grafters got theirs."

Possibility of graft in the purchase of millions of dollars' worth of war supplies in Chicago was admitted by E. F. Parr, purchasing agent for Russia, France, Servia, Roumania, Bulgaria, and Greece.

"I have no doubt that money has been made by some persons who have taken more than their legitimate profits," said Mr. Parr. "So far as I know there has been no investigation thus far of supplies purchased in Chicago. I do know, however, that the purchases of foreign Governments in this city alone total more than $6,000,000."

Prospects For The Maple Syrup Output

Are Not Very Promising in So Far as Peterboro' County is Concerned

Housewives have begun to speculate about the prospects of the maple syrup output in Peterborough county this year. Just now, apparently things are in a bad way. First of all there is not sufficient snow on the ground. There are a lot of people who are inclined to the opinion that there is too much snow for their liking, with a probability of more on the way before May flowers appear. But the maple woods refuse to liquidate—which means to produce liquid—unless there is considerable snow round about. For it would be a cinch for the farmers to tap the trees and gather the sap if the woods were free from snow and the work offered but little difficulty. The trees are wise old ladies and in this particular case they act on the general principle that you work for all you get.

Lack of Frost.

At any rate the wiseacres declare that the present lack of snow does not promise a copious flow of sap. Then again the wind has been blowing from the wrong direction. It has been attacking the northwest gables of the houses too long to loosen up the sap. It is not known which wind encourages the maples to loosen up, but as a finality the north-west wind does not.

Then there is a third baneful influence, to wit, the lack of frost in the ground. Sappers on the G.T.R. (those who dig the postholes for the endless fences) have stated that there is next to no frost.

"I see," agreed the other in the tone of a man not quite convinced. "Now, when are you going down to Grave Street again? You'll want at least a dozen men."

"There won't be any trouble at Grave Street," answered Foyle with a smile; "and if there is, Green and I will have to settle it. More men would only be in the way. Our first job is to get hold of Waverley."

"But only two of you! Grave Street isn't exactly a nice place. If there is trouble—"

"We'll risk that, sir," said Foyle, stiffening a trifle.

He went back to his own room and signed a few letters. Some words through a speaking-tube brought Green in, stolid, gloomy, imperturbable. The chief inspector accepted and lit a cigar. Through a cloud of smoke the two men talked for a while. They were going on a mission that might very easily result in death. No one would have guessed it from their talk, which, after half an hour of quiet, business - like conversation, drifted into desultory gossip and reminiscences.

"Sir Hilary wanted me to take a dozen men," said Foyle. "I told him the two of us would be plenty."

"Quite enough, if not to do anything," agreed Green. "I wouldn't be out of it for a thousand. Poor old Waverley and I have put in a lot of time together. I guess I owe him my life, if it comes to that."

Foyle interjected a question. The chief inspector lifted his cigar tenderly from his lips.

"It was in the old garrotting days," he said. "Waverley and I were coming down the Tottenham Court Road a bit after midnight—just off Seven Dials. There were half a dozen men hanging about a corner, and one of them tiptoed after us with a pitch plaster—you'll remember they used to do the stuff up in sacking and pull it over your mouth from behind. I never noticed anything, but Waverley did. The man was just about to throw the thing over me when Waverley wheeled round and hit him clean across the face with a light cane he was carrying. The chap was knocked in the gutter and his pals came at us with a rush. A hansom driver shouted to us to leave the man in the roadway to him, and hanged if he didn't drive clean over him with the near-side wheel. That gave us our chance. We hopped into the cab and got away without staying to see if any one was hurt. But if Waverley hadn't hit out when he did I'd have been a goner."

"I had a funny thing happen to me once in the Tottenham Court Road," said Foyle reminiscently. "I was an inspector then and big Bill Sladen was working with me—he had a beautiful tenor voice, you will remember. We were after a couple of confidence men and had a man we were towing about to identify them. Well, we got 'em down to a saloon bar near the Oxford Street end, but I daren't go in because they knew me. It was a biter cold night, with a cold wind and snow and sleet. So I stayed on the opposite side of the road and induced Bill to go over and sing 'I am but a Poor Blind Boy,' in the hope that our birds would call him in and give him a drink. He hadn't been at it five minutes before a fiery, red-headed little potman had knocked him head over heels in the gutter and told him to go away. Bill could have broken the chap in two with his little finger, but he daren't do anything. He came over to me and I sent him back again. This time he did get invited inside. And there he stayed for a full hour, while the witness and I stood shivering and wet and miserable in the snow. We could hear him laughing and singing with the best of 'em. They wouldn't let him come away. It was not until I took all risks and marched in with the witness and arrested them that they tumbled to the fact that he wasn't a real street singer." He glanced at his watch. "You'd better go and have a rest, Green. Meet me here at half-past twelve. We'll take a taxi to Aldgate and walk up from there. And, by the way, here's a pistol. I needn't tell you not to use it unless you've got to."

CHAPTER XVI.

A bitter wind was sweeping the Commercial Road, Whitechapel, as the two detectives, each well muffled up, descended from their cab and walked briskly eastwards. Save for a slouching wayfarer or two, shambling unsteadily along, and little groups gathered about the all-night coffee-stalls, the roads were deserted. Neither man had attempted any disguise. It was not necessary now.

As they turned into Grave Street they automatically walked in the centre of the roadway. There are some places where it is not healthy to walk at night on shadowed pavements. They moved without haste and without loitering, as men who know exactly what they have to do. From one of the darkened houses a woman's shrill scream issued full of rage and terror. It was followed by a man's loud, angry tones, the thud of blows shrieks, curses and brutal laughter. Then the silence dropped over everything again. The two men had apparently paid no heed. Even had they been inclined to play the part of knights-errant in what was not an uncommon episode in Grave Street, they knew that the woman who had been chastised would probably have been the first to turn on them.

There was a side entrance to 404a, which was the newspaper shop that Foyle had caused to remember. He struck the grimy panels harply with his fist and waited. There was no reply. Again he knocked, and Green, unbottoning his greatcoat, flung it off and laid it across his arm. He could drop it easily in case of an emergency. Still there was no answer to the knock.

"Luckily, I swore out a search warrant," muttered Foyle, and searched in his own pockets for something. It was a jemmy of finely tempered steel gracefully curved at one end. He inserted it in a crevice of the door and, leaning his weight upon it, obtained an irresistible leverage. There was a slight crack, and it swung inwards as the screws of the hasp drew. The two men stepped within and, closing the door, stood absolutely still for a matter of ten minutes. Not a sound betrayed that their burglarious entry had alarmed any one.

Presently Green made a movement, and a vivid shaft of light from a pocket electric lamp played along the narrow uncarpeted passage. The superintendent gripped his jemmy tightly and turned towards the dirty stairs. Then the light vanished as quickly as it had flared up, and from above there came a sound of shuffling footsteps. Even Foyle, whom no one would have accused of nervousness, felt his heart beat a trifle more quickly. He knew that if he were as near the heart of the mystery as he believed any second might see shooting. Penned as he and his companion were in the narrow space of the passage barely three feet wide, a shot fired from above could scarcely miss.

Crouching low, he sprang up the narrow staircase in three bounds, making scarcely a sound. On the landing above he wound his arms tightly about the person whose movements he had heard and whispered a quick, tense command.

"Not a word or it will be the worse for you. Let's have a light, Green."

The prisoner kept very still, and Green flashed a light on his face. It was that of a man of forty or so, with pronounced Hebrew features. His greasy black hair was tangled in coarse curls, and a smooth black moustache ran across his upper lip. A pair of shifty eyes were fixed fearfully on Foyle, and the man murmured something in a guttural tongue.

"We are police officers. How many people are there in this house" demanded Foyle sternly, in a low voice. "You may as well answer in English. Quietly, now."

He had released his hold round the Jew's waist, but stood with the jemmy dangling by his side and with ears cocked ready for any sound. Green had climbed the stirs and stood by his side.

Domiciliary visits are unfrequent in England, but the Jew was not certain enough to stand upon a legal technicality. As a matter of fact, the search warrant would have met the difficulty. He cringed before the two men, whose faces he could not see, for Green had thrown his wedge of light so that it showed up the man's sallow face and left all else in darkness.

"I do not know why you have come," he answered, forming each word precisely. "I have done nothing wrong. I am an honest newsagent. There is only my wife, daughter, son, lodger in house."

"You are a receiver of stolen goods," answered Foyle, something, it must be confessed, at a venture. "Don't trouble to deny it, Mr. Israels. We're not after you this time—not if you treat us fairly. What about this lodger of yours Have you bought him a typewriter lately?"

"Yes—yes. I help you all I can," protested the Jew, with an eagerness that deceived neither of the detectives. There is no class of liar so abysmal as the East-end criminal Jew. They will hold to a glib falsehood with a temerity that nothing can shake. If there is a necessity to lie, they lie—for practice, it is to be presumed. The best way to extract a truth is to make a direct assertion by the light of apparent knowledge and so sometimes obtain assent. Foyle knew the idiosyncrasies of the breed. Hence the threat in his demand.

"I bought a typewriter—yes," went on Israels. "I think he was honest. Didn't seem as though police were after him."

"Which room is he in?"

Israels jerked a thumb upwards. "Next landing. Door on left," he ejaculated nervously.

The superintendent pushed by the man. He knew that the critical moment had come. With his quick judgment of men he had summed up Mr. Israels. Whatever the Jew's morals, it was evident that he had a wholesome respect for his own oily skin. He would not risk himself to save the neck of another man. Foyle's intentions were simple. He would steal quietly up the second flight of stairs, burst open the door if it were locked, and seize the man he was in search of in his sleep. But his plans were frustrated.

HAD INDIGESTION FOR OVER 10 YEARS.

ALMOST DESPAIRED OF EVER GETTING WELL.

Indigestion is one of the worst forms of stomach trouble. The stomach becomes upset and you have a raw, debilitating feeling in it. After a meal you feel that you must get rid of that nasty, bilious, burning sensation. It is not necessary for you to be troubled with indigestion if you will only try that old and well-known remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, which is a combination of nature's best known roots, herbs and barks for the cure of all stomach and blood troubles.

Mrs. Mary MacKay, Hunter's Mountain, N.S., writes: "I was troubled with indigestion for more than ten years. I tried several doctors' medicines claiming the power to cure, but all without success. Having heard of the many cures effected by Burdock Blood Bitters, I decided to give it a trial. After taking two bottles I was completely cured. My appetite which was very poor is now good, and I can eat most everything without any disagreeable feelings.

LIVING BY PIRACY.

Survivors of Emden Are Still Active In Indian Ocean.

TOKIO, March 6.—The Japanese steamer Lusen Maru, which hails from Moji, reports that the schooner Aysha is still active in the Indian Ocean. The crew of the Aysha feign to be shipwrecked, attempting by this means to entrap steamers flying the flags of Great Britain and her allies.

There have been several conflicting reports regarding the schooner Aysha. When the German cruiser Emden was sunk by the Australian cruiser Sydney in the Indian Ocean on Nov. 10, some forty members of the crew of the Emden, under command of Lieut. von Muecke, escaped. These men were members of a landing party which was on Cocos Island at the time of the battle. They commandeered the Aysha and sailed away. From that time their movements are in doubt.

A Berlin despatch on Feb. 5, however, said that the Aysha had reached Hodeida, Arabia, where the members of the crew were given an enthusiastic reception by the Turkish troops.

A Great Blessing to be Freed of Indigestion

For Years He Suffered After Almost Every Meal—Attributes Complete Cure to Use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

The experience of many people who suffer from indigestion is like that of the writer of this letter. Stomach medicines may bring some relief, but chronic indigestion is almost invariably the result of derangements of the liver, kidneys and bowels, and cannot be actually cured until these organs are set right.

With the liver sluggish there is constipation, and the food ferments in the bowels instead of being digested. This is the source of pain and suffering, and the cause of such dreaded diseases as appendicitis, peritonitis and kidney disease. It is much better to be on the safe side and prevent such ailments by the timely use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

MR. BARRETT.

Mr. J. D. S. Barrett, Nelson, B.C., and formerly of Twillingate, Nfld., writes:—"For several years I was a great sufferer from indigestion. The least bit of food caused me considerable trouble, and often I could scarcely eat a meal a day. The many remedies I tried proved futile until I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after using about eight boxes I was completely cured.

"Since that time I have not been troubled with indigestion, which I consider a great blessing. I feel grateful for this cure, and shall gladly answer any inquiries from persons suffering as I did."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Certain Rich Man's Son

How He Worked Out His Own Reform.

By GUY C. BAKER

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

"I mean just what I said—I'm not ready to go to work."

There were unlimited complacency and assurance in Hilling's voice as he said it.

"Then what—what do you want to do?"

"I want to run around a bit, you know, and see what's going on in the world."

"Plenty of time for drudgery and all that sort of thing later, dad. I want to knock about a bit like the other fellows I know."

"By thunder, you shall do as you wish! Pack your gewgaws and go—I don't give a tarnal rap where—but go! Go and see the world—all of it, every stratum of it. I'll pay the freight—every penny. But this is the condition—you've got to stay away five years! You are not to write home, nor shall any one from home write to you. You will draw upon my New York banker for your needs. I—but that's all—there is no need for further discussion."

Young Hilling stared with mild surprise at the broad shoulders of his father for a moment; then, the exasperating look of superciliousness returning, he arose languidly to his feet.

"Aw—er—I say, dad, isn't that—er—just a trifle strong?"

The older man did not look around.

"No; not a bit of it! Scoot!"

As he swung jauntily down the street of the prosperous southern town—a town that had seemed a good place in which to live before his eight years of college life—he became suddenly conscious of a feeling of uneasiness as he thought of the gentle mother who but a few hours before had thrown her arms about him in a joyous welcome home. Many months passed before a realization filtered through his brain of how inconsiderate was her disillusionment.

When a couple of hours later Hilling boarded the train for the north he carried with him the disturbing picture of his mother's disappointment and solicitude. To him she had ever been the diplomatic buffer between the acerbity of his father and his own self willed follies. But he realized this last—this five years' silent absence—was too much for even her philosophy of indulgence.

But, whatever of remorse his precipitate departure caused him, it was of short duration.

He went abroad and for a time reveled in the glitter of the cafes of Paris. He idled precious hours in Italy. He barely escaped a duel in Berlin.

Then, after a month of stupid boredom in London, he hastened back to New York.

Thus two years passed.

Not once had he heard from either his father or mother. Not once had he written home. Once or twice his submerged manliness threatened to break through the veneer of his pleasure seeking existence—some eddy of memory which brought a fleeting recollection of that last glimpse of his mother—but always would he brush it stubbornly aside and plunge with increased abandon into the whirlpool of folly.

Then one evening, after an exceptionally strenuous day, he arrived at the theater during the third act just as a prima donna of worldwide fame was rendering her finest number.

Hilling stood at the head of the aisle for a moment, carelessly sweeping the audience filled theater with his glance; then, with a scornful shrug, he turned and strolled down into the smoking room.

The singer finished, and a tremendous outburst of applause filled the theater and echoed out into the corridors. Again and again the singer responded to the encores.

Curiously, Hilling wandered back into the foyer and once more took up his position at the back of the theater and watched the audience. Bowing and smiling, the prima donna was approaching the footlights for her fifth encore.

Then in notes low and tremulous the singer began the line, "Far from the old folks at home." At the same moment, with the startling suddenness of a crash of thunder, the audience was electrified to hear a man's voice—discordant, raucous, scoffing—join in the song with the prima donna.

Then, with a scornful laugh, Hilling permitted himself to be led away by a couple of pale faced, agitated ushers.

Out in the lobby he impatiently shook himself free of the ushers and imperturbably passed out and stepped into his motorcar. Ah the chauffeur threw on the power and the machine glided swiftly away Hilling turned back at the undecided group of theater attaches the words of the song with taunting mockery.

When, at 4 in the morning, his valet admitted him to his apartments Hilling had worked himself into a frenzy. He seemed obsessed with the notion that the valet in some ingenious way was responsible for the hideous words of that song and treated him accordingly.

He tossed sleeplessly until daylight, the words of the song pounding his eardrums unceasingly. Gradually the whole line blended into one word—

"Confound that infernal, odious word!"

Irascibly he got up and dressed, sent for his automobile, dismissed the chauffeur and all that day motored alone over quiet country roads that led through peaceful villages and over picturesque hills.

One moment he would viciously slam the throttle wide open, sending the car hurtling along at a reckless pace; then, coming a quick change of mood, he would slow down sharply, lean back against the cushions and gaze thoughtfully over the peaceful fields as his machine chugged slowly along.

The sarcasm and mockery were still in his face, but there was also something else creeping in there—that which bespoke torment and raging conflict.

That night as the prima donna appeared again in the famous third act scene Hilling, pale and tense, sat alone in the deep shadows of a box. With eyes that burned with strange emotion and perfect sobriety he leaned eagerly forward as if his soul were drinking in the melody through eyes and ears.

Again was the singer recalled repeatedly. As she appeared for the fifth encore and the orchestra had started in on a lively prelude to some Scotch air Hilling, his voice strangely hoarse and shaken, called out, "Suwanee River!"

Instantly the call was taken up enthusiastically all over the house. A wave of applause shook the theater. With a smile the prima donna nodded to the orchestra leader, and a moment later the rich, clear voice of the singer was glorifying the old folks at home.

Hilling was as tense and motionless as a man of stone. Perspiration dampened his forehead; his dry lips stood apart; wide eyed, he clinched his nails into his hands. His very soul seemed a thing detached that floated upward with the melody of the song.

With indescribable pathos and expression, her voice low and trembling, the singer paused; then "Far from the old folks at home" floated out and upward like a benediction. It was grand, dramatic, glorious!

The following morning early he discharged his valet and chauffeur sold his machine, resigned from his club, gave up his apartments and packed his trunk. Then, his passing as unobtrusive as his advent had been vainglorious, he dropped completely out of sight.

Two years later and four years after the stormy scene with his father Richard Hilling again crossed the threshold of that grim gentleman's office.

Inside the door he waited respectfully while the stern faced, gray haired head of the great steel works finished the signing of certain papers before him on his flat mahogany desk.

Pausing, pen suspended, the elder Hilling glanced up briskly.

"Well?"

"I wish to speak to you on behalf of the men, sir."

The other gave a start and leaned forward. "You—why—Richard—why"—

He could say no more. For a time he stared into the marvelously changed face in silence. Slowly his appraising glance traveled downward, taking in every detail of the son's clothing and lingering wonderingly on the big, grimy hands. Again he spoke—hoarsely.

"What does the condition of my employees matter to you?"

"A great deal. I am one of them, and I find they are underpaid."

"Just that. For two full years I have worked out there in the shops. I began at the very bottom. I know whereof I speak."

Again the father surveyed the son, in silence, smiling [illegible] critically. Slowly a look of conviction crept into his face, softening it and paving the way for one of great hope and gratification. Then, smiling, he puffed out his lips in mild reproof.

"Then—er—you did not observe my orders to remain away five years."

"I—I did not come to discuss—that."

The father persisted eagerly.

"But I want to know; I want to know."

"I obeyed you for two years, sir, and that was two years too long. You see, mother and—and home called me—strongly. Mother and home and—work."

"And does mother"—

"Yes, she knows—has known all the time." Then firmly, "But I wish to take up this matter of the workmen."

"Yes—yes, to be sure. But first tell me—did you—have you actually been working out there in the shops as a common laborer for two years?"

For a time father and son looked each into the other's face. Then, his face inscrutable, the elder Hilling said:

"And—and—you think that reforms are needed—out there?"

The answer came forcibly.

"Yes, sir, I do."

"Then make them—it's your job—now."

How Britons Honour a Foe—Funeral of Blucher's Captain.—The funeral of Captain Carl Erdmann, Commander of the German cruiser Blucher, sunk in the famous North Sea battle, was celebrated with full military honours at Edinburgh. The procession started from the castle with a German flag draping the gun carriage.

Rubber Armor-Plate.

If the present war has proved anything it has proved the inadequacy of the protection afforded by armor-plate covering the under-water vital parts of a ship. The armor does not extend sufficiently far below the water-line to assure complete protection when the vessel is rolling, and in this respect a suggestion put forward by a writer in Popular Science Siftings might be worth serious consideration. Describing an experiment made in 1860 on the recoiling strength of rubber, he says that a piece of rubber two inches thick and a foot square was placed under a steam hammer and a six-inch round shot was placed on it. The hammer fell with tremendous force and broke the shot to pieces, the rubber remaining elastic and unimpaired. Results from great explosive force on rubber flooring and buffers have shown that beyond fusing by heat the rubber remained uninjured, so apparently rubber would make a ship more shot-proof than armor-plate.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY.

My boy Frank seemed weak-chested and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs. D. Stevens, Ninga, Man. "The many medicines used did not seem to benefit him, until we tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and found it to be exactly what was wanted to cure him." No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

Was Too Simple.

George Robey, the popular comedian, tells a story of a Scottish minister, new to his kirk, who was told that his predecessor always put a shilling in the collection plate to give the congregation a good example.

Being very conscientious, on his first Sunday he placed a half-crown in the plate; but, unfortunately, not only did the collection produce a smaller amount than usual, but some nimble-fingered worshiper managed to annex the new minister's half-crown.

"An' what could you expect?" exclaimed the elder. "Ye've no knowledge of the world. Ye should have glued the money to the plate, as the auld meenister did!"

Land at Fifty Acres a Penny.

The perennial problem of the development of the Northern Territory of Australia has been engaging attention once again in the Commonwealth. The province is one possessing great potentialities, but its remoteness from civilization, its vast distances, and its tropical climate, make it unattractive to the average white settler, and for the last half-century and more it has been sought in vain, by grants of land at peppercorn prices—fifty acres a penny in some cases—to attract immigrants. Now the Central Government are proposing to spend some $50,000,000, spread over a period of years, on railway, road, and water works, in the hope of bettering matters.

They Keep Him Busy.

A few troubles are just as necessary to the development of a man as a few fleas are to a dog.

Sent to Change Trousers.

General and "the Honorable" Jan C. Smuts, Minister of Finance and Defence in the South African Parliament, may, incidentally, also claim the distinction of being, probably, the only Cabinet Minister that ever has been sent home to change his trousers before being permitted to take part in the deliberations of the House of which he was one of the most important officers. This amusing episode in the general's career occurred in 1897, or shortly after Kruger, as a reward for political services, made Smuts State Attorney. One day he ventured to appear in the Volksraad wearing grey nether garments, a thing that shocked that assembly, for the Boers were particular that their representatives should be "all blacks" in clothes, at least, and the clamor was so great that the State Attorney had, perforce, to go back home and get into more seemly "breeks."

DRINKING TEA NOW INSTEAD OF THE VODKA

Elimination of the vodka from Russia has evidently started that immense nation tea-drinking. According to The New York Journal of Commerce, heavy buying by Russia of India and Ceylon teas has caused abnormal prices for these teas, the quotations being from 8 to 10 cents a pound higher than a year ago. From reports in the trade the Russians are buying all the India-Ceylons available, and there is a likelihood of prices going still higher.

Not only is the Russian army using tea in enormous quantities, but the Kaiser long ago ordered it for his troops. Unusually large buying by these two nations and their entrance into new markets as competitors have placed the tea market in a tight position. It has been previously pointed out in these columns that Britain is turning more to tea-drinking. United States drinks 90,000,000 pounds a year. To these factors the Canadian tea trade is sensitive, and advances in market values are not unlikely.

Guess Work.

Things may come out all right if you trust to guess work, but there is an uncertainty about it and in many cases the results are distinctly unsatisfactory. The household run on guesswork is not managed as it should be. Knowledge full and sure is the only guide, and the housewife may have that knowledge regarding prices, qualities, the best time and the best place to fill her household requirements, by keeping close tab on the advertisements. There is news in the advertising columns that is just as interesting as the other parts of the paper, and which will eliminate guess work.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

The under waist can be made of lining and faced with the material at neck and armhole. The sleeve is sewed to the under waist, as is the two-piece circular skirt and the rolling collar. Silk braid binds the edges of the overblouse, which is seamless front and back and fastened at the left shoulder and left under-arm. As illustrated, the dress is made of serge, with velvet for the overblouse and cuff and satin for the collar. The braid binding finishes the armhole and lower edges, and the bottom of the cuff. It is particularly useful when velvet is concerned because it obviates turning the velvet edge under in a more or less clumsy hem. The pattern, No. 7007, comes in sizes from 14 to 20 years.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age if a child.

PARIS, March 7.—News from an island in the Aegean Sea says two British Dreadnoughts, two submarines, and one cruiser arrived at Bryoula yesterday. The smyrna forts opened fire. There was no damage to ships.

CODDLING THE STOMACH

The So-Called "Scientific" Feeding.

In this 20th century of advancement, people are too apt to listen to new theories and put into practice new-fangled notions of feeding. Not only do adults follow so-called "scientific systems," but they cram down the mouths of their children such scientific soft foods that require no exercise of the digestive organs, and the children are apt to become fragile and their stomachs too weak to take in strength-giving food and be able to assimilate it. This is a hothouse condition that no man, woman or child should permit. The muscles of the stomach require exercise just as any other muscles of the body; neglect them with too much ease and inaction and you raise a dyspeptic. Use a tonic made of medicinal herbs which will stimulate the stomach into greater activity—a remedy which will do this one which has stood the test of public approval for over forty years, containing no alcohol or narcotic. We refer to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It arouses the little muscular fibres into activity and causes the gastric juices to thoroughly mix with the food you eat, simply because it supplies the stomach with pure, rich blood. It's weak, impure blood that causes stomach weakness. Get good blood through the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you will have no more indigestion.

Sick people are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential.

ILLNESS IN THE RANKS LESS THAN AMONG TROOPS AT HOME

Places Along the Front Held Last October Remain in Same Hands---Maintaining Good Health Object of Everyone ---An Unusually Interesting Report.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, via London—For the first time accredited newspaper correspondents have been allowed to enter that zone where men in khaki speaking English hold a portion of the allied line.

Where the trench crosses a road the French and the British are elbow to elbow facing the Germans. French peasants and villagers are living and working under shell fire, neighbours to the British guns, concealed from German aeroplanes which shake their houses as they fire. Signs in English at the French crossroads give directions to traffic and all French names are pronounced according to the English spelling, so that soldiers or officers will not fail to understand them.

One is impressed with the immensity of the British resources, the numbers of motor trucks and the completeness and thoroughness of all the equipment. All food and all supplies are brought from England, while the French shops are thriving on the English luxuries, which they sell to the troops.

The French are learning to say "top dog." That expression was the one most often heard from both officers and men the first day the correspondent arrived at the front. "Top dog now" says "Tommy Atkins" and the generals. One gets it in the broad Scotch, Irish and Cockney accent and in broken French. It expresses the opinion that a turn in the tide has come and that the worst is behind them.

The British artillery fire, which was weaker early in the campaign, now is stronger all along the line than that of the Germans. Once the correspondents were permitted to see the British line everybody talked with perfect frankness concerning the operations, and instead of the late starts and the long luncheons, dinners and other functions which characterize such tours they are usually awakened at half-past six o'clock in the morning and kept going until eight at night with the first aid packages served out at the breakfast table.

One might think from the stability of all the appointments that the British had no expectation except for a long war; yet the universal opinion is that the autumn will see victory and the end.

One is surprised at the excellence of the aeroplane service when it is realized that the crop is anly three years old. This is not due to the superior flying of the British airmen, but to the thoroughness of their equipment and mechanical department and the prodigality of the expenditure for all necessary assistance and resources. Everything bu the actual manufacture of the engines is being done at the front. The engines and resources. Everything but the accessories are made in different shops near the aeroplane base.

Successful reconnaissances with aircraft have now become a matter of mechanical care and organization. The British aviator seems keenly to enjoy these manoeuvres and the chance to chase an enemy's machine.

The official medicaf corps showed the correspondent charts of illness among the soldiers, which is less than that among the troops at home, despite the strain the men are under when they take their turns in the trenches. This is due to giving the men all the wholesome food they can eat and plenty of exercise when they are out of the trenches, and enforcing all sanitary regulations with the strictest discipline.

"As Colonel Gorgas met the health problems on the Panama Canal, so we met and conquered those in this kind of war," a medical corps officer said.

Frost bite, which was most plentiful in December and January, was overcome by making the men loosen their cloth puttees, which became wet and binding, stopping the circulation of the blood, and by compelling them to take off their boots at intervals.

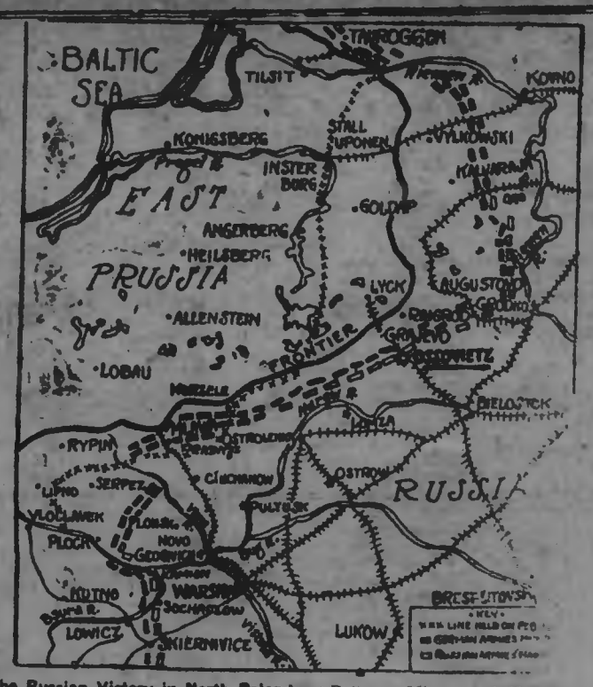
'We change the shifts in the trenches," said a brigadier general, „spmetimes every forty-eight hours, but sometimes less or more frequently'. It all depends on the hardships and keeping the men fit.

The officer showed places where the positions on both sides, despite the attacks and counter attacks, were the same as last October, and where there might as well nave been an understanding to rest for the winter and start in the spring when the ground has dried out. Yet, though the dead from attacks lie between the trenches, even close to the parapets, the Germans will not agree to an armistice to bury them, the officer said.

One heard much in England of the hate of the Germans for the English, but here at the front no hate seemingly is evinced by the British despite the assertion that it is their determination to fight to the finish. "The German hates us because we are going to be the top dog," Tommy Atkins says.

From the commander in chief down simple living and the duty of keeping well are rules that are being rigidly followed. Field Marshal Sir John French, the British commander, occupies a house. His office is the drawing room, the appointments of which have not been disturbed. He dines with his aides in the dining room. The other rooms are used as offices. Dinner at headquarters one finds much like the dinner of the English mess in England, the talk running on other subjects than the war as a relaxation for the officers. It is hard to realize that war is so near by .

Sir John French is ruddy and alert and bears no sign of the strain of the last eight months.



The Russian Victory in North Poland — Between Mlawa and Korzele the Russians have pressed the Germans back almost to the frontier, following the German defeat at Przanysz. Further east the Russian fortress of Cseovieta is being pounded by heavy German siege guns, and will need the assistance of masses of infantry. The Russians are trying to advance to Plock on the north side of the Vistula.

Germany Is Seeking To Persuade Neutrals To Do Her Work, Is British View

LONDON, March 8. — President Wilson's desire for information of how the Allies propose to carry out their proclamation for prevention of trade with Germany spon will be at least partly met by an order-in-council translating Mr. Asquith's general statements into more detail. Meanwhile the question of adversely affecting specific American industries will remain open to discussion.

The comment by American newspapers is giving some concern, but it is felt and hoped here that other leading newspapers will follow the Herald's lead and recognize that Germany has made prompt retaliatory measures necessary.

Germany's reply to the United States' note is entirely unsatisfactory here. The most important point is Germany's offer to cease her submarine blockade provided certain commodities are permitted to reach Germany. Before accepting any proposal along this line Great Britain would want a guarantee from the United States that Germany will not wait until she has fully replenished her supplies before declaring the bargain merely "a scrap of paper."

The United States, it is said, would have to guarantee this to the extent of a willingness to use force to make Germany keep her bargain, which authoritative circles here consider President Wilson is not desirous to do.

"Makes One Suspicious."

Declaring that the note on the treatment of neutral shipping sent by the United States to Germany was dictated solely by American business interests and that its protestations of friendship are "enough to make one suspicious," Die Post, of Berlin, voices its objection to the tenor of the negotiations between Berlin and Washington. Count von Reventlow, perhaps the best known German writer on naval subjects, expresses in the Tages Zeitung of recent date his displeasure both with the American communication and Germany's reply. The remainder of the Berlin newspapers are inclined to express their satisfaction with the exchange of diplomatic opinions.

The Times prints an editorial based on a despatch from its correspondent at Washington, which expresses the opinion that the British reprisal policy would have had a better reception in the United States if it had been announced in the shape of a formal blockade and reliance had been placed upon stretching the doctrine of the "continuous voyage" to deal with the trade to Germany through neutrals.

The correspondent says the United States might have borne with interference to their trade if a blockade had been formally declared, even though it had not been completely effective, recognizing that Great Britain and the Allies "are fighting against everything that democracy abominates."

The editorial of the Times expresses regret at the general condemnation of the British policy of reprisal against Germany in the American press and the press of other neutral countries, which it considers is founded upon misapprehension. The newspaper concedes that the attitude of the Americans is intended to be entirely impartial and adds:

"The Americans have studied common law, which is part of their and our joint inheritance, too long and too well not to know that the adjustment of old principles to new conditions is of the essence of legal process."

The Times then argues that the principle of modern conscription goes a long way to destroy the old distinction between the armed forces of a nation and its civil population and that under existing conditions there are no possible means for insuring that food intended for civilians will not reach the army.

"How could America," the Times continues, "provide such a guarantee? Even should America send a host of American officials to Germany to supervise the destination of the food in every town and village of the Empire, who would decide in the event of disputes arising between the American inspectors and the German dealers? We are satisfied that the Americans will perceive the utterly impracticable nature of the project in Germany's answer to the American note."

In conclusion the Times repeats the argument employed by the Daily News regarding Lancashire and the blockade during the American civil war and says:

"May the British people not hope to-day, when they are plunged against their will into a conflict yet more deadly and for aims which are not less high, that America will do unto them as in the day of her visitation and her trial they did unto her?"

Count von Reventlow says the American proposals would have the effect of making Germany's submarine war impossible, and Germany's answer gives heed to this demand. Concerning Germany's willingness to proceed according to the general international rules against hostile and neutral merchantment, provided the abuse of the flag is abandoned, he says:

"According to this, a German submarine would let a merchantman under the English flag pass by with courteous bows, perhaps with a salute of the flag. To proceed according to international rules would mean putting an end to searching and the possible capture of neutrals and the capture in all circumstances of hostiles. Such a course for German submarines is out of the question. Moreover, even if Great Britain promised to stop the use of false flags, there could be no certainty she would keep her promise. Germany would be the loser in any event."

Die Post declares the fact that the United States alleged its proposals were based on upright friendship and the interests of humanity was enough to "make one suspicious at the start." The American proposals have been dictated solely by American business interests, this newspaper says. If Germany agreed to these proposals she would keep faith, while England would not, and the result would hamper Germany's warfare. Hence the German answer is not satisfactory.

Britain Will Buy German Products.

Captain Persius, another writer on naval matters and a war correspondent in the service of the Berlin Tageblatt, says he hopes Great Britain will consent to abandon the misuse of flags and the arming of merchantmen. Then, he declares, neutral Powers need have no further concern regarding their ships and their citizens. German submarine commanders also would be freed of a heavy load.

"Of an agreement to this effect is reached the German government can boast of a decided success which, we freely acknowledge, could only have been achieved through the support of the United States," he says.

The Morgen Post says the American note is couched in gratifying form and shows more respect for existing conditions than did the first communication from Washington. Taken as a whole the American proposals throughout are worthy of consideration, this newspaper says.

Trades and Labour Notes

By The Official Scribe

There was another good gathering of delegates this week when President Hartley called the meeting to order.

The Property Qualification

Secretary Wm. Stevens, the man chosen to represent the local Council on the delegation to interview Premier Hearst, i.e., the abolition of the property qualification, presented his report. The delegates, he said, were introduced by Fred Bancroft to the Premier and members of the Cabinet, N. W. Rowell being present also. After each of the delegates had spoken they were informed by Ontario's chief lawmaker, that the matter would receive most careful consideration. A measure could not be introduced this session, as all available time was already well provided for. The Peterborough representative was last on the list of speakers, but was not the least, as evidenced by the fact that when Premier Hearst gave the delegates a parting handshake he declared he had been much impressed, especially by the last speaker. "Our Bill" emphasized that a bill for the abolition of the property qualification for candidates to municipal honours was a democratic movement purely.

Mr. Burnham Obtains Results.

The committee who were nominated to respond to Mr. Burnham's appeal to let him know anything the Trade and Labour Council desired, reported showing the member for West Peterborough up as a desirable Labour member. On receipt of a letter from the chairman of the aforementioned committee, Mr. Burnham had taken a copy, then forwarded it to the Hon. Mr. Crothers. The Minister of Labour treated the letter inasmuch as it dealt with his department, then had passed it on to others. One point of interest was the complaint of Government contracts going to firms paying starvation wages to its employees. Mr. Crothers declared that the fair wage clause was inserted in every contract, and in writing him of a delinquency generalities must not be used. Specific cases only will be investigated. With regard to ignoring communications sent him, Mr. Crothers said that personally he believed that all letters to his department were answered. A vote of thanks to Mr. Crothers and Mr. Burnham concluded the committee's report.

Municipal Committee's Report.

The Municipal Committee reported impressions gathered at the last meeting of the City Fathers at the Council Chamber. One thing struck the member reporting was that no minutes of the previous meeting were read. The doctors, he considered, got a raw deal. All they asked was a dinner for the visiting medicos, and when the large amount of unremunerative labour now performed by our physicians during the present financial stress is taken into consideration, they were not asking too much. The Aldermen with the democratic vote was also taken count of.

Next meeting, March 17th.

ALLIES' SUCCESSFUL DRIVE CONTINUES

Berlin Admits Her Enemies Are On The Offensive

More Progress Made By The Allies on Western Lines

Official French Communique Announce Gains in the Vosges in Lorraine and in the Champaign Region--Germany Admits That Her Foes Are Attacking East and West.

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PARIS, France, March 8.—French official.—A bloody engagement in the Vosges mountains at Reichackerkopf ,in which the French chasseurs were victors over the Germans, was described in the official despatches to-day. Ferther progress in the Champaigne fighting was also claimed. The Germans swept forward in an impetuous charge against Reichackerkopf, driving the French before them, and obtaining a footing on the outskirts. The chausseurs reformed and counter attacked. For several hours the battle was waged near the border of the village, with bayonets and clubbed rifles. The Germans were finally driven off. Their losses were described as "extremely heavy."

Between Perthes and Beausejour and northwest of Souain, in the Champaign region, the Allies drive against the German line continues with successful results. In the last 24 hours the allies' gains in this region represent about 400 yards.

Soldiers of the German Crown Prince captured in the fighting north of Verdun, admitted that the French artillery fire has had deadly results. A shell from a French gun disabled one of the German 42 centimetres, killing four Germans who were serving the big gun, and wounding seven. The French have made progress in Lorraine to a point north of Badonvillier. In Upper Alsace the Germans attacked the railway station south of Burnhaupt, but were dispersed.

THE TURKISH SITUATION

LONDON, March 8.—The Central News message in regard to the ex-Sultan is unconfirmed from any other source. It has aroused the greatest interest here. Government officials speculated on the possibility that the Sultan, who once baffled the shrewdest diplomats and kept Europe in a turmoil, may play a master stroke for the allies by forcing Turkey to sue for peace. Only last week it was hinted in the Government circles here that British diplomats has secretely been negotiating with the leaders of the ol dTurks. The old Turks, it was rumored, were about to spring a coup that would overthrow Mohammed V., drive the young Turk party out of power, and end Turkey's participation in the war.

The reported re-entrance of the "sick man of Europe" into the capital heading a peace party, may be an act in carefully staged plans of the old Turks to regain control of the Government.

NEGOTIATIONS SECRET

WASHINGTON, March 8. — Because of the almost universal belief here that Italy and most of the Balkan States will enter the European war in a very short time, the Administration has veiled all its pending negotiations in secrecy. Secretary of State Bryan refuses to disclose the text of his messages to England and France, asking them to tell how they intend to shut off German commerce. This was because it is believed the matter will involve protracted negotiations, and every precaution is to be taken to prevent premature publicity from embarrassing both sides . Unofficial State Department advices said the British-French plans provide for the investment of Constantinople by the end of the month. It is said that the Turko-German forces will not attempt to defend the city, but if defeated at the last line of forts will evacuate. It is believed here,however, that the imminence of the Turkish capital's capture will force Greece into the war, and that Italy and the remaining Balkan States will have to follow for self-protection. That this will shorten the war is the belief of officials in touch with the situation.

LONDON, March 8.—According to the despatches from Berlin today the war office officially admits that Germany's enemies are on the offensive in both the eastern and western fronts. This is regarded as highly significant of the fact that the Russians on the East and the British and French on the West, have begun their long-promised squeezing of Germany's legions back towards their own frontier. The official reports from both Paris and Petrograd to-day are decidedly optimistic.

EX-SULTAN IS FREE

LONDON, March 8.—Ex-Sultan Abdul Hamid, imprisoned by the young Turks, when they seized the reins of government, is free, according to a Central News despatch from Bucharest. He has surrendered himself with numerous friends and plans to execute an unexpected coup, the Bucharest correspondent cabled.

Ottowa Despatch Telling of Their Arrival in the Capital Comments Favourably on Appearance of Peterboro's Soldier Boys

BREAKFAST WAS READY

Special to The Examiner:

OTTOWA, Ont., March 8.—The Peterborough Squadron of the 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles arrived at Ottawa early yesterday morning and marched directly to Howick Hall, where everything was in readiness for them to go into barracks. There, bunks had been completed and other arrangements made for their arrival. The cooks arrived on Saturday so that breakfast was ready when the squadron marched on to Lansdowne Park. There are 145 of all ranks, and a few more attending qualifying courses at Kingston will reach Ottawa in a day or so, bringing the squadron up to strength. This brings the number at Howick Hall up to 419. The Peterborough Squadron is a splendid body of men. They have been in training for some time and received their uniforms several days ago.

"Jones Always Knows"

They were discussing Jones' excellent business ability.

"He always seems to do better than I can in getting 100 cents worth for a dollar."

He is above all else a student of advertising—and he makes his newspaper pay for itself many times over by the information its advertisement give him.

MAGNIFICENT SEND-OFF FOR MOUNTED RIFLES

BUSY MORNING IN RECRUITING AT ARMOURIES

Send-off to the Mounted Rifles Acted as a Stimulus—57th Unit Will Form a Part of "D" Company of the 39th Battalion

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

Saturday's fine send-off to the Mounted Rifles has had a great effect on recruiting and this morning was the busiest in this regard for weeks. Seven recruits applied to join the 57th Regiment Company in the 39th Battalion and at the same time Major Hall secured three more for the new overseas battery, recruiting for which started the latter part of last week. A number of more applicants for both units are to be examined this afternoon.

So far Major G. R. Hall has eleven recruits sworn in for the new overseas battery and it is expected that Peterborough's contribution to this branch of the service will favourably compare with the splendid quotas that have responded to the call for men for other branches. The 24th Field Battery uniforms are being issued to the artillerymen. Recruiting for the new battery will be continued until further notice. No particular quota is asked for from this city, but men will be taken on until orders are received from Divisional Headquarters that the battery is at strength. This may not take very long, so that local men desiring to go should not delay applying. Major Hall may be found in the artillery orderly room at the southwest corner of the armouries daily from 9 a.m. to 12 and from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Part of D. Company.

Important regimental orders received by the local officers this morning from Lt.-Col. J. A. V. Preston, the officer commanding the 39th Battalion, show that a new system is to be followed in the allocation of officers to the diqerent companies. In most cases officers of a particular militia regiment are not placed in command of the men of that regiment. For instance Capt. C. R. Spencer, who has been in command of the local company, will be second in command of C Company, which will comprise the 45th Regiment of Lindsay. Lieut. C. Ross Cameron and W. Eastwood of the 57th Regiment, will be platoon commanders in A Company, which consists of the detachments from the 14th Prince of Wales Own Rifles, Kingston, the 15th Regiment Argyle Light Infantry, Belleville, the 16th Prince Edward Regiment, Picton, and the 47th, Frontenac Regiment, Kingston, Ont. Lt.-Col. Fee of the 45th Regiment, Lindsay, will command the company.

The 57th detachment will form part of D Company and will have as their company comrades the 49th Regiment, Hastings Rifles of Belleville. The company officers will be as follows:

Major F. D. Boggs, 40th Northumberland Regiment, Cobourg O. C.; second in command, Capt. H. Sauva 40th Regiment.

Platoon commanders—Lieut. B. B. S. Campbell, 59th Stormont and Glengarry Regiment, Alexandria, Lieut. A. B. Thompson, 40th Regiment, Lieut. R. G. H. Travers, 47th Frontenac Regiment, and Lieut. E. C. Brandon, 49th Regiment.

All Are Well.

Mr. T. F. Matthews received a cable from his son, Lieut. Harold S. Matthews, who is in France with the Ottawa battery in the first contingent, to-day, conveying the good news that he and the other officers of his brigade are well. The intimation is that the artillery has been in action, although the cablegram does not say so.

That Peterborough boys are playing their part in the Empire's struggle was evidenced yesterday when one could not fail to be impressed with the uniforms seen on the streets. In spite of the departure of the Mounted Rifles, there were soldiers everywhere. The red of the members of the 30th Battalion, the blue of the 24th Field Battery, and the khaki of the boys home on leave from the Engineers at Ottawa, the Cyclists' Corp in Toronto, and the 21st Battalion at Kingston, always met the eye.

Peterboro' Squadron's Departure For Ottawa on Saturday Was Marked by Striking Scenes of Patriotic Enthusiasm

WHOLE CITY WAS OUT

Amid scenes of patriotic enthusiasm that surpassed any that have occurred here since the outbreak of war, the Peterborough squadron of the 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles left on Saturday night for Ottawa on the first stage of their journey to the battle fields of Europe, Egypt, or wherever Lord Kitchener decides they can best serve the Empire. Peterborough arose to the occasion and the send-off was a memorable one—a demonstration that must have made the soldier boys realise that the city is proud of them. And well might Peterborough be proud of her representatives in the Mounted Rifles: a bright, clean, well-behaved body of men, whose conduct here has been of the most commendable nature, and who cannot fail to bring credit to the city they represent, as have the gallant boys in the first and second contingents.

Saturday night's affair was a spontaneous tribute of admiration and affection, an outpouring of the feeling of the community that sent B Squadron away glowing with the realisation that their fellow citizens appreciated what they are doing. Throughout the evening everything testified to this admiration. From the moment that the Squadron fell in at the Armouries until the tail-lights of their special train twinkled out of sight, far over the C.P.R. bridge, they were the centre of attraction. They were kept busy shaking hands at every favourable opportunity, and their march to the station was an ovation that they will not soon forget. "There couldn't have been a better send-off," remarked one veteran member of the Squadron to the Examiner just before the train pulled out, "this beats going to South Africa. And other khaki-clad soldiers echoed this feeling.

Glad to Get Away.

It was at the Saturday morning parade that Major Medd, officer commanding, made the definite announcement that the squadron would leave that night. The men who had been eagerly awaiting the word to go, anxious to get busy with their training, so that they could the sooner count on getting to the front, received the order with evident delight and cheered when parade was dismissed. There was a brief parade in the afternoon, when the squadron marched out on a short route-march, the last of their Peterborough training, and then the men were released to say farewell to their friends. There were sad leave-takings in many a Peterborough home, the married men being especially affected. Among them were several South African veterans who found saying good-bye even harder on this occasion than when they left for the South.

At the Armouries.

The squadron fell in at the Armouries at 7 o'clock. As they gathered they sang "Tipperary" and other war songs until the signal to fall in was given Then the roll was called, after which each man of the squadron was presented with a box of cigarettes, the gift of Mr. Louis Yeates, a donation that was thoroughly appreciated.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the men were marched to the band room. This in itself was not an unusual experience for the squadron had been using the room daily for lecture purposes, but on this final occasion they found the place transformed. The ladies of the Women's War Fund Committee had been busy, and to some purpose, for as the men entered the room they found long tables, prettily decorated, and well laden with good things awaiting them while appropriate decorations of flags and bunting made the whole effect most pleasing. With military precision the Squadron gathered around the tables and attacked the repast effectively. The sadness of breaking away from the home ties was forgotten for the time being while the men made merry around the board. Mr. T. H. Hooper catered for the occasion and the supper was served in excellent style.

At the conclusion of the meal the ladies presented each soldier with a package containing khaki handkerchiefs. Needless to say these were appreciated, as will be the other com-

KEEP UP THE STRENGTH.

The heading to this paragraph is not an invitation to spring tonic tippling, but to enlisting in the 57th Regiment—in order to keep up the level of the reservoir. The strength of the local regiment has been seriously affected. It has supplied generous drafts for the three contingents. Altogether about 340 men have been added to the strength of the Canadian expeditionary force for service abroad under the auspices of the regiment. Of course this total number has not been drawn from the ranks of the 57th, but a large number enlisting from the ranks of the regiment has reduced the strength of the muster roll very considerably. The young men of Peterborough are invited and urged to join the local battalion and keep its ranks up to normal strength. Our volunteer forces are not only practically our whole force of national home defence, but our chief dependence for partially drilled recruits for extraordinary occasions such as the present war. It is, therefore, necessary that, apart altogether, from the idea of promoting service of Canadians abroad, our local regiment should be kept up to strength. The Home Guard organization is no substitute. It is only an emergency organization, and admirable as it is, it cannot take the place, or fill the place of a volunteer regiment. Indeed many young men in the members of the Home Guard might, with better results in the way of military advantage both to themselves, the volunteer service, and the community, become members of the more permanent force the 57th. Without any disparagement to its membership, the Home Guard is supposed to give a chance for service and display of patriotism to men who are not in all respects qualified for active service. The volunteer service is, however, supposed to be, as it is, composed of young, active and robust men, ready physically for the strenuous demands of active service, if required. A regiment in a city is a rallying point, a necleus, a reservoir, so to speak, from which we can draw as we have drawn in this war men, willing and capable of serving in an extraordinary capacity in case of emergency. Why not then keep the reservoir full? Why not have a full quota of young Canadians learning the rudiments of drill and discipine, and reasonable preparation for the demands of active service if such demands are made. The war will soon be over, and our Canadian expeditionary forces disbanded; but the volunteer service—such organizations as the 57th Regiment—will remain forever; and they will better serve their purposes if they are kept up to normal strength and efficiency.

GERMANY'S DARK HOUR.

In one sense Germany has justified her militaristic spirit and the tremendous conditions of military preparedness growing out of it. She has not been preparing for forty years in vain. She achieved a military strength of initiative and defence that have never been equalled in modern or ancient times. Thanks to them she has been able to wage a war of aggression and defence that have tried the strength and resources of three of the most powerful nations of Europe. Thanks to her military preparedness she has been able to defend her soil and practically keep the invaders aloof.

But the doom is closing in. While Germany has been doggedly defending her soil her ring of enemies has been quietly adding to their strength. While she has been weakening in number and quality of men and resources, her enemies have been improving their strength in every way. Now the opening spring that brings beauty and new life to all nations—becomes a season of new strength and aggressive activity to the enemies of Germany; the dawn of her day of doom is breaking. Russia stands irresistible and inevitable at the eastern gates of Germany, millions of men in line and more in reserve. The Allies in the west are ready for an advance in strength that has not been demonstrated since the war began. Germany will need every than, every ounce of munitions to meet the simultaneous advance of the Russian steam roller from the east, and the supreme assault of the British and French in the west. They have long been making ready to strike; and when they do strike the blow will be strong. While Germany is thus held between two fires, Italy to the south stands ready to throw a million fresh well-trained, well-fed soldiers into Germany to further hurt and overwhelm the armies of Germany reduced to untrained levies—home guards, or trained armies decimated with the slaughter, worn to the bone with the continuous fighting of eight months; with her people reduced to practical starvation. The clearing of the Dardanelles, and the destruction of Constantinople will open a new avenue of invasion, a new gateway to menace. Ringed with hostile armies as resistless as fate, with her ports shut to the commerce of the world, Germany will begin to feel the pressure of the crushing she is threatened with today with a directness she has never before felt. Her doom is spoken. She may prolong the struggle, but in the end she must succumb. Militarism and its brood of blighting influences must be destroyed. Practically the whole world is arrayed against Germany, on the principle that the whole community joins in the hunt against a mad dog. Germany will be overrun and conquered; but not destroyed—only the evil of militarism and tyranny will be utterly wiped out, not only in the interest of the world, but in the interests of the German people themselves, who will be allowed freedom and achieve a new destiny, a new triumph for her popular genius of learning, science and art, unfettered and unimpeded by the shackles of militarism and the obsession of the cult of force.

WAS DR. SHORT UNFAIR?

It seems it was this paper that got Dr. Adam Short into his present peck of trouble and made him the subject of a gala day of oratory in the House of Commons. In quoting from a Parliamentary return brought down on February 12, The Free Press gave 2,115 dismissals and 10,576 appointments to the civil service since the Borden government came into power. But 3,500 "resignations"—the reason for the quotation marks will be obvious — were not mentioned. Dr. Short used The Free Press figures in an offhand way, with the result that the surplus of new appointments was made to appear 8,461 instead of 4,961. That was really too bad, and we are awfully sorry for the gross injustice done to the Borden government.

Our grief is mitigated, however, by figures taken from a later return and quoted in the House on Thursday by Mr. Sinclair. It seems that, omitting the two large departments militia and marine and fisheries, there have been a total of 3,495 dismissals, 6,548 "resignations," 12 desertions, and 20,100 appointments.

That makes an actual surplus of new appointment of 10,645 — and Dr. Short in his "unfair" quotation from The Free Press made the surplus 1584 less than that number.—Ottawa Free Press.

A RAILWAY CASE.

Some facts bearing on the case of the Grand Trunk Railway were made public yesterday by Mr. E. J. Chamberlin. Like all railways on this continent the Grand Trunk has suffered from the reluction in freight and passenger movement following the check in trade activity which became evident last year, even before the war broke out, and which the war helped to make more serious. Besides the drawbacks of the common lot, the Grand Trunk suffers from some peculiar to Canada and some peculiar to the particular section of Canada it serves. The provinces, which always need money discovered that what they wanted could be more safely extracted from commerce than from the people generally, and the railways were called upon to pay more even than their just share of the total. The Grand Trunk in 1914, it appears, contributed $732,000 to municipal and provincial treasuries, or something like thirty per cent. of all railway taxes, though it has only about twelve per cent. of the mileage. This sort of thing, coming with heavy increases in the rates and amount of wages, increases in the customs taxes on materials and fuel that must be imported, and the incidence of workmen's compensation laws, etc., as a matter of course, gravely affected the financial position of the road. For the year just closed there was a decrease of £537,000 in the revenue and an increase of £64,000 in the expenses. The common and preference stocks had to be passed on dividend day, and on the four per cent. guaranteed stock only three and a half per cent. could be paid. Worse showings than this have been made in the railway world. A less serious general situation, however, compelled such a change of sentiment in the United States that for a large part of the country an increase in rates was authorised, and was everywhere accepted as just. Railways cannot progress and maintain their powers of doing the country's transportation unless they are permitted to justify the confidence of the men who invest money in them.—Montreal Gazette.

The Geological Survey has estimated that the Colorado River in an average year discharges into the Gulf of California 338,000,000 tons of silt and salt, equal to 20 tons for each square mile of land the river drains.

Fight With Tribesmen

British Troops on Persian Gulf Had a Hard Encounter

LONDON, March 8. — British troops occupying the head of the Persian Gulf located two Turkish forces accompanied by hostile tribesmen during the past week and in the fighting which followed heavy casualties were inflicted on the Turks and their allies, while the British also suffered considerably, according to a report on the fighting issued last night by the Marquis of Crewe, Secretary of State for India. The statement says, in part:

"For some time it had been known that about two or three regiments of Turkish troops together with Turkish Beni Fam tribesmen from Amara (on the Tigris river) with contingents of Persian Beni Lamu Turcet and other disaffected tribesmen hostile to the Sheik of Mohammerah had been collecting west of Ahwaz (in Khuzistan.) The Ahwaz garrison was despatched on a reconnaissance in force to ascertain their numbers and disposition.

"On March 3, the enemy, who had been located at Ghadir, and who apparently had been further reinforced the previous day, turned out in great strength. Their number was estimated at about 12,000. In the course of our withdrawal the enemy made repeated and determined efforts to cut off a reconnoitering party.

"Several hand-to-hand encounters took place, in which the attackers were held successfully at bay, while our party made good its retirement.

"On the same day a cavalry reconnaissance was made in the direction of Nakala, about 25 miles northwest of Basra (on the Persian Gulf). The reconnoiters, on returning to camp, were followed by a body of some 1,500 hostile horsemen. This enemy force was skillfully drawn on to a concealed position occupied by infantry with machine guns and field artillery. The enemy fled back to Nakala after having suffered heavily."

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, March 6.—The upward move in prices on yesterday's close was continued this morning. Opening prices on wheat were ½c to 2¼c higher, oats were ½c to ¾c higher, while flax was unchanged.

Following the opening there was a turn to easier prices, but, for the most part, the market showed nervousness and a certain amount of indecision regarding shipping. Exporters were carrying thru new sales at firmer prices, one firm contracting for 100,000 bushels wheat quite early in the day, and expected more business before the day was out.

Inspections yesterday were 378 cars, as against 196 last year and in sight today 230 cars.

Wheat futures closed ½c to 1½c higher, cash 2¼c to 2½c under, to 1c higher, and fl...

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, March 6.—There was a fair enquiry from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat today, but owing to the big jump in prices in Winnipeg, the prices bid were all out of line with the views of holders. The local market for coarse grains is quiet, the demand being only for odd carlots of oats and corn at steady prices. In flour the feeling was steady, but there was no improvement in the demand and the volume of business doing is small. Demand for millfeed is fair. A fair trade continues to be done in butter, and the undertone of the market is firm. Receipts for the week 819 packages, as compared with 395 for the same week a year ago.

Demand for cheese locally is steady at firm prices. Receipts for week 41 boxes, as against 325 a year ago.

Eggs active and easy. Receipts for week 7882 cases, as compared with 2418 for the same week last year.

Stocks: Wheat 881,113, corn 126,780, oats 955,096, barley 240,210, rye 14,720, buckwheat 7766, flour 35,031 sacks.

Corn—No. 3 yellow, 68c to 68½c.

Oats—No. 3 white, 52c to 52¾c.

Flour and bran unchanged.

DULUTH GRAIN MARKET.

DULUTH, Minn., March 6.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.42¾; No. 1 northern, $1.41¾; No. 2 northern, $1.36¾ to $1.39¾; May, $1.39¾; July, $1.34¾.

LOSSES NOT REPORTED.

German Paper Comments on Silence Regarding Submarines.

LONDON, March 8.—A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Amsterdam, says:

"A correspondent of The Berliner Tageblatt declares that since the beginning of the blockade seven British merchantmen have been sunk, but admits that, according to news received in Berlin from neutral countries, more than seven German submarines have been sunk during the same period.

NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that an application will be made by the Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation for the Diocese of Peterborough in Ontario, Canada, to the Legislature of Ontario, at the next Session thereof, for an Act amending the Act of Incorporation of the said Corporation, passed in the Forty-Sixth Reign of Her Late Majesty Queen Victoria, Chapter 66, so as to enlarge the powers of the said Corporation, to borrow moneys on the security of Promissory Notes and Bills of Exchange and for such purposes to make, draw, endorse, become a party to and deliver Promissory Notes and Bills of Exchange, without the necessity of affixing the Corporate Seal thereto.

The reason for the enlargement of the powers of the said Corporation as aforesaid, is that it requires to borrow moneys from time to time for its purposes in various sums and on such terms of repayment as to render it highly inconvenient to execute and deliver mortgage securities on the real estate of the said Corporation.

DENYING SON OF GOD DARKNESS FOR LIGHT

Does Billy Sunday Deny That Jesus Is the Son of God?

Darkness Masquerades as Light — Foolish Words Mislead the Ignorant—Christians Often "Babes In Christ"—Few Have Their Senses Exercised by Reason of Use—Bible Study Never More Needed Than Now—"What Say the Scriptures?" Not, What Say the Preachers, Evangelists and the Creeds?

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its insertion.]

New York, Mar. 7. — Speaking at the New York City Temple today, Pastor Russell took for his text John 1:34, "I saw and bear record that this is the Son of God." He declared that about three-fourths of all the preachers are his enemies. Because they cannot resist the force of his Bible teachings, they misrepresent them and vilify his reputation, that thus they may hinder good people from hearing and from reading. "By their fruits ye shall know them," said the Master; and evidently many clergymen must be seriously wrong of heart; else they would not bear these unscriptural fruits—unmanly fruits—"works of the flesh and of the Devil."—Galatians 5:19-21; 1 John 3:8.

But the Pastor would not slack his efforts to make known the true character of the God of the Bible, so in contrast with the Satanic god of the creeds. Thousands of letters from all parts of the world tell him of new life, new joy in the Lord, through his efforts; and he is encouraged to go onward in the narrow way which the Master and the Apostles trod. He would not render personal abuse in retaliation. To do so would be contrary to the Word and the Spirit of the Lord. But the creeds and false doctrines he would continue to smash with all the power granted him, that thus hungering, thirsting souls might be delivered from error into the joyous liberty of the children of God.

Billy Sunday has joined other evangelists and preachers in the slanderous misstatements that Pastor Russell denies that Jesus is the Son of God. By such false statements, said the Pastor, they seek to prevent people from coming to hear me and from reading my Bible expositions. Yet how foolish it is for them to make such deliberate misstatements; for eventually their falsehoods will be found out! People who learn of the gross misrepresentation realise that only desperation, attempting to support a weak cause, could lead men professing to be ministers of the Truth to thus do it violence.

Really, it is I who believe that Jesus is the Son of God, while the great majority of preachers and evangelists do not clearly so teach. They confuse their argument and bewilder their hearers by telling in one breath that Jesus is the Son of God, and in the next breath that He is His own Father.

According to them, He is Jehovah God, who sent His Son into the world to die, and He is the Son who sent Himself, as God. When He prayed to the Father it was a mockery; for He was the Father — "one in person." When he said, "The Father is greater than I," He misrepresented the facts, according to these preachers, evangelists and creed-makers. He spoke of the Cup which the Father had poured for Him, and said He could do nothing of Himself, and that He would return to the Father. He prayed, "My God! My God! Why has Thou forsaken Me?" and said to Mary, "I have not yet ascended to My Father and your Father, to My God and your God." But these wiser-than-the-Bible teachers contradict Him, and feel like saying, "Jesus must have been a Millennial Dawner! But we know better!"

Such teachers make void the Word of God through their traditions. In claiming that Jesus is Jehovah God, they really deny that He is the Son of God; for common sense tells everybody that a son receives his life from the father. This is exactly what the Bible tells us respecting Jesus.

I invite truthful criticisms of my teachings; but my opponents know that to treat me fairly, justly, would be to turn all thinking people to my side—the Bible side—the reasonable side. For thirty years they ignored my presentations, lest people should find out; but as my sermons now reach millions, they are alarmed for the safety of their musty creeds, and resort to rank falsehoods, misrepresentations and slanders — the weapons of moral cowards, who realise their own weakness.

If they would charge me with disbelieving the doctrine of the Trinity —that three ones are one—I would cheerfully admit it, and point them to the fact that the word Trinity is not found in the Bible, and that the thought of a trinity is not there, except in one passage, which all scholars of all denominations admit is a forgery of the Seventh Century—1 John 5:7, 8. See Revised Version.

I believe in the Heavenly Father, Jehovah God. I believe in His Son, our Lord Jesus Christ, who left the Heavenly nature, took the human nature, died for our sins, and was afterward highly exalted to the Divine nature. I believe in the Holy Spirit, the Spirit of the Truth, the Spirit of God, the Spirit of Christ. My crime is that I do not believe that the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit are "one in person, equal in power and glory," neither one existing before the others, neither one the Son and neither one the Father, really. The Bible says nothing of this kind; and I am glad that my head is not so illogical as to lead me to deny the Bible and common sense for the sake of being in harmony with creeds made in the Dark Ages.

The Bible makes no mystery of who Jesus is; and we would not have been in confusion had we relied solely upon the testimony of Jesus, the Apostles and the Prophets. Our misleading came during the twelve hundred years when the Bible was ignored, because it was believed that the living bishops were Apostolic and had the plenary power of the original Apostles. This serious error Jesus emphatically warned against in advance.—Revelation 2:2.

The Bible tells of Jesus' present glorious station, "far above angels," "partaker of the Divine nature." But many ignore this, and claim that Jesus is a man in Heaven, completely out of touch with His surroundings; for a man, according to the Bible, is "a little lower than angels," whereas the Apostle declares that Jesus at His resurrection was exalted far above angels. This glorious One, although of a different nature, is the same One who, while on earth, was "the Man Christ Jesus," "a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief." St. Paul tells us how Jesus left the Heavenly glory, how He humbled Himself to take a bondman's form—to take the same nature as humanity, which had come into bondage to sin.

The Bible explains how Jesus could be of our race, and yet be "holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners." It tells us plainly that Jesus had a human mother, but that his life came not from a human father; and that therefore He was perfect, and able to be the Ransomer of the race by giving to God sacrificially a full corresponding price for Adam, whose life was forfeited because of sin. Thus the Bible explains that Jesus' death is sufficient for Adam's sin and the sins of the whole world; for the world was not condemned individually, but merely partook of Adam's condemnation to death.

Whoever thinks of Jesus as being the Father and also the Holy Spirit —all one in person—must be confronted with nonsensical errors such as these: How did the Universe manage to progress during the period leading up to Jesus' birth and on to manhood? How did the affairs of the Universe prosper during Jesus' ministry, when He was fully engaged with earthly affairs to the extent of weariness? How did the Universe get along when Jesus died, and until He arose from death?

Some even go to this absurd length to wit, that Jesus raised Himself from death; whereas The Apostle declared positively that the Father raised Him from the dead on the third day. How refreshing it is to get out of the fog into the clear statements of God's Word, which declare (1) "To us there is one God, the Father," (2) "and one Lord Jesus Christ!"—1 Corinthians 8:6.

It seems astounding if my opponents have never read the plain Bible statements that our glorious Redeemer was "the First-born of all creation" (Colossians 1:15), "the beginning of the creation of God" (Revelation 3:14). If they have read these simple, plain Bible statements, why do they prefer the confusing views of the Dark Ages respecting a Trinity of three persons, yet one person? Some say one God in three persons; others say three Gods in one person. Both propositions are alike unscriptural and absurd.

Jesus Himself, in His last Message to His Church, declared, "I am the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the ending, the first and the last." (Revelation 1:8, 11.) Thus He clearly differentiates between Himself and the Father; for the Father had no beginning—"From everlasting to everlasting Thou art God."

Do our opponents claim that Jesus is God? We agree most heartily, provided the word God is understood in the sense in which the Bible uses it. Throughout the Old Testament the word for God is elohim—mighty one. It is applied to Jehovah, the Almighty One; it is also applied to angels and to men whom He sent as His messengers. According to this view, our Lord Jesus Christ is a God. The Bible clearly indicates that He is above all other gods except Jehovah.

In harmony with this we read respecting Messiah and His Kingdom: "Thy throne, O God, is forever and ever." The Apostle applies these words distinctly to Jesus, but does not say this proves that Jesus was His own Father, nor does he ignore the Almighty God, of whom are all things. On the contrary, the context tells us explicitly that the Father, who always was above all, as a reward exalted His Son to this glorious Kingship and Godship, declaring that even the angels of Heaven should worship Him. — Hebrews 1:1-9.

One very simple statement confuses some needlessly. It reads, "I and My Father are one." It does not say one person. It refers to the oneness of spirit, or harmony, between the Father and the Son; and this oneness is explained by our Lord, assuring us that He came not to do His own will, but the will of the Father. Since He accepted the Father's will in everything, He and the Father were always one in purpose. Jesus prayed for the Church, saying, I pray for them that Thou hast given Me, that they all may be one in Us, even as Thou, Father, and I are one. (John 17:9, 20-24.) Surely no one would claim that Jesus expected His Church to become one person! And it is equally absurd to think that He and the Father are one person.

Because Jesus was thus the Father's Representative, in the only sense that men could see the invisible Jehovah, He answered Philip on one occasion, "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father." Thus the President's secretary would say to a caller, "I represent the President."

As Matthew's and Luke's Gospels make very plain how the glorious Son of God was made flesh, yet not a partaker of human sin, so St. John's Gospel provides us with information still further back, pointing out and explaining clearly the glorious prehuman nature of the Son of God. The translation, however, is slightly defective, and hides from the English reader the full import of the opening verses which, literally translated, read:

"In the beginning was the Logos, and the Logos was with the God, and the Logos was a god. The same was in the beginning with the God. By Him were all things made, and without Him was not one thing made * * * And the Logos was made flesh and dwelt among us; and we beheld His glory, the glory of an Only Begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth."—John 1:1-3, 14.

The beautiful simplicity of this account is wonderful. The beginning it mentions was not that of Jehovah's existence, which the Bible declares was without beginning. The word refers to the beginning of creation, and immediately introduces us to the great Logos, "the Beginning of the creation of God." (Revelation 3:14.) While the name Logos may be not improperly translated Word, it has a much fuller significance; namely, representative, messengers, mouthpiece.

Jehovah's entire Message has been, and will be, given to angels and to men through the great Logos. He was the Alpha, the first; the Father created none before Him. He is the Omega, the last; the Father has directly created none since Him. This explains simply, satisfactorily, that all subsequent creations, while executed by Jehovah's Power, were worked out by His great Son, the Logos. "By Him were all things made that were made."

When the time came for the outworking of the great Divine Plan for human salvation, and, incidentally the showing forth of God's Justice, Wisdom, Love and Power, the offer properly came first to the Logos. The proposition to be man's Redeemer carried with it a great blessing, as St. Paul explains. (Hebrews 12:2; Colossians 1:18.) This exaltation to God's right hand, far above all other creatures, was an advance step. Although originally higher than all the others, the Logos was not so "far above" then.

It was God's purpose to have a New Creation; and the Logos, through the redemptive Plan, was to be the first and chiefest on that highest plane—the Divine nature. During this Gospel Age, God has been calling and accepting the honest, the obedient, lovers of righteousness, haters of iniquity, to be associates with Jesus in the Kingdom and participants with Him in the highest nature of all—the Divine. So, St. Peter declares, "God hath given unto us (the truly consecrated, the Church) exceeding great and precious promises, that by these we might become partakers of the Divine nature."—2 Peter 1:4; Hebrews 2:10.

Is it right, is it Christian, is it true, is it manly, to charge my teachings with denying that Jesus is the Son of God? What object could there be in so doing except to keep the Lord's hungry sheep away from the green pastures of Divine Truth? Well, do my traducers know that they have nothing Biblical, sane or sensible to give instead! The very bitterness manifested by ministers against me is being used of the Lord to arouse investigation amongst those who are truly His people. If my reputation must be thus assassinated in order that the true sheep may hear the Master's voice, I shall acquiesce as joyfully as possible, remembering that it will be difficult for them to say bitterer or untruer things of me than they said of my Master.

My crime is the same that incited the Pharisees against Jesus and the Apostles. "They were angry that they taught the people." Preachers who do not believe in eternal torment any more than I do are angry that I am informing the people; for they fear that the people will justly think that their ministers deal dishonestly, receiving wages for keeping them in darkness. The time has come when all who are for the right, the Truth, should manifest themselves. I have many letters from ministers, marked personal and private, assuring me of their sympathy with my work, but fearful to come out boldly. I am sorry for these. The Lord exhorts, "Be thou very courageous." "He that hath a dream (an imagination), let him tell the dream (if he has nothing better to tell); but he that hath My Word, let him speak My Word fearlessly."—Jeremiah 23:28.

As our knowledge of God and of His glorious Son, and our true understanding of the Holy Spirit, become clearer, we can the better worship God; for the eyes of our understanding opening wider and wider, we shall comprehend with all saints the lengths and breadths, the heights and depths, and know the love of God—whom to know aright implies fitness for life everlasting.—Ephesians 3:17-19.

PEOPLE OFTEN SAY

"How Are We To Know When The Kidneys Are Out Of Order?"

EASIEST THING IN THE WORLD!

The location of the kidneys, close to the small of the back, renders the detection of kidney trouble a simple matter. The note of warning comes from the back. The kidneys become overtaxed and fail to do their work at nature's call.

Backache is the signal sent out by the kidneys the minute they become overtaxed. Those who heed the warning when it first comes, usually have but little trouble.

The danger lies in delay. Doan's Kidney Pills stimulate the action of the kidneys, and enable them to perform their duty perfectly.

Mrs. Greig Murphy, Lower Ship Harbor East, N.S., writes: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills in my family with great success, and don't think there is a better pill for the kidneys. I was very miserable with my back, and could hardly get about. I got a box, and tried them, and found that they were really good, so I took in all about six boxes, and soon found my back cured, and my kidneys as well as ever."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; for sale at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Lustre and Abundance

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns grey and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay grey! Look young! Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully and removes dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the grey hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural colour is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

MAKING THE TARGET.

Two Irishmen arranged to fight a duel with pistols. One of them was distinctly stout, and when he saw his lean adversary facing him he raised an objection.

"Bedad!" he said, "I'm twice as big a target as he is, so I ought to stand twice as far away from him as he is from me."

"Be aisy now," replied his second. "I'll soon put that right."

Taking a piece of chalk from his pocket he drew lines down the stout man's coat, leaving a space between them.

"Now," he said, turning to the other man, "fire away, ye spalpeen, and remember that any hits outside that chalk line don't count."

Total Abstinence Societies United For Further Work Against The Use of Alcohol

Big Movement inaugurated Yesterday Whereby the Three Local Parishes Are to Be More Closely Welded — Prepare for More Vigorous Work in the Diocese.

THE OFFICERS APPOINTED

What proved to be one of the most important meetings in the cause of total abstinence ever held in this City took place in St. Alphonsus Lyceum yesterday afternoon. The meeting was for the purpose of completing the arrangements whereby the different Catholic Total Abstinence Societies in the City would be incorporated under one central body. Each branch will still continue the work in its own particular parish, all being subject to the central body, which will meet on the first Sunday in each month. Reports from the branches will be submitted and in this way a greater interest, it is felt, will be maintained. It will also make St. Alphonsus Lyceum, with its many advantages, the headquarters for the members of all the three societies, and consolidate the activities of St. Peter's T.A.S. and its offspring.

After a spirited address along total abstinence lines by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, the new officers were installed as follows:

President—M. J. Maher.
First Vice-Pres.—Nicholas Bibby.
Second Vice-Pres.—Maurice O'Heron.
Rec.Sec.—Alf. Lahane.
Fin.-Sec.—A. Robe.
Treasurer—Joseph Primeau.
Marshal—Harry Gainey.
Assistant-Mar.—William Grady.
Guard—John McCabe.
Trustees—Daniel Holland, Chairman; James Drain, James J. Hickey, J. A. Sharp, Peter Milloy, Joseph Picard, Sr.

After the newly-elected officers had taken their places splendid addresses were given by the clergy present, including Rev. Dean McColl, Rev. J. J. O'Brien of the Sacred Heart parish, and Father J. Phelan, Rector of the Cathedral. They urged the older members to put forth renewed energies to advance total abstinence, to secure new members, to further the cause of temperance by every means that offers, and they promised to lend every encouragement and assistance at their disposal to further the cause.

The following members also spoke: Messrs. T. B. McGrath, J. Begley, Michael Lynch, Thos. Henry, Ald. J. J. Duffus, M. O'Brien, Separate School Inspector, Daniel Holland and Napoleon Trombley. In all the speeches a feeling of optimism was apparent that the new arrangements would be productive of the desired impetus to total abstinence progress. There are indications that the Society, in future, will adopt a more sweeping attack on intemperance, with probably more attention directed to some of the causes. The whole world has witnessed during the past momentous months slashing assaults on alcohol, with results that are reported to be most advantageous. The new movement in the T.A.S. is merely to unite the three branches for their mutual encouragement and advancement. There still remains a great deal of work to be done along their original lines, but it is likely that more attention will be paid in future to the words in the pledge, which call for the general advancement of the cause of temperance.

During his remarks his Lordship referred to the splendid accommodations afforded the members around St. Alphonsus Lyceum, mentioning in particular the splendid Library, which is constantly being added to, care being taken to make it one of the best, as none but good clean standard books are allowed on its shelves, each book being passed on before being entered. The Dramatic Section is putting the finishing touches on for their concert on the 17th of March.

Much praise is due Messrs. Dan. Holland, Alf. Lahane and Nicholas Bibby for the bulk of the work in drawing up the constitution for the amalgamated societies. This required much thought on their part and is certainly a great one.

Sunday Morning Service at the Charlotte Street Methodist Church

The first congregation, which gathered at the Charlotte Street Methodist church yesterday morning, enjoyed the sermon of their pastor, Rev. Mr. Wilson, who took one of the episodes in the life of the children of Israel, and wove it into a delightful short story.

Its title was: "Mouldy Bread Evidence."

The text was: Joshua, 9:15, "And Joshua made peace with them, and made a league with them, to let them live; and the princes of the congregation aware unto them."

The plot: The story of the craftiness of Gibeonites in making a treaty with Joshua, and the results to themselves when their sharp practice was discovered.

The outcome: They became a thorn in the flesh of Israel. Five kings confederated against the Gibeonites for their treachery, and the Gibeonites called upon Joshua to save them according to the terms of the treaty. Joshua made war on their enemies, and the battle was so fierce and the enemy so great that the sun stood still until the victory was won.

Israel were gaining possession of Palestine and were engaged in exterminating the people. The Gibeonites, observing what had befallen Jericho and Ai, sent a deputation, asking that they be not destroyed, and desired to make a treaty with Joshua. They took with them old sacks, wine bottles old and rent, old shoes on their feet, old garments on their bodies, and in their provision bread old and mouldy, and craftily declared they were come from a far country; and having heard of the fame of Moses and the greatness of Israel they were anxious for peace.

Without asking counsel, Joshua made peace with them, and the princes of the congregation became parties to the agreement. Though the league was gained by deception, it was never broken.

How the people of 1450 years before Christ put to shame Germany 1900 years after Christ!

Israel considered the treaty a solemn obligation, and lived up to it. The crime against Belgium stands before the world. Belgium has shown herself much like the Israelites of old; they would rather be crucified than break their word.

After three days the deception of the Gibeonites was found out, and they became to the Israelites hewers of wood and drawers of water.

It does not pay to deceive. It does not pay a merchant to cheat his customers. It will be found out sooner or later. It is one of the tragedies of life for a lad to waken up some morning and find that his father and mother is not the ideal he thought they were.

Israel did not obey God; they allowed the Gibeonites to live with them and they became a thorn in the flesh.

God's command is to make a complete sweep of sin. Some like to keep one or more, but the pain and pleasure of evil go together. A Christian cannot compromise with sin. "Follow holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord."

Another mistake the Israelites made was a too hasty or careless judgment. They looked at the old shoes and the mouldy bread, instead of penetrating into the very hearts of their seducers. The judgment was foolish and the results fatal.

To the eye there is very little difference between quinine and morphine, yet to one who would take six grains of the latter, thinking it quinine, the mistake would be fatal.

If our common enemy came to us with the fork and tail we would know what to expect, but he comes completely disguised. To the cultured he comes well dressed and plausible; to the student, in Faust, he comes as a great traveller, well read; to some he comes: "only as a glass of wine for companion's sake," "only a game of cards, harmless little cards, for the sake of old friendships," with them he walks hand in hand. These are the temptations incident to the professional man, to the business man, ambitions which lead men on sometimes to questionable practices. Temptations came so simply.

One morning a young man came down to breakfast and unrolled a large roll of bills.

"Where did you get all the money, my son?" queried his mother.

"Oh, I got that last night playing pool," rejoined the son.

"You, gambling, and I a member of the church. How can I ever lift up by head again!" wailed the mother.

"Oh, come down, now, mother," sneered the son. "Where did you get that vase on the mantel?"

"Vase? Oh, I won that last week at a bridge party, given by Mrs. Good."

"Yes, you won the vase at bridge, and I won these bills at pool."

Oh the crying evil of gambling in the home!.

Temptations come on every side. Life is not all seen on the surface, a lot may be hidden, cloued by fears. We should be very careful in our judgments.

Mr. Wilson was once asked if he ever reversed his judgment. In answer he said that on one occasion he was driving across the prairie in the northwest and overtook a man on foot. He invited the man to share his carriage. His companion was not well dressed, and he had a very untidy appearance. Thinking he was a profligate, Mr. Wilson asked him what he did with his money; instead he learned that his father was dead, his mother was old and feeble, and his sister was ill. It took every dollar he could earn to keep his mother, pay the rent, and provide for his sister.

Sometimes we judge superficially.

At other times we reject the truth.

One morning a worried mother forgot herself and vented her feelings on her little ones thus: "I never saw such children as you are, you would nearly drive one crazy." Next day the grandmother called and addressing her daughter, she said: "These children are so much like you used to be."

A young man goes out from a pious home. He is no longer found in the meeting house. He has outgrown these things. Instead he sneers with the scoffers of old and says, "Show us the Father."

No man has ever seen the real ego, that entity which will live forever. We never saw the earth rotate, yet we know it does. We never saw gravitation, yet we see evidences of its power. We have never seen God, but we have felt his presence. We know there is a Christ because we have seen His cross through penetential tears. How many drunkards, how many fallen women has infidelity ever saved?

Israel was deceived by the wit and cunning of the Gibeonites. There comes a time whe na man needs more than his own resourcefulness.

Witness: Saul going to the witch of Endor for advice. David going to God, and winning.

Morley in his Life of Gladstone says that before that great statesman made a speech in the House of Commons he would spend a time in communion with God.

We cannot ignore God. We cannot take God out of our hearts. Men in their business worries, women in their domestic cares need Him.

"In all thy ways, acknowledge Him, and He shall direct thy paths."

—PAUL PENMAN.

BUSY MORNIG IN RECRUITING

The local company of the 39th Battalion, which now has 116 men on parade, is expecting word at any time to leave for the mobilization camp at Belleville. Local officers do not credit the despatch from Kingston in regard to the Petawawa camp, which reads as follows:

KINGSTON, March 1.—The 38th and 39th Battalions of the third contingent, C. E. F., may not be mobilized in Ottawa and Belleville. In a month it will be possible to put the men under canvas, and use Petawawa as the training ground. The order for mobilization has not yet been issued, and may be held back until the camp can be prepared.

A POWERFUL SERMON AT MURRAY ST. BAPTIST CHURCH LAST NIGHT

Rev. Mr. Webb Probed to the Quick the Leprous Worm of Impurity Which is Eating at the Heart of Youth of Our City

When we read of so many glaring cases of the miscarriage of justice, especially when it relates to the morals of the community; and when we witness such deplorable tragedies as were enacted in our midst last week, which are likely to require a coat of whitewash to protect the select members of Peterborough's "School for Scandal," it is a relief to know that the pulpits, at least, contain men with enough tincture of iron in their make-up to dare to call a spade a spade.

"The Church," declared Mr. Webb, "should never become a tremah to offer protection to scoundrels sending out their shafts, destroying the virtue of young women."

He said he had read with pleasure an article in one of the city newspapers last week to the effect that "churches ought not to allow scoundrels to clothe themselves in church office." No man has a right to be even a doorkeeper in the House of the Lord when he is dragging her fair name into the dust.

"The poorest man in this city," protested Mr. Webb, "is welcome to my church, and I would rather part with a deacon, should he object, than have such a man feel that this church was not a home for him."

Mr. Webb took as his text, Titus ii., 15: "Let no man despise thee."

This brief letter of Paul to Titus contains but forty-six verses, yet each verse is crammed full of advice for the young Christian. Titus, figures through all the Acts, yet his name is never mentioned. He was once a persecutor of Paul, yet Luke never refers to him. Before conversion he was not of the household of Israel; he was a Gentile, a heathen. He was transformed into a trusted servant of Christ under the personal ministry of Paul, who left him at Crete, then to perform the same service as Timothy at Ephesus. But Paul evidently considered the work of Titus to be of more importance, for Crete was a very licentious and immoral city. Knowing full well the character of his environments he exhorts Titus, "Let no man despise you."

Paul does not say "Let no man hate you, let no man persecute you, let no man revile you." All these were to be expected; indeed, Paul on another occasion says, "Blessed are ye when men shall revile you," but he does say, "Let no man despise you."

Satan does not despise a Christian; instead he takes of his best (if he has one) to a Christian who is sincere. He may seek to devour him, or, failing this, to sift him as wheat, but he never despises him.

To despise means to look down upon, to scorn, to regard as of little account, to consider contemptible.

"Satan trembles when he sees
The vilest sinner on his knees."

Satan did not despise Christ at the temptation. He sought to overthrow, to deceive: "If Thou be the Son of God," but the attention given Jesus in the hour of temptation shows that he was not despised.

Paul does not put up a sign to the world saying, "You are not to despise Christian people, Titus, Timothy, you or me," instead he addresses Titus: "Let no man despise you, the responsibility rests on you, see that no man can despise you as a result of your actions before the world. You may be hated, but if you are despised it will be your own fault."

Paul glories in his trials: "Of the Jews five times received I forty stripes save one. Thrice was I beaten with rods, once was I stoned, thrice suffered shipwreck, a day and a night I have been in the deep, in many perils." Yet he says: "Let no man despise you."

This is very wholesome advice for Christian people. The minister needs it, the choir needs it, the officials need it, every man, woman needs it. The world should never be able to despise our Master by what they see in us. When our life brands our profession as anything but sincere then ought we to be despised.

To-night our boy may be [illegible] somehow may be hungry, your boy may be bleeding, mortally wounded, be dying, woman may even now be in "perfect peace," but let me say, if I have not been faithful to my King, I have been a coward," then not all the money of a Benedict Arnold could give that boy peace.

Sherwood Eddy, during the course of an address in Chicago last week, while speaking of the influence of Christianity in China, where he had seen the Governor of four hundred million people sign a subscription card agreeing to give $5,000 annually for Christian work, referred to his experience with another Governor whom he was trying to lead to Christ. In answer to his pleading the official said: "I would like my wife and sons to be Christians; there is so much that is new and beautiful and helpful in Christianity (he was a cultured man), but your own English-speaking people have made such a mess of Christianity, you know (here he referred to the opium traffic) that I do not know what to do.

What can we say to such an accusation?

We will be despised if we look to the world to help us in things spiritual. The speaker never tired reading of Nehemiah and Ezra, men of straight backbone, with the uplifted head and the clear eye, who refused to be enticed into the valley to take counsel with the world.

It is altogether out of the question to ask non-Christians to give us help to carry on Christian work. Instead of cringing before men, we should be able, as servant of God, to look into the face of any man and go on without fear or favour.

It was at this juncture that Mr. Webb alluded to the lamentable tragedy of the past week. Speaking of those who were responsible, he said: "When a young man is known to have ruined more than one young woman in our city, and when he is known to have played a prominent part in this terrible affair that has brought a pall over us, and when that man has had to leave the city on more than one occasion, to escape justice, then if a church, or society, shields him we are letting men despise the cause of Christ."

Many people are saying that he ought to be convicted, but, knowing the law in the case, the speaker was of the opinion that he could not be convicted, but in face of this, he ought to be exposed, embarrassed, every shred of evidence brought out before the citizens, so that he would cease his deviltry.

Parents may blame you if you embarrass him, his friends may criticise you, his cronies may tremble, but no one will despise. Instead every citizen will honour the man who tries even though he fails. We would not say this if it were his first offence, but when it is his third, or perhaps his fiftieth, then it would be the kindest thing to do to that young man, and in after years he would say, "It was good for me to have been exposed."

Christ is the bride of the Church. We must see that the world never witnesses us dragging her garments in the dust.

"He is despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief: and we hid, as it were, our faces from him; he was despised, and we esteemed him not. Surely he hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows: yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted. But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed."

"DIVINITY OF CHRIST" SUBJECT of Elder Johnston's Address in Woodmen's Hall Last Evening

The subject delivered in Woodmen Hall last night was one of special interest to every individual. Taking for his text Romans 1:3, 4, Elder Johnston spoke for an hour on the dual nature of Christ. Christ, he declared, was essentially divine, and if Christ were not divine what made Him the Saviour more than any mortal man? The conclusion is inevitable, for Christ to be our Saviour, He must of necessity be divine. But what made Him divine the elder enquired? It could not be merely because His character was perfect. Job was perfect so the record declares in Job. 1:1, and other individuals are spoken of as perfect. Thus if a perfect character were the only qualification then Job could have been Saviour just as much as Jesus Christ. From this it becomes clear that there must be something else that made Him the Christ. What was it Mr. Johnston enquired? There is only one answer. Christ was God the Son made flesh. That Christ was really God that was clothed with human nature is evident, from the following plain declarations of Scripture. Matt. 1:23 says He was God. God the Father called Christ by the name "God" as proven in Heb. 1:8. The Father told angels to worship Christ Cer. 6, an act which would be idolatrous were Christ but a human being. He was born of the Holy Ghost. Matt. 1:18-20, therefore had no human father. Yea and not only this, but this same Jesus Christ is shown to have all the attributes that belong to God the Father. Thus the Bible declares Him to be the Creator. Coll. 1:14-17, a nd to have an existence contemporaneous with God the Father. John 17:5 and John 1:1-8, 14. His power was the same that His Father possessed for He said that "All power was given unto Me in heaven and in earth." Matt. 28:18.

But notice the elder said, though possessing all power yet He never once used His own power for Himself and had He in one instance used His own divine power for Himself, He would have destroyed His identity with man. Thus having pledged Himself not to use His own power He therefore became dependent on the Father, prayed to Him as we do and thus in all things became like one of us. Heb. 2:17. Thus He who was rich for our sakes became poor that we, through His poverty, might become rich. He who was the Son of God, became the despised and rejected Nazarene. He who was the author of life, became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross.

Mr. Johnston then explained why it was, that Christ did not come in sinful flesh till four thousand years of earth's history had gone. He declared that human nature when man had first sinned had not gone to its lowest as it did at a later date, and if Christ had taken it then He would never have known how to sympathize with those who would fall still lower in the scale. Therefore it became necessary for the Son of God to wait, and having taken upon Him human nature in its lowest form, He could then overcome all the sin peculiar to all fallen human beings. And, He did overcome and became perfect through suffering. The body was prepared and was afterward sacrificed. The way was thus opened for all human beings, and Christ ever since has been an advocate for man. A goodly number were present and listened with much interest.

IN REGARD TO REPORT OF FUNERAL OF DR. BROWN

In regard to the following letter from Rev. R. G. Peever, and the article below it on this morning's meeting of the Ministerial Association it might be said that the article to which objection is taken, was written and contributed to the local papers by a citizen not connected with them in any way:

Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In justice to myself, I feel that your report in Saturday's issue on the funeral service of the late Dr. Brown, should call forth from me a brief statement in reply.

I made practically no reference to the life, character and tragic death of the deceased, neither to the inquest decision. I stated that the sad occasion necessarily called for silence on my part. I tried to have a comforting service by reading simply Scriptural selections, briefly encouraging the bereaved family and friends to find in God, strength, hope ond comfort to face the present and future, and then concluded with prayer.

Yours truly,
R. G. PEEVER.

Ministerial Association.

The Ministerial Association met this morning in the Y.M.C.A. parlour. Rev. Robert Pogue read a paper on the Christian Ministry and the Social Order from Rev. Dr. McFarlane's recent book. A very interesting discussion followed.

In the transaction of routine business great regret was expressed that it was possible for anything to occur in our city which is so manifestly unfair to the ministry as the item which was published on Saturday in two newspapers in connection with the funeral of the late Dr. Brown. While the utmost sympathy is felt for the bereaved family it was deplored that the city newspapers published a lengthy obituary, which put upon the lips of one of our ministers statements which he did not express, and which would lead a casual reader to believe that the minister was of the opinion that the jury had brought in a mistaken verdict and the hope was expressed that whether the article was written by one of the reporting staff or an outside contributor, that the newspapers would let the public know who was responsible for its preparation, thus freeing the minister, who while trying to conduct a suitable funeral service, made no personal references.

Press Bureau Criticized

Lord Selborne Charges British Censor With Foolish Optimism.

LONDON, March 8. — Lord Selborne, in a letter to The Times on "Foolish Optimism," protests that the Press Bureau "consistently slurs over bad news and exaggerates good news." Frequently, lately we have seen a roll of casualties of a battalion in Flanders amounting to 200, 300 or 400 men, or even to half the battalion. These casualties took place in February, January, or December, but who can recollect that at the time he received any impression of such loss by the news published?

"My own belief is that at the very least there are many months of cruel war before us, and that we have need of every effort which every civilian in the United Kingdom can make as well as of every effort of the seamen in the fleet and that by far the greatest danger which now confronts us is, lest slackness in the United Kingdom from whatever cause arising, should protract the war many months beyond the time at which it could otherwise be finished."

ECZEMA AND SORE EYES.

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mr. H. W. Lear, Port Planford, Nfld. "The child was in a bad state and suffered greatly. The doctor failed to help her, and on recommendation of a friend I used Dr. Chase's Ointment, which made a complete cure. With a grateful heart I write you this letter."

Italy's Course Is Settled

She Can No Longer Stay Out of the War Says Italian Paper

ROME, March 8.—(Via Paris.)—The Giornale d'Italia, which, although it is not the official Government organ, represents the political majority supporting the Cabinet, in an editorial argues that it will be difficult for Italy longer to remain neutral, declaring that the attack by the allied fleet on the Dardanelles has brought up three great problems affecting Italian interests.

"The future of these problems," the newspaper says, "is the new rule to allow Russia access to the Mediterranean through the Dardanelles, the second concerns the equilibrium of the Balkans, and, the third, the partition of Asiatic Turkey, which affects the equilibrium of the eastern Mediterranean."

A despatch from [illegible] quotes The Vorwaerts [illegible] as saying that the [illegible] between Austria and Italy must not be allowed to end in open conflict.

Germany has risked everything for Austria," it says, "and has the right to demand that Germany's interests and political necessities be brought to a successful solution first as having more weight and involving greater moral considerations.

An editorial Saturday in The Taeglishe Rundschau undoubtedly represents the view of an influential section of the German public. This view is that it might be advisable for Austria to cede to Italy the Province of Trent and a narrow strip west of the Isonzo river, which flows to the Gulf of Trieste. The advocates of this policy, however, believe that Austria should be supported in a refusal to surrender Trieste, even though such refusal should be at the price of making impossible a peaceful settlement.

Military News

WAIT TILL HE GETS HOME.

(Mail and Empire)

One of the recruits with the first contingent, who promised to send half his pay to his wife, had been remitting a certain sum regularly each month for some time. His wife, learning from a friend that a more convenient plan would be for her "man" to leave half his pay with the paymaster and have it sent through official channels, as was done in other cases, ordered her husband to follow this course.

A day or two ago she received the first remittance under the new plan from Ottawa. When she opened the envelope she found $16. She looked at the money and her face clouded over. "What's the matter; ain't it right?" asked a friend who was present.

"It isn't that it's not right," said the woman, "but all along he's been telling me his pay was only $20 a month. Wait till he gets home! If the Germans don't kill him, I will."

KING CONSTANCE TRYING TO PREVENT NATION ENTERING WAR

LONDON, March 8. — Greece apparently is at the parting of the ways with her king exerting his influence to maintain the neutrality of his country in opposition to Eleutherios Venizelos, the retiring Premier and the man to whom Greece owes her revival.

The report of the resignation of the Greek Premier, M. Venizelos, and his entire Cabinet, owing to the Cabinet's dissent from the crown's policy of neutrality, has fallen like a thunderbolt in Rome, where it is interpreted as presaging the intervention of Greece in the war.

The king's attitude is attributed in some quarters to Queen Sophia, who is the sister of the German Emperor.

A despatch to the Havas Agency at Paris from Athens says the newspapers there consider as certain the intervention of Greece in the European conflict. Several opinions are expressed with regard to the extent of Greece's co-operation with the allies.

A despatch from Geneva says all the Greek army officers in Switzerland were recalled Saturday. Othe: Greeks of a military age must presen themselves at the office of the consul-general in Geneva before March 11. The opinion is expressed by many at Geneva that there is to be a general mobilization of the Greek army.

Telegraphing from Athens The Exchange Telegraph correspondent says that the university students in the Greek capital made a demonstration in favor of immediate action by Greece. The legations of the triple entente powers was visited by the students and cheered.

M. Venizelos Saturday announced the resignation of himself and his Cabinet, as King Constantine did not approve the policy of the Government. Yesterday in the Chamber of Deputies M. Venizelos clearly indicated that the difference between him and the monarch was over the question of peace and war. He said he had advised the king to select as a new Premier M. Zaimis, governor of the National Bank, who, he said, "will follow a policy of neutrality which I hope will not endanger our newly-acquired territory."

A Grand Council of Ministers was held at Athens yesterday under the presidency of King Constantine, and as Venizelos was leaving the palace at its conclusion he was acclaimed by the populace.

King Constantine won great popularity by the successful manner in which he led the last two Balkan wars. This popularity, however, he shared with M. Venizelos, to whose diplomacy in the conference following the war Greece is said to owe her success and whose organization was largely responsible for her ability to fight as she did. The retiring Premier also was the moving spirit in the Balkan alliance which united the Balkan states against Turkey.

There seems to be some doubt whether the deputies will follow any other leader than Venizelos. M. Zaimis, who has been requested by the king to form a new Ministry, requested 24 hours in which to consider the matter.

A despatch to the Havas Agency from Athens, says:

"The Turkish Minister to Greece, Salieh Bey, has declared openly during the last few days, that massacres would take place in Turkey if Greece broke with the Porte, while Count Mirbach, the German Minister, informed the diplomatic corps that Austria and Germany would immediately declare war on Greece the day that Greece moved against Turkey."

TURKS WILL LEAVE DEFENCE OF CAPITAL TO THE GERMANS

Big Fortresses Are Reported to Have Been Under Fire of "Queen Elizabeth" in Gulf of Saros While French Vessels Carry on Operations Against the Dardanns Stronghold.

LONDON, March 8. — "According to the latest advices received here," says a Reuter despatch from Sofia, "the Sultan and the Government are still in Constantinople. The Government is prepared to cross to Asia Minor at any moment, but the Sultan is in favor of remaining in the capital.

"It is understood that it has been decided to entrust the defence of Constantinople exclusively to the Germans, under command of Gen. Liman von Sanders, the instructor of the Turkish army, while Bedri Bey, the prefect of police, will be invested with the general control of the city, with powers equivalent to those of a viceroy.

"Measures of precaution already have been adopted to prevent the capture of the city. It is reported that all the troops at Adrianople and Demotica have been hurriedly despatched to the Gallipoli Peninsula."

The bombardment of the Dardanelles was continued Saturday by the allied fleet, according to an official statement issued in Paris last night. The communication says:

"The British battleship Queen Elizabeth, posted in the Gulf of Saros, bombarded by indirect fire two big works on the Asiatic side, alongside of Chanak, and defending the straits (forts Hamidieh and Hamidieh 3 Sultanieh).

The British battleships Queen Elizabeth and Prince George and the battle cruiser Inflexible, with their eight 15-inch guns and an even dozen 12-inch guns, on Friday opened an attack on the principal forts on the European side of the narrows in the Dardanelles. Two of the forts were damaged and the magazine of a third was blown up. These forts which guard the narrowest part of the straits from the European side, are believed to be the strongest along the entire waterway, although those on the opposite side of the narrows almost equal them.

One of these forts, marked on the Admiralty maps as L, is armed with two 14-inch guns that could hardly reach the Queen Elizabeth, which fired 29 rounds from her 15-inch weapons by indirect fire and had the advantage of aeroplanes to direct her gunners. The other two forts were armed with three 11-inch guns and some smaller cannon.

Meantime lighter cruisers continue attacks on the forts along the coast of Asia Minor, from Besika, which is near the entrance to the Dardanelles, to Smyrna, doubtless with a view of preventing reinforcements being sent to the straits, where there already are a large number of Turkish troops with whom the marines who were landed to complete the destruction of the forts at the entrance to the straits have been in contact. It was in this land fighting that the allies suffered casualties, according to the British report, of 19 killed, 23 wounded and three missing.

Saturday night's official despatch from the Admiralty disclosed that the East Indies fleet under Vice-Admiral Sir Richard Peirse, who is flying his flag on the Euryalus, has joined the allied fleet and that he undertook the bombardment of the fortifications of Smyrna, which were seriously damaged.

AMATEUR GARDENING

(By One Who Has Tried It)

Editor Examiner:

To-night we listened to several short addresses by expert gardeners and poultrymen and several long ones by lawyers.

The Honorable Justice's speech was a most inspiring one. He could have talked three times as long and no one could have gone away while he was speaking. It is a shame and an insult that a man of his calibre should have to speak on "Patriotism" at this time to so small an audience, and especially to an audience which, in the nature of things, must mostly remain non-combatants. It does not well contrast with the time, a few years ago, in another country the largest halls were filled with cheering multitudes at a similar time and when whole regiments enlisted. There were more young men of a soldiers age to-night loafing on the street than almost the entire audience of old men and women, for the most part that listened to the judge. I, although a person of foreign birth, am ashamed for this city.

What I wish to write about is gardening. I think that I am one of the men doing as much, if not more, than any one else in Peterborough as an amateur gardener, and perhaps my last year's experience may be one of benefit. I worked last year, with my family, two acres of garden land. This was all done after working hours. It was on the river bank and on very expensive land. The result was I raised more stuff than a large family could eat all winter and have stuff now in the cellar that I have been unable to give away and it is rotting in the cellar.

You may think that I consider it a profitable experiment. I do not. I could have bought enough vegetables for the most of the seed I planted to have supplied my family an entire year. There was a time last fall that you could not sell or give away garden stuff including potatoes.

Now last year when there seemed no need of raising much stuff I was offered loans to finance much larger operations. This was after what I had done was inspected by the one with the money who by the way was a Canadian. Now this year, when everyone is yelling more production, I cannot get money enough to buy seeds and have had to send to the ——— for the same. This was all after I had offered the land as security. It is all clear and paid. I may not be telling this exactly, but that was the net result.

Now then to do good gardening and not lose more than you get, certain things are essential. Back yards will not net you the cost of the seeds 5 times out of ten. Why? Things will not grow in the shade. You must have clear, open to the sun land. The land must be fertile or made so by manures. You can hardly make any garden pay the first year if you have to heavily manure it. You must have the tools to work it and the money to get them and the seeds. The greatest need is that the poor and unemployed should garden. How can he? There are probably 200 men and families that would run gardens if they had the land and the money to buy tools and seeds. There are some that could run places of an acre or more if they could, get these essentials. Can they get it. I have searched all around Peterborough to get a place that would be reasonable in price and in reaching distance of my work. Did I get it? Yes, and it cost $1200 an acre. Could I have rented a place or made any other arrangement where I would have been sure of not getting kicked off at will? I found nothing suitable.

I do not know of any suitable area near Peterborough that the working men of Peterborough can work at a profit the first year. This means that they must manure and get the weeds out the first year. Obviously they cannot do this unless they can buy the land or tie it up for two or three years. Men out of work cannot buy land. Men at work cannot afford to buy much at the prices asked.

There is another phase. Last year I tried to hire men at $2 a day to work on my garden for a week or so. Never a man came along the road looking for work, save one, he wanted to work long enough to get money to get the ———. Several promised to come but they came not. I have a couple whom I have been helping this winter who say that they will be on hand this summer and I think they will. I say THINK.

It is curious that although there were several large amateur gardens running last year in this city and there will be more this year, that not a single one of the men who spent their time and money and are going to spend more this year were on the platform this night and that when one of them went up and tried to talk to the Dominion Expert a couple of lawyers butted in and took all the time.

Anyone interested in gardening, come along the Otonabee north bank in a couple of months and see how real money and work being spent in something beside talk. I say talk. This is because there has been nothing but talk telling what the poor man ought to do but nothing, effective, offered so that he can get to work.

In my opinion it is a dream that you can do much real work at gardening to relieve distress and shortages, until there is a scheme whereby the workers can get on the land for a series of years and have access to permanent loans to get them going. There is nothing but loss in attempting to work worn out land for one year. If you do not manure heavily and work hard you will not get your money back the first year, and if you do manure you will have the land for at least two years or you will surely lose. The ordinary coarse feed that you can raise on soil around here will not allow you to run any risk. At harvest time the vegetables are so cheap that any man with money enough to buy seeds and manure and tools can lay in his winter supply at half the cost of running a garden and at little or no work. I have learned this from several bitter experiences.

As a health getter and retainer, gardening has them all beat, but as a business proposition for a working man it is a joke on rented or high priced land and for a man out of work it is almost an impossibility.

It would be a profitable venture for all classes if we could get the land, get on it and get started. That is the real gardening problem. Anyone can raise good, profitable crops on rich land which they own or can reasonably hold for a number of years. The first year is generally a loss and it requires several years to get a dependable profit. It will not help Canada one bit to raise crops that cost more to raise than they are worth.

The reason that small farms are so profitable in Europe is that a man can get a small loan and the land anytime he wishes to start.

Here, just now, he can get neither the land nor the loan on any terms save those that make it a profitless venture.

There is waste land enough near Peterborough, that with manure or other fertilizers that in several years would feed a large percentage of the population, but whoever tries it for a year will surely lose what money he puts in unless some one makes him a present of a fertile piece of land to work. If the people out of work can be put on small pieces of fertile land and be supplied with tools and seeds, go to it. If you have to buy worn out land, rent worn out land or garden, the ordinary back yard, give your money to the empire or otherwise you might as well throw half of it in the river.

I do not wish to throw cold water on any feasible scheme, but [illegible] practicable method is evolved quickly of getting the people started, this gardening business will be a boom this year and a bust next.

If anyone wants to do real good, let them give the land, in small plots, for a reasonable time, and loan the tenants enough to buy seeds and manures and get them started. I think that there are several plots that would do. I will give the seeds, a piece of land for a year, heavily manured and the seeds to any suitable person that will help me a little in labour on my big piece. The plot is 30 feet by 180 feet and within less than a mile of the car line. This is the best scheme that I can think of to help.

Yours truly,

"Experimenta Docet."

forts that will be sent to the soldiers by the ladies, later on.

Major Medd expressed the thanks of the officers and men of B Squadron to the members of the Women's War Fund Committee for their great kindness in arranging a farewell supper and for the gifts which had been presented. If anything had been needed to bring pleasant memories of Peterborough, the action of the Committee had supplied that need. One of the Squadron called for three cheers for the ladies and the response made the dishes rattle.

Addresses Were Given.

The Squadron then marched down to the main hall and were drawn up in troop column in front of an improvised platform, from which a number of short speeches were given. By this time the members of the 39th Battalion and the Home Guard had fallen in while the citizens generally crowded the Armouries. So big was the crowd that the speakers had difficulty in making their voices carry to those on the outside fringe.

Lieut.-Col. Johnston, O. C. the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, and Recruiting Officer for B Squadron, 8th C. M. R., presided, and was the first speaker. He congratulated the members of the Squadron upon their splendid conduct, both on and off parade, and thanked them for the assistance they had rendered him in his duties as recruiting officer. His one regret was that he could not accompany them. He had volunteered his services, but the fates were not kind to him, and he was unable to go. However, he hoped to be able to follow them later on.

Lt.-Col. Johnston got a great reception from the men of the Squadron, and when he finished speaking, was given a round of cheers that made the rafters vibrate.

Rev. Jas. Rollins, President of the Ministerial Association, spoke on behalf of that body, congratulating the men on their conduct and appearance, and expressing the hope that they would soon be able to return to their homes.

The Civic Greetings.

Mayor Buller tendered the Civic greetings. Peterborough was proud of her contribution to the Mounted Rifles, he informed the Squadron, and the hearts of the citizens would always be with them. He wanted the members to feel that while they were away their loved ones at home would be carefully looked after.

Lt.-Col. A. Stevenson, former Commanding Officer of the 57th Regiment, paid a tribute to the bearing and appearance of the men of B Squadron. They had behaved splendidly at home and he was sure that they would bring similar credit on themselves and the city they represented when they reached the firing line. Speaking of the 57th Regiment, he said that organization was proud of the Mounted Rifles.

Major Medd, who was enthusiastically cheered when he was called upon to speak, replied briefly on behalf of the Squadron, thanking the speakers for their kind reference to himself and his men, and again expressing their thanks to the ladies of the Women's War Fund Committee.

An Impressive Service.

Hon. Major Rev. Canon Davidson, Chaplain of the 57th Regiment, then took charge of the proceedings, and conducted a brief, but most impressive service. The gathering sang a verse of "Fight the Good Fight," and prayers were offered for the King and those in authority, the soldiers and sailors of the Empire, and especially prayers for the members of B Squadron. Then soldiers and citizens reverently repeated the Lord's Prayer, after which the departing soldiers pronounced the words of the benediction. "God Save the King" was heartily sung, and with Major Davidson's striking admonition: "Men of the Mounted Rifles, go forth to the duty upon which you are called," the solemn service was brought to a close.

The pent-up feelings of the crowd found a vent in three thundering cheers for the King, followed by another round equally as loud for B Squadron.

The Triumphal Procession.

Then the procession to the station was formed and at 9.40 the parade started.

First came the Band of the 57th Regiment with Lieut. Gliddon in charge. Mayor Buller, the aldermen, a number of the City officials and other well-known citizens marched next in line. Then came B Squadron, spic and span, in their new khaki service uniforms, and marching like veterans. The Bugle Band of the 57th Regiment was next, and behind them was the 57th's detachment to the 39th Overseas Battalion. The turnout was voluntary on the part of the men, but so eager were they to honour their brothers of the Third Contingent that the company was out full strength and marched and looked well in their black great coats. Following the infantry was the Temple Band, leading some 450 members of the Home Guard. Altogether there were over 800 men in the procession.

When George Street was reached it was seen that the city had turned out en masse for the occasion. The city's main artery was black with people so eager to honour the departing soldiers that they refused to remain on the sidewalks and crowded out on to the road on both sides. The result was that when the parade swung down street, headed by the 57th Band playing that stirring march of South African war days "The Soldiers of the King," the procession had to pass down a narrow lane, lined with cheering humanity. From the Y.M.C.A. corner to the station there were crowds everywhere, and round after round of cheers were given.

Huge Crowd at the Station.

It seemed surely as if all the people of Peterborough were on George Street, but when the station was reached it was found that the platform was packed with a surging crowd. The police, aided by a company of the Home Guards, detailed for that duty, managed to keep a path open along the edge of the platform until the soldiers reached their car which were waiting when they reached the station. As the khaki-clad men climbed into the cars and opened the windows the crowd swept down the platform in irresistible mass, eager to get a last glimpse at or a last handshake from the soldier laddies. The crush was terrific, and several women fainted in the crowd and were with difficulty carried into the waiting room. There were many tear-dimmed eyes as mothers, wives, and sweethearts waved a last goodbye over the heads of the crowd at soldier loved ones. Some of the men found an opportunity for a last goodbye in the waiting room where there were some sad scenes. Many women, who had held up bravely until the last moment, wept unrestrainedly as the train began to pull out. There was a suspicious moisture in the eyes of many of the squadron that showed that they, too, were moved by the leave-taking.

With one last outburst of cheering from the crowd that was answered by a roar from the soldiers, the train gathered momentum slowly and steamed out of the station with the Mounted Rifles waving their caps as long as they were in sight. Their last recollection of Peterborough would be that of a densely crowded station platform with a sea of faces and a chorus of fervent "good-byes."

A special train of four colonist coaches for the men, a sleeping car for the officers and a baggage car, carried the Squadron to Ottawa. There was plenty of accommodation, and the trip undoubtedly was a comfortable, if a somewhat tedious one.

Broke Her Arm Sleigh-riding

Miss Pearl Jopling, of Bridgenorth Met With Accident Ice Boating on Chemong Lake

Ice on Chemong Lake is still fit for travel. It never was better this winter.

Some of the boys in the village are having a fine time ice-boating. Some are fishing and some good catches are reported.

Some of the farmers are looking for hired help. The saw-mill not running this summer men will be able to find work on the farms.

Miss Pearl Jopling had the misfortune of breaking her arm on Saturday night. She and some of the other girls went out for a sleigh-ride down the hill towards the lake. The sleigh run off the road which was very icy, and the result was a broken arm. Dr. Kelley was called in and set the fracture.

The roads are beginning to get bare in places, and the snow is four feet deep in other places, but the Deputy Reeve is attending to the roads and no doubt they will be all right.

The young men of the Methodist Church intend giving a concert in the church on Thursday night, March 11th. A good time is expected. Come and have a good laugh.

ITALIAN ON TRIAL ON A CHARGE OF THEFT

MUCH EVIDENCE HEARD

Pancrezio D'Ermelgildo, an Italian, came before Magistrate Dumble this morning on a charge of having stolen or taken the sum of $160.00 on Oct. 1, 1914, from Leonardo Capone, another Italian, a resident of this city, living on Victoria Avenue. He was arrested in Welland, Ont., and brought to Peterborough by Detective Newhall on Feb. 27.

Mr. G. W. Hatton is acting for the Crown and Mr. Widdifield, of Messrs Gordon and Widdifield, for the prisoner. Mr. Minecola is official court interpreter.

The Italian citizens turned out en masse this morning and the police court was filled with representatives of "Sunny Italy," who followed the case with interest.

Plaintiff's Story.

Leonard Capone, the man who lost the money, was the first witness called. His story was that the prisoner had been rooming at his home for four months and boarded himself. He left Oct. 1 about 8 a.m. On that date prisoner got up the same time as everyone else and shaved. He had work at that time and worked half of the day before.

Capone left at 6:30 a.m. for his work at the waterworks, where the prisoner was also employed. He had $160 in a pocket book in a wooden box under the bed, where he and his boy slept. The box was locked and he (Capone) carried the key to work with him. Capone took the money from Mr. N. Minecola about Sept. 10 or 12 and brought it home, and everyone in the house knew it was there, though prisoner did not see the money or see it put away.

The morning of Oct. 1 was the last time he saw the money. He went to look at it before leaving for work. When he came home at night he found the prisoner gone from his house. He had to go and see the doctor that night and wanted some money, therefore went to see if the money was there. He found it gone, also the pocketbook. He never saw the prisoner again until a week ago last Saturday night in the police station. He did not have anything to say to him.

The empty pocket book was produced by Capone in court. His son-in-law and a brother gave it to him on Oct. 1. When he got home at night he found a couple of envelopes with some writing. On one was, "I leave you with best rewards to send after friends and relatives. Will see you in New York." He could not write. Neither could anyone else in the house, excepting the prisoner.

Asked to Drop Case.

August Scarizzi had asked him if he would drop the case if he got his money. He had said that if he got his money he would let the case drop. The question was asked the day prisoner was brought back to town. Two other Italians were present and they heard what was said.

Capone had been in the habit of taking the money with him to work, but this son was going to be home because he was sick and he thought he would leave it there. That was the first and only day he had left it at home. It was his custom to put it in the box at night and take it out in the morning, putting the key in his pocket.

All Lived Upstairs.

To Mr. Widdifield witness said they all lived upstairs. The prisoner and one son of Capone lived in one room together and slept together. This son's name was Phillipo. Another son slept with Capone.

One son of Capone had been in jail a month for stealing a shirt from Jay's. Phillipo was the son and he did not go to work that morning until 8 o'clock. There was only $159 in the purse and he was accusing prisoner of stealing $160.

When he got home at night the lock had been pulled out. He noticed that something was wrong with the lock as soon as he looked at it. The house was left vacant when he left every morning.

Mr. Hatton elicited the information that a daughter was left in charge of the house and did the housework.

Did Not Draw Pay.

Mr. John Meharry, the next witness, was foreman for the waterworks during the season 1914. The prisoner was working there from some time in May, leaving Sept. 30 at noon. There was pay coming for 9 days and 2 hours at 32 cents an hour. He could have got this money Oct. 1. It would have been paid by cheque to the prisoner. The prisoner was not there Oct. 1 to get his cheque. After about a week he sent it back to the office.

To Mr. Widdifield witness said prisoner was a good worker, and as far as he knew his conduct was all right.

In Room Alone.

The daughter of Leonardo Capone was called. She kept house for her father. She saw the prisoner about 3 o'clock in the morning of Oct. 1. He did not have his breakfast at that time.

The son, Donato, who slept with the father, was sick. His feet were scalded. He was seventeen years of age.

Donato got up and put his feet in vinegar as prescribed by the prisoner. Prisoner came downstairs with Donato and then went upstairs again. She heard a noise upstairs but did not pay any attention to it. Before Donato came downstairs she heard him crying. She heard him say, "Go away, let me alone; I am not feeling well. I do not want to get up." There were just the two upstairs. They came down together. The prisoner would be upstairs about twenty minutes alone. He was dressed in a new suit of blue clothes. He was always in the habit of bidding the children good-bye in the morning, but that time he did not bid anybody good-bye. The prisoner asked her about his collar.

DEATH IN THE TORONTO CAMP

TORONTO, March 8.—The third death from spinal meningitis occurred at the exhibition camp of the 2nd contingent to-day. The victim was Pte. Frank Isaac, 18, of the Twentieth Battalion, next of kin, Peter Isaac, Brantford. Pte. Isaac enlisted at Brantford. He was a Six Nations Indian.

$200,000,000 WORTH OF SHIPS

TORONTO, March 8.—At least two hundred million dollars worth of warships are battering their way towards Constantinople. The British ships mentioned in the despatches as bombarding the Dardanelles so far number sixteen, nearly all large vessels, and the cost of the lot was approximately eighty-five million dollars. In addition to these there is a large fleet of smaller vessels. Britain's investment as represented at the Dardanelles must surely be one hundrd and fifteen million dollars. With smaller ships, France must have thirty-five million dollars worth there or thereabout. The old Russian cruiser Askold, which has joined the allied fleet, may be considered as "thrown in for good measure." This would leave the value of the allied ships at one hundred and fifty million dollars. But besides this Russia's Black Sea fleet is on the way to attack Constantinople from the Bosphorus side, and if it really includes Russia't newly built super-dreadnoughts, it is a fifty million dollar fleet, without counting the smaller units.

BOOTS ARE CONDEMNED

OTTAWA, March 8.—A close examination of over a score of reports received by the Department of Militia from boards appointed by divisional headquarters in various parts of Canada, to enquire into the boots supplied to the soldiers of the second contingent fails to find anything but condemnation of the boots examined. In every case the reports are unanimous in finding that the boots were defective both in quality and workmanship, and in recommendation that a new issue be made at the public expense. Not a single exception to the finding can be found. The summing up of one board held in Montreal is as follows:

1—Boots have cracked and split across the soles.

2—Whole layers have separated from the soles and come off, due to defective stitching.

3—Stitching and fitting of the uppers to the main parts of boots have been carelessly done in most cases forming ridges within, which cause sore feet.

4—Stiffening of the heels has been proven too hard and has caused sore heels in a great many cases.

5—The leather has proved very porous and allowed the water to penetrate freely. That the above conditions have not resulted from long or severe wear is indicated for instance from the evidence of Pte. G. Hunt, given before the board in question.

Nominal Fine Was Imposed

Upon Two Youths Who Staged a Little Donnybrook in Ennismore

Dennis Perdue, charged with assaulting Patrick Murray and Edward Perdue charged with a similar offence against Michael Perdue, all of Ennismore, were each fined one dollar and costs, in the County Police Court this morning. Defendants who were represented by Mr. F. D. Kerr, pleaded guilty and gave verbal assurance that there would not be a repetition of the affair. The assault is alleged to have taken place on Wednesday, February 24th. Evidence was not heard as both parties to the proceedings through their legal representatives agreed to the settlement that was effected prior to the opening of the court.

Mr. G. N. Gordon appearing as private prosecutor for the complainants, asked for a nominal fine, costs in the case and assurance that there would be no repetition of the offence. To this Mr. F. D. Kerr agreed, adding that the youngest of his clients had enlisted in the third contingent and any further fighting would be done in Germany.

"There is no law against that," observed Mr. Gordon.

County Police Magistrate Langley imposed a nominal fine of one dollar and costs.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

VICS. TIE MELVILLE AND ARE SUSPENDED BY O. H. A. EXECUTIVE

MELVILLE, Sask., March 6.—Playing whirlwind hockey all the way, the Toronto Victorias, winners of the O.H.A., senior series and the first contenders for the Allan Cup, held the Melville team to an 8-to-8 tie in the first game of the series played here to-night. Victorias led at half-time by the score of 5 to 3.

Sensational work by the Mackenzie brothers was the feature of the game, as time after time either Harry or his brother "Billy" brought the spectators to their feet with dazzling end-to-end rushes. The work of Gordon Meeking at centre for the Toronto team was a revelation to the Melville fans. He was always in front of the net, and netted seven of the eight goals scored by his side. The Melville players, man for man, were faster than the Toronto team.

In the opening portion of the second half Melville cut loose with a rally that swept the Toronto players off their feet, and it was only the steady work of McGiffin in goal that stopped them from piling up a big lead in this part of the game. The Melville team, however, faded, and on towards the finish of the game it was the Toronto players who were taking the initiative. With only two minutes to go, Gordon Meeking netted the puck, making the score 8 to 7 in favour of Toronto. At this stage it looked as if they must win the game, but the Melville team, [illegible] the brilliant Mackenzie brothers, came back with the necessary [illegible] just before the final bell rang.

The game was played under Western rules, which seemed to bother the Toronto players somewhat. The line-up:

Have Been Suspended.

Victorias, senior champions of the O.H.A., by playing against Melville Saturday night for the Allan Cup against the wishes of their parent body, automatically suspended themselves in so doing, and are therefore out of amateur hockey so far as the O.H.A. is concerned.

The O.H.A. yesterday notified the Canadian Hockey Association and the Saskatchewan Hockey Association that they had withdrawn their challenge for the Allan Cup. This action makes the situation worse than ever for the Vics, for with the challenge withdrawn, where is the Toronto Club going to get their expenses for their trip to Melville.

There is no doubt but that the Canadian Hockey Association promised the Victorias protection if they went to Melville and played for the Allan Cup, and therefore with the O.H.A. withdrawing the Allan Cup challenge it is up to the Canadian Hockey Association to adjust matters.

The O.H.A. claimed that Mackenzie brothers and D'Arcy Smith were the eligible under the three months' rule of the Dominion Hockey Association. This question was discussed thoroughly about two months ago by the leaders of the Dominion body and it was decided that owing to the association not being formed after the players in question had taken up their residence at Melville, the Saskatchewan Hockey Association was the only body to prevent them from playing in Saskatchewan. The Western [illegible] asked to hold an investigation meeting in regard to the matter; this was done, and it was decided that the three players were eligible to play for Melville. This decision was recognized as final.

The O.H.A. knew that Melville had won the championship of Saskatchewan and also the Allan Cup. Why did the O.H.A. then put in a challenge for the Allan Cup, when they knew all the facts concerning Mackenzie brothers and D'Arcy Smith. Why did the O.H.A. allow the Vics. to proceed to the West as challengers of the Allan Cup before they had received a definite and final answer from the Canadian Hockey Association? The O.H.A. erred in allowing Victorias to leave after the Allan Cup, as did the Vics in playing against the O.H.A.'s commands.

A CANADIAN MECHANICAL WORKSHOP ON WHEELS—NOW AT THE FRONT IN FRANCE.

Mr. Kenner Won Local Bonspiel In Close Contest With Doctor Wightman on Saturday Night

PRIMARY FINAL.

Dr. Wightman, skip ..... 0011021001000— 6

In as nice a game of curling as you would care to see, Mr. H. R. H. Kenner won the primary honours in the local bonspiel on Saturday night, when he defeated Dr. Wightman by the score of 13 to 6. Through the entire fourteen ends the contest resolved itself into a series of battles, and while the margin of the score looks a little wide, it does not indicate the closeness of the game up to the very last end. Mr. Kenner won beyond all question of a fluke, a run of luck, or any other doubtful circumstance, but he knew he had been in a real curling engagement when the last stone had come to rest.

Mr. Kenner took an early lead, but the game was tied up on the fourth end two all. He counted three on the next end but the doctor hung on, and drew back even in the seventh when the score stood five apiece. Mr. Kenner cut loose again and counted on all the remaining ends but one. He played a splendid game throughout and made a number of difficult shots look mere trifles. He worked a running shot at times with unerring accuracy, and his draw shots were equally effective. There did not seem to be a weak spot in his game. On both the defensive and offensive he always had something in reserve. Dr. Wightman set up quite a number of dangerous looking ends, but they mostly went for naught. For instance on the sixth end, he had a five good stones, but one of his opponent's reduced the count to two. On another end, he lay three. Mr. Kenner raised one of his own stones with a beautiful shot and beat the doctor's three. And those are only two of the fourteen ends. Dr. Wightman showed the persistency of Von Hindenberg, but he no sooner prepared one situation than he had to go about another.

A surprising fact is that of all the skips who entered the contest, not one of them has curled less this winter than Mr. Kenner. He has had his share of the sport, but he wasn't everlastingly at it. Throughout the bonspiel he had to meet some of the best men in the club, and there is conclusiveness in the fact that in the semi-finals he defeated George Giroux, who dropped back into the consolation series and won it. H. R. H. certainly played a "topping" game Saturday night.

Mr. Kenner received good support from his ring. Norman Allison was his lead, Mr. Brownscombe played second stone and Michael Tooley was vice-skip. There is nothing very Scotch about Mr. Tooley, except his liking for the game. But to supply the deficiency he bought or borrowed a peaked tam which added a touch of local colour, and to further win the favour of the goddess of the game he tied a short piece of a pretty plaid silk ribbon to the handles of his stones. Evidently the votive offering was pleasing. Mr. Tooley had the range of the rings, especially during the last seven ends, and helped materially in taking the last four. Michael appeared quite satisfied with his skip and colleagues, not excepting himself, and as he placed a succession of clean shots one gathered that he was hard put to repress himself within the bounds of the dignity of the game. But Mr. Tooley has been playing for some time now, and has pretty well absorbed the Scotch atmosphere of the game. An amusing incident near the end amused the numerous gallery. Mr. Tooley had made a number of good shots, and finally Mr. Kenner called for a draw to the button through a narrow and oblique port on the inner ring. You couldn't tell whether Michael shut his eyes and trusted to luck or not. But his stone covered a big curved arc and finally began to draw on toward the port. The gallery roared when the stone nosed its way right to the port and just fell short of passing through. A later shot made this stone a counter.

Mr. Brownscombe placed his stones well and seldom wasted one. Mr. Allison is one of the younger set, but he played a very creditable game.

Dr. Wightman and his rink have nothing to be ashamed of on their showing. They were in the game at all stages. The doctor handled his rink well and with a few "freaks" at critical stages might easily have turned the tables. His assistants were Alex. Kay as vice-skip, W. Padgett second, and W. J. Koster lead.

The Consolation.

George Giroux took the consolation finals from Tom Brightman by 12-6. In the afternoon Mr. Giroux defeated Mr. Neill by 10 to 8, and Mr. Brightman won from Mr. Harstone by the same score. The final by ends was as follows:

Brightman ..... 01101001001001— 6
Giroux ..... 10030101201201— 12

Up to the fifth end it was anybody's game, but from that stage Mr. Giroux gradually gained a wider lead until he made it safe.

The two rinks were composed of the following members of the club:

G. W. Fitzgerald	J. J. Murphy
Adam Hall	A. Davidson
A. Archibald	J. H. Knapman
Geo. Giroux, skip.	T. Brightman, skip.

The inter-rink games that have been running through the curling season should be completed this week. The following games will be played Friday:

At 4 p.m.—Taylor vs. Waddell.
To-night—
Brightman vs. McDermid.
Davidson vs. J. H. Ferguson.
Grear vs. Sturgeon.
Campbell vs. W. G. Ferguson.
Denham vs. Lang.
Foote vs. Hicks.

Five rinks are supposed to go to Toronto to-morrow and four to Bobcaygeon. It is not likely that the Vice-Skips' bonspiel will be played this season.

Notes on the Games.

In the winning of the bonspiel is a survival of the fittest. Mr. Kenner is well entitled to the presidency which he holds this year. That is if curling ability should be a qualification demanded of the first officer.

Walter Fitzgerald lead for Mr. Giroux played his first curling this winter. He has progressed rapidly and is playing a good game.

Alex. Archibald played a fine game as vice-skip for Mr. Giroux.

Mr. Kenner has a perfect curling average. He entered two contests and won both of them. On New Year's Day he won the President's game, defeating the Vice-President, and did not touch a stone until the local bonspiel began last week.

The bonspiel committee, of which Mr. Andy Webb is chairman, deserve much credit for the success of this week's sport. Everything went along without a hitch.

No better evidence of the fraternity of the game is found than the presence of Adam Hall, a veteran of the broom, and Walter Fitzgerald, a novice.

Come to think of it, the Club is bringing on quite a number of young fellows.

On one end Mr. Giroux had five stones with Mr. Brightman one left to play. Mr. Archibald counted them and looked at the score board. Along came the Brightman stone and cut the Giroux end down to two. "Never count your end until the last stone is played" was Mr. Giroux's advice to his vice-skip and to the amusement of the gallery.

BASKETBALL

A big crowd turned out to see two well-contested games of basketball at the "Y" on Saturday night, and they were well repaid, as both games proved fast and exciting. Capt. Richardson's Maple Leafs were downed by Heaslip's Hustlers, while the Excelsiors succeeded in flooring the De Laval. In the first fixture, between the Maple Leafs and Hustlers, the latter had things all their own way in the first half, as far as scoring was concerned but in the second half the Maple Leafs got going, and had the big end of the score, but could not overcome the lead. Every man on the Hustlers' team had a hand in the scoring and every man, but one, on the Maple Leafs succeeded in cazing one or more baskets. H. B. Cowan and Capt. Richardson, although carrying considerable cargo, showed that they were capable of as much speed as their allies, and competitors. Capt. Richardson was high scorer for his team while Capt. Heaslip and Bert Carruthers divided up the honours for the Hustlers. Final score, Hustlers 21, Maple Leafs 11.

Following is the line-up:

Maple Leafs — Horsefield, Cowan, Richardson, Dunsford, H. Flowers.

Hustlers — Heaslip, Carruthers, Jones, Lewis, Laing.

Referee, Carson; Scorer, Long; Timer, Thackeray.

Excelsior vs. De Laval was anybody's game right up till near the end. For the first half it was a see-saw, back and forth, first one team leading, then the other. Each team kept a close watch on the other, and kept the score down to 8—6 in favour of De Laval at the end of the first half.

In the second half the Excelsiors seemed to get more steam and gradually pulled away. Neither team had its regular line-up at work, and were not at full strength. The final score was Excelsiors 16, De Laval 8.

Following is the line-up:

Excelsiors— Long, Carruthers, Stuart, Darling, Cowan.

De Laval — Hamilton, Taylor, Downing, Heaslip, Flowers.

Referee, Ross Dobbin; scorer, Carson; timer, Thackeray.

REMEMBERED BY THEIR FRIENDS

Mr. and Mrs. John Hanbidge, of Otonabee, Given a Delightful Surprise

Some of the neighbours and friends of Mr. and Mrs. John Hanbridge, Otonabee, gave them a delightful surprise on the evening of Feb. 24th, when they gathered together to bid them farewell on the occasion of their leaving the neighbourhood.

During the evening they presented Mr. and Mrs. Hanbridge with two chairs, when the following address was read:

On this 24th of February
We are gathered here to-day,
To bid you all good-bye
Before you go away.

We, your many friends and neighbours,
With sympathy and respect,
Wish to tend to you our feelings
Of sorrow and regret.

It is not as if you had been
With us for some short stay,
But Mr. Hanbridge, without your presence
In our community,

We feel it is incomplete,
As you have lived here many a day
And have won many friends around you
By your ready and genial way.

Though Mrs. Hanbridge has been with us,
Since she became your wife;
She has taught us to respect her
During all her married life.

Her willingness to help us
In everything that was good,
And her sympathy and aid
To the sick in the neighbourhood

Has gained her many a friendship
Which will last for many a day;
And never fade from memory,
Even though she go away.

We're glad that in your leaving
We lose not all your race;
For you leave to use two sturdy sons
Who will somewhat fill your place.

The removal from our community
Of such old and time honoured friends,
Leaves a gap, which many a new one
Cannot make amends.

As an evidence of our good wishes
And a token of our esteem
We ask you to accept these chairs
A link, as it were, between

Yourselves and your old neighbours,
And we trust that you and your wife
Shall be spared to enjoy and occupy them
Many more years of your life.

Signed on behalf of the community.

Mr. and Mrs. Hanbridge were completely taken by surprise and found it difficult to express their appreciation of the kindness shown them.

A very pleasant evening was spent after which refreshments were served. —Com.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

HOW LONG?

To the Editor—Sir, I saw in the press last Saturday, an elegant notice of the funeral of Dr. Brown. His great virtues were set up as an example for us to follow, and it was also said that the tributes of flowers was so many that they had to have a separate carriage to contain them. Such floral tributes always seem to me to be a touching evidence of the forgiving nature of human nature—but, my God! where were the flowers for the friendless orphan, Helen Brown, who was the victim of a double crime committed by somebody? The poor girl went to her humble grave with, perhaps, the author of her downfall standing free among men, watching with a pious sneer the humble cortege convey the victim of his lust to the grave. I am a mother and my mother's heart bleeds for the motherless girl who was as innocent as the best of our girls till she came into the path of the tempter, with no guardian hand, and fell a victim to the lust of some man, most likely a married man he was, who paid the price, the blood money to somebody, whoever he was, to hide the original crime by means of a double murder, and both escaping the grasp of the law, and the whole thing going over us like a passing cloud. And such things going on around us all the while. "How long, O Lord, how long?"

MOVE TO REORGANIZE THE LACROSSE TEAM

As there will be no Canadian League baseball in Peterborough during the coming summer, there is a movement on foot to reorganize the O.L.A. Lacrosse Club and provide a little of Canada's national game for lovers of sport. Peterborough had a team last year, but owing to the presence of professional ball, no great amount of interest was taken in it. Prospects are very bright for a good season, and with co-operation on the part of the fans of the old game could be resuscitated with success. A meeting will be called this week in the interest of the game. The time and place will be announced later.

THAW ON TRIAL ONCE AGAIN

NEW YORK, March 8.—With his "Nemesis" William T. Jerome, absent, and his defence a system, Harry K. Thaw, to-day went on trial before Justice Page of the Supreme Court criminal branch on a charge of conspiring to escape on August 17, 1913, from Mattewan Asylum, when he got into Canada. The conclusion of the trial within a week was predicted by both sides.

Win or lose, Thaw will never return to Mattewan, his counsel confidently declared to-day. They and the prosecution promise sensational testimony. Rumours of disclosure of the "higher up" who was the go between in Thaw's escape were also rife.

Peterborough's Private Bill

Will Come Before the Legislature To-morrow—Local Delegation Will Be Present

The city's private bill will come up before the Private Bills Committee of the Provincial Legislature, some time to-morrow. In anticipation of this event a local delegation comprising His Worship Mayor Buller, Aldermen Duffus and Dobbin, City Solicitor Gordon, City Clerk Armstrong and Mr. E. A. Peck, will be on hand when the prospective enactments come up for consideration. Mr. E. A. Peck will be present in his capacity of township solicitor, as one clause of the bill refers to an agreement that has been executed between the Canadian General Electric Company and the Grand Trunk Railway, whereby the former secures a right-of-way over a portion of the company's tracks, for the purpose of testing out electric locomotives, that the company propose to build. The track passes through a portion of Smith Township, which explains the township's interest in the matter. It is not likely that they will oppose the measure, but will be on hand to preserve their rights.

Another clause of the bill seeks to increase the borrowing power of the Council in respect to the Public Utilities Commission so as to facilitate the procuring of sufficient funds for the completion of the Hydro-Electric scheme.

The third and last clause seek to authorize the civic grant of ten thousand dollars to the Patriotic Fund.

CROWN ATTORNEY HATTON REPLIES TO PRESS COMMENT

He Invites Those Who Are Insistent for Further Investigation to Appeal to the Chief of Police or Police Commissioners If They Have Any Reasonable Complaint to Make

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Referring to correspondence published in connection with the late sad tragedies—and much as I dislike writing for publication in newspapers in response or reply to correspondence regarding complaints of this nature. If any person or persons has or have any reasonable complaint to make that action can be instituted and punishment inflicted, the proper place to go is direct to the Chief of Police, and although he has to listen to dozens of complaints every week, the great majority being only hearsay and others, after investigation, failing to show the slightest foundation for action, he is always ready to listen to the next. Should he, however, refuse to entertain the persistent demand for action, the injured one may communicate in a most informal manner to the Police Commissioners—the County Judge, Police Magistrate, and Mayor, under whose control and supervision the Police force is, and investigation follows promptly. There is, therefore, not the slightest ground for going into print and suggesting graft, rich sons, money and all that twaddle. If the people will only volunteer to help the Police and endeavour to create a public feeling for them in the discharge of their most unpleasant duties great benefit to the community can not help but accrue.

In almost every case, after days and nights of preparation a criminal prosecution is launched and at once is felt the cold, antagonistic atmosphere of the public, the so-called fellow feeling for the under dog. The friends, relations and connection and their friends, relations and connections, and so on down the line, all combine to contribute to the utmost the defeat of justice.

The greater the crime the more ability and experience in defending crime the Counsel for the accused uses every tactic and some of the most unprofessional nature are deemed fair in defending the criminal. Whilst the representative of the Crown, on the ground that he represents the State of which the accused is a member, must be very careful not to make addresses of an inflammable nature or unduly excite the sympathy or passions of the Jury.

As the Mail newspaper says: "It appears to be a growing objection among Ontario Jurymen to hang any one. It may be that the wholesale crimes committed in Europe have quashed the important crimes of individuals."

With Jurys' finding in the last three or four sensational cases tried in Ontario—findings concurred in by the hoots, yells and actions of frenzied mobs. Is it any wonder then that the Police forces throughout the Province are not too anxious to court failure on every hearsay rumour about the Town.

The people may rest assured that they know facts in connection with late sad cases that are not known to the scandal mongers on the street, or to those who air their superficial knowledge for one reason and another through the press.

In closing, again let me say, if any citizen of any standing in the community will call and interview the Chief, and lay before him a bona fide complaint that will justify his taking action, it will be done.

It may be that I will reply to the correspondence. To do this will necessitate publishing comments that I much deplore seeing in print and are best left out.

G. W. Hatton,
County Crown Attorney.

WHAT DOES A WASHING MACHINE SAVE YOU?

IT SAVES all back breaking work.

IT SAVES bending over a tub—a very injurious thing for women to do.

IT SAVES breathing hot steam, and all the ills that result from it.

IT SAVES going from a steaming tub out doors to hang up the clothes. That is how colds are caught, how rheumatism starts, how consumption finds a beginning.

IT SAVES keeping one's hands in water until they grow course and stiff.

That is what a washing machine will save the woman who now does her washing in the old washboard way.

THE QUESTION IS WHICH WASHER TO BUY
WE RECOMMEND THE 1900 GRAVITY

BECAUSE it will wash quicker, cleanier and easier, with less wear on the clothes, and will practically last a life time, always giving complete satisfaction to the user, than any other machine we know of. WE SELL THEM ON 30 DAYS' TRIAL.

Reduction of the Forts at Narrows of the Dardanelles

NUMBER OF GERMANS TAKEN PRISONERS IS EXCESSIVE

Many Are Young and Show Willingness to Surrender--- Russians Still Hold the Initiative.

Special to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, March 9.—In the north and south the Russians are now establishing the ascendency. They have driven the right wing of General von Eschhorn's army, which recently attempted to cross the Niemen above Grodno, back towards the wide marshy clearing outside the Augustowo forest, never permitting the German rearguard to halt. The Russian advance here reaches a remarkable pace, considering the miserable condition of the ground. At Ossowetz fortress the Russian artillery silenced two German heavy batteries Saturday, and they continue shelling the Lyck road to keep back the German reinforcements.

The number of Germans who surrendered, especially among the fresh conscripts, far exceeds anything experienced in the earlier stages of the war. Of the first consignment numbering 700, of a total of 10,000 prisoners taken during the Przasnyas battles who were recently brought from the first field base, scarcely fifty could walk steadily. Others were crippled in both feet and complained that their boots were bad and too heavy. They attempted to climb into carts which were only for the wounded, and when prevented complained that they were unaccustomed to such marches. They had already done ten miles, and could not manage the remaining six. They had been two days advancing and two days retreating them:

"But you come to war, not to promenade."

"Oh, war," groaned the Germans, with gestures of weary despair.

From them it has been learned that four corps were involved in the defeat at Przasnyss. Two were newly formed, one from the Guards reserve corps and one from the Silesian Landwehr corps. When the prisoners reached the railway they collapsed and slept in heaps on the wet platform.

PILICA BATTLE A DIVERSION.

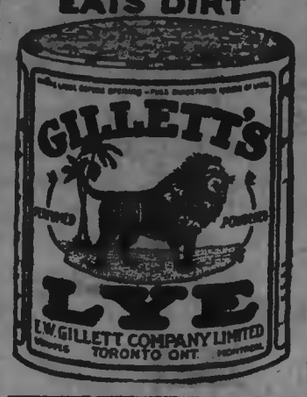
Gen. von Hindenburg is again striving to distract attention from this tragic end of the northeastern campaign by directing sharp infantry attacks on the six-mile front above the left bank of the Pilica in the direction of the Rawa road. The sharp battle in this district of Central Poland has now lasted three days. It evidently aims at preventing the Russian outer lines in the region southwest of Warsaw from sparing forces to go elsewhere, as there are indications that the Germans fear a new and strong offensive on the Nida and Dunajec against the armies protecting Cracow.

A continuous procession of prisoners is pouring into Kiev from Eastern Galicia. One consignment of 4,000 was taken without a shot being fired. They belonged to the infantry division and were seeking the south road for Hungary. They had been three days without food when they encountered a commissariat transport. This they detained and had just distributed food when the Russians appeared. The Austrians immediately sent white flag delegates and asked to be permitted to take their meal and then they would go quietly. The Russians agreed.

Some Bavarian soldiers are among the Austrian prisoners brought to Kiev from Czernowitz. Twelve thousand prisoners from East Galicia are already started for Siberia.

The German staff is still striving to avert the final collapse of Austria's campaign. It has sent a fresh army of new German conscripts, mostly aged about 18, into Northern Hungary. With the remainder of the Austrians they are moving in great numbers on the Galacian slopes of the mountains and in the broken hills between the sources of the San and Dniester. Their right wing was severely cut up Saturday when attempting to cross the Dniester eastward.

GILLETT'S LYE EATS DIRT



TURKS' BIGGEST FORTS HAVE BEEN SILENCED

Guns on the Defences of the Narrows Are Completely Destroyed--Climax of Two Days' Bombardment by British and French Warships.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 9.—The British and French fleets have battered their way a step nearer to Constantinople. More Turkish forts on the Asiatic side have been silenced, according to a statement by the British Admiralty, but the Turks are making a terrific resistance with the shells from their German-made guns. .. ..

From the number of ships engaged and the size and range of the guns, the battle of the Dardanelles is unlike anything in history, according to naval experts.. At 21,000 yards—nearly twelve miles—the huge battleship Queen Elizabeth, of the British squadron, assisted by smaller ships, is still hurling shells across the Gallipoli Peninsula into the Turkish strongholds on the Asiatic shore. The Admiralty statement carries the operations through Sunday and admits that the Turks not only scored three minor hits on the Queen Elizabeth, but that the majority of the ships inside the straits, both French and British, were struck. None was sunk, and there were no casualties. The Turkish forts Rumif Medjidieh Tabia and Hamidieh-I-Tabia, fringing the Asiatic shore line, which previously had withstood the bombardment, were silenced, as was the Mount Dardan-

Aeroplanes taking wing from the decks of the besieging craft are playing a signal part in the operations. One British machine became unmanageable, and dived into the sea, and another was hit by the Turks twenty-eight times.

French Official Statement.

The following statement was issued in Paris by the French Ministry of Marine to-night:

"The four French battleships Suffren, Gaulois, Charlemagne and Bouvet, and the two English battleships, Agamemnon and Lord Nelson, entered the Dardanelles on March 7. While the English ships bombarded at long range the forts of the Narrows, which separate Chanak from Kilid Bahr, the French ships covered this operation by cannonading the batteries of Mount Dardanus and Sousin Dere and hidden cannon, which were reuced to silence.

"Fort Rumili Medjidieh-I-Tabia, on the European side, and Fort Hamidieh-I-Tabia on the Asiatic side, replied to the fire of the English battleships, but were also destroyed."

A despatch from Amsterdam to Reuter Company says the following Turkish official statement was given out to-day in Constantinople:

"The British ships Majestic and Irresistible have reinforced the enemy fleet. The fire of our batteries put the French armoured cruiser out of action and damaged a British armoured cruiser. Owing to our bombardment the hostile ships retreated and ceased their fire. Our batteries suffered no damages."

CHICAGO MAY WHEAT HIGHER

May Interests Likely to Have

Statistics Are With the Bulls Corn and Oats Both Advanced

CHICAGO, March 9.— Recognized authorities in Chicago are emphatic in their statement that there is a serious shortage in the supply of old crop wheat.

The situation in cash wheat could hardly be stronger than reported by cash handlers. Supplies are scarce and foreign countries continue to ask for offers, but these are made slowly by exporters owing to their inability to secure enough grain to meet outstanding contracts. The sharp advances in the future market yesterday caused farmers to tighten their grip upon the wheat now in their hands. The May closed with a gain of 8 1-8c. July was up 4 3-8c. and September advanced 3 1-2c. The stock of wheat held here at present is only 1,191,000 bushels, following an increase of 88,000 bushels for the week. With a probable open interest of anywhere from 5,000,000 to 7,000,000 bushels May wheat, it is obvious that the shorts will be placed in an unenviable position when May 1 rolls around, as it is impossible to secure any fair-sized quantities of this grain.

The cash transactions in all positions were restricted yesterday by the small holdings, the seaboard reporting sales of 30 loads. There were no sales reported at Chicago. From a statistical standpoint the situation in wheat is growing more bullish.

Corn and oats both had good advances. While the best price in corn failed to hold because of profit-taking the undercurrent in oats was quite strong. Cash sales were 100,000 bushels of corn and 95,000 bushels of oats.

Enormous exports of provisions last week with lighter receipts of hogs and higher prices at the yards caused new investors to become free buyers, which shorts covered liberally.

Closing cash prices: Wheat—No. 2 red, $1.46 to $1.51; No. 2 hard, $1.47½ to $1.52.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 9.—"The Board of the Admiralty does not feel justified in extending honourable treatment to the twenty-nine officers and men of the sunken German submarine U-8, on the ground that they were guilty of attacking and, sinking unarmed merchantmen."

This significant statement was issued last night by the Official Press Bureau.

The statement fails to make clear exactly what treatment will be extended to the captured Germans. There has been a persistent demand throughout Britain that they be handled as pirates. Lord Charles Beresford recently asked the Prime Minister in the House of Commons whether the crews of German submarines which sank unarmed merchant ships without warning would be treated as pirates and tried for murder. Mr. Asquith replied that the Government had the matter under advisement, and was not then prepared to announce its policy.

1,000 GERMANS SAVED.

The statement refers to the generous treatment accorded German officers and men saved by the British, numbering upward of one thousand, and then says with reference to the U-8:

"This vessel had been operating in the Straits of Dover and in the English Channel, and there is a strong probability that she had been guilty of attacking and sinking unarmed merchantmen and firing torpedoes at ships carrying non-combatants, neutrals and women. In particular, the steamer Oriole is missing, and there is grave reason to fear that she has been sunk with all hands—twenty.

"There is, of course, great difficulty in bringing home particular crimes to any individual German submarine, and it may be that the evidence necessary to establish conviction will not be obtained until after the conclusion of peace. Meantime, persons against whom such charges are pending must be subject to a special restriction, and cannot be accorded the distinction of their rank or be allowed to mingle with other prisoners of war."

MANY DESTROYERS IN CHASE.

A report received from Rear-Admiral the Hon. Horace Hood on the sinking of the U-8, as made public by the Admiralty, shows that the submarine was finally destroyed by the torpedo-boat destroyers Gurkha and Maori. The other destroyers which took part in the hunt were the Viking, Nubian, Mohawk, Falcon, Kangaroo, Cossack, Leven, Fawn and Ure. The operations were directed by the officer commanding the flotilla, Captain C. D. Johnson, and were marked by skill and promptitude, according to the report.

Captain Conrad Bongard Dead

Late Captain Had a Long Career on the Great Lakes

TORONTO, March 9.—The death occurred at the General Hospital of Captain Conrad Bongard, in his 86th year, after an illness of three weeks' duration. The late captain had a long career as a sailor on the Great Lakes and the Atlantic.

Born on July 12th, 1837, in Cressy, Prince Edward County, Capt. Bongard was the son of the late Conrad Bongard, U.E.L., who was captain in the battle of the Wind Mill. The deceased began work at the age of twenty-one as bailiff of Princess Edward County. He was teacher of vocal music for many years, and later conducted a business at Port Perry. After sailing on the Great Lakes for twelve years, he crossed the ocean forty-four times in connection with the cattle shipping business. He had lived retired for some years, and despite his advanced age of 88, retained his intellectual powers to the last. He was keenly interested in the war, which he discussed up to the time of death. He could relate stories by the hour of sea life.

He was a Methodist in religion, but of late years attended the Rhodes avenue Presbyterian church. He had resided in Toronto for the past quarter of a century. He is survived by six sons, Captain Byron, of the Turbina; Captain William and Captain John of Prince Edward County; Arthur, Norwood; Albert, Port Arthur, and Walter of Belleville, sergeant in the 21st Battalion, second contingent. He also leaves four daughters, Mrs. George Smith, Prince Edward County; Mrs. I. Van Epps, Michigan; Mrs. G. Barley, and Mrs. William Campbell, the two last named of Toronto.

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon from the home of Mrs. Campbell, 195 Rhodes avenue, to Norway Cemetery. The services were conducted by the Rev. D. Wallace Christie, of Rhodes avenue Presbyterian church. The floral tributes were many and on the casket was an appropriate inscription which read, "In Port."

A Farmer's Fatal Error

BELLEVILLE, March 9—Willis W. Hudgins, a well-known resident of Madoc Village, is dead as the result of a mistake through which he took a large dose of carbolic acid. He had complained of not feeling well when he got up, and went down town to the drug store, where he made a purchase of four ounces each of brandy and carbolic acid. He explained to the druggist that he wanted carbolic acid for use in wash-water, owing to the presence of smallpox in the neighbourhood. Returning home, he retired and was left undisturbed for some little time, but when Mrs. Hudgins went to call him she was surprised to find that he was dead. The partially opened bottle of carbolic acid and an unopened bottle of brandy told the story of the terrible mistake. Mr. Hudgins was 52 years of age. Until five years ago he conducted a successful mercantile business, but then retired to a farm near Madoc.

BRITISH DIVIDED REGARDING RACING

LONDON, March 9.—The question whether or not horse racing meets ought to be suspended during the war is being warmly discussed by the press and the public. The Times in an editorial Thursday advocated at least the suspension of the Ascot and Epsom meets, but Lord Rosebery wrote to the Times protesting against such a move. He argues that horses are invaluable to the future of the army and that if races cease thoroughbreds will disappear, because no man can afford to keep blooded stock for the mere pleasure of looking at them in the stable.

Lord Rosebery further calls attention to the fact that during the Napoleonic revolution and Napoleonic wars the Epsom and Ascot races were held regularly, adding that "our forefathers did not regard it as an offence to witness horse races while at war."

DANDRUFF SURELY DESTROYS THE HAIR

Makes It Dull, Brittle, Lifeless, and Causes It To Fall Out.

Girls—If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silk hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

"It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid avron; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy, every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will be silky, fluffy, lustrous, soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid avron at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

The Attack on German Works Is Confirmed

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 9—The Admiralty last night issued the following statement:

"Wing Commander Longmore reports that an air attack on Ostend was carried out Sunday afternoon by six aeroplanes of the naval wing. Of these two had to return owing to their petrol freezing. The remainder reached Ostend, and dropped eleven bombs on the submarine repair base and four bombs on the Kursaal, the headquarters of the Militia.

"All the machines and pilots returned. It is probable that considerable damage was done. No submarines were seen in the basin. The attack was carried out in a fresh north west wind."

Zeppelin Destroyed.

AMSTERDAM, March 8—The Tirlemont (Belgium) correspondent of the Telegraph in a despatch confirms the report of the destruction there last Thursday of Zeppelin airship L-8, which was forced to make a hurried descent owing to a derangement of its motors. The correspondent says the airship collided with some trees and smashed its cars and that 17 of its crew of 41 men were killed.

A wooden device resembling a rolling pin, equipped with wire clips to hold smooth neckties wrapped around it, has been patented by a Baltimorean.

Do you know that no grocery can be sure of getting the same quality of tea in bulk twice running? It is impossible for him to have the extensive machinery that makes it possible to blend the choicest teas in varying proportions to form an absolutely uniform tea like "SALADA." So true is this, that many grocers will neglect quality and only think of the greater profit that bulk affords them.

"THE GRELL MYSTERY"

By Frank Frocst

He had not taken two steps when a woman peered from an adjoining room. He caught one glimpse of her in the semi-darkness with a police whistle at her lips. He sprang forward and as he did so a shrill, ear-piercing blast rang out. Green was close behind him.

She shrieked as the detective tore the whistle from her, and he felt her slender figure entwine itself about him. Down he went, with his companion on top of him, and another woman's loud hysterical cries added to the pandemonium. Foyle picked himself up and lifting the girl bodily flung her without ceremony into the room from which she had emerged. From above a voice shouted something, and a knife whizzed downwards and struck quivering in the bare boards of the landing, grazing Green's shoulders.

All need for caution was gone now. Foyle had dropped his jemmy and his hand closed over his pistol. Only as a last resource would he use it, but if he had to—well, there would be no harm in having it handy. A door slammed as the two detectives climbed the second flight of stairs. Green flung himself against the one that had been indicated by Israels, and the flimsy fastening gave way under the shock of his thirteen stone. There was no one in the room. Savagely Heldon Foyle turned and caught the [illegible] and they entered the room, empty like the first, but with an open window looking out on a series of low roofs a dozen feet below. And over the roofs a shadowy figure of a man was clambering hurriedly. He could only dimly be seen.

Green clambered through on to the window-sill and dropped. He was unlucky. A projecting piece of wood caught his foot, and he staggered and lost time. Before he had recovered himself the fugitive was out of sight, and the sound of his progress had ceased. Foyle called to him to come back, and without waiting to see whether his orders were obeyed, made his way back again to the first floor landing. Israels was still there, very white and shaky, as the superintendent struck a match.

"Where's that girl?" said the detective curtly. "The one who gave the alarm."

"My daughter? She thought you were burglars. She didn't know."

"Where is she?"

Without waiting for a reply he entered the room whence she had emerged, and striking another match, applied it to a gas bracket. A fat woman was sitting up in bed looking at him timorously. He paid no heed to her, but stopped to look under the bed. When he straightened himself Green had rejoined him.

"The girl gave us away," exclaimed Foyle. "Here, you, where is she gone?" He shook the woman roughly by the shoulder. "Go to the bottom of the stairs, Green, and see that no one slips in or out. Take that chap outside down with you."

"My daughter" exclaimed the woman helplessly. "She has gone to [illegible] able people. You frightened her. We don't like the police coming here."

"Highly respectable," repeated Foyle under his breath. Aloud he said menacingly, "We shall soon know whether you are respectable. Where does the girl's aunt live?"

"Twenty-two Sharwell Lane," was the reply, glib and prompt.

Foyle looked for an instant penetratingly at her. Her eyes dropped. His hand went to his pocket and he calmly lighted a cigar. Then he went downstairs to where Green was on guard and politely apologised to Israels. Casually he repeated the question he had put to the woman. Yes, the Jew had seen his daughter go out. She said she was going to her aunt. Her aunt lived at 48 Sussex street.

"I see," said the superintendent quietly. "The fact is of course, that she is not your daughter, and that she has not gone to her aunt's. You are in an awkward corner, my man," he went on, changing his tone and moving a step nearer. "Better tell us the truth. Your wife has let me know something."

As if mechanically, he was dangling a pair of shiny steel handcuffs in his fingers. Handcuffs seldom formed a part of his equipment, but to-night he had carried them with him on the off-chance that he might have to use them. The Jew shrank away, but the sight had proved effective.

"I'll tell all the truth," he whined, with an outspreading gesture of his hands. "I've done no wrong. You can't hurt me. She came here a week or two ago and paid five pounds for a week's lodging. I was to tell anyone who enquired that she was my daughter. She slept with my wife. What harm was there? I am poor. Five pounds isn't picked up like that every day. The man came afterwards. He said he was a journalist and asked me to buy him a typewriting machine. I asked no questions. Why should I"

His manner was that of a much-injured man. Foyle cut him short now and again he rambled on with a question. In half an hour he felt that he had extracted a fair amount of truth, mingled though it was with cunning lies. He guessed now that the woman whom he had vaguely seen was she whose part in the mystery of the house in Grosvenor Gardens had always been shadowy and vague. She could be none other than Lola Rachael, little Lola of Vienna, otherwise the Princess Petrovska.

CHAPTER XVII.

There was nothing more to be done at Grave Street. Heldon Foyle remained in the house while Green walked to the divisional station, and in an hour or two the divisional inspector with a couple of men arrived. Then Foyle saw to a strict search of the house from top to bottom. Nothing there was that seemed to possess any great importance as bearing on the case. The man who had fled over the roof had used a single room, apparently as bed and sitting room, so it was to this place that the detectives devoted chief attention.

"He must have been sleeping in his clothes," grumbled Green. "He hadn't time to dress. There's the typewriter the note was written on."

He sat down before a rickety table and inserting a piece of paper in the machine, slowly tapped out the alphabet, and after a brief inspection passed the paper on to the superintendent who scanned it casually, and was about to throw it away when something gripped his attention.

"This looks queer," he muttered, and held the paper up slantingly away from the gas jet in order to examine it by what photographers call transmitted light.

His brows were drawn together tightly. The sheet of paper which Brown had used was an ordinary piece of writing [illegible] surface Foyle had noted a slight sheen unusual enough to attract his attention. Even he would not have noticed it but for the angle in which he had happened first to look at it when he took it from Green. It might be an accidental fault in the manufacture of the paper. Yet trivial as it seemed, it was unusual, and one of the chief assets in detective work is not to let the unusual go unexplained.

"It's the same typewriter. There can be no question of that," said Green. "You can see that the 'b' is knocked about and the 'o' is out of line."

"That's all right," said Foyle. "I was not thinking of that. It looks to me as if there's some sympathetic writing on this."

He held the paper so that the heat from the gas jet warmed it. Every moment he expected that the heat would bring something to light on the paper. He gave a petulant exclamation as nothing happened, and his eyes roved over the table whence Green had taken the paper. He believed that he was not mistaken, that there was something written which could be brought to light if he knew how. He knew that there were chemicals that could be used for secret communications which could only be revealed by the use of other chemicals—a process something akin to development in photography. It was unlikely, if the user of the room had used some chemical agent, that he would have thought of destroying and concealing it. But there was nothing on the table which suggested itself to Foyle as having been used in the connection. Keenly he scrutinized the room, his well-manicured hand caressing his chin.

Mrs. H. C. Kingston, Moose Jaw, Sask., writes: "I wish to recommend Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup as being the best cough medicine on the market. A few months ago I took a severe cold which left me with a racking cough. After trying several cough remedies, with no result, I decided to get a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after taking the first two doses it began to effect a cure, and after continuing its use for a short time, I was entirely cured. I cannot say too much in its praise."

WHAT OF US'S CREW?

London Telegraph Says Piracy Claims Must Be Lived Up To.

LONDON, March 8.—In connection with the rescue of the officers and crew of the Us, The Daily Telegraph asks what is to be their fate?

"They were engaged in operations which Sir Edward Grey denounced to the world as piracy on the high seas. Are they to be regaled in some country mansion and provided with a routine of servants, or are they to be treated as pirates? It is childish to denounce certain acts as piracy, if, having caught some of the persons engaged in such operations, we entertain them as honored guests of the nation. This is a matter on which the British public will want enlightenment, particularly in view of the harsh conditions under which our countrymen are held prisoners in Germany.

Germans and Turks Fall Out.

LONDON, March 8.—Telegraphing from Cairo, The Daily Mail's correspondent says:

"During the retreat of the Turks after the recent Suez operations the German officers had an open conflict with their allies and three hundred of the latter were killed in a single affray near Jerusalem."

Wants Federal Aid.

MONTREAL, March 8. — Mayor Martin claims that the people of the Dominion, who are thrown out of work as a result of the war, have as much right to protection from the Government as have the families of those who have volunteered for active service, and he wrote Saturday to Premier Borden about the matter.

Mayor Martin, who says there are 100,000 in need of the Government's help, asks that a law be passed empowering municipalities, during the war, to draw on the Federal war budget, so that lodging, food, warmth and medical treatement where necessary, may be provided for families who may be said to be without means of subsistence, and that the municipalities be allowed to delegate their powers to charitable organizations.

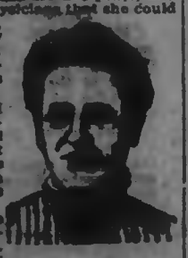
The Supreme Test of a Healing Agent
Psoriasis or Chronic Eczema Defied All Treatment Until Dr. Chase's Ointment Was Used.

After suffering with the terrible itching of Psoriasis for five years, and being told by physicians that she could not be cured, Mrs. Massey turned to Dr. Chase's Ointment and was entirely cured.



MRS. MASSEY.

You will find this letter interesting, and will not wonder that the writer is enthusiastic in praising this ointment.

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Cascade, Ont., writes:—"For five years I suffered with what three doctors called psoriasis. They could not help me, and one of them told me if anyone offered to guarantee a cure for $50.00 to keep my money, as I could not be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I am glad to say I am entirely cured, not a sign of a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this ointment enough."

Can you imagine a more severe test for Dr. Chase's Ointment? This should convince you that as a cure for eczema and all forms of itching skin disease Dr. Chase's Ointment stands supreme. Put it to the test. 60c a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

REMARKABLE CASE of Mrs. HAM

Declares Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her Life and Sanity.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had falling, inflammation and congestion, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, pained sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind, I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if your medicines had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fears and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected, as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."—Mrs. JOHN HAM, R. F. D. 1, Box 22, Shamrock, Missouri.

THE SLEEPING SENTRIES

Two British Soldiers Slipped Past Lax German Guards

An officer and a sergeant of Dragoons escaped through the German lines owing to their clever scouting knowledge. The sergeant was taken prisoner by the Germans and taken to a convent hospital, where he found his captain just recovering from the effects of the fumes of a shell which had rendered him unconscious.

There was no guard placed on the hospital, and at the first opportunity the captain and sergeant made their escape. The captain had on him a small map of the country and a compass—he had been one of the scouting party of the Dragoons—and so was able to fix his direction.

The two travelled only at night, starting at eight in the evening and leaving off at between six and eight the following morning. Once they came to a canal, but their clothes were too heavy to carry while swimming, so they decided to attempt to cross the bridge.

It was guarded by a sentry at one end and a body of twenty or so Germans the other. The sentry was asleep at his post, however, as were the other men, and step by step the two officers crept over the bridge, and forty-eight hours later were safe in the lines of the allies.

An Old, Family Cough Remedy, Home-Made

Mostly Prepared—Costs Very Little, but is Prompt, Sure and Effective

By making this old-time cough syrup at home you not only save about $1, as compared with the ready-made kind, but you will also have a much more prompt and positive remedy in every way. It overcomes the usual coughs, throat and chest colds in 24 hours—relieves even whooping cough quickly—and is excellent, too, for bronchitis, bronchial asthma, hoarseness and spasmodic croup.

Get from any drug store 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Full directions with Pinex. Keeps perfectly and tastes good.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. It quickly loosens the dry, painful cough, and also heals the inflamed membranes. It also has a remarkable effect in overcoming the persistent loose cough by stopping the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes.

The effect of pine on the membranes is known by almost every one. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol and other natural healing pine elements.

There are many worthless imitations of this famous mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and do not accept anything else.

Constant Watch For Allied Aeroplanes Drives German Guard on Coast to Madness

On the Belgian Frontier, March 6—Systematic air raids over the German positions in Northern Belgium are responsible for casualties of a new kind among the coast garrisons.

Marines and infantrymen have been sent to Bruges and other base hospitals suffering from nervous disorders. The constant strain of watching for hostile aeroplanes, which drop bombs at the most unexpected times, and often with telling effect, has been too much for the middle-aged Wurttembergers and raw men of the Mortuen brigade, who are leading a kind of troglodyte existence among the dunes.

A garrulous sentry on the Dutch frontier made this confession to a neutral who had wandered to the edge of the war zone, hoping to catch a glimpse of the troops exercising beyond the first fringe of sandhills.

The sentry was of comfortable thickness, with a beard, a family in Karlsruhe, and a grievance. He was perhaps fifty years of age, and until the first week in December a member of the Karlsruhe fire brigade. Then he fell into the military dragnet and was swept across Germany, through Belgium, to the edge of the North Sea, where contemplation of that restless waste of waters has driven his simple soul to the verge of madness.

"We came to Belgium to fight for the Fatherland, not to be shot at like rabbits in a wilderness," he said to a neutral who stood beside the German flag marking the limit of military occupation.

"It was bad enough for our men behind the Yser," he continued, "but this infernal Zeebrugge is much worse — nothing but rain and wet sand, and the bombs of the English falling at all hours. And the sight of all this water being churned about makes me sick."

He was obsessed by bombs.

"Might Blow Holes in us."

"Those verdammt aeroplanes come singing over us," he complained, as he threw the butt of his dead cigar into the sand and ground it savagely with his boot; "they came sailing down so that you could see the mad savages inside if you cared to look, and then they drop their little bombs which blow holes in the sand, and sometimes in houses, and might blow holes in us.

"At first it was amusing to see them dodging about when the shrapnel began to fly, but they kept coming again and again, like birds that had got to know us, and now they are bolder than ever.

"It is all very well to sit under shellfire in the trenches, but I do not like bombs from the sky. Some of our men have been sent back to the depot for a "rest" because they are not used to such an ordeal."

The sentry's admission has been confirmed by news from other sources in Belgium. The repeated raids of the Allies' aircraft are keeping the coast defence troops at high tension. A portion of the Zeebrugge garrison is on duty every night, manning the anti-aircraft guns, electric searchlights and signal stations. There have been many false alarms, resulting in wild fusilades against imaginary aeroplanes, and the turning out of all the garrison gunners.

So far as I can ascertain, there have not been any German troops killed in the recent bomb attacks, but many have had narrow escapes.

One bomb, apparently aimed at the outer harbour, where submarines are supposed to shelter, nearly hit a party of marines engaged in repairing the railway lines which runs along the breakwater. It exploded on the breakwater itself, tearing away a section of the outer protecting wall.

The result of this "hit" has been the steady wearing away of this portion of the massive stone upper works at every high tide, when enormous waves dash through the breach, washing out the cement, loosening the stones and adding to the difficulties of the engineers who are trying to effect repairs.

Zeebrugge a Desolate Spot.

Zeebrugge is undoubtedly the most desolate spot in the German military zone. It is effectively cut off from the rest of the invaded territory by a wall of sentries, who prevent communication between the troops within and those without.

The movements of the garrison are rigorously supervised. The Germans are afraid that further details of their new defence preparations will reach their enemies by way of the Dutch frontier, and the men actually engaged on them are warned that any one discovered talking with a civilian will be summarily shot.

Between the southern edge of Blankenberge and the northern end of Knocke, the strip of flat coast is as bleak and forbidding a picture as can be imagined.

There are great gaps in the rows of hotels and villas, marking the methodical devastation ordered by artillery officers that the new guns may have a clear range seaward. The Church at Blankenberze is a marine storehouse; the railway station near by has been partly destroyed; all the buildings that are still inhabitable contain troops, billeted as compactly as sardines in a tin.

Columns of marines and Landsturm infantry are turned out in the wet sand for exercise every day. There is nothing else for them to do. Then can be seen from the neutral dunes north of Knocke tramping dispiritedly up and down beside the tumbling breakers, while officers stroll about and occasionally peer seaward with their glasses.

There is nothing to look at but the waste of white-capped waters wrapped in mist, with sometimes the shadowy form of a distant war ship to remind them that they have not been forgotten. There is no sound except the steady rumble of the land guns below Ostend and the whistle of the wind which sweeps across the empty plain toward Bruges. The rain beats on them unceasingly, and when the darkness descends they go to their darkened houses behind the dunes to dream of bombs that drop in the night.

The Belgian coast has ceased to be an ideal health resort.

SWORD VS. RIFLE-BUTT

Hand-to-hand Fight as in the Days Before Fire-arms

An infantry sergeant of the Belgian army and a Prussian colonel had a hand-to-hand encounter in one battle, such as Virgil loved to describe in the days when the Greeks fought the Trojans outside the city of Troy.

A party of Uhlans attempted to break through the Belgian outposts. The Prussians saw their men falling under a terrible rifle fire, but the colonel gallantly led them forward, brandishing his sword, right up to the Belgian troops. A sergeant of the infantry rushed out and bayoneted the colonel's horse. The poor brute fell on the Belgian soldier knocking him down. As he regained his feet the Prussian officer had just managed to extricate himself from the fallen horse.

Then they went for one another, these two, sergeant and colonel, in a hand-to-hand encounter. At last the Belgian broke down the Prussian's guard, and dashed out his brains with the butt of his rifle. He was terribly hacked about, and he had received a shot in the leg from the officer's revolver.

The brave Belgian lay for several hours on the battlefield after this desperate encounter, every moment expecting to be killed by one of the enemy. But eventually he was rescued by the Belgian ambulance. When he reached the hospital at the base the King himself came to see him, shaking hands and congratulating him on his bravery.

TIRED-OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses of eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

FALLING HAIR MEANS DANDRUFF IS ACTIVE

Save your hair! Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine right now

Thin, brittle, colourless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which, if not remedied, causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine to-night—now—anytime— will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

BIRMINGHAM BOOMS WITH WAR ORDERS

"The Gunshop of the World" Turns Out Huge Quantities of Supplies For War Office

Birmingham used to be known as the toyshop of the world: to-day she would be best described as the gunshop of the world. Birmingham is full of firms who specialize in arms and ammunition, and houses which produce military and naval ornaments and these firms are working night and day.

The Birmingham Small Arms Co. used to deem that they were doing well if they turned out 2,000 Government rifles a week. They are now turning out more than double that number, and are aiming at an output of seven thousand per week. They have also been making motor cycles for the British and other governments, and they are producing quite a useful number of the deadly Lewis automatic rifle, a weapon which is virtually a small machine gun, used as a rifle, and, indeed, shaped like one.

Then the Daimler Co. is turning out at its works at Coventry motor 'buses and heavy transport lorries and wagons as fast as they can be made and assembled.

The Kynochs, whose huge works are at Witton, are working night and day on orders for cartridges, and other and more deadly forms of war material. This firm specializes in all kinds of explosives. Kynochs probably make as many different articles as "Any Brit in The Country," for out of the waste products they obtain they make up soap, candles, and a hundred-and-one articles of everyday use. But they are devoting all their energies to the production of cartridges and explosives. Their whole output is accepted.

Then the trade in military buttons and ornaments is huge. There have been orders going about for as many as a million buttons from one firm of clothiers, and the price was put at double that which was obtained for the same work prior to the war. But many firms possessing a recognised reputation for that class of work could not take it. Buttons, Ltd., a concern made up of half a dozen firms in amalgamation, have orders which will take them a long time to execute.

Then every firm engaged in the making of tinware are as busy as they can be. Here, also, their operations are cramped for the lack of capable workmen. Immense orders have been placed for mess tins, cans of various descriptions, petrol tins, and indeed any and every kind of tinned hollow-ware.

Then there has been an incessant call for shell cases. Even the various motor firms are busily engaged in making these cases, which are then sent to the ammunition firms to be filled. There is a great demand for lamps and ships' furniture. The saddlery trade has rarely been so active as it is to-day.

Makers of spoons and forks are working at high pressure, and the clothing firms are at their wits' end to know how to get through their contracts. Horseshoe nail boxes and packing cases have been eagerly inquired for; cooking apparatus of all kinds have been in demand; aluminium firms have been specially busy; while makers of iron rails, fencing, barbed wire, and galvanised sheeting have been full up with orders. There has been an urgent call for string and brown paper.

Chemists know of about 150,000 organic chemical compounds and are increasing the list by from 5,000 to 8,000 a year.

THE SHADOW IN THE WELL---By Edgar Allen Forbes

IT was a public shame, and every old woman in the village felt like going to wrinkled old Bepin Behari and telling him so to his face. Here was his daughter, Munnessa, aged seventeen and unmarried—a most disgraceful state of affairs for a Bengali girl [illegible] be due to a lack of comeliness, for she was a beauty of the statuesque type. It could not be traced to any lack of domestic virtues, for all Bhairo knew that her father's property was due mainly to her management of his pilgrims' lodging house. Nor could it possibly be due to a lack of suitors, for even Benares knew that a dowry of considerable proportions might be wormed out of miserly old Bepin by a young aspirant of skill. Besides, the persistence of Ram Singh had been bazaar talk for at least two years.

That dowry was the heart of the matter. Old Bepin loved his rupees beyond all earthly things, and did not look with favor upon the idea of hastily parting with them as a marriage portion and at the same time losing the main prop of his business.

"By no manner of means!" assented Ram Singh, who had again paced the dusty road that leads out from Benares to Bhairo. "Thou art old, and it is not meet that the care of thy household should come upon thee, or upon some wench brought in for hire."

The old Hindu gave a grunt of disgust that sent the smoke back through the bowl of his hookah, which Ram diplomatically kept filled with Calcutta tobacco, while he himself puffed cigarettes like the son of a sahib.

"If thou wilt but give her unto me," said Ram, blandly, "all will be well. Munnessa and I will lodge in the house and she will continue to prepare food for the hungry who can pay."

A Matter of Business.

It was not the first nor the fifth time that Ram had held out this flattering inducement to his would be father-in-law. But Bepin already knew well enough that Ram would become a nonpaying boarder, and that with him would probably come several improvident members of his family.

The daughter in the case had, of course, no voice in that matter. Her marriage was a question of business to be settled by the head of the family. The fact that Munnessa detested Ram Singh from the top of his dirty turban to the soles of his [illegible] no bearing on the negotiations.

"In that case, what shall the portion be?" asked Bepin, placing a fresh coal in the bowl of his hookah.

"Were it another," explained Ram, "I should say one hundred and fifty rupees. But since I am to live in thy house, let us say one hundred."

"I have not the half," protested the old miser.

Ram waved his hand in dissent. "All the village knows, and Benares also, that thou hast five hundred in Debendra Nath's bank." This was strictly true, and it was this knowledge that had first brought Ram Singh a-wooing.

Long and argumentative was the talk that followed, for the persuasiveness of the suitor and the obstinacy of the parsimonious father had met so many times at the same point that each had acquired the perfection of diplomacy. At length Ram arose, tightened his loin cloth about him and walked jauntily away toward Benares. An hour later the Kathak dancing girls in the Dalkimandi quarter knew that the marriage had practically been arranged, there being now only a difference of ten rupees between what Ram demanded and what Bepin had consented to pay. On the strength of this assurance, the prospective son-in-law of the inn keeper was allowed to contract certain small debts that night.

Now, the group of mud huts known as the village of Bhairo is a place of great sanctity among the Hindus. Ages ago a Buddhist ruler erected here a lofty pillar; toward the decline of Buddhism in Benares the Hindus built a temple near by. Later came Aurungzebe, the Mohammedan, to tear it down and build a mosque. Much bitterness of feeling was patched up by a compromise, which ended on a day when a feast of the Moslems coincided with a feast of the Hindus. Two rival processions met and there was much breaking of heads. The Mohammedans uprooted the Buddhist pillar (which by this time the Hindus were worshipping as a lingam of Shiva) and broke it in pieces. The riotous followers of the Prophet then rushed into Benares, dragged one of the sacred cows down to the holy Ganges and polluted the sacred stream with its blood. It was a fearful desecration and would have ended in the massacre of the entire Moslem population had not the British stepped in with Sepoys and loaded rifles. Then the Bhairo priests sullenly selected the largest piece of the broken pillar, covered it over with sheet copper, painted it red and invited the Bengalis to resume their pilgrimages to it. And the veneration for this relic of a rival faith was the chief source of old Bepin's prosperity, for pilgrimages bring guests.

The day following Ram Singh's visit was an idle one, but as the sun was sinking behind the pippal trees that enterprising suitor came tramping into Bepin's place, followed by a group of pilgrims.

"Here be eight men for the night," he said, "and they have not brought food."

"Can they pay?" demanded Bepin, whose soul had long been callous against the appeal of pilgrims who could not.

"Yea, and a large price. They will eat much."

"Whence come they?"

"From Ranaghat, by train. They are laborers on the railway, and the Eastern Bengal pays much money."

"It is well. They may sleep in the courtyard, where there is room for all. I will tell Munnessa to cook food."

"Is [illegible] commissions?" said the pilot.

"That is a matter for the morrow—after they have paid," answered the cautious innkeeper.

Were Good Railroad Men.

The men of Ranaghat lived up to the reputation of railroad men the world over. They called for food of the best and in great plenty. They smoked hookahs and Calcutta cigarettes and told merry tales of life on the Eastern Bengal Railway that kept Bepin awake far into the night. And Munnessa was a weary handmaiden when she was finally permitted to stretch out on a roll of matting and fall asleep.

Early on the morrow there came frantic calls for more food, and Bepin began to have uneasiness lest they depart with a large and unpaid bill. But at the proper time the railway pilgrims drew forth bags of copper pice and silver money and paid in full without haggling. Then they set off for the temple of the pillar.

One of them, a tall Bengali of about twenty, lingered at the doorway and beckoned to Bepin. The old man came to the door.

"I am Hazari Lal Ghazari," said the pilgrim, "section workman on the State Railway between Ranaghat and Bogoola."

Bepin bowed but was discreetly silent.

"The girl who served food—is she hired?"

"Nay, she is my daughter."

"Is she promised?"

"Nay—that is, the matter is not yet finished."

"Then I would speak concerning the matter when I return from the temple."

"I will listen," said Bepin simply.

"My friends go into Benares to-night," explained Hazari, "but I return to lodge with thee."

"It is well," said the innkeeper.

The village well had the news soon afterward, and here it was that Munnessa first heard it, as she came to draw water at the sign of the squeaking windlass. It was but natural that she should wonder which of the right pilgrims was her prospective husband. There were two, she remembered, who had regarded her closely. One was a sturdy youth in a blue turban, the other was an older man with but one eye. She feared it might be the latter.

But she dared not question old Bepin, nor did he mention the matter to her. It was obviously not one of her affairs. But as the evening shadows began to lengthen she went to the village well oftener than was absolutely necessary, and each time looked down the road that leads to the temple of the broken pillar.

Thinks of Marrying.

Nightfall brought the pilgrim—and it was the blue turban. Munnessa brought water for him to bathe and his food was ready by the time he had finished. And it was of Bepin's best. He ate alone and in silence, watching the girl keenly every time she appeared, which was frequently enough. Then he smoked. At last old Bepin brought out his hookah, filled it, called for Munnessa to bring him a coal, and puffed away in silence under the brilliant stars.

When the incense of tobacco had cleared away the mists from the avenues of thought, the man of Ranaghat spoke. He was regularly employed on the railway, he said, and in favor with the Sahib superintendent of construction. A branch line was shortly to be built. Bridges and culverts were to be made. Many workmen would be employed for many months. He, Hazari Lal, had accumulated the sum of fifty rupees. They were now in a bag around his neck—five ten rupee bills—and their existence could be proven. It was now his thought to take a wife. With the fifty rupees and the wife and the rupees of the wife's dowry he would open a lodging house near unto the camp of construction. It is the habit of railway men to spend freely, as Bepin perhaps knew.

Bepin made a lightning calculation. The Ranaghat man had already fifty. It was evident, therefore, that he would expect to receive only fifty in return for the honor of becoming the husband of an unmarried daughter. Ram Singh's lowest figure had been seventy rupees. Besides, there would be Ram's relatives to feed, doubtless. On the other hand, here was a likely youth with a mind to a business of his own—a place where Bepin might pass his closing years in peace without drawing upon the five hundred in Debendra Nath's bank.

Business is business, however, and so Bepin protested that forty rupees was the uttermost limit of his resources.

Hazari Lal, being a railroad man, was not to let ten rupees come between him and what he wanted. The bargain was therefore closed on the basis of forty rupees, definitely and finally. Then Bepin went within and sent Munnessa out to get acquainted with her betrothed. Hazari Lal made no love talk with the future mistress of his household. That is not the way of the Bengali. Instead, he took up the business side of the future and painted the prospect in such vivid colors that Munnessa, who had never known aught but drudgery and abuse, also began to dream dreams. Besides, there was a world of difference between this resolute stranger and that patron of all the dissolute boles of Benares, Ram Singh.

But while Hazari Lal was unfolding the future of Munnessa, Ram arrived at the inn to collect his commissions on the guests whom he had piloted to Bhairo the evening before. Bepin grudgingly counted out the coppers to which he was entitled, after which the Benares suitor settled himself to take up the dowry negotiations where they had been left the night before. To his consternation and anger he learned that the girl had already been betrothed to one of the very guests whom he had brought to the door. He expressed his feelings in vigorous Bengali, but Bepin placidly puffed away at his hookah and let the young man exhaust his breath.

"And how much is the portion?" finally asked the disappointed suitor.

"That is a matter between him and me," answered Bepin.

"Which of the eight is he?"

The Shadow on the Water.

"He sits in the courtyard," answered the innkeeper complacently.

Ram took a long look at the ambitious youth in the blue turban, then strode indignantly out of the hut without even speaking to the man shrouded in smoke. Then he hastened to the Dalkimandi girls with the story of his wrongs and there learned that the man who loses receives small sympathy from dancing girls.

The next day Hazari Lal tramped into Benares to visit the famous shrines and invoke the favor of the gods upon his enterprise. Incidentally he hoped to rejoin his companions from Ranaghat. At the Well of Knowledge, which is one of the dwelling places of Shiva, whose colossal stone bull crouches near by, he met Ram Singh. It was near midday, and he did not know that Ram's observant eye had never left him from the moment he came down the Bhairo highway. The young railroader was not displeased to see one familiar face in the great crowd.

"To which of the sacred places have you made pilgrimage?" asked Ram, with a show of friendly interest.

Hazari named them—the Manikarnika Well, which is filled with the perspiration of Vishnu; the Golden Temple, the Shrine of Ganesha and the Well of Knowledge.

"Then you have not gone to the Well of Fate?"

"And what is that?" asked Hazari.

"Oh, every pilgrim goes to Kal-Kup," was the answer. "It is beside the temple that is near unto the Town Hall."

"And what is its virtue?"

"It has a large opening in the covering. When the town clock strikes the hour of twelve the pilgrim looks through this opening to discern the will of the gods. If all be well he will see his shadow on the water. If he sees not his shadow then must he die within the half year. It is very certain."

Hazari reflected. A man about to engage in an important business should not lightly disregard an opportunity to learn if he shall live to see it through.

"Is the cost great?" he asked.

"Nay. The priest of the temple is known to me. I can arrange it for a few annas. Come," and he steered Hazari toward the Kal-Kup as he had guided many a simple pilgrim before.

When they reached the well they found a group of other pilgrims waiting to peer into their future. Ram took the priest aside and said a few words to him in a low tone. The priest's sleek face lighted up and Ram came back to Hazari.

"I have arranged with him for half a rupee, as a matter of friendship," he explained confidentially. "Others are here before thee, but the priest promises to admit thee first of all."

The Will of the Gods.

Hazari transferred the half rupee to Ram's waiting palm and they stood in silence to await the hour of noon. As the first stroke of the bell sounded the priest pushed aside the more urgent of the pilgrims and motioned to Hazari. He showed him where to stand so that his shadow would naturally fall through the opening and told him to look intently.

Hazari looked intently. Then he looked more intently. A clammy perspiration broke out on his forehead and he leaned forward in his anxiety. He could see the dim reflection of sunlight upon putrid water, but there was not a vestige of shadow.

He called aloud to the priest and bade him also look. The priest peered into the well and then sadly shook his head.

"It is the will of the gods," he said. The death will come within six months. Put thyself in readiness to meet it."

Great consternation spread among the pilgrims at this announcement, and they made way for Hazari to pass through their midst just as if it were his funeral procession already passing. It was some minutes before another pilgrim ventured to approach the well, but the priest was patient. Hazari's gloom deepened as the second man gave a great outcry of joy and pointed to his distinct shadow in the water below.

As Hazari stood gazing despondently in the direction of the well, which had been to him the Well of Doom, Ram drew near in the guise of a comforter.

"The gods of the Benares are many and gracious," he said cunningly. "There may be a way in which to avert the calamity."

A look of appeal and hope came into the eyes of the man of Ranaghat.

"Wait thou here until I have speech again with the priest. If there be a door of escape he will show it to me for friendship's sake."

Another whispered conversation followed and Ram came back gloomily.

"There is a way," he said, "but the cost thereof is too high."

"How high?" asked the railroad man, grasping at the straw.

"Pilgrims have paid unto the temple as much as five hundred rupees to break the spell of doom," said the shrewd Ram, watching the other's face. "I could secure it for one hundred, but a sum like that is beyond thee." This was said in a tone of finality, as one bids farewell to another at the gates of death.

"I have but fifty rupees," said Hazari.

"I will speak again with the priest, but I fear there is no hope."

When Ram and the priest put their heads together a long and whispered argument resulted. As soon as the priest had been told of the pilgrim's hasty betrothal to the daughter of five hundred rupees his gambling instinct suggested delay. Bepin, himself in mortal fear of the gods, probably would supply another fifty and the doomed man would duly appear at the temple on the morrow with the full hundred. Ram favored immediate acceptance of the fifty on the ground that a bird in the hand is worth many flying, and even offered to reduce his own commission on the transaction. But the priest was firm. There was no other temple in India that could set aside the verdict of Kal-Kup, and an extra fifty rupees was worth a day's wait.

Ram regretfully explained to Hazari that the ritual of averting death was very costly, and the priest could not reduce the price, even for friendship to Ram. Then he blandly suggested that Hazari return to Bhairo and solicit the other fifty from Bepin.

But this was not an alluring prospect to Hazari. He was standing amid the ruins of his air castle, for the payment of even fifty rupees would leave him penniless. He then told Ram Singh about the railroad lodging house which was to be at Ranaghat, and the recital gave the rejected suitor inward satisfaction. He knew that Bepin would now regard the matter of the marriage in a very different light. Then he set Hazari on the way to Bhairo, promising to see him at the inn that evening.

On the steps of the temple had been standing an interested observer of Ram's negotiations, a tall Hindu with a turban that marked him as a man of a different faith. It was Saller Bux Shaik, the Mohammedan, professional guide, and, therefore, a business rival of Ram. Saller Bux had recently lost the patronage of some English ladies from Calcutta through the chicanery of Ram Singh, and his soul rankled. The Mohammedan decided that heaven had sent him a chance to get even.

Keeping Hazari in sight as he wended his sorrowful way through the crowd, Saller Bux waited until he neared the outskirts of the native city and then bore down upon him. Little by little he extracted an account of Hazari's life and of the trouble at the Well of Fate, which was what he had guessed it to be.

With the zeal of a true son of the prophet, backed up by the satisfaction of evening his score with Ram, Saller Bux shed a great light on the matter.

"Kal-Kup is not a well, but a trap to catch pilgrims and skin their eye teeth," declared the Mohammedan. "Did you see a priest who was not fat?"

Hazari remembered that the priest of the Well did not show traces of emaciation.

"Why are they fat?" demanded Saller Bux. "Because they feed on the rupees of pilgrims who see no shadow in the well."

"But the second man saw his shadow," protested Hazari bitterly.

Trick of the Priests.

"He would not have seen it had he been the first to look," said the Mohammedan. "Listen to me. The hole is so placed that the shadow can be seen exactly at noon—not a minute before. But the clocks of Benares are all set with Madras time—a railroad man ought to know that—and Madras time is several minutes slow. You looked into the well as the clock began to strike twelve, Madras time, and you could not possibly see anything. It is an old trick of the priests."

When Saller Bux saw that Hazari still had lingering fears he bade himself go to the railway station and assure himself with regard to the Benares clocks. The man of Ranaghat started on the trot, for he well knew that the Sahib station master would speak words of truth.

Half an hour later Hazari was on his way toward Bhairo with a great load lifted from his soul, but with hot indignation against the perpetrator of the trick, who had so nearly brought him to ruin. To Bepin he told the story, and Bepin confirmed the fact about Benares time.

As twilight fell upon the village Ram Singh sauntered into Bepin's place, buoyant and hopeful. He inquired for Hazari. Bepin, puffing away at his hookah, silently pointed to the courtyard. Ram went out to seek the man of Ranaghat.

And he found him. And the man of Ranaghat arose in the strength with which he was wont to pound the spikes. He fell upon Ram Singh and smote him with increasing delight until Ram broke from his clutches and went fleeing in the direction of Benares. Meanwhile Bepin calmly puffed away without shaking an ash from his hookah.

If you chance to pass Ranghat, on the Eastern Bengal, perhaps your eye may light upon a neat mud house covered with red tiles and decorated with a sign which in the Bengali tongue offers high grade lodging for man and beast. Inside you will find a prosperous young Bengali listening to tales told by the bridge builders on the branch road, while a sleek young matron is singing a lullaby between intervals of sharp directions to servants who are bending over the cooking in the courtyard.

And beside the fire, with his legs crossed under him, is a worn and wrinkled Bengali, who will tell you that he was once keeper of a pilgrims' inn nigh unto Benares. And the rings of smoke that rise from his inseparable hookah remind him of the round rupees that repose safely in the strong-box of Debendra Nath.

Virginia Farmers Reject Yellow Backs When Mr. Perkins Offers Temptation.

EVEN their adamant prejudice against taking an active interest in anything [illegible] was overcome by the residents of Esmont, Va., some time ago when George W. Perkins' private car, the Hecate, was drawn onto the siding near the railroad station.

Scarcely had the brakes stopped the palatial car when Mr. Perkins stepped onto the platform and looked about for a horse and carriage which he had ordered by telegraph to meet him.

No such telegram had been received in Esmont, and the operator in that thriving community "reckoned" that none would be received until Monday morning. The wires were not in the habit of being worked on Sundays. The agent at the station where Mr. Perkins had written the telegram had no power to hold up a special train, but he could fail to send the despatch.

Mr. Perkins' destination was a considerable distance from the railroad station and he did not feel like walking. When he heard it rumored among the onlookers who had gathered to inspect the Hecate that a big religious meeting was to be held at Zion Hall he took heart, for that would mean that many horses and carriages would pass by the station.

He, fortified with a generous roll of paper money, he waited for the procession of vehicles. When at last they appeared all were travelling in the wrong direction, but Mr. Perkins did all in his power, with a display of green and yellow bills, to persuade some farmer to turn round and take him to his destination.

None would accept pay on Sunday, nor would they, in response to verbal appeals that might have wrung the heart of a stone, give the man who had millions of dollars at his disposal a gratuitous "lift." He seemed to have business to transact, and this was a violation of Sabbath propriety in which none would participate, however remotely.

At last a young German, who was accustomed to a Continental Sunday, took Mr. Perkins to his destination, and as a climax to the whole affair refused with great indignation to accept money for the service.

Upon his return to the Hecate Mr. Perkins discharged his debt to the community at large by having the chef serve raspberry ice cream through the window to the children and give a case of beer to the station master.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

In The Shadow of Death

"Good evening, Pierre."

"Good, evening, Maria."

Many, many times the two old friends had met and exchanged greeting in this scrupulously neat, old-fashioned drawing room, which any one could see at the very first glance belonged to an old maid. There were times, indeed, when hardly an evening passed that Captain Menil did not come to ask his friend to play Beethoven or Chopin to him on the old square piano, or to give him a cup of her delicious China tea.

Since then, however, the war had broken out, and even if their hearts remained the same their minds necessarily became occupied with other things.

"I see you are kniting for the soldiers, Marie."

"Like everybody else. Winter is approaching. You don't mind my going on, do you?"

"Of course, I don't. I have come to say good-bye."

"You are going away?"

"Like everybody else. I could not bear the idea of staying at home when I am still able to serve my country."

Marie Renaud had laid aside her knitting and her hands trembled.

"Yes," she said, in a voice that shook with emotion, "I know what it cost you to give up your military career while you were still young, because you had your old mother to provide for."

"She had set me the best example in the world by her devotion to me. But I must admit there are two things that have cost me considerable suffering. One was to give up my career and the other to give up our marirage. We may talk quite frankly of this now?"

"Alas," she said and quite mechanically her hand went to her white hair, which stood in strange contrast to her eyes and youthful smile.

"Yes," he said, "everything conspired against us. We were both poor and both had heavy responsibilities, and so you have had to make a living giving music lessons, while I had to give up my career."

"It was necessary, Pierre, and you know I gave it up only five years ago, when I got that small inheritance from my aunt."

"It was the same year I lost my dear old mother," said Pierre. "I was 50."

"And I was 45."

"It was too late then."

"Yes, too late."

"Especially for me. No, please do not protest, Marie. I have seen few women remain young as you have done. All that is past now. But I am glad at least that I have got grown too old to fight for France now when she needs all her sons. Oh, Marie, you can't realize what it means to me at my age once more to find myself at the head of my company and that in time of actual war. At the bottom of my heart I have always been a soldier before anything else and now it is even a certain relief to know that one's life is not necessary to anybody but that I have a perfect right to offer it to my country."

He had no idea how deeply these words wounded the heart of the woman to whom he was talking. She had taken up her knitting once more and kept her eyes lowered, bravely bearing up under the wounds which he was unconsciously inflicting upon her.

"And are you going away soon?" she asked.

"In three days I join my old regiment. But what is the matter with you, Marie? Are you not well?" he exclaimed, noticing the change that had come in to her face.

"It is nothing, Pierre. Merely the sudden shock of your departure, which I ought to have foreseen, knowing you as well as I do and for which I can only love you even more."

Tears smothered her voice and fell down on her brown knitting work.

"Marie," cried Pierre, deeply moved, "is it possible that you are crying because I am going away?"

She raised her frank blue eyes to him and said:

"At my age, Pierre, there is no excuse for false modesty. The memories of our youth and our love have been my life's costliest treasure, as your faithful friendship for a lonely old maid has been my only solace!"

"Forgive me, dear friend. I ought to have told you about my departure in a more gentle way. Had I only known"——

"Yes, it hurt me to find that you even for a moment have been able to doubt my affection."

"Oh! If I had only known," he repeated. "Five years ago when we both became free and independent that was a short moment when I thought of our old plans, but then, I told myself that I was an old fool."

For a few minutes they looked into each other's souls in deep silence.

"Marie," he said then, "is it too late now to offer you my name?"

"My dear friend," she said, "people would laugh at us."

"They would laugh at us both then. But really I don't think anybody would laugh after all. Listen," Pierre said, pointing to the open window. "Noisy Paris is almost quiet now. Everybody has duties to attend to, the nursing of the wounded, the feeding of the poor and hungry, the wiping away of the tears of thousands of unfortunates. Ask your own heart, Marie. Leave out everything else. If I do not return will you be my widow? One must be prepared for anything. Widow's weeds will be very fashionable this year, my dear old friend. And if I should come back our marriage would pass quite unnoticed; there would simply be more gray-haired couples.

"My friend," she said simply, "it has been the dream of my life."

"Then let it be to-morrow, dear. You know they have done away with all dilatory red tape at the Mayor's. We don't even need any witnesses. Time is very favourable to us."

He smiled, but there was a tear in his smile.

And this is how Marie Renaud, now Marie Pierre Menil, is experiencing the cruel hapoiness of trembling and hoping for her husband.

BAD TIME COMING.

Young Turks' Lot Will Not Be an Enviable One Presently.

PARIS, March 8.—A Turkish gentleman who belongs to the school of old Turks, and who, though being a resident in Paris for a long number of years, is in close touch with what is happening in Turkey, discussed yesterday the aspect of the situation at the Dardanelles as it appears to be developing. He said: "From what I know of Turkey and the Far East, the fall of Constantinople will mean the complete discrediting of Germany. Hitherto the people in Constantinople and throughout the empire have been fed on lies, and once they realize the truth, as they will do when Constantinople is forced to capitulate, they will be furious with the Government that misled them. A massacre of Young Turks will be one almost certain result, and I have, for my own part, little doubt that as soon as the first battleship is seen from Constantinople the people will take things into their own hands, and white flags will be seen flying from windows in every house in town."

Delayed "Last Moments."

In the battle of Friedland, on June 14, 1807, there was a young lieutenant in Napoleon's army named Schramm. When the victorious general was riding over the battlefield that evening he came upon the eighteen-year-old officer lying on the ground mortally wounded and weeping bitterly.

"Why do you weep?" asked Napoleon as he rode by.

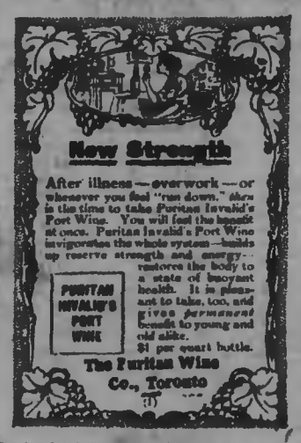
"Because I must die before I can become a captain," the youth complained.

The words of the dying lieutenant softened the emperor's heart. "My son, I shall gladly fulfill your wish," he said. "I hereby advance you to the rank of captain."

The unexpected promotion actually saved the boy's life. He recovered. Later on he fought most valiantly for the cause of Napoleon, and by the time of the battle of Waterloo he had already become a general. He outlived his "last moments" on the field of Friedland by more than seventy years.

Foodstuffs Got to Germany.

Since the war began the following foodstuffs have found their way to Germany from Canada: 983 barrels of pickled salmon, value $20,388; 356 barrels of flour, value $1,282; 40,000 bushels of wheat, value $38,240. The wheat, however, was for elga produce.



Mrs. Elgin Cossett, Joggin Bridge, N.S., says:—"When my little daughter was five months old a rash broke out on her face and body. I called in a doctor, who stated that it was eczema, and treated her for it. His treatment, however, did not bring any relief, and the child got worse. I then tried a great many salves and so-called eczema cures, but nothing proved of any benefit. The sores continued to spread, and became one large mass. One day a friend advised me to try Zam-Buk.

"At that time the disease had defied all remedies for over a year. By the time I had used one box of Zam-Buk there was a marked improvement. I continued the Zam-Buk treatment and day by day the sores showed signs of improvement. Finally Zam-Buk banished every trace of the disease."

For the tender delicate skin of babies, nothing equals Zam-Buk. Unlike other ointments, it is purely herbal.

Use Zam-Buk for cuts, burns, bruises, eczema, piles, cold sores, chapped hands, and all skin diseases and injuries. At all druggists and stores, 50c. box. Name "Zam-Buk" is on every box, refuse substitutes.

ZAM-BUK CURED ME."

EARL OF CADOGAN DEAD.

Former Lord Lieutenant of Ireland Was a Wealthy Landlord.

LONDON, March 8.—The Earl of Cadogan died here Saturday at the age of 75 years. He was one of the wealthiest London ground landlords and a great entertainer of royalty. Three heirs to the title died during his lifetime.

Earl Cadogan was Lord Lieutenant of Ireland from 1895 to 1902. He also had been Lord of the Privy Seal; Under Secretary of War for the Colonies, and member of Parliament for Bath.

Five years ago the aged Earl caused considerable surprise in London by his marriage to his cousin, the Countess Palagi at Florence. His first wife, a daughter of the second Earl of Craven, died in 1907. She was the leader of the Cadogan regime at Dublin Castle, which was one of the most brilliant on record.

Earl Cadogan's son, Viscount Chelsea, will succeed to the title.

Confesses to Murder.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 8.—Alfred Sells confessed Saturday that he had murdered Mrs. Jacob Vogel in her home in the outskirts of Oakland, Cal., Feb. 11, and that a man who accompanied him killed her husband. The motive of the murder was robbery. Sells' confession came after he had been promised immunity from hanging.

Victuallers Want Bylaw Quashed.

LONDON, Ont., March 8.—Justice Middleton, of Toronto, at the weekly session of the High Court here Saturday, reserved decision in the motion of the London Licensed Victuallers' Association to quash the license reduction bylaw indorsed by the ratepayers in January last. The hotelmen claim that the petition upon which the vote was based was insufficiently signed.

BANDITS IN MONTREAL.

Gang Attacks Car Crew: Italians Besiege Officials' Office.

MONTREAL, March 8.—The police of this city have had a strenuous time Friday night and Saturday morning. At midnight Friday five bandits boarded a St. Catharine street car and when the conductor demanded their fares he was attacked. There was a fearful fight in which the conductor, motorman and a passenger battled the bandits. The five got away, but the street was covered with blood and the conductor is positive he fractured the skull of one of his assailants with his cash box.

Two men attempted to rob a Chinese grocer because he would not give them cigarettes on credit. He fought and police landed the two in jail. Then Saturday morning 500 Italians besieged the road department office in the north end division. Police had to be called to quiet the riot among the unemployed foreigners.

Company Calls For Help.

WINDSOR, March 8.—A Walkerville clothing company, which has a contract for making 200,000 pairs of trousers for British soldiers has sent out an appeal to any woman or girl who can sew by hand to come to the factory and assist in getting out the work, which calls for 5,000 pairs a day.

Many married women of the border municipalities have given their services, deeming it an act of patriotism, as the sooner the trousers are made the sooner the men can get to the firing line.

Bankrupt Banker Ends Life.

CHICAGO, March 8. — While several policemen were struggling to maintain order among hundreds of anxious depositors in the private bank of Meccia and Manno, which closed its doors Saturday, another policeman discovered the body of Ignazio Meccia, senior partner of the firm, on his lot in Mount Carmel cemetery here Saturday. He had committed suicide by shooting probably Friday night.

Where Responsibility Ends.

During the time of the Boer war, a letter had been received by the sergeant-major in an artillery regiment from the War Office with reference to one Gunner Brown, who, reported dead, had arrived at Woolwich. Could a full and satisfactory explanation of same be forwarded? The non-com. thereupon sought the officer commanding the battery, who dictated the following delicious reply:

"Brown was an old comrade of mine. I visited him when dying, and afterwards attended his funeral. Hence, I know that he is dead, and am considerably surprised to hear of his return to Woolwich, but pleased exonerate me from further blame, inasmuch as I am not responsible for his subsequent movements."

Rebuked.

"Guilty or not guilty?" asked a Dutch justice of a prisoner.

"Not guilty."

"Den var vos vant here? Go abor your business!"

Free speech is a precious right, and so is free action. But the tongue has no more right than the hand to abuse its freedom.

Trusting In The All-Powerful One

"In nothing be anxious: but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God." Phil. iv., 6.

Paul sent this message to the Philippians from prison. His heart was tender and grateful towards them, for the present of money they had sent him to help supply his needs. It must have meant a great deal to them, when they thought of him who wrote it, in the midst of his own trials and privations.

The "nothing" and the "everything" include all; the small causes for anxieties as well as the great; the little annoyances that fret and hurt; the misunderstandings that cause so much trouble; the pressing need to meet certain obligations; the constant struggle to make ends meet; the cares and strain of every-day work; the disappointments we find so trying; the heavy sorrow so hard to bear.

Life is transformed, if this verse becomes a living, daily reality, by taking all the troubles and griefs, straight to our Heavenly Father.

There is one important thought which is often overlooked, and that is that there must be prayer before our requests are made. We must pray earnestly that God will direct us in our petitions, and that our will and wishes may not be the dominant note.

Also we must not forget the thanksgiving. How often we feel hurt and annoyed when, although we have done a great deal for another, we never receive an expression of gratitude for that one. Just so over and over again do we forget to thank our Father for blessings and help received, though it would seem that the first thought would be one of thankfulness towards Him.

This verse is followed by the one: "And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall guard your hearts and your thoughts in Christ Jesus."

Paul could not have written this so convincingly if he had not himself realised its preciousness in those hard days of his imprisonment.—I, H. N.

FELL IN A FAINT.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall to the floor. I could not conquer without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can wash and do my housework. Your medicine cured me when doctors had failed."

King George's War Map.

With regard to the ever-changing panorama as evidenced by the long struggle between the allies and the Germans, there is a most perfect system in use at Buckingham Palace by which the disposition of the troops and the fleet can be seen at a glance by means of elaborate plans and maps, as well as models. A large saloon is specially set apart for the purpose, and to this none have access but King George, his chief private secretary, and the civil and active heads of the navy and army.

The double doors of this apartment are kept locked, and, with the corridor approach, are guarded night and day. The exact position of all war craft, with names of vessels and gun complement and other details, is shown on one plan, while another shows the seat of war, with trenches, forts, towns, and disposition of all troops, our own and the allies, clearly designated.

NEWS OF HUSBAND'S DEATH IN RUSSIAN ARMY PRECEDED DEBUT

NEW YORK, March 9.—Mme. Walska, the Russian-Polish singer, didn't make her long-heralded debut in New York as she expected to do the other day. The gay little skit she brought from Petrograd introduced another singer, and while the public was applauding her play, Mme. Walska was grieving over the death of her husband, Capt. Walska, of the Russian army, who had been killed in East Prussia.

The cable announcing his death on the battlefields came just a few hours before his wife was to have made her American stage debut.

Nervous Prostration and Heart Troubles

Nervous Prostration, or Neurasthenia, is one of the worst forms of nerve trouble and brings about a general weakness of the whole nervous system.

The symptoms presenting themselves are headache, a feeling of depression disturbed and restless, unfreshing sleep, often troubled with dreams, fright when in crowded places, dread of being alone, horror of society, fright of travelling, muscular weakness, sense of fatigue upon effort, etc.

All are curable if taken in time.

Milburns Heart and Nerve Pills are just what you require at this time. They strengthen the nerves and build up the whole system.

Mrs. John Hewson, Caledonia, Ont. writes: "I feel it my duty to let you know the great benefit your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills did for me I suffered for four years with heart trouble and nervous prostration. I was so bad I could not go up stairs without sitting down at the top before I could go to my room. I could not sleep nor could I lie on my left side, for it would seem as if my heart would stop. I thought my time had come. I was doctoring with the doctor, but didn't get any benefit. I took eight boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and am enjoying good health."

Price, 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

Children's dresses are not intended to be crisp as was once the fashion, but must fall in soft folds and necessarily be made of soft materials. Smocking is a delightful touch for frocks of this character and very smart besides, but it is not every woman who knows how to accomplish it, or, knowing, cares to make the attempt. Fine shirrings, as used for the dress illustrated, are a very good substitute for smocking and, of course, very easily managed. The shirring in this instance is made at front and back of the neck and front of the waist, ribbon ties starting at the waist shirrings and lapping once over in the back.

The material is figured mull, white and blue, with a blue ribbon sash. There are three ways of treating the sleeve, finishing with the little frill, with the sleeve band or having the full length sleeve with wristband. The pattern, No. 7025 comes in sizes 2, 4 and 6 years.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

The fine weather of Sunday rather interfered with the attendance at the Life Problem Club, and in view of the uncertainty in the attendance during the fine spring weather a series of meetings will be conducted by the Y.M.C.A. staff.

The Club yesterday was addressed by C. N. Meserve, General Secretary, who took for his subject, "Money, Maidens and Matrimony." The Secretary stated that, while the Club had considered some very important problems during the season, he felt if the right solution could be obtained to the three problems concerned in the topic, that the young men would be practically assured of success in life.

Money

A number of scriptural references were read, showing the value of money from a scriptural standpoint. The Secretary claimed that it was right to acquire money honestly. That money was a power that should not be ignored but, if possible, should be possessed by every man. He quoted Sir Buller Lytton, who said, "Money is character, how you get it, how you keep it, and how you invest it." Also Dr. J. N. Gordon, who has said, "Time is money, money is character, character is destiny."

Some of the modern methods of acquiring money are little better than robbery and gambling. To get a corner of the necessities of life like a corner of wheat in the stock market is robbery, as is also to take advantage of a person on a real estate deal. Monopolies are unfair because they seek to take advantage of the weak. Industrial slavery is unfair for it is an effort to take advantage of the person whose capital is labour. Acquire money, but not for the sake of money alone, but that it may make you more useful in life.

Maidens

The Secretary rather opposed the idea that women were the weaker sex. He quoted from a recent article by Irving Cobb, regarding the martyr maid of Dolhain, Belgium—the girl who for two days kept the Belgian Artillery informed as to the movements of the Germans who were besieging Liege. He also mentioned other girls who had become heroines in the time of war and peace.

Lessons were drawn from Jacob, who worked fourteen years for Rachel. From Esther, the beautiful orphan who attracted the king, and from the words of Agur in the 30th of Proverbs, who stated, "There are four things which I know not, the way of an eagle in the air; the way of a serpent upon a rock; the way of a ship in the midst of the sea; and the way of a man with a maid."

Marriage

Quotation was made from Gen. ii., 18, where the statement is made it is not good for man to be alone. Also from Hebrews xiii., 14: "Marriage is honourable in all." Marriage is the most sacred ordinance. It was sanctioned by Christ at the marriage of Cana of Galilee. It is used as a symbol to represent Christ's relation to His Church, and one of the most beautiful thoughts that a Christian may possess is that Christ is coming again for His bride, the Church.

Marriage kills selfishness, while every man and woman living alone is apt to acquire only selfish motives.

The Secretary closed his address by quoting from Elbert Hubbard, who recommends stretching or reaching up as a good physical exercise. The application was that we should seek the highest things in all walks in life, and this would help us the means of solving the problems presented by "Money, Maidens and Matrimony."

The young men very freely discussed the following questions which were presented and which, it is suggested, would be helpful to any Men's Bible Class or Brotherhood who wish to seek a solution for problems that confront men:

1. To what extent can a young man who desires to follow a certain vocation be discriminating in the selection of a job?
2. What part of a young man's earnings should be set aside as a saving?
3. What part given to benevolent causes?
4. How should a young man invest his savings?
5. Should a young man keep a record of his earnings and expenses?
6. What is the minimum amount on which a single man may live and not simply exist?
7. Should the possession of, or the lack of, money on the part of a young woman be considered by the young man who is thinking of matrimony?
8. Should a man have a bank account before he marries?
9. Should the law fix a standard that a young man should be required to measure up to before he marries?
10. Should this standard be financial, moral, physical, temperamental or what?
11. What qualities should a young man look for in the woman he expects to make his wife?

It was with great regret that the Association said farewell to the nineteen members of the Mounted Rifles who are Association members. We bid them God-speed and trust that they will faithfully represent their King and country.

We have eleven members with the 39th Infantry, who also have a warm place in the affection of the Y.M.C.A. members.

John Galsworthy's new novel "The Freelands," lately started as a serial in Scribner's Magazine, is concerned with the lives and characters of the several members of an English family of that name.

Barry Pain, who is making his first visit to this country in celebration of the first publication of his books in the United States, says that he had never seen so many bathrooms in his life before and that there ought to be a statute in honour of the first American plumber erected as a companion to the figure of Liberty in New York harbour.

SMYRNA IS ABOUT TO FALL BRITISH OCCUPATION OF CITY

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 9.—(Special cable).—Smyrna is about to fall before Rear Admiral Peirse's fleet, according to despatches from Athens to-day.

Only three Turkish land batteries are now replying to the fire of the British squadron which has moved into the harbour and is now shelling the enemy's guns high on the hills in the Turkish quarter of the city.

Meanwhile a steady rain of fire, a shell nearly every minute, is pouring in upon the Dardanelle forts. Aeroplanes, first used only for reconnoitring purposes, are dropping bombs upon small Turkish batteries.

The 16,500 ton battleships Lord Nelson and Agamenon are battering away at the Turkish forts inside the strait, while the Queen Elizabeth is hurling great shells across Gallipoli peninsula in an Adriatic indirect at tack.

British occupation of Smyrna is expected to be the first decisive victory in the naval war against the Sultan. With Smyrna forts levelled, marines will be landed under the protection of the warship's guns to seize the city. Little opposition from the Turkish garrison is expected.

The Admiralty again emphasized to-day that the Dardanelles fighting has just begun.

Official word that the Russian fleet has raided several Black Sea towns of Bosphorus, confirmed the belief in Admiralty circles that the Czar's Black Sea fleet is not contemplating an attempt to force the Bosphorus and attack Constantinople from the east. The Russian squadrons, it was unofficially stated, will continue to harass the Turkish coasts, meanwhile lying in wait to engage the Turkish fleet if it flees into the Black Sea.

War Spirit of French Women

French women meet the war with characteristic courage and no allusions as to its effect upon their lives. They know that it must change the whole current of their existence, and they have adopted an attitude of dignified resignation. There is very little visible excitement, whether the news be bad or good, but there is a quite extraordinary power of resistance written in the lines of their faces and in the way in which they go about their daily duties.

Many of them wear the long crepe veil, which tells its own tale, but the faces under the veils are perfectly calm. Here and there a recent loss will show its ravages, but the general impression of how Frenchwomen are taking their trial is a quiet one. They bracketed themselves to sacrifice at the beginning of the war, and they are still holding steady.

It has been rumoured that Frenchwomen are tired of the war. This may be true of a very small number of ease loving or money making women, whose power to endure has been weakened by too much luxury or too much bargain striking; but the true Frenchwomen, the aristocrat of every class, will never be tired of the war as long as the welfare of France and the peaceful future of her children hang in the balance.

* * * *

Until the soldiers of France claim peace the Frenchwomen will never demand it, and no political eloquence will move them from their stronghold of endurance if the soldiers bid them to stand steady.

We see two sentinels guarding a gateway; one is rubbing his hands and saying with glee "Nous les tenons, nous les tenons!" to which the other answers a little anxiously, "Oui pourvu que les civils tiennent!" This little gilded philosophic pill was administered to a faint heart by a woman who is at the head of one of the most important business houses in Paris.

She, too, is a little anxious, and said, "You know our character. We are ready to make supreme sacrifices, but we are impatient for a quick reward, and it is to be sincerely hoped that the war will not be very long."

In quite another sphere of life, where the women are widely read, and in some cases, widely travelled, opinion runs much on the same lines. France first, and after France their men. Of themselves they say little, and although a very young woman may break forth into an outburst of revolt against the devastations of the war in general and her own troubles in particular, it is but a passing storm and she is as ready "to stand, and having done all, to stand," as her brother, her husband, or the deeply wounded mother, who, in spite of all her consolations, can never find joy in life again.

Such women as these show a most intelligent interest in the military operations, and even though they may be doing Red Cross work or relief work, they keep up with every move of the French army.

But beyond their own army and its movements they are regrettably ignorant, chiefly because they have no means by which to enlighten their ignorance. "Russia! Yes, perhaps but they are a long time getting to Berlin!" is a common remark on every side.

* * * *

On the subject of England they are at present rather more enlightened, thanks to the articles which have appeared in the French papers as a result of the French war minister's visit to England. But even now they are but vaguely conscious of England's part in the war. The real work of the navy is a closed book to them, and their idea of the English army is dominated by the exaggerated accounts of the luxuries with which our army goes to war.

As the French soldiers have no luxuries whatever, these accounts very naturally cause a slight irritation, such as an ordinary boarder might feel for a parlor boarder. As for our soldiers' habit of bathing and shaving under the most difficult conditions, the young, modern Frenchwoman often upholds it with fervour. Her argument in one case was that the old Greeks went to war with the same spirit.

The weaker feminine vessels in the war generally prove to be those whose losses have been entirely material. The fire of suffering has not strengthened them, but the loss of many comforts and distractions has made them bitterly discontented. They can neither make money nor spend it, and the result is a long monotony of empty days.—London Times.

125,000 HORSES BOUGHT FOR WAR

Dealer Who Has Purchased 20,000 for French Army Says Number May Exceed 150,000 Head

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK, March 8.—William Post and Son, of East Williston, L.I., are finishing up their second contract for supplying horses to the French army. The Long Island dealers were about the first in the field for cavalry and artillery horses, having started in to buy for export before the end of September. Their first order was for 10,000 head, and the contract on which they are now working is for a like number.

Mr. Post said yesterday that when they began to buy the military authorities wanted about sixty per cent. cavalry horses. So completely has the character of the war changed, however, that at present they are buying only artillery horses. The type of horse wanted for this work is almost the same as that in demand for farm purposes, and Mr. Post says the opening of the spring trade in farm horses is putting prices up with a rush all through the West.

At last accounts the gunners were costing the French Government $150 in the territory west of the Mississippi River. This sum pays for a big, rugged horse weighing from 1,150 to 1,400 pounds, the great majority ranging between 1,200 and 1,300 pounds.

Asked how many war horses had been purchased in the United States since the outbreak of hostilities, Mr. Post said it was impossible for anybody to estimate the number with accuracy, but it is his opinion that it would exceed 15,000, and might exceed 150,000. This estimate includes horses now awaiting shipment as well as those sent abroad.

In speaking of the cavalry horses he said that most of those taken were of a type and grade for which there is little demand in this country.

"The country is better off without them," he declared, adding: "They were good enough for the army, but of little account here since the great Western cattle ranges and ranches have been cut up into farms."

"The American citizen," says Geo. Fitch in "Sizing Up Uncle Sam," "is still so independent that he will walk ten miles to hit a trust with a brick. But the trouble is the trust usually buys the brick from him before he throws it."

HOW TO PREVENT ACID STOMACHS

AND FOOD FERMENTATION

By a Stomach Specialist.

As a specialist who has spent many years in the study and treatment of stomach troubles, I have been forced to the conclusion that most people who complain of stomach trouble possess stomachs that are absolutely healthy and normal. The real trouble, that which causes all the pain and difficulty, is excessive acid in the stomach, aggravated by food fermentation. Hyperacidity irritates the delicate lining of the stomach and food fermentation causes wind which distends the stomach abnormally, causing that full bloated feeling. These both acid and fermentation interfere with and retard the process of digestion. The stomach is usually healthy and normal, but irritated almost past endurance by them foreign elements—acid and wind. In all such cases—and they comprise over 90 per cent. of all stomach difficulties—the first and only step necessary is to neutralize the acid and stop the fermentation by taking in a little warm or cold water immediately after eating, from one to two teaspoonfuls of bisurated magnesia, which is doubtless the best and only really effective antacid and food corrective known. The acid will be neutralized and the fermentation stopped almost instantly, and your stomach will at once proceed to digest the food in a healthy, normal manner. Be sure to ask your druggist for the bisurated magnesia, as I have found other forms utterly lacking in its peculiarly valuable properties.—F. J. G.

EMPLOYEES MUST NOT PATRONIZE SALOONS

WARREN, Pa., March 8.—The Conplanter Refining Co. has promulgated a general order for its employees to the effect that any of them who patronize saloons will be immediately discharged.

The lead of the Conplanter has been followed by other factories and refineries operating on the Flats and Mr. Stone, of the Warren Axe and Tool Works, stated that his company favours the move.

The step by the Conplanted Co. is but a local move in the great temperance wave that is sweeping the county, one of whose storm centres has momentarily settled in this city, and if other factories and refineries come out with as open declaration as has the Conplanted, the liquor traffic in Warren will have been dealt the worst blow in its history.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irriration or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

Heavy German Assault Repulsed

ENEMY ARE MOWED DOWN BY RAPID FIRERS

THE RUSSIANS ARE ON THE OFFENSIVE

Have Dislodged the Germans From Positions Along the Plica in South-east Poland--German Attacks Failed and the Czar's Troops Hurled Them Back.

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, March 9.—Russian infantry attacks have dislodged the Germans from several positions along the Pilica in southeast Poland, according to despatches from Warsaw.

The Russian offensive is proceeding in the direction of Tomasof. For four days furious fighting has been raging around a chain of stone farm buildings and villages in Pilica, in the Rakwa region. The Germans first attacked, hoping to find a weakness in the Russian line at this point. They hurled grenades and attempted to storm the Russian positions by bayonet attacks, but were routed. The Russians have taken the offensive along the river.

BERLIN, March 9.—In an article in Vorwaerts, the former London correspondent of the newspaper, in dealing with the Dardanelles attack says: "The composition of the British fleet appears to confirm the rumour that Great Britain has added two squadrons of new ships to her navy since the war began. The sending of the Queen Elizabeth type of vessels to the Mediterranean shows how little is the anxieyt the British Admiralty feels concerning its superiority in the North Sea. The view is generally expressed that the Dardanelles cannot be forced without a heavy landing party. However, this difficulty should not be given exaggerated importance. It is a great mistake to view the operations against the Dardanelles as a mere bluff."

SLOWLY WITHDRAWING

PETROGRAD, March 9.—Obstinate fighting marks the battles along the eastern front of the conflict, with the Germans slowly withdrawing from the River Niemen in the direction of their own Prussian frontier. At the same time the new offensive movement against Warsaw and on the Pilica evidently has not as yet developed into the great battle which has been expected in this locality.

U. S. SHIPS FOR VERA CRUZ

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels to-day ordered Admiral Fletcher to send two more battleships from Guantanamo to Vera Cruez. This is expected to have a salutory effect on Carransa. The latter's capital is Vera Cruz, and the presenc off that harbour of the United States dreadnoughts is expected to demonstrate that he has a duty and responsibility which cannot be shirked. In discussing the Mexican situation with callers, to-day, President Wilson made it evident he had not considered American armed intervention.

Concert Was A Success

A very large crowd enjoyed the concert at the S. A. Temple last evening in aid of supplies for the Shorncliffe Hospital in England. All the fifteen numbers were much appreciated, and a nice sum was given in the offering taken immediately after. Miss Caroline Peak addressed the meeting on the work of the Canadians in the hospital, relieving distress and suffering of the wounded.

Adj. McElhinny, who acted as chairman, told Miss Peck as the representative of the Peterborough Progressive Club that the Temple was open and their ability was at the disposal of the club at any time they wanted a few extra dollars for that

J. Telford the Winner

Was Successful in the Shoot-off at the Allies' Parlours To-day

The tie in the shooting competition at the Allie's Rifle Parlours was decided this afternoon when Mr. E. Telford of Peterborough won the suit of clothes offered for the best score in fifteen shots. Mr. Telford, Mr. J. Gillespie of Otonabee, and Mr. Sam Charlton of Lakefield, were all tied with a score of 74 out of a possible 75 when the competition closed last evening. In the first round of the shoot-off Gillespie and eTlford again tied with 71 out of 75, while Charlton's score was 68. Gillespie and Telford then took ten more shots, Telford scoring 44 and Gillespie 43 out of 50. Good scores in the competition were P. Blade 73, W. Evans 73, B. Dench, Lakefield 73, and R. Napness 73.

Louis Yeotes won the hat for the best score in fifteen shots at the Kaiser, knocking down the Kaiser 14 times out of 15. J. R. Wood was second in this competition. J. Gillespie captured the pair of boots for the best score in fifteen shots at the birds.

A SUBSTANTIAL DECREASE IN COST

Is Reported to the Ontario Legislature—Peterboro' Secures the Right to Raise $90,000 Without the Assent of the Ratepayers.

CITY'S PRIVATE BILL

TORONTO, March 9.—The City of Peterborough, through their Solicitor Mr. G. N. Gordon, and Mr. G. A. Gillespie, Liberal Member, asked for the right to vote such sums of money for the development of the Hydro electric scheme, as might be fixed by the Commission, without the assent of the ratepayers. Mr. Gordon pointed out that the city, over the system of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, in October last, had been able to make a reduction to the light users of from thirty to thirty-eight per cent. upon a capital basis of $250,000, in view of which he believed there would be no objection to allowing the Commission to raise such funds as may be necessary for the development of the work in Peterborough.

50 Per Cent. Decrease.

Sir Adam Beck was of the opinion that the principal of the request was not unreasonable. He insisted, however, that the Hydro Commission have the power to safeguard Peterborough ratepayers in the matter of expenditure by fixing the sum that the City Council could raise, at $80,000. Peterborough's reduction in cost had been phenomenal. In addition to the reductions reported by Mr. Gordon, Sir Adam Beck predicted a further decrease of twenty per cent., making a total reduction of approximately fifty per cent. since the city acquired possession of the system.

It was finally decided to limit the city's borrowing capacity for the purpose named to the sum of $90,000. Peterborough was also given power to vote $80,000 for the general use of the Public Utilities Commission and $10,000 to the Patriotic Fund.

The city was represented by His Worship Mayor Buller, Aldermen Duffus, Dobbin, City Solicitor Gordon and City Clerk Armstrong.

Peterborough's 1915 Tax Rate

Will Be Higher Than Last Year—The Provincial War Tax

A special meeting of the City Council will probably be held some time next week for the purpose of striking the tax rate for the current year. Since the last Council meeting each alderman has been supplied with a copy of the proposed estimates and such other information as may be necessary to enable them to adjudicate upon this all important matter. At the present time there is little prospect of a lower rate and the taxpayer may consider himself fortunate if he does not have to pay at least two extra mills on the dollar to meet the increased demands such as the Provincial war tax of one mill and such other taxes as may be imposed for war purposes. Last year's civic tax rate was twenty-six mills on the dollar, with an additional mill for garbage collection, making in all twenty-seven mills. So far as the Council is concerned it may be possible to negotiate another year with a similar rate. On top of that the Province steps in and adds one mill in the form of a Provincial war tax, besides increasing the cost of postage and a number of other items of equal importance.

AN INQUEST WILL BE HELD

Coroner Dr. Greer is Investigating the Circumstances in Connection With the Death of John Seeney

FOUND ON THE TRACK

An inquiry into the cause of the death of Mr. John Seeney, who passed away in Nicholls Hospital on Saturday morning last, is to be commenced at four o'clock this afternoon in Comstock's Undertaking parlours. This was ordered by Coroner Greer, the circumstances in connection with certain injuries from which death resulted, being brought to his attention.

[illegible] for the body, returning this forenoon.

The late Mr. Seeney was brought to this city on the afternoon of Sunday, February 21st, suffering from several injuries and from exposure. He arrived here about 4:30 p.m. He had been found at the mile post east of Norwood alongside the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks by a couple of men who happened to be passing near at that time. He was suffering so much and so badly frozen that he was almost unconscious. His arm was bent back and frozen stiff, and was broken in two places. His leg was broken, also his collar bone. There were cuts about his head and his face was frozen. A passing freight train was flagged and the injured man brought to this city where he was taken to the hospital under the directions of Dr. Cameron, C.P.R. physician. Practically no hopes were held out for his recovery at any time and he passed away on Saturday morning last. As the body was taken to Havelock for burial, it being necessary to have it here for the inquest, Detective Meagher was sent to Havelock last evening.

Jurors have been called and will be empanelled at 4 o'clock this afternoon before the coroner, Dr. Greer.

COL. OGILVIE TO VISIT CITY DURING WEEK

Deputy Assistant Adjutant General Will Inspect Local Company of 39th Battalion and the New Battery Recruits

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

Recruiting for the new battery and for the 39th Battalion continues steadily at the armouries and more new soldiers are being taken on daily. This morning there were six applicants to join the battery, which had accepted fifteen men up to last night. There were also a number for the 39th Battalion, which had 118 men on parade this morning.

The 39th detachment had a route march this morning to the golf links and returning through East City and across the Hunter Street bridge.

There is still no word of when the 39th Battalion will leave the city. In the meantime they are drilling faithfully six hours a day and will be a smart, well-trained bunch when they do take their departure. The platoon system is now being used with the company divided into two platoons.

Quartermaster Sergt. Edwards has taken over the duties of assistant caretaker at the armouries, succeeding Sergt-Major R. T. Bigga, now in Ottawa with the Mounted Rifles.

Col. Ogilvie of Kingston, Deputy Assistant Adjutant General, is expected to visit Peterborough this week to inspect the 39th Battalion company and the recruits for the new battery.

Keep Pay Back.

Two orders, both of which originated in Ottawa, have been issued that are of interest to recruits and military men generally.

Ten dollars is to be withheld from the pay of each man who enlisted after March 1, for a period of six months. This amount is to provide for civilian clothes of men who are discharged and to partly compensate the Government for military equipment issued to men who desert. After six months, the order says, the amount "may" be repaid, and civilian clothes will be issued free of charge to those discharged. The idea of this order is to protect the Government against part of the loss when men are discharged or desert.

In the case of a man who is seriously injured, and thereby put out of active service, the $10 will immediately be paid and the civilian clothes given.

A second order is aimed at those men whose parents or wives withdraw their consent after the former have gone into service, and comes direct from the Army Council. All non-commissioned officers or men of expeditionary forces or on service in Canada who apply for discharge, or whose parents or wives request discharge, shall have to return certain amounts of money before the discharge will be given. If the discharge is asked for before three months' service has been put in, the amount to be paid is $15;

The Fire Alarm Cable For Peterboro'

Ald. Duffus and Fire Chief Howard Are in Toronto To-day in Connection With the Matter

Ald. J. J. Duffus, Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, and Fire Chief Howard are in Toronto to-day in connection with the fire alarm cable that is being produced from the Independent Telephone Company for use in the paved sections of the city. Every precaution is being taken to procure a type of cable that will meet all requirements and resist the action to procure a type of cable that will meet all requirements and resist the action of electrolysis. The latter is a chemical action set up by stray or "sneak" currents that escape from the street railway system through the medium of the rails. They attack water mains, cable lines and in fact any metallic surface within reach. The trouble is caused when the current leaves the metal conductor for some other conductor of lesser resistance. By tying the different cable lines together so as to keep the current from deviating from its course the trouble is lessened to some extent. It is at this point of deviation that the chemical action is set up and the destruction of the metallic surface brought about.

Great care must also be exercised in laying the cables. Should the lead sheeting happen to be scratched when pulling the cable through the conduits it will weaken the cable at that point. The city will endeavour to see that the cable is laid according to the best available means, and in addition, will ask the Company to guarantee the work for a period of five years.

Sergeant-Tailor Irvine Receives a Wrist Watch

On Friday evening, Mr. Wilbert Irvine, one of the staff of Barrie's, Ltd., was presented with a military wrist watch and a fountain pen, on the eve of his departure with the 8th Mounted Rifles for Ottawa. Mr. Hiland, on behalf of the staff, read an address and made the presentation, to which Mr. Irvine made a neat reply, thanking them for so generous a present, and for their good wishes. Mr. Irvine has assigned with the 8th C. M. R. as sergeant tailor, and taken with him a host of good wishes for a safe return.

MASSED ATTACKS NEAR THE SEA COAST FAIL

German Infantry Attacked Belgian and French Positions After a Heavy Bombardment But Were Stopped Before They Reached the Barbed Wire Entanglement ---General French's Report.

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PARIS, March 9.—The most energetic assault yet delivered by the Germans near the sea coast in many weeks, was repulsed by the allied troops, it was reported in the despatches to the War office to-day. During the night the enemy violently bombarded the Belgian and the French positions south of Dixmude, near Ste-Enscraphe. The artillery assault was followed by a series of massed infantry attacks against the allied positions. The Germans were halted before they reached the barbed wire entanglements, and were mowed down by the rapid firers. The Germans have made several attacks near Reichackeskopf in the Vosges, but have been repulsed. The fighting continues in the Champaign region, but elsewhere there is a lull.

LONDON, March 9.—The British troops mined and blew up a German trench southeast of Ypres, Gen. French reported to-day. They occupied the wrecked earthworks long enough to drive the enemy from the adjoining trenches and then retired. The British commander paid a special tribute to the work of the British snipers in to-day's report. He said that they had demonstrated their superiority over the British sharpshooters around Labassee and Ypres. At several sectors along the British front the German artillery has been unusually active during the last 24 hours, General French reported, but without inflicting serious damage.

LONDON, March 9.—The British press was practically unanimous to-day in applauding the announcement of the Admiralty that hereafter the captured crews of German submarines will be accorded special treatment. The London newspapers generally took this to mean that German submarine sailors will be tried for murder.

ATHENS, March 9.—The Greek Chamber of Deputies was to-day prorogued for one month by the command of King Constantine. This action presumably was taken to prevent the Chamber from overturning the new Cabinet now being formed as a peace ministry, and plunging Greece into war.

TERROR IN ITALY.

ROME, March 9.—Mad terror has seized the poorer classes of Italy. Earthquakes, destructive landslides, strikes and bread riots, have convinced the superstitious that the country has fallen under divine wrath while the rest of Europe is at war.

The military have seized upon this belief of the superstitious as an argument in behalf of intervention. They say God is rebuking Italy for failing to take her place in a righteous war.

LONDON, Ont., March 9.—After travelling from Japan, six thousand miles, cancelling important business engagements, throwing up his rank in the British army to get to the front quickly, Lieutenant William Auglin, Royal Garrison Artillery, and the son of a wealthy English merchant, enlisted here this afternoon as private in the 33rd overseas battalion. He has made application to Major Hughes for a commission, but if refused will fight in the ranks as a private.

GERMAN WOMEN URGED TO EAT LESS.

BERLIN, March 9.—Berlin is the scene at this time of numerous meetings, largely attended by women of every class, at which ways and means of more economical living are discussed by prominent physicians.

The women are being urged to cut down the consumption of meat by at least fifteen per cent. and to resort more to the use of milk. The women are asked to think of the men in the field and the hardships they have to endure if economy in eating seems to be too difficult.

One physician, speaking the other night, likened the situation to that of the tourist who prefers meat at times make a meal from chocolate and bread until more favourable circumstances arrive. He told his audience they were mere slaves to appetite if they were not able to elect easily to eat less of the scarcer foods.

Soup in place of coffee for the early morning breakfast is being urged by some physicians, especially for adults, and then the omission of the German "second breakfast," to the consequent saving of thousands of pounds of foodstuffs.

NEW SOUTH WALES TO AID BELGIANS.

PARIS (La Presse Special), March 9.—The colony of New South Wales has opened a national subscription in aid of the Belgians, promising to furnish £20,000 ($100,000) monthly.

OUR SOLDIERS' BOOTS.

The parliamentary investigation into the quality of the boots supplied the first and other Canadian contingents, seems to be reaching a definite point; a point where the establishment of the fact of criminally defective work should afford a basis for fixing the responsibility—the most important part of the affair. A despatch to the Mail and Empire reads as follows:

Ottawa, Ont., March 8.—The Parliamentary Boot Committee met informally to-day to go over the reports submitted by regimental boards of enquiry into military footwear in different parts of Canada. It was decided not to accept these as part of the record, but to summon those who gave the most important evidence at the regimental investigation in Toronto, Montreal, Halifax, Winnipeg and Calgary, to testify on their oaths as to the quality of the boots. It may be stated that these reports, without exception, condemned the footwear for its lack of wearing qualities. The boots in question were not those furnished the first contingent, but those supplied for the second and third.

There can be little ground for doubt that the report of the several regimental boards contains the essence of the truth in the matter, and the fact that all agree, without exception, in condemning the footwear supplied to soldiers, is significant. The regimental boards would naturally be composed of men having a more direct and personal interest in the welfare of the men than an average parliamentary committee, and be less amenable to political influence; so that their findings, with their limited area of search and opportunity for more direct and pertinent scrutiny, would be more in line with the facts as they exist or existed." That these regimental boards made reports, agreeing without exception, in condemning the footwear supplied our soldiers, is a very momentous fact. The Parliamentary Committee in declining to accept these reports without further question did wisely in decliding to hear for themselves, the most important witnesses who gave testimony before the regimental boards. There seems to be need for further investigation; for it appears that the boots condemned were not only those supplied the first contingent, but those supplied for the second and third. In regard to the improper boots supplied the first contingent, it was claimed that the defective work was due to the necessary haste that had to be employed in getting the boots ready. This excuse—if it were anything more than an excuse—could not apply to the boots supplied for the second and third contingents. That the regimental boards included these latter in the universal condemnation of the wearing quality of boots, shows that there has been not only something rotten in the state of the boots themselves, but in the conditions under which the supply was provided. We want, in such a case as this, the probe to go deep and bright. We can, as we are often compelled to do, overlook a certain amount of jobbery in the execution of public works. Faulty work, however, in a wharf, will only involve a little paltry property loss; but jobbery in the manufacture of boots, the slightest failure in strict, fearless inspection, that will permit the passing of defective work, is something that vitally and mortally concerns the life and health of our soldiers—and incidentally has to do with their death. It would be an awful national disgrace, and indiscribable crime, that stands for the sake of giving an extra profit to some thieving and conscienceless contractor, should be responsible for providing for our soldiers boots that more or less, directly would be the cause of their death, not to speak of the impairment and destruction of their efficiency, in cases where the bad work did not reach the killing point.

PATRIOTISM AND PRODUCTION.

Patriotism is always implied in production, that is growth of food products and development of the national resources of which divine Providence has made us trustees. It is patriotic to do all we can for the betterment of the country and its people. At this time there is a special call upon our production as a patriotic measure; for the war has disturbed conditions and made necessary the provision of increased food supplies; not only that the supply might be maintained, but that prices may not be advanced. To secure this increase the people who have land must be impressed with the necessity of increasing crop output, and this conviction must proceed from principle—not from spasmodic impulse. It is not enough to impulsively increase acreage that will not be the wisest unless increased crop is the result. The work must be intelligently pursued, must be dealt with systematically. The government is doing its share in the work of arousing a sense of public duty. But, if it can it must do more. The average farmer to increase production must adopt new methods, and enlarge his normal programme of operation. There will in thousands of cases be necessity for assistance. Farmers must have increased capital, improved machinery, and more farm labour. It seems to be the part of the government to be an intermediary between the banks and the farmers to secure the increased capital, and it seems to some within the scope of the government to help solve the farm labour problem. Unless the farmer is assisted in the practical ways that are necessary, the government campaign for increased production can have no other than a mere sentimental value. However, the government is perhaps doing its best, and between now and seeding time there is not perhaps opportunity for doing much more than preach the doctrine of increased production. In this connection the government has provided a list of "cardinal facts" which are given below as containing much important inspiration and encouragement.

This is Canada's war.
What will the Harvest be?
Increase of knowledge means increase of production.
The first essential for the highest yield is good seed.

Not only grain growers, but breeders and all producers are making history at this juncture.

Value of the crop is increased if treated for smut prevention.

Failure to secure suitable varieties is a frequent cause of poor ensilage.

All grain intended for seed should be cleaned and graded, in order to retain only the strong kernels.

Farmers who have separate houses for their labourers have no difficulty in securing help.

Good labour is worthy employment in winter as well as in spring, summer and autumn.

If labour is scarce now, it will not be more plentiful in another year, so it is wise to encourage present help.

A bureau of employment could find useful work in every town of size.

Austria has decreed that every acre must be utilized for production. Wasting land is the worst form of extravagance.

Live stock is the foundation of permanently successful farming today, as it has always been.

The farmer who conserves his best stock for breeding will profit greatly in the future.

When manure is piled and allowed to heat, the vitality of most of the seeds is destroyed; but when drawn to the field from the stable, or not left long enough in the pile to become well rotted, manure is one of the most important means of seed dispersal.

Canada is many times larger in area than Belgium, but in population there is not a great deal of difference, that is, considering Belgium before the war. Britain is the protector of small states. The greater the area and variety of area, the more protection is needed when emergency arises.

A ZIG-ZAG PREMIER.

It will be the Hon. Mr. Hearst's own fault if he becomes known in Ontario as the "zig-zag" Premier. He surely must have been nodding a little when, speaking to the monster temperance delegation which asked for total prohibition of the sale of liquor in Ontario, if not for all time at the very least during the war, he told them "the sig-zag path is often best." What the deputation was asking for was direct action attacking the very heart of the question and much disappointment was expressed when the Premier made his "zig-zag" statement, which promises to become famous.

Mr. Hanna also made a "break." What the deputation asked for, of course, was a distinct temperance advance, a frontal attack on the liquor traffic and something much more drastic than anything any previous Government had granted. What Mr. Hanna said, however, and he apparently thought it would please the deputation, was merely that they might be assured that this Government would not be behind other Ontario Governments in their treatment of the liquor question.—Montreal Herald-Telegraph

WILL BE SCRAPPED.

Germany's fleet, we are told, is being saved to fight Britain fifteen or twenty years hence. Nonsense. Practically every ship in both the British and German navies to-day will be on the scrap-heap by that time. The oldest battleship Britain has in commission is the Magnificent, built in 1894, eleven years ago.—Globe.

REASONS WHY THERE SHOULD BE INCREASED PRODUCTION

The Need of Greater Production.

Great Britain has invested more money in this country than in any other country in the world, outside of the United States. The sum total is no less than $2,000,000,000, being equal to $400 for every man, woman and child.

This money has gone largely to provide railway and other facilities for carying on our business. It is loaned money, and bears one hundred and twenty millions of dollars interest annually. That interest must be met. It can be met only by exporting surplus products. There is a ready market for all the farm products we can produce over and above our own requirements. A twenty per cent. increase in farm production will cover our interest payments and maintain the country's credit.

This is one answer to the question, Why is it necessary that Canada at this particular time should increase the output of the farm?

It is neither asked nor expected that the farmer should bear the whole burden. The railways and other organizations engaged in the transportation of products must bear their share. The financial institutions of the country must be asked to assist in financing the farmer's business as well as the manufacturer's. The farmers of almost every country in Europe enjoy the advantages of rural credits. Similar facilities are urgently needed here.

The need of supplying the farmer with information that will enable him to distribute and market his products to the best advantage, is becoming more and more urgent. The Canadian Minister of Agriculture recently put the matter in this form:

"It is not, therefore, only greater production, but better production and cheapened production, more accurate knowledge of markets and better facilities for reaching them. All these things are tied up together and they concern not only farmers but Governments, bankers and transportation men have to address themselves."

A clearer understanding of some of the handicaps retarding production will be one of the good results that must grow out of the present campaign.

But let not the farmer stay his hand because these and other defects in the economic system have not yet been remedied. Your country needs you, and needs you now.

The loyalty and patriotism of the farmer has never been called into question. He has the opportunity before him to give expression to his patriotism by helping to keep up the food supply of Britain and her Allies. There is a higher motive than that of the pocket merely, and it should be a stronger one.

At the same time the business aspect must be recognized. With a food shortage staring it in the face, the world is ready to absorb at good prices all we can produce.

The main object of the campaign is to make clear the situation.

There is no more reasonable body to deal with than the farmers. Lay the facts before them clearly and fully and they may be relied on to reach a correct decision.

There is no necessity for calling upon the farmer to work harder or for longer hours. Neither is it advisable to dictate to him as to what he should produce nor how he should produce it. The individual farmer must decide for himself how best to meet the demand.

We see, the question asked, and asked too by agricultural journals, How can the farmer increase the output without putting more acres under cultivation and employing more labour?

That production may to some extent be increased without a corresponding increase in labour is clearly indicated. The best strains of seed will give larger yields than inferior kinds. A strain suited to the soil and climate and sown at the right time will give better returns than seed that is not. Pure seed, plump seed, seed of strong vitality, will increase the yield. These and other important principles are not as widely applied as they might be.

There is an appalling and almost universal waste in the handling of liquid and solid manure in this country. Rectify this and restore to the soil the elements of fertility now lost through lack of care, and production may be increased without any appreciable increase in labour.

If the facts of the case indicate it, as we believe they do, then the farmer is warranted in employing more labour, provided suitable labour can be secured; he is warranted in preparing his land better, sowing his seed better, and in this manner doing what he can to meet the Empire's needs. The man who fails in his duty in the country's crisis, will regret it all his days.

Cardinal Facts.

Everybody can do a little.
Every man should do what he can.
Every woman should do what she can.
Improved production means increased production.
Canada's future depends upon our actions of to-day.
In serving the Empire we are serving ourselves.
Markets are not created, won and held in a day.
Now is the time to prove ourselves the Granary of the Empire.

We have the soil, we have the resources, we must have the energy to use them to the greatest advantage.

As we acquit ourselves at this crisis, so will be our prosperity and pride in the years to come.

With more than half of productive Europe engaged in war, and large sections decimated, other countries and especially those forming the British Empire, will have to make up huge deficiencies, both of foodstuffs and material.

Great Britain imported 81,783,915 bushels of wheat from Canada in 1913. She imported 80,018,979 bushels from the United States. She also imported 12,789,969 bushels from Russia and Central Europe.

Great Britain imported 24,146,633 bushels of barley in 1913 from Russia, Roumania, Turkey, Germany and Austria. From Canada she took 5,977,533 bushels, or less than a fourth.

Great Britain took 22,454,686 bushels of oats from Germany, Russia and Roumania in 1913, of which one-half was from her bitterest and most savage enemy of to-day.

Great Britain imported 185,125,000 bushels of wheat from August 1, 1913, to July 31, 1914. Russia exported 163,967,000 bushels and Roumania 45,648,000 bushels in the same time. How far is Canada going to help to make up the deficiency?

Great Britain imported from August 1, 1913, to July 31, 1914, 54,807,000 bushels of oats. Russia exported 34,750,000 bushels, Germany 25,077,000, and Romania 17,195,000 bushels. Who is going to make up this deficiency of seventy-seven million bushels?

STRAIGHT WHITNEY AND ZIG-ZAG HEARST

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, March 9—If there was one characteristic of the late Sir James Whitney which his friends admired the most and which led the people of Ontario to place such undoubted confidence in him, it was his lack of vacillation and his straightforward directness. "He was a blunt, straightforward man."

That Hon. Mr. Hearst is of a different type is shown graphically in his own self condemnatory phrase used in his reply to the delegation asking for the prohibition of the sale of liquor during the war. "The zig-zag path," he said, "is often the best." This phrase is in vivid contrast to what Mr. Rowell said in reply to the Prime Minister: "This is no time for sig-zagging in the temperance movement."

Whatever restrictions the Government may make on the liquor traffic this session, such as increased fees and shorter hours, there is now admitted by the Prime Minister what would have been recognised by the public at any rate, that these changes are only signs of a zig-zag course. They do not take the Province direct to that goal during the war which has already been reached, for example, in Russia.

Ontario politics in other issues, as well as in temperance, are shifting rapidly, and are shaping up into a contest between the "zig-zag" Premier and a "straightforward" Opposition.

Hon. Mr. Hearst, Premier of Ontario, was made the heir of the "Whitney tradition" and it was only his promise to be so influenced in the exercise of the duties of premiership that generated a tolerance that accepted a man with few other qualifications as a successor to Sir James Whitney. Mr. Hearst's zig-zag declaration of temperance policy is a forked-lightning change from the "Whitney tradition."

MAJOR LEAGUES REPORT DEARTH OF MEN FOR EVERY POSITION

Sixty-five Baseball Players Needed to Strengthen the Sixteen Clubs—Two Teams Are Filled—Only Boston Red Sox and Braves Have Enough Stars to Start Season Without Help.

Never before in the history of the major leagues have there been so many vacancies in the different clubs, so many positions that must be filled either by talented players or others of questionable ability. Notwithstanding the new player limit rulings that will cut down the rosters of the teams, there are sixty-five positions open in the National and American leagues, thirty-four in the National and thirty-one in the American.

In this tabulation of "Male Help Wanted" only the known vacancies are figured upon, and not the positions already occupied by players who may be ousted because of their inability to keep abreast of the speed shown by some "rookie" fresh from the "bush." If the number of real baseball players, performers who measure up to the standard set by championship teams, such as the Athletics, Giants, Cubs and other machines noted for their capabilities, were to be taken into consideration it would mean an almost entire new squad for twelve of the sixteen clubs entered in the two races for next season. And the other four would find it necessary to bolster up their known strength with better ammunition.

Of the sixteen clubs, there are only two teams able to go to the post without a change, and oddly enough these two clubs claim Boston as their home city. Both the Braves and Red Sox are so firmly rooted to the rock of success they could start the race without further addition, but to make these clubs finished organizations it will be necessary for the Braves to locate a catcher clever enough to second "Hank" Gowdy and "Bert" Whaling, and for the Red Sox to find a second baseman, as Janvrin is not up to the mark.

GIANTS NEED PITCHERS.

Possibly John McGraw with his veterans and the additional help of "Hans" Gilbert and "Pol" Perritt, both recently acquired, can take the track at full speed, but to finish anywhere near first place he will need at least two mere pitchers of winning calibre. The Athletics, too, could enter the field without additional help, but to be a successful club it will be necessary for "Connie" Mack to develop at least two pitchers, an outfielder and a third baseman if Frank Baker continues to prefer farming to playing ball.

Every one of the other clubs must face the task of developing new cogs to not overly efficient machines, and to be in the race at all it will be necessary to find new players—youngsters, not veterans—for the baseball field a few years ago so fertile in better than average players has deteriorated until now there is a real scarcity. Possibly the inroads of the Federal League have cut down the stock of good players, but whatever the cause, it is a fact that to-day baseball is in danger of slipping from its hold on the "fan" because of the inferior actors who display their wares on the diamonds of the country.

Pitchers are causing the National League managers the most worry, no less than eleven of this variety of player being absolutely necessary to the welfare of the different clubs. Last winter Brooklyn and Giant spouts raked the "bushes" for artillerists, and now McGraw has fifteen pitchers and Robinson eighteen from which to pick eight each for the season's play. Boston is the only team that does not need help on the mound. The Pirates could use three more winning pitchers, as they are sadly lacking in this department.

Fullerton Sees Star Second Baseman In Phelan---A Coming Evers

Here is a prediction: Arthur Phelan will be one of the best infielders in America and so rated before the end of this season. Phelan was down at Fort Meyers, Fla., when he read that Manager Bresnahan was looking for a second baseman and he at once wrote to President Thomas saying:

"Don't you and Roger overlook me while casting around for a second baseman. If you get a new man be sure to get a real good one or I will be forced to beat him out of his job."

That letter is enough. Phelan has found confidence in himself and he will be the second baseman—and one of the best. Last year his case was almost a tragedy. His career came near being ruined by bad management. Phelan came to the Cubs from Cincinnati. Two months after he was with the team he remarked to me: "I've learned more baseball playing alongside Evers three weeks than I ever learned during years at Cincinnati."

I spoke to Evers of it and he remarked: "Phelan is coming at top speed. You can see him improving. He is bound to be one of the best men in the business."

Unfortunately for Phelan O'Day got the club and Evers the man. O'Day brought with him prejudices against Phelan held over from his Cincinnati experience. It was laughable to see the Cubs scouring America for an infielder — with the best man in the business who was available sitting on their own bench. Three National league managers were waiting for a chance to grab Phelan if the Cubs asked waivers—and not until the little fellow asserted himself did the management realise what they had.

Old Country Football News

Two of the fourth round English Cup games played on Saturday were undecided, Newcastle holding Chelsea to a tie score, one all, while Oldham and Sheffield United played a no score contest. Bolton Wanderers won from Hull, 4 to 2, and Everton disposed of Bradford City 2 to 0. The League games furnished nothing outstanding, save that Sheffield Wednesday and Notts County divided the points at Hillsborough. In the Second League, Derby County fell in unaccountable fashion to Blackpool, and Woolwich went under to Lincoln. Preston North End, by their defeat of Wolverhampton, take second place. Hearts had an easy run home against Dumbarton, but Celtic had as soft a time with Hibernians, so the principal positions in the Scottish League continue unchanged.

Stratton on the Eastern All Stars

There are no Peterborough Hockey Club players on the Eastern All-Star Junior O.H.A. team, although Peterborough has a representative on both East and West teams. Wilfrid Stratton having been selected for the East and Harold Parker for the West. There are four Toronto players on the Eastern team, and the line-up is not as representative as usual, Kingston and Lindsay being the only outside towns represented. The Toronto Globe says:

The junior all-star O.H.A. game at the Arena [illegible] night will be the last hockey of the season. The team to represent the East has been chosen as follows: Goal, Earl Hayton (Bimcoes); defence, J. MacPherson (University of Toronto), Robt. H. Ferguson (Kingston Collegiate Institute); rover, W. Cook (Kingston Frontenacs); centre, Henry E. Watson, St. Andrew's College); right wing, W. W. ("Gamey") Hastings (University of Toronto); left wing, Arthur Capow (Lindsay.)

The combination will provide a great team both on the offensive as well as the defensive. The boys have been selected on their performances. The team to represent the West will be finally chosen to-morrow.

LACROSSE CLUB WILL MEET TO-MORROW NIGHT

The Peterborough lacrosse club will be re-organized for the season at a meeting to be held in the Y.M.C.A. to-morrow (Wednesday) night. With no Canadian League baseball here, it is hoped that lacrosse will flourish. All enthusiasts are asked to turn out at to-morrow night's meeting.

Rube Marquard Not Wanted in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 8—"I wouldn't have Marquard on my ball club," was Schuyler P. Britton's emphatic way of declaring to-day that the erratic Marquard will not be part of the purchase price for "Pol" Perritt. "Perritt gave us trouble enough," continued Britton "without taking on Marquard. The 'Rube' may be all right: I wouldn't say a word against him, but I do not want him.

"Huggins is handling the deal for St. Louis, and I understand he is going to get Bescher and at least one other player. Whoever he gets will suit me, so long as it is not Marquard."

EDDIE COLLINS BREAKS IN WITH WHITE SOCKS

Los Angeles, Cal., March 8.—"Eddie" Collins, with three baggers and a single on Saturday, was chiefly responsible for the Chicago Americans' 8 to 2 victory over the Los Angeles Coast League team. The White Sox now have won three straight games.

CURLING

J. H. Ferguson, skip, 9, D. Davidson, skip, 12.

R. Sturgeon, skip, 14; Dr. Greer, skip, 2.

J. W. McDermid, skip, 12; J. H. Knapman, skip, 5.

The rink is strangely quiet to-day as the result of the departure of players to Toronto and Bobcaygeon.

BOWLING

In a match game on the Y. M. C. A. Alleys last night, the Examiner beat the Engineers two games. Cairns' great rolling, with scores of 193 and 208, was the feature. Here are the scores:

All In a Pound of Raisins

What U. S. Official Chemist Discovered in a Grocery Store

PHILADELPHIA, March 9.— One pound of raisins purchased by a special agent of the Dairy and Food Commission was analyzed by State Chemist Charles H. Lawall. He found:

Prunes, rice, beans and fuzzy dirt.
Human and animal hairs, straight and curly, and fibres of cotton and wool dyed green, yellow, brown, pink and grey.
Straw and a little bit of bran.
Sand, cornstarch, broken wheat and yeast spores.
Pine wood and fragments of unidentified timber.
Tobacco leaf, cigarette paper and cigarette tobacco.
Also the wings and legs of a few unfortunate insects.
And—now listen—some raisins.

Result: William Wollisson, in front of whose store the collection was bought, was held in $400 bail for court.

At the Theatres

AT THE GRAND.

The Mac Edwards players opened for the week at the Grand last night, presenting "At the Risk of His Life," a comedy-drama that pleased a large audience. The company has a good repertoire of plays, is well balanced, and is above the average in stock. Their specialties were particularly good, and the rest of the week should bring continued big houses.

THE TIZ-IT.

Another good variety of films were presented at the Tiz-It last night. "Her Escape," a four-act film, presenting Pauline Bush and "Heart Beats" in two parts, were the dramatic features. Two funny comedy films are also given, and, in addition, there is a series of new war pictures as interesting as any that have been shown.

THE EMPIRE.

David Higgins, in "His Last Dollar," a comedy-drama of the race track that had a long theatrical run, is the feature at the Empire. It is a fine picture, with plenty of action and exciting incidents of the track. Of course there is a pretty touch of the tender running through it, adding to the thrills of the race. The bill includes comedy and war picture films, and is right up to the standard of the house.

To Exchange Disabled Officers.

BERNE, Switzerland, March 9.—It is stated here that France and Germany hereafter will exchange captured army officers who have been injured so severely as to be incapacitated for further military service. Heretofore only privates have been exchange. The inclusion of officers in this arrangement is believed to be due to the initiative of Prince Maximilian von Baden, who interceded with Emperor William on behalf of the officers.

Would Cut Down Speeches.

OTTAWA, March 9.—H. H. Stevens, of Vancouver, wants to cut down the speeches of members of Parliament to reasonable limits. Cases have been known when members have held the floor for hours at a time, and Mr. Stevens wants to compel them to be brief.

He has given notice that he will move for the appointment of a committee of the House, to consider and report on the question of limiting all speeches to 45 minutes in regular session, and 20 minutes when the House is in committee of the whole, excepting the mover of a bill or resolution and the reply thereto, or a Minister of the crown and members replying to them.

INFORMATION IN REGARD TO COMFORTS FOR THE SOLDIERS

TORONTO, March 8.—A new leaflet has been issued by the National Committee of Women for patriotic service and many important alterations and additions have been amongst which may be mentioned the recently formed branch of the Secours National of French people in the districts ravaged by the war.

Owing to the great need of comforts for the British soldiers and sailors, relief for Belgians who have lost everything by reason of the German occupation of their country and the ruthless manner in which the enemy have waged war, this little booklet of instructions will be of great assistance and value to the thousands of Canadians who are working so splendidly for the cause of humanity in the present conflict.

The aim and policy of the committee are, first, to act as a point of contact for the leaders of Women's Societies from which the information and advice as to matters relating to the war can be issued to the organizations which are represented on the committee; secondly, to save confusion and overlapping, and, thirdly, to work through existing societies, not to form new organizations.

For the benefit of those whom this booklet may not reach, it may be well to quote the following information and advice. These booklets can be obtained on application to Mrs. Plumptre, the Secretary of the Committee at 77 King Street, East, Toronto.

1. Red Cross Supplies.—These are used only for the sick and wounded soldiers and sailors, but include all kinds of warm clothing and knitted goods because they are used for the men travelling between hospitals and crossing the channel from France to England, besides for the Field and Base Hospitals. The national Service committee regards the needs of the Red Cross Society as having the most urgent call on the sympathies and efforts of Canadian women.

All information concernning Red Cross needs is contained in a booklet entitled, "Suggestions for Work," and issued free of charge from all branches of the Red Cross Society, and also from the Head Office, 77 King Street, East, Toronto.

All supplies should be sent to the local branch of the Red Cross Society or to the Head Office.

2. Field Comforts.—These are supplementary supplies for "well" men in camp. As the Government fully equips every man accepted for service with his uniform, 2 suits of warm underclothing, 2 pairs of socks, 2 flannel shirts, Balaclava cap, sweater coat, gloves, cholera belt and housewife, there is no need to give the men large quantities of supplies. Acceptable gifts are socks, woven belts, khaki handkerchiefs 24 x 24 inches; wristlets, either with full length thumb or only a hole for thumb. Also chocolate, candy, tobacco in all forms, foot powder, boracic ointment for sore feet, constant supply of newspapers, magazines, and above all, of home letters sent direct by post to individual officers and men is always in demand. The committee does not undertake to forward any books or papers.

How are field comforts to be sent to the men in camp in Canada?

1. The best possible way is for the ladies of each locality to see that the men volunteering from their neighbourhood have these supplies before they go into camp, unless there is some local society undertaking this work.

The parcel post rate is according to distance. The maximum weight allowed is eleven pounds, and the maximum size is six feet of combined length and girth.

2. For troops who have left Canada: Again, the safest and quickest way to send supplies to individuals is by parcel post. Maximum weight, eleven pounds. Rate: Twelve cents per pound. Maximum measurement: Six feet, girth and length combined.

But the National Service committee is of opinion that there should be a general stock of such field comforts for the Canadian contingents to which women of Canada can send forward contributions in order that no man may be left out. For this purpose they have arranged to send forward free of charge any such contributions either from local patriotic leagues and societies engaged in this work, or from individuals, as may be sent, addressed to the secretary, either at the head office, Toronto, or at No. 1 Campbell Road, Halifax, N.S. Such parcels must be clearly marked, "Field Comforts."

N.B.—No parcel or case addressed to any individual or regiment will be accepted. For such goods the senders must make their own arrangements.

All field comforts sent to the secretary of the National Service committee (as above) will be forwarded to England to the Canadian War Contingent Association (C.W.C.A.), of which Hon. Sir George Perley, Acting High Commissioner, is President. This Association undertakes to collect and distribute comforts for the successive Canadian contingents.

The President of the C.W.C.A. is in frequent communication with the National Service committee as to the needs of the contingents.

3. Comforts for the fleet (North American Squadron) such as mitts, helmets and mufflers in navy blue wool should be sent to Mrs. Martin, Naval Dockyard, Halifax, N.S. Money for oilskins and rubber boots should be sent to Mrs. Kingsmill, care Department of Marine and Fisheries, Ottawa, or to local collecting centres.

3. Belgium Relief:—This work has been taken up locally by cities and certain organisations, but contributions both of supplies and money may be sent to Mons. Hector Prud-homme, 59 St. Peter Street, Montreal, Que., if there is no local collecting centre.

4. French Relief (secours National). This society exists to relieve the sufferings of the French people in the districts ravaged by war, and solicits subscriptions for this purpose and also clothes and other necessaries for the people. Local branches have been formed at Ottawa, (President, Mons. L. Brodeur); Montreal (President, Senator Dandurand); Toronto, (President, Sir Glenholme Falconbridge), and in Quebec City.

PRISONERS IN SERBIA SUFFER FROM TYPHOID

Special Morning Cable.

GENEVA, March 9—Advices received here from Berlin set forth that typhoid fever prevails among the Austrian prisoners to the number of 70,000 who were in the hands of the Servians. The Swiss Government has been notified by the Serbian military authorities that a Swiss doctor named Ischieder, who had been serving with the Serbian medical corps, was dead of this disease. The Serbians are asking for more doctors.

Smallpox also is said to be raging among these Austrian prisoners.

Make Loan To Little Allies

France, Great Britain and Russia Have Advanced $270,000,000

PARIS, March 9.—The Temps yesterday gave details of the advances already made or which are to be made by France, Great Britain and Russia to the small allied countries as agreed upon by the Finance Ministers of the three powers during their recent conference in Paris.

The total advances for the present, according to the newspaper are to be 1,300,000,000 francs ($270,000,000), which amount is to be borne equally by the three powers. These powers already have advanced to Belgium 250,000,000 francs ($50,000,000), to Serbia 185,000,000 francs ($37,000,000), to Greece 20,000,000 ($4,000,000) and to Montenegro 400,000 francs ($100,000). There remains to be advanced 294,500,000 francs ($178,900,000), which will be divided between Serbia and Belgium.

France, The Temps says, will take care of Russia's share for the present by placing sums against grain to be bought in Russia for French account. A bill now before the French Parliament authorizes this arrangement.

New Charter Is Granted

Commons Accedes to Application of C. P. R. Company

OTTAWA, March 9. — Canadian railway enterprises came under the searchlight of Parliament yesterday. There was some plain speaking, and practically the whole day was spent in consideration of problems involved.

Hon. Robert Rogers asked for a limitation of time of commencement on the Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway, which sought an extension of charter. His amendment was passed.

Mr. W. F. Maclean led the opposition to the Canadian Pacific Railway bill, which proposes to allow that railway to sell its ocean steamers to a new company which would be known as the C. P. R. Ocean Services, Limited, and to allow the parent company to guarantee the bonds of the new company. The new company was to be incorporated in Britain, and would be beyond Canadian jurisdiction, he argued. He wanted the bill to wait the passing of the new railway act. J. G. Turriff and Major Sam Sharpe supported the contention.

Hon. Dr. Pugsley pointed out that the C. N. R. and Grand Trunk had been given the powers the C. P. R. now sought.

Hon. Frank Cochrane said he thought there was no question as to the power of Parliament to place the steamships under the Railway Commission. But he did not see how it would do us any good. It would only drive the ships away to other ports.

The result of our refusing these powers to the C. P. R., said the Minister, would be only that they could sell their stock or bonds on less favorable terms on the markets.

Sir Robert Borden said that the passage of the bill before the House in no way interfered with or affected the working out of a solution of ocean freight rates. They could pass the desired legislation later on. The bill was finally passed.

EVIDENCE WAS FOUND TO BE CONTRADICTORY

Italian Charged With Stealing $160.00, Was Discharged By Magistrate After All Day Session

Pancrezio D'Ermenegildo, whose case occupied the attention of the Police Court until 5.30 p.m., yesterday, was discharged, Magistrate Dumble ruling that there was not sufficient evidence upon which to commit the prisoner.

Mr. Widdifield, Counsel for the defendant, had declined to elect in the morning, pleading "not guilty."

Evidence Contradictory.

In summing up the case Mr. Widdifield submitted that the evidence was contradictory, and that it was insufficient to warrant the prisoner's commitment.

Magistrate Dumble said he couldn't convict on the evidence, and no jury would.

Mr. Hatton pointed out that while the evidence was purely circumstantial it formed a perfect link. The man had been living with this family. From one excuse to another he got the son out of bed and downstairs and went upstairs. If he took the money he took it then. The fact of his boarding a train and going away without his [illegible] and still letting his whereabouts be known was damaging.

Got Benefit of the Doubt.

Magistrate Dumble said the circumstances were suspicious, but he did not think it was such that a Court could convict upon. There was just enough doubt that he was entitled to get the benefit of it. A jury with such evidence would give him the benefit of the doubt.

Had Sore Feet.

At the afternon sitting two witnesses were heard, commencing with Donato Capone, son of Leonardo Capone. His evidence as to detail was similar to that of the former witnesses. He added that the prisoner went into his room about 7 a.m. and told him to get up, go down town and get some meat, and they would go after some apples. He refused, saying his feet were sore and his stomach was sore. However, he got up and went down stairs as sworn to by his sister in her evidence. Pancrazio remained about five minutes downstairs and returned upstairs, and when he came down stood in the room where the witness was bathing his feet. Witness stayed down stairs until the men came from work at night. He was sitting down. He did not go out of the house that day. His sister was there all day making ketchup.

Witness did not see the money that day, or the purse, neither did his father say anything to him about it. He did not know where he kept it, though he knew there was a box under the bed, but did not know what was kept in it.

Was Alone in the House.

Mr. Widdifield took charge of the witness. He was informed that the crying the sister heard from downstairs was caused by the prisoner squeezing a boil for witness. While the witness was dressing the prisoner remained in another room.

His sister was out of the house about ten minutes during the forenoon, and he was alone in the house during that time. He went to bed about 9 p.m., September 30th, and awoke about 5 a.m., Oct. 1st, getting up to make lunch for his father, after which he went back to bed. He was downstairs when his father was dressing and started upstairs as his father was coming down.

The purse was produced. He had seen it in the Old Country. After Pancrazio had left he saw it in the hands of his father. His father never used to tell him where he kept his money or that he was saving money to take a trip to the Old Country.

Another Son.

The next witness was Phillip Capone, another son of the plaintiff. He heard an Italian named Mucci and the prisoner talking in the Police Station. Prisoner asked "Have you found out how much debt I have in town?" The answer was, "No, I have not found out anything." They talked in Italian. Mucci commenced talking in the English language, and prisoner told him to talk in Italian.

To Mr. Widdifield, witness said he saw the purse after the money was gone. He knew his father was planning on a trip to the Old Country. His father showed him the money after he got it from Minecola. He said his father was going to keep the money on his person until he was ready to go to the Old Country.

Watch was Missing.

Witness lost a watch the same day the money disappeared. He was home five or ten minutes before his father on the evening of October 1st. He was upstairs alone two or three minutes and, missing the watch, went downstairs.

To Mr. Hatton witness said he went upstairs again when he heard his father crying and was informed of the loss of the money. His father fainted and had to be revived. The father later went to sleep and witness came down town and reported to the Police of the loss, also mentioning the watch.

Naval Shuffle Is Likely

German War Chiefs Have Been Discussing Future on the Sea

LONDON, March 9.—A Daily Express despatch dated Amsterdam, Sunday, says:

"Before long there will be a general shuffle of positions in the higher command of the German navy. Admiral von Tirpitz and his master are not satisfied with the doings of Admiral von Ingenohl, commander-in-chief of the battle fleet. They ascribe to his lack of foresight the loss of many German ships.

"What is left for Germany at sea? That was the question discussed recently at a naval war council in Berlin to which Germany's best admirals had been summoned. No communication was made to the press regarding the outcome of the council, but it is understood from a trustworthy source that Admiral von Ingenohl's policy of seeking battle was sternly condemned by the admiral's opponents.

It may be taken for granted that the German fleet will never again attack British ships in anything like an equal fight, but will remain hidden until peace is declared and then Germany, with what is left of it, will endeavor to build the largest fleet that ever existed and hopes then to challenge the British fleet within fifteen or twenty years.

SUFFRAGE IS DEBATED

Measure to Extend Franchise to Women Up in Legislature

TORONTO, March 9.—The second reading of the bill to extend the municipal franchise to married women was discussed. In the absence, through indisposition, of Mr. J. C. Elliott (W. Middlesex), in whose name the bill stood, Mr. J. C. Tolmie (Windsor) moved the second reading. Hon. Mr. Lucas, the Attorney-General, opposed the bill. Mr. Sam Carter (S. Wellington) supported the bill, and Mr. Donovan (Brockville) opposed it. Mr. Rowell was the last speaker, and after addressing the House for a short while moved an adjournment which was agreed to.

Geo. H. Gooderham introduced a measure yesterday to make owners of heavy motor trucks and wagons liable for rutted roads, and giving municipal corporations power to recover the amount of the damage from them.

1500 MERCHANT SHIPS USED

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, March 9 — Some idea of the size of the auxiliary fleet Great Britain is using to move and sustain her armies in the field may be gained from a report on shipping conditions from American Consul Lathrop at Cardiff, Wales.

Fifteen hundred British vessels, he reports, aggregating more than 3,500,000 tons have been taken over by the British Admiralty taking all responsibility and agreeing to return the vessels as received.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Montreal's City Council yesterday afternoon passed a bylaw as follows: "No person shall use any lamps other than electric lamps when looking for gas leaks."

William Snider, ex-mayor of Waterloo, died in Berlin Saturday evening, after an illness of two months, in his 69th year. He was proprietor of the Waterloo Flour Mill.

M. Mahoney, a farmer near Moose Jaw, has been notified by the Admiralty that his 16-year-old brother, Patrick, has been killed in action, where had on what ship is not stated.

The British Admiralty announces that out of a total of 1,613 ships arriving at and 1,432 leaving Great Britain during the period from Feb. 18 to March 3, only seven were torpedoed by hostile submarines.

James Brock, one of the oldest residents of Highland Point, near Penetanguishene, died suddenly yesterday from an attack of heart failure. He was driving a team of horses on his way to town when he fell dead.

The Amsterdam Telegraaf's Tirlemont, Belgium, correspondent confirms the report of the destruction there last Thursday of Zeppelin airship L-8, which was forced to make a hurried descent owing to a derangement of its motors.

CONCERT AT ST. ANDREW'S

A fairly large assembly enjoyed a uniformly delightful programme at last night's concert in St. Andrew's Church. Most of the coterie of local music lovers who are rarely absent from these events were present. The success of former concerts in the Church on the western hill has established a reputation which was appreciably enhanced last night. The programme was very satisfactorily arranged and its varied character proved quite a pleasing feature. The vocalists were Miss Helen MacLaren, soloist of St. Andrew's Choir, and Miss Olive Casey of Toronto, Miss Blanche Walters, a reader of more than ordinary ability; Miss Eva Galloway of Toronto, pianiste, and Mr. Treneer, organist, made up the rest of the programme.

Mrs. L. J. Kennedy of Toronto was confined to her home with a bad cold, and she deputed Miss Casey as a substitute. Miss Casey can come to Peterborough any day with the assurance of receiving a cordial welcome. St. George's Choral Society introduced her to this city and her following has steadily increased.

Last night's programme was as follows:

Organ—Fanfare in D —— Lemmens
Mr. Treneer.

Vocal, (a) "Somewhere a Voice is Calling", (b) "The Birth of Morn" (Leoni); (c) "'Tis Spring" (Harriet Ware. .....
Miss MacLaren.

Reading (a) "Our Empire"; (b) "The Obstructive Hat" .....
Miss Blanche Walters.

Pianoforte solo, from Rigoletto ....
Miss Galloway

Vocal, "Carmena" ..... Lane
Miss Casey

Organ, Overture from Der Freischutz (Weber) .....
Mr. Treneer.

Miss MacLaren

Pianoforte—Sextette from Lucia di Lammermoor (for lef hand only)
Miss Galloway

Vocal—(a) Rose in the Bud; (b) The Nightingale and the Rose; (c) The Lass with the Delicate Air" .....
Miss Casey.

Reading "An Unexpected Winner"
Miss Walters

Vocal duet—"The Barcarolle" from The Tales of Hoffman. .....
Miss MacLaren and Miss Casey.

God Save The King.

Rev. Mr. Rollins presided and incidentally mentioned that no auditorium in the city offered facility for organ solos, a remark made for the gratuitous advertiser of St. Andrew's who recently sent a letter to the papers.

Miss MacLaren made a decidedly favourable impression in her several numbers. She sang "Somewhere a Voice is Calling" with refined and adequate expression. Her Rossini number provided an opportunity for the artistic display of her technical and vocal resources. Miss MacLaren has a voice that is peculiarly agreeable and effective in the middle and lower ranges, suggesting contralto rather than soprano qualities. Her tone is rich, round and full, and she exhibits good control. Used in messo work her voice is especially delightful.

Miss Casey's numbers were thoroughly enjoyable. They possessed more of a lyric character than any of her previous work here, and her selections had more of a soprano demand than her part in Judas Maccabaeus. While many might have preferred her "Carmena," "The Nightingale and the Rose" was most effectively sung." "The Lass With the Delicate Air" was quite a charming number, with a sprightly, dainty presentation.

Miss Walters renewed a former acquaintance and radiated a smiling cheerfulness that was quickly contagious. Her reading of "An Obstructive Hat" was most amusing, and was delivered with convincing naturalness.

Miss Galloway showed exceptional ability in her accompaniments and solos. With accurate and effective pedaling she brought a wealth of tone out of the sextet, using only the left hand.

Mr. Treneer was in good form in both his offerings, especially the Weber overture, which won a well-earned encore.

Each of the artists was encored once, and in good time—a few minutes after ten—a thoroughly delightful concert came to a close—one which not only sustained the reputation of St. Andrew's, but gave Miss MacLaren, the soloist of St. Andrew's choir, a secure place in public esteem as a soloist of exceptional beauty and quality of voice and artistic employment.

Rehearsal of "The Drum Major"

A splendid rehearsal of the opera, "The Drum Major," by the Orpheus ociety, was held last night. The first reading of the Libretto and the chorus work was given complete. Mr. J. Edward Fisher was delighted and expresses himself well satisfied with the fine progress the members of the Society have made with this charming and bright musical comedy.

The principals of the caste are as follows: "Clarice," Miss Lottie Drope; "Babette," Mrs. A. A. Perrin; "Antoinette," Mrs. J. Lock; "Suzanne," Miss Ruby Quartermaine; "Jacqueline," Miss Clara Overend; "Jean," Mr. Ed. Hanrahan; "Sergeant Leroux," Mr. Harold Lee, "Marcel," Mr. G. O. Cameron; "Julian," Mr. P. Naish; "Pierre," Mr. H. Laing; "Gaspard," Mr. F. Hartshorn.

The Opera is to be given Easter Monday and Tuesday in the Grand Opera House and promises to be a musical treat.

"FAKE" OFFICER OPERATING IN TORONTO NOW

Posing as Lieut Kincarn of the London Military Headquarters Staff He Passes Worthless Checks on Toronto Merchants

DID THE SAME HERE

Ten days ago a man dressed in khaki uniform, who stated that he was Lieut. Kirkby, of the 13th Scottish Light Dragoons, victimised a number of local merchants with worthless cheques. Apparently he is still at the same game, judging by the following from the London Advertiser:

Misrepresenting himself as a lieutenant in the military headquarters staff of this city, a man who gives his name as J. R. Kincarn, has been buying goods from Toronto merchants with worthless cheques, which have been returned to the merchants marked "no funds."

Answering a wire from Toronto police, the commanding officer at the military headquarters here, replied stating that no such man had a commission in this city. According to the communication from Toronto, the fake officer had recently "flim-flammed" two large Toronto, business houses, having secured a number of expensive articles, presumably to be used by the militia in London.

As far as is known in this city, the police in Toronto have not apprehended the fabulous officer.

The local police are of the opinion that Kincarn and Findley, the latter a man who issued a number of bad cheques here a short time ago, are the same, and the former officials will communicate with the Queen City police in their efforts to find out if he is the one who deceived a number of business men here.

Annual Meeting of the Board of Trade

Decided to Hold it on Saturday Night Next, March 13th in the Council Chamber—Meeting Will be One of the Best in the History of the Board

At a largely attended and enthusiastic meeting of the Council of the Board of Trade in the secretary's office last night it was decided to postpone the annual meeting which was to be held to-night (Tuesday) until next Saturday night, March the 13th at eight o'clock sharp.

It is the intention of the officers to make this meeting one of the best in the history of the Board and in order to do so it is essential that the meeting be well attended. After due consideration it was thought that Saturday night would be the most suitable night on which to hold the meeting, as the greatest number are free to attend. The citizens, business and professional men should turn out in large number to back up the Board of Trade for the coming year.

New officers will be elected and quite a number of new lines of effort are to be introduced, and it is confidently expected that 1915 will be a banner year for the local Board of Trade.

During the past year in spite of very adverse conditions and the great handicap under which the Board of Trade was working, they have accomplished something and what they have done under those conditions only goes to show what they could do under favourable conditions and if backed up by the strong support of the citizens and business men of the city.

Bear in mind that the Board of Trade is made up of a body of men possessed of exceedingly unselfish natures who have the interests of the city as a whole at heart. They do not receive remuneration of any kind, but give their time, money and effort freely to further advance the city's interests.

The Board desires the citizens generally to feel that they are perfectly welcome to become members of the Board of Trade and to attend the meetings and bring up anything which in their mind would better in any way conditions in and around Peterborough.

The Board of Trade is entitled to your support and the officers believe that they will have it during the coming year. They would like every merchant who can possibly spare the time to attend. Come for a while anyway.

Be on hand at the meeting next Saturday night in the Council chamber at 8 o'clock sharp and lend a hand to perfecting an organization whose only aim is to work in the interests of Peterborough and its citizens.

THE STREET RAILWAY MEN'S BALL BIG SOCIAL EVENT

The Street Railway employees are preening themselves for their annual At Home on March 17. Conductors and motormen are unanimous in declaring that their second annual big night will be the event of the season. Last year they got together everybody on the same level, no pride and that kind of stuff, but everybody determined to have a pleasant time, and they all had it. They make it a big family affair with lots of dancing and cards and refreshments, and if you want to come along you're as welcome as the first flowers and robins. Of course they don't want to keep all the enjoyment to themselves. That's not the idea, for there is bound to be a nice big crowd, but they want to see their friends particularly. People up and down the car lines have been asking about tickets and buying them. All kinds of encouragement, but it is rumoured that the postmen are holding strangely aloof. Up to a day or two ago the posties hadn't bought one ticket. "I've helped more postmen with their bundles than I have old ladies," said one conductor recently. "The least they could do is buy one ticket and appoint a delegate to the ball. That's just about what they may do yet. But, we should worry. We know we're going to have a classy bunch. We won't miss the postmen anyway."

Manager Munro has provided street cars for the home journey, and everything is running as smoothly as the car schedules are supposed to run.

COL. OGILVIE TO VISIT CITY DURING WEEK

If after three months' service, they must pay $2 a month for the remainder of the period of one year's service. If a man had served ten months, he would have to pay $4 before being discharged. The idea is to partly reimburse the public for the expense caused by the soldier.

A letter receive by the Examiner from one of the advance party of the Peterborough company at Belleville says that the soldiers quartered there were fed for the first time in the barracks last night. The balance of the kits is also being issued, and the improvement in the appearance of the men as soon as they get into the khaki is noticeable. The Lindsay detachment is expected at Belleville first, to be followed by the Peterborough company. The soldiers at Belleville are not doing much but outfitting just now. There are full kits for 1080 men in the stores, and once the companies arrive at Belleville it will only be a matter of a few hours to outfit them.

Must Not "Cuss" Over the 'Phone

Fined $25 if You Do—Amendments to Ontario Telephone Act

Should any citizen of Ontario have occasion in the near future to acquaint "Central" with his views on the service provided by the telephone company, he had better restrict himself to lady-like language. No more will the angry business man or the infuriated payer of grocery bills be allowed to express himself forcibly over the telephone systems of this province. The man who has a grievance against a fellow being must reserve his comment until he meets the party face to face. The telephone cannot be used as a means of indirect fire on the enemy. Why? Because the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board has taken a hand. After this session of Parliament the man who cuts loose in his English will pay a fine of $25 or go to jail for 30 days if convicted of the offence.

Amendments to the Telephone Act recommended by the board provide that any person using profane or insulting language, or carrying on an abusive conversation over the telephone, will be liable to a fine of $25 or thirty days. It is understood that the board has suggested the amendment on the recommendation of telephone companies which have complained that their operators were often insulted by subscribers who had a grievance real or fancied against the service provided.

Other suggested changes are that all unincorporated companies or associations in the telephone business must secure charters and have share capital. The majority of the regulations affect local companies in various municipalities of the province.

At present the only penalty for bad language is fixed by the telephone companies, and is removal of the 'phone.

ELLIOT'S

PATRICK DOHERTY MAY BE PAROLED

Was Sentenced to Kingston for 15 Years for Arson Committed in Otonabee

Efforts are being made to obtain parole for Patrick Doherty, who during the summer of 1912, was convicted by Police Magistrate Dumble of having set fire to the barns of a farmer named Armstrong, residing in Ontonabee. Doherty was committed to Kingston Penitentiary for a term of fifteen years. Now he is insane and is confined in the hospital at the Penitentiary. The authorities are seeking to have him paroled so as to facilitate his deportation to the Old Country from whence he came a few months prior to the act which brought about his incarceration. Doherty had a record before ever he came to Peterborough. Upon his arrival here he assumed the name of Goff, and was placed with Mr. Armstrong through the medium of the local Immigration Officer, who, at that time, was Mr. Howson. A few weeks later, Doherty had some words with his employer and subsequently left him, returning later in the season, when, according to his own admission, he fired the barn of his former employer. This he did after watching the owner leave for the field, after dinner. The barn was a total loss, together with part of the season's crop.

Doherty admitted his part in the affair and expressed satisfaction at the result accomplished. While in jail he made some attempt to deface his finger tips so as to prevent the police from obtaining a finger print record.

The authorities in Kingston have written to the local authorities asking for particulars as to the case.

France Soon to Call Recruits of 1915

Millerand Also Asks for Authorization to Start Training Those of 1916

PARIS, March 8.—The instruction of the young men of the military class of 1915, which was begun in 1914, is sufficiently advanced for them to join the active army. As legislation is necessary if they are to be called before January, however, Millerand, the Minister of War, has introduced a bill in the Chamber of Deputies authorizing their call at his discretion. The bill also would empower the Government to call into training the class which is normally due to join the colours in October, 1916.

The list of recruits for the class of 1917 will be posted publicly not later than Easter Sunday. This is in preparation for a call into training of the young men who are due to serve in October, 1917. The step is taken to provide for eventualities.

600 TURKS KILLED NEAR PERSIAN GULF

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 9—In a statement issued this evening regarding the recent fighting between British troops and Turkish forces at the head of the Persian Gulf the Official Press Bureau said:

The enemy's losses near Ahwaz (in Khusistan) on March 3, were heavier than previously reported. Six hundred were killed and many were wounded.

"In the action on the western flank the enemy lost three hundred men killed."

French Liner "La Touraine"—which had a few precarious few days on her last trip from New York. When within 700 miles of her destination she took fire, and it was thought likely the great number of cases of war supplies she was carrying might explode. She carried numbers of doctors and nurses from the States who were on their way to French battlefields. The Rotterdam assisted the burning liner to port.

Say Kaiser Copies Circus Methods

When the towns and villages in all parts of the country turn out this summer to see the circus come to town few of the always highly interested spectators are likely to realise that they may view then reproductions of important activities of the German army. The German Kaiser and his army studied the American circus closely while the Barnum and Bailey show was travelling in the German Empire. They subsequently adopted practically every feature of its wonderful organization for transporting, housing and feeding a large body of men and hundreds of draught animals.

"That is the circus system to the last detail," said Theodore Bauer, assistant manager of the Claridge Hotel, looking over newspaper pictures of the German army. Mr. George Bowles, who lives in the Claridge, vigorously corroborated Mr. Bauer. "Both of us were with the Barnum and Bailey show when it travelled over Europe," Mr. Bauer said, "and I have conducted groups of German army officers all over our plant. They studied especially the methods of cooking by which we were able to have a hot meal ready for all hands within a half hour after the circus arrived at the site of one of its stops.

"Emperor William was frequently at the circus and showed the keenest interest in the transportation departments. Mr. James G. Bailey, now dead, took the Emperor over the plant. He exhibited his astonishment when he saw sixty-seven railroad cars unloaded, a thousand men and hundred of horses, not to speak of the wild beasts in their cages, transferred to the circus ground, the tents erected and the entire encampment and in full working order in less than three hours. The Emperor went over every part of it carefully and paid special attention to the feeding of men and beasts, the housing of both, the shoeing of the horses, the dynamos on trucks which furnished the thousands of lights used, and, above all, he was interested in the cooking system. Very soon after his first inspection the German army officers began to arrive daily in considerable numbers. They must have taken careful notes, for these pictures show that the German army is being fed and much of its work with men, horses and guns done just as we did similar things in the circus.

"The circus cook wagons carried ranges in which fires were going en route and when a stop was made food for 1,000 persons was ready. Two cooks sat on the front, one driving, and two helpers on the rear. When the wagon came to the end of a journey the sides were let down and the cooks stood there to serve the food. The dishes in this German army commissary wagon are packed exactly as we had them packed in the circus pantry wagon.

"This picture of loading guns on a train shows it is done just as we used to load the animal cages and other vans. A runaway from the ground to the end of the rear car and planking between the cars made a continuous roadway over the train. The horses walked beside the train and hauled the cage up on the last car and over the cars until the cage was as far forward as it could go. Then the wheels were chocked with wooden blocks just as the guns are here. These horses packed in, with harness on, are being handled just as the circus horses were.

"And here is a dynamo on a truck and the truck on a railroad flat car. It makes me think of those old days of 1899. Great days they were with the 'big show' in Europe."

For cutting close to the lines of a patern there has been invented a frame in which shears are placed and automatically operated as a guide follows the lines.

JEWS NEED NOT FEAR.

Turks Exercising "Traditional Tolerance," Says Bernstorff.

WASHINGTON, March 9. — Count Bernstorff, German Ambassador here, issued a statement yesterday assuring Jews of the efforts on the part of the German Ambassador at Constantinople to prevent anti-Jewish agitation. Among other remarkable things he says:

"The Government in Constantinople, has, since the outbreak of war, strictly adhered to its traditional tolerant attitude toward all religions and there has never been an anti-Jewish or anti-Zionistic feeling in Constantinople. The political unrest, which for some time disturbed the Jewish population of Palestine, had been caused by the over-zealous attitude of local Turkish authorities.

"But, luckily, they have in no place been followed by excesses which could not be entirely repaired. The expulsion of several thousands of Jews from Palestine has also, without the permission from Constantinople, been ordered by local military authorities, who did not wish to allow Jews of foreign nationality to remain there."

Bengrove is Sunk.

ILFRACOMBE, Eng., March 9.— The British steamer Bengrove, carrying coal, was seen in distress sounding her siren five miles off this shore at 1.30 p.m. Sunday. Forty minutes later the ship's bow rose from the water and she sank by the stern. Thousands of people stood on the shore and watched her go down.

The steamer Paignton of Liverpool rescued the crew of thirty-three.

It is thought she was struck by torpedo.

Government's Copper is Safe.

LONDON, March 9.—No belligerent Government has a right to requisition a cargo belonging to a neutral Government, according to a decree given out by the prize court yesterday.

The question at issue arose over 1,800 tons of copper sent from the United States to Gothenburg, Sweden, and destined for the use of contractors to the Swedish Government.

Union Meeting of Young People's Societies Last Night

Address by His Honour Judge Huycke—Good Programme

A union meeting of the different young people's societies of the city was held at Murray Street Baptist Church last night. Mr. Joseph Watling, 2nd V.P., in the chair. The speaker of the evening was His Honour Judge Huycke, who spoke on the physical development of Canada from the nebular condition. According to geologists Canada is the oldest country in the world. The oldest rock formation is found here, and our Laurentian Range is really the backbone of the world.

At one time the climate in Canada was tropical, and in the Baffin's Bay district skeletons of great tropical lizards have been found. Indeed, Sir Wm. Dawson, President of Mr. McGill University claimed animal life was first found in this country.

After the tropical period came the glacial period, which resulted in great rivers of ice that scooped out the land now occupied by the Great Lakes. It has been proved that the climate has a great influence on civilization. Temperate zones produce the most energy and therefore the people inhabiting temperate zones generally become most powerful. Canada is mostly in the temperate zone, and great things should be expected from her people. She is the land of promise of the 20th century, with everything that a people could desire. It should be remembered, however, that the British Empire was really founded on character, not riches, and that Canada's ultimate destiny would depend on the character of her people.

Canada should treat the motherland as befitted a true daughter. Too much grant had had been perpetuated in GreatBritain by Canadian promoters representing real estate, mines, oils, etc. It would do well to [illegible] said, that "the greatest force for good in the universe, next to the Christian Church, is the British Empire."

After the address a vote of thanks was moved by Rev. Mr. McKenzie, and seconded by Rev. Mr. Webb.

A collection was taken to help pay off the debt on the piano at the Protestant Home, and $16.00 was realized.

The following was the order of the programme of the evening:

Hymn—British Hymn of War.
Lesson Reading—Rev. J. R. Webb.
Prayer—Rev. J. A. McKenzie.
Male Quartette—Representatives from Park Street Baptist Church.
Instrumental duet—Misses McKee.
Solo—Mr. Smith.

Huge Auxiliary Fleet Used.

WASHINGTON, March 9. — Some idea of the size of the auxiliary fleet Great Britain is using to move and sustain her armies in the field may be learned from a report on shipping condition from American Consul Lathrop at Cardiff, Wales.

Fifteen hundred British vessels, he reports, aggregating more than 3,500,000 tons, have been taken over by the British Admiralty on time charters, the Government taking all responsibility and agreeing to return the vessels as received.

Dresden is In Hiding.

LONDON, March 9.—A despatch to The Times from Santiago, Chile, reports the activity of German steamers with coal cargoes in South American waters. The correspondent considers that this activity supports the reports of the proximity of German cruisers in these waters. He says there are persistent rumors that the cruiser Dresden is hiding in one of the inlets in Southern Chile. He adds that the Chilean Government is taking every precaution to preserve its neutrality.

Italy and Austria In Conference.

BERLIN, March 9.—(Via London) It is announced in diplomatic quarters that a decided relaxation of tension in the Austro-Italian situation is noticeable. This is attributable probably to the initiation of direct negotiations between the two countries in response to the Austrian overtures.

How far the negotiations have progressed and whether tangible results have been obtained, has not been learned, but it is believed improbable in diplomatic circles that any decisive result has been reached.

WHAT DOES A WASHING MACHINE SAVE YOU?

IT SAVES all back breaking work.

IT SAVES bending over a tub—a very injurious thing for women to do.

IT SAVES breathing hot steam, and all the ills that result from it.

IT SAVES going from a steaming tub out doors to hang up the clothes. That is how colds are caught, how rheumatism starts, how consumption finds a beginning.

IT SAVES keeping one's hands in water until they grow coarse and stiff.

That is what a washing machine will save the woman who now does her washing in the old washboard way.

Germans of Fifty-five Called Out

COPENHAGEN, March 9.—Germans up to the age of fifty-five years, who two months ago were declared unfit for military service, it is reported here, now have been called upon to undergo training with younger recruits.

Reports received here from Schleswig are to the effect that the supply of petroleum in Germany has become so small that persons who formerly were permitted to purchase one bottle a week now have been deprived of that privilege. The stock in Schleswig has been practically exhausted.

Germany is reported here, on what appears to be good authority, to be building at Kiel fifteen small submarines of a new type, which will be used for reconnoitring the home coast in the Baltic Sea. Each of the submarines, it is said, will carry a crew of eight men.

BIG IRISH ENLISTMENT.

Of 450,000 Available in Britain, 125,000 Have Joined the Army.

LONDON, March 9.—There are 450,000 men of Irish birth or descent in Great Britain who are of military age, and 125,000 of them have already joined the army, according to the Secretary of the Irish National League.

This proportion, he asserts, is much larger than can be shown by any other nationality.

Russia is known to have 28 powerful wireless stations, France 18, Germany 17, and Austria-Hungary four.

The free ends of a new English detachable rim for automobile wheels overlap and can be drawn together with a jack to permit a tire to be easily removed.

DANDRUFF ON HEAD IN DRY CRUST

Hair Came Out. Scalp Itched and Burned. Scales Like Sawdust. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed In Six Weeks.

The Pas, Manitoba.—"Four years ago I began to lose my hair. It used to come out any time that I combed it. I think it was because my head was full of dandruff. Whenever I brushed it the combs flew off like saw-dust. My scalp also itched and burned and my head was like a dry crust. The dandruff showed very plainly.

"I applied several remedies but found no improvement till I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using Cuticura Soap and Ointment a few days I found a great difference so I continued with them six weeks and they completely healed me." (Signed) L. D. Lockwood, June 4, 1914.

RASH OVER BABY'S CHEST

99 Follis Ave., Toronto, Ont.—"From birth my baby grandson had a rash over his chest which prevented his sleeping and seemed to irritate him a great deal. They were a mass of tiny red pimples on his chest and arms. He was too young to scratch but was very cross and fretful.

"I used the samples of both Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they appeared to afford him relief immediately so I bought more. In three or four weeks he was entirely healed." (Signed) Mrs. L. Compton, May 23, 1914.

Concentrating Fire on the Forts of Namazieh

37 LIVES LOST IN THE SINKING OF SHIPS

NEWEST MONSTER OF SEAS JOINS THE ALLIED FLEET

New Battleship "Warspite" of the Queen Elizabeth Type is Now Reported to be Battering Turkish Forts

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, Eng., March 10.—Six British warships, headed by the super-dreadnought Queen Elizabeth, are concentrating their fire upon the batteries of Fort Namazieh, overlooking the Dardanelles Narrows, according to Athens despatches to-day.

A determined effort is being made to silence the guns of Namazieth, which have so far swept the strait for a distance of several miles and blocked the advance of mine sweepers.

The newest monster of the seas the super-dreadnought "Warspite" is believed to have joined the allied fleet. Admiralty officials have virtually admitted that another big battleship of the Queen Elizabeth type is in action.

The "Warspite" was laid down five days after the Queen Elizabeth was launched, Nov. 29, 1913, and is now reported to be battering Turkish forts with her 15 inch guns.

Nearly thirty French and English warships, the Admiralty admitted today, are now shelling the Ottoman defences. In addition to these, a dozen other powerful fighting craft are unofficially reported to be in action. The [illegible] nearly six times that of the entire Spanish Armada of ancient days.

The Russian Black Sea fleet, Petrograd reported to-day, is steaming slowly westward along the coast of Asiatic Turkey toward the Bosphorus. It has sunk several small Turkish steamers utilized as supply ships for the Turkish fleet and is now reported less than 100 miles from Constantinople.

It was officially denied to-day that the Queen Elizabeth had suffered serious damage in Dardanelles fighting.

Italy Expected To Enter The War Within Next 48 Hours

Special Cable to The Examiner:

ROME, March 10.—An extremely important meeting of the Council of Ministers was held last evening, beginning at half-past nine o'clock and continuing for several hours. The Ministers were brought together on an urgent summons and it is believed that they considered matters of the gravest importance for the future of Italy. No information as to their decisions has yet become public, but it is believed that a declaration of war is imminent and may come within the next 48 hours.

The conference was called after Premier Salandra, who has just returned from a visit to Gaeta, where a new military harbour was dedicated, had spent most of the day in an interview with Baron Sonnino, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Great national spirit was manifested throughout the Premier's visit to Gaeta, the people showing a patriotism that impressed the Minister greatly and convinced many in his party that the public wants intervention. A remark by the Premier at Gaeta is being repeated all over the country as indicating the course of future events. In referring to the kind of brown bread which will be allowed in Italy after March 22, Signor Salandra said:

"This is a noble bread. Our soldiers will be the first to be sacrificed and Italians will see the destiny of their country accomplished."

WHEAT PRICES ARE HIGHER

Special to The Examiner:

CHICAGO, March 10.—There was a stampede of May wheat shorts yesterday, and they bid the price of that future upward from $1.51 to $1.55, compared with a closing of $1.49 1-4 on Monday, a net advance of 5 3-4c. Had not those having profits been willing to secure the money available, thereby partly meeting the wants of the shorts, the price gains would have been more sensational.

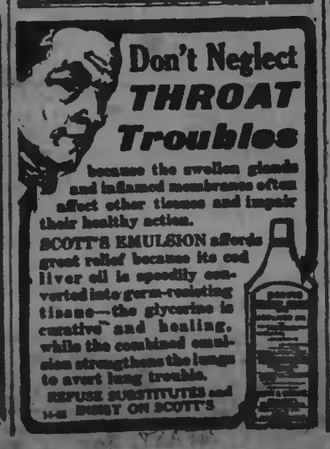
There is no cash wheat here to speak of, and only 79,000 bushels of it is contract, while at this time last year there were 3,338,000 bushels contract wheat. The average short in May wheat has displayed considerable stubborness, as he has refused to quietly cover on the sharp declines, but has remained short in the hope that the Dardanelles would soon be reopened to commercial shipping and that this would prove a bearish influence and cause the importing countries to withdraw their buying power from North America as well as Argentina and thereby force values to sensationally lower prices.

Conditions surrounding the wheat market could hardly be more bullish than at the moment. When the fact is stated that exporters holding orders at Chicago and other points were unable to buy wheat to-day it will be seen that in order to secure wheat, bring it to Chicago and deliver it on May contracts much higher prices will have to be paid. There was not a pound of wheat sold at Chicago yesterday, save the few carlots to change hands. The seaboard reported tractions of 500,000 bushels since the close on Monday, and Minneapolis reported 350,000 bushels sold there to go all rail to the seaboard.

Cattle Markets.

TORONTO, March 10.—Market values of cattle held steady at local live stock yards yesterday compared with Monday's slight declines. Trade was active again. One buyer was operating again for shipment to the Eastern States, and packers were in the market with fair needs. The former wanted chiefly butcher bulls and cows. The scales were busy again, and by noon practically all pens were empty.

Some choice butchers' steers of weight from 1,200 to 1,300 lbs., were sold in car lots at $7.75. Choice ranged from $7.40 to $7.75, good from $7 to $7.40, medium from $6.50 to $7, and common to fair from $5.50 to $6.5[illegible]



OVER TEN MILLIONS FOR FARMER'S RELIEF

OTTAWA, March 10.—Supplementary estimates totalling $10,401,958, to defray the cost of supplying seed grain to farmers, and for other relief measures in the crop failure districts of last year in the Prairie Provinces, were tabled in the Commons yesterday by the Minister of Finance. The seed grain purchased will cost $8,159,958, and for the relief of distress, etc., a vote of $2,240,000 is asked. The cost of the seed grain supplied is made in each case a first charge against the lands.

An additional vote of $2,000 is asked for the relief of distressed Canadians in countries other than the United States through war conditions.

RUSSIAN SUCCESSES ON PILICA

Examiner Special:

PETROGRAD, March 10. — The present movements at both ends of the Russian war zone shows that the Germans and Austrians are manoeuvring for delay. They are striving to gain time to avoid the great pitched battle which the Russians hope to force on them.

The two German armies in the [illegible] across the earlier lines of their advance on Kovno and Grodno. Throughout their occupation of the strip of land adjoining the left bank of the Niemen their motors scoured the country for horse forage, but the Russians had moved everything, and the Germans could only burn down empty barns. Since Saturday they have been withdrawing their heaviest calibre artillery from the bombardment of Ossowetz. The operations there are now dying down to an occasional shelling from the six-inch guns.

The character of the German retirement, however, still leaves a possibility that the Russians will be able to engage them in battle under conditions somewhat similar to those of Prasnysz, in the country above Lomza, possibly along the line from Kolno to St. Chuchin, with the Germans moving from their bases at Johannisburg and Lyck. It is believed there are about 150,000 Germans in this triangle between Lomza and the East Prussian frontier, which is about the number of the defeated army at Prasnysz.

AVOID HARSH PILLS! DOCTORS CONDEMN THEM

Most Pills unfortunately are harsh and drastic; they cause inflammation and great discomfort. Rather like nature is the way a pill should act, mildly but effectively. Science has established nothing more satisfactory as a family pill than the old reliable pills of Dr. Hamilton's, which for forty years have had a premier place in America. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are very mild and can be effectively used by the aged, by children, and indeed by men and women of all ages. No stomach or bowel medicine is more reliable. No remedy for indigestion, headache or biliousness is so effective, so mild, so certain to quickly cure as a 25c box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

This Hen Hatched Ten Chickens in a "Snowball"

WINSTED, Conn. March 9—Hatching chickens in a snowball is the latest achievement of Fritz Von Steiger, living on Platte Hill. One month ago one of his hens wanted to set. Fritz, or rather his hen-house, was not prepared for the event. He ducked the hen in ice water and tried other methods to break her of the habit, but to no avail.

Twenty-two days ago Fritz took 12 eggs, a can filled with cracked corn, another can filled with water, and with the setting hen placed them under a wooden box outdoor and then covered the box with snow. To-day he removed the snow and found the hen and ten chicks all doing well.

BRITISH PRESS DEMANDS THAT THE THREAT BE CARRIED OUT

Prisoners of German Submarine U-8, Now in England Should be Tried as Murderers as Revenge for Yesterday's Action

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, Wednesday, March 10—An official announcement just issued shows that German submarines yesterday (Tuesday) sank three steamships.

The statement follows:

"The steamer Tangistan was sunk without warning by a German submarine, without warning, off Scarborough at 12.20 o'clock the morning of March 9. Only one man of her crew of 38 men was saved.

"The steamer Blackwood was sunk by a submarine, without warning, off Hastings at 6 o'clock the morning of March 9. Her crew of 17 was saved.

"The steamer Princess Victoria of Glasgow was sunk without warning by a German submarine at 9.15 o'clock the morning of March 9, off Liverpool. Her crew of 34 was saved."

LONDON, Eng., March 10—Incensed at the torpedoing of three more British merchant steamers, with a [illegible] British press to-day demanded that the Government now carry out its threat and try 29 officers and crew of the German submarine U-8, now prisoners in England, as pirates and murderers. Despatches from Amsterdam to-day carried a claim from Berlin that the U-8 alone had sunk five British steamers in the channel before she was destroyed.

"The crew of the U-8 are common pirates and murderers" said a writer in London to-day. "They should be treated as such and tried by common law. Let the world know that we count them as criminals and not honourable enemies."

Story of Survivors.

The sole survivor of the Tangistan, who has been landed at West Hartlepol by the steamer Woodville, described the loss of his 37 companions. "The Tangistan," said the man, "was torpedoed off Scarborough. She was struck amidships and went down almost immediately. All the members of the crew were in the lifeboats but they were unable to disconnect the lowering tackle before the ship sank and dragged down the boats with her. I caught hold of a piece of wreckage and clung to it for nearly three hours in the icy water until I was rescued."

The crew of the steamer Princess Victoria, in two small boats, were towed to Liverpool late this afternoon. The men were suffering from exposure. Telling of the sinking of his vessel by a German submarine, the Captain said: "The submarine discharged a torpedo at us without even showing her periscope, as the weather conditions were excellent, and a number of special lookouts who were posted to keep watch saw [illegible] 9.15 o'clock the steersman suddenly shouted 'A torpedo is coming!' He had seen the white swirl of the missile. Even as he spoke it hit us, and a violent explosion followed which caused the vessel to instantly list heavily. I ordered two boats overboard, and into them the crew scrambled. Our ship disappeared in about fifteen minutes. Five hours in the open boats nearly did us up."

Saw Two Submarines.

The captain and crew of the steamer Blackwood, which was sunk off Hastings, were landed Tuesday night at Newhaven. They say that their vessel, laden with coal and bound from Blyth for Havre, was torpedoed during a snowstorm early in the morning, eighty miles south of Dungeness, without warning. Fortunately in view of the submarines sea zone menace, the men say, they had their boat swung out and ready for launching and that therefore all of them were saved. Nobody on board the steamer was injured. The vessel sank within ten minutes after she was struck. According to the men a submarine was observed just awash of the Blackwood, but her number could not be seen. One of the officers says he saw the periscope of another submarine close by the steamer.

The Clan Line steamer Clan Macrae was chased by a German submarine boat off the Mersey bar in the Irish Sea this morning for 25 minutes. The steamer escaped by zig-zagging at full speed. The Clan Macrae left Port Natal January 21, for Liverpool.

EIGHTY MILLION BUSHELS WHEAT LEFT IN CANADA

OTTAWA, March 10.—The Trade and Commerce Department announces the result of an inquiry ordered by Sir George Foster to ascertain the stocks of wheat in Canada on February 8. The total is 79,130,503 bushels, distributed thus: Terminal elevators 2,853,679; railway elevators, 1,213,952; other elevators, 26,776,246; flour mills 6,160,840; in transit by rail, 12,571,876; in farmers' hands, 29,554,000. The aggregate amount, allowing for non-replies, is figured at approximately 80,000,000 bushels, amply sufficient to meet all the country's requirements between now and the next harvest. For seeding this spring and food during the next six months, it is estimated that forty-four and a quarter million bushels are required, thus leaving a balance of thirty-five and three-quarter million bushels for export and reserve.

Aged Woman Tells Longevity Secret

MARTIN'S POINT, March 9.—Observing the hygienic rules at which doctors stand aghast, Mrs. Mary Brand, oldest resident of Belmont county, celebrated her ninety-eighth birthday yesterday and laughingly predicted that she would at least live to be a hundred.

She attributes her long life to a few rules, chief of which is "Eat what you want when you want it."

Mrs. Brand practices this rule unreservedly and enthusiastically. She smilingly explained that often she rises in the middle of the night and eats a little "just to stay her stomach," and that frequently this nocturnal menu includes pie. "If you're hungry for a thing, that thing won't hurt you," Mrs. Brand says.

A second printing of Booth Tarkington's new novel "The Turmoil" had to be made two weeks in advance of publication.

DREAMING OF A COUP

Germany to Try Something Hazardous to Save Constantinople.

COPENHAGEN, March 9. — It is semi-officially admitted in Berlin that panic reigns in Constantinople. The Berlingske Tidende is of the opinion that the allies have achieved the most difficult portion of their task, and that an almost clear road lies to Constantinople, which a few hours' shooting would reduce to ruins. Enver Pasha is reported to have hurried to Berlin to a secret conference with the Kaiser and general staff regarding the Dardanelles. It is surmised that some desperate coup to save Constantinople will be hazarded as the outcome of the meeting. The Turks are bitterly upbraiding Germany.

GERMANY IS ISSUING POTATO TICKETS

BERLIN, March 10.—The suburban town of Wilmersdorf has voted to issue potato tickets, similar to the bread tickets recently introduced in all cities in Germany. Wilmersdorf, which is the first town to adopt this method for conserving the potato supply, will allow 22 pounds per capita weekly.

HAS 781,000 WAR PRISONERS

Special Morning [illegible]

BERLIN, March 10—Among the items given out to-day for publication by the Overseas News Agency, are the following:

"Members of the Prussian Diet who have been inspecting prisoner camps have received information that at present there are 781,000 war prisoners interned in Germany, an increase since the end of 1914 of more than 200,000 men.

"The last of the booty left by the fleeing Russians in the battle of the Masurian Lakes has been brought into Berlin. It includes two thousand waggons of all varieties, most of them in an undamaged condition.

"Advices from Sofia say Servia is planning an invasion of Albania and an advance to the Adriatic. At several points, it is stated, the Servians already have crossed the Albanian border.

"The newspapers in Berlin continue to speculate on the future course of Greece and Italy in the war."

THE BABY'S WELFARE A MOTHER'S DREAD

A fear clutches at the heart of the mother that her own little one may not live long. She dreads its second summer, or that it may never wake from its sound sleep. All mankind loves a mother—loves to see a mother love her child. A baby and its mother are insured against ill-health if the mother takes Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription, a tonic for women that Dr. R. V. Pierce invented nearly a half century ago for women's ills. This is a vegetable tonic, made only of the herbs roots with glycerine, which puts the female system into perfect, healthy action.

Many mothers of families in the United States have reason to be grateful to the person who recommended Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription. It is put up for the single purpose of curing disease of women. It has sold more largely on this continent than any other medicine for women. Another point in its favour: it is a temperance remedy and does not contain a single drop of alcohol nor of any narcotic.

Young mothers who preserve the charms of face and figure in spite of an increasing family and the care of growing children are always to be envied. Dr. Pierce's Favourite Prescription gives the strength and health upon which happy motherhood depends. It enables the mother to nourish the infant life depending on her, and enjoy the hourly happiness of watching the development of a perfectly healthy child.

FREE.—The Common Sense Medical Adviser, bound in cloth, is sent on receipt of 5 dimes (or stamps) to pay expense of duty wrapping and mailing. Address: Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N.Y.

Dr. Pierce's medicines are manufactured in Canada at the World's Dispensary, Bridgeburg, Ont.

By Frank Frost

"Ah!" he exclaimed at last. He had noted a small bottle of gum arabic standing on the cast-iron mantelpiece.

Now, gum arabic can be used for a variety of purposes, and it has the merit of invisible ink of being made decipherable by quite a simple process which minimises the risk of accidental disclosure. The superintendent held the paper to the gas again for a few minutes. Then from a corner of the room he collected a handful of dust—no difficult process, for it was long since the place had felt the purifying influence of a broom—and rubbed it hard on the rough surface of the paper. A jumple of letters stood out greyly on the surface. He looked at them hard, and Green, peeping over his shoulder, frowned.

"Cipher!" he exclaimed.

It was undoubtedly cipher, but whether a simple or abstruse one Foyle was in no position to judge. He had an elementary knowledge of the subject, but he had no intention of attempting to solve it by himself. There were always experts to whom appeal could be made. A successful detective, like a successful journalist, is a man who knows the value of specialists—who knows where to go for the information he wants. That meaningless jumble of letters could [illegible] expert. Foyle nevertheless scrutinised them closely, more as a matter of habit than of reading anything from them. They were:

UJQWO. BJNT. FJ. UJM. FJTV. UIYIQL. SK. DQUQZOKKEYJPK. ANUJ. M.Q. NG. N. AYUQNQIX. IGZ. ANUJ. SIO. IGZ. SMPPN. RT. 12345 HGZVFSF.

"Well, let Jones have a go at that," he said. "Anything else now?"

Some one handed him the knife that had been thrown at him on the landing and a curious leather sheath that had been picked up near the bed. From the bottom of the sheath depended a leather tassel. Foyle looked it over and failed to discover any manufacturer's name. He slipped the weapon into his pocket with the mental reflection that it looked Greek. The search went on from attic to cellar, and profuse notes were taken of everything found, with its exact position. The elaborate trouble taken by these men to describe minutely in writing every little thing would have seemed absurd to any one not versed in the ways of the Criminal Investigation Department. Yet nothing was done that was not necessary. An error of an inch in a measurement might make all the difference when the case came on for trial.

Foyle and Green left the house in charge of the divisional man. Already a description had been circulated of the man they had failed to surprise; but as neither had caught more than a glimpse of a shadowy figure in the darkness, they had had to rely on the descriptions given by Israels and his wife. And even if that estimable pair had really tried honestly to give a fair description of the man—which the detectives thought was extremely doubtful—there could be little hope that it was accurate. If the average man tries to describe the appearance of his most intimate friend and then asks a stranger to identify him, he will realise how misleading such descriptions may be even at the best of times. Yet the Criminal Investigation Department had to work with such material as they had.

Heldon Foyle was very silent as they trudged side by side out of Whitechapel into the silent City streets—for there are no taxicabs to be found in the East End at such hours. The case was developing; but though he was beginning to have a hazy glimpse into some of its workings, there was much that remained a mystery to him. His questionings of Israels had satisfied him that the man who had escaped was neither Grell nor Ivan. He could not blame himself for not effecting an arrest. Looking back over the night's events, he could not see that he could have taken further precaution. If he had taken more men the escape would have occurred just the same over the roofs, for he would still have felt it his duty to question Israels. He could not have foreseen that the ready-witted Lola was there, nor that she should have so ingeniously given the alarm. The luck had been against him.

Nevertheless he had gained an important fact. Lola was in London and was obviously acting in concert with Grell. It was easier to look for two persons than one. Sooner or later he would lay hands on them and solve the mystery of the murder. He clenched his fists resolutely as his thoughts carried him away. Meanwhile there was the cipher. If that could be de-coded it might be valuable.

Green's voice broke in upon his thoughts.

"We didn't find anything bearing on Waverley."

"Waverley?" repeated Foyle. "Oh yes, I had almost forgotten him."

For an hour after they had reached Scotland Yard the superintendent laboured at his desk, collecting reports and writing fresh chapters in the book which held all the facts in relation to the crime, so far as he knew them. He slipped the result of his labours at last in an envelope and left them over to be dealt with by the inspector in charge of the Registry, which is a department that serves as official memory to Scotland Yard.

"That is all right," he said, and stretched himself.

Some one knocked at the door. The handle turned and an erect man with his right arm carried in a black silk handkerchief improvised into a sling entered the room. It was Detective-Inspector Waverley.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Heldon Foyle was on his feet in a second, and he pushed a chair towards his subordinate. Detective-Inspector Waverley sat down and drummed nervously on his knees with the fingers of his left hand.

"Well, you've got back," said the superintendent in a non-committal tone. "We were beginning to wonder what had happened to you. I hope that arm of yours is not badly hurt. What has been the trouble?"

The inspector winced and sat bolt upright in his chair.

"I guess I was to blame, sir," he said. "I fell into a trap like a new-joined cabbage-boy. This man, Ivan Abramovitch, must have known that he was followed by a couple of us, so he threw off Taylor, who was with me, very simply, by going into a big outfitter's place in the City. I dodged round to a second entrance and, sure enough, he came out there. I couldn't get word to Taylor, so I picked him up, and a pretty dance he led me through a maze of alleys up the side of Petticoat Lane and round about by the Whitechapel Road. You will know the sort of neighbourhood it is there. Well, I suppose I must have got a bit careless, for in taking a narrow twist in one of those alleys some one dropped on me from behind. I hit out and yelled, but I didn't get a second chance, for my head was bumped hard down on the pavement and I went to sleep for good and plenty. There were a couple of men in it, for I could hear 'em talking before I became properly unconscious. They dragged me along, linking their arms in mine, and we got into a cab. I guess the driver thought I was drunk, and that they were my pals helping me home.

"When I came round my head was bandaged up, and I was in quite a decent little room, lying on a couch, with Mr. Ivan Abramovitch sitting opposite to me. I couldn't give a guess where it was, for the window only looked out on a blank wall. I sat up, and he grinned at me.

"'I am a police officer,' I said. 'How did I get here?'

"'I brought you,' he says with a grin. 'You were taking too great an interest in my doings for my liking. Now I am going to take an interest in yours.'

"At that I jumped for him and got a knife through my arm for my pains. After he'd sworn at me like a trooper in English, French and Russian for about ten minutes he bandaged up the cut with his handkerchief, and told me if I made any more fuss I was in for trouble. Some one knocked at the door, but he ordered them off.

"'You won't get away from here alive without permission if I can help it,' he said; 'but if you do, you won't be able to identify any one but myself. If you take it coolly there'll be no harm come to you.'

"I tried to bluff a bit, but he just laughed. And then I stayed with him in the same room up to within an hour or two ago, when some one came into the house and he was summoned outside the door. They had an excited pow-wow, and I could hear a woman talking. Finally, the man came back and told me they'd determined to let me go. He put a handkerchief over my eyes, and after a while I was taken down into what I thought was a taxicab. I was turned out a quarter of an hour ago at the Blackfriars end of the Embankment."

Foyle was by now striding up and down the office, his hands thrust deep in his trousers pockets. He paused long enough to blow down a speaking-tube and put a quick question.

"What was the number of the cab?"

"It had no police number. Its index mark was A.A. 4796."

The superintendent drew from his pocket a little black book, such as is carried by every police officer in London. On the outside was inscribed in white letters: "Metropolitan Police. Pocket Directory." He turned over the pages until he found what he wanted. A messenger had pushed open the door.

"Southampton registration," said the superintendent. "Johns, get through on the 'phone to the Southampton police, and ask 'em to trace the owner of this car the moment the county council offices open."

The messenger disappeared, and he turned to Waverley.

"The number's probably a false one—a board slipped over the real number, as they did in the Dalston case when some American toughs went through that jeweller a month or two back. We might as well look into it, though. These people are wily customers, or they wouldn't have kept you from seeing the rest of the gang. They tried to frighten us by threatening to make away with you. I think it likely that they found it rather a nuisance to look after you—especially when Green and I tumbled on to some of their people an hour ago. You haven't exactly covered yourself with glory, Waverley, but under the circumstances I shall take no disciplinary action. Now go and write out a full report, and then go home. The police surgeon will recommend what leave of absence you want to get over the stab in the arm. Good night—or rather, good morning."

"Thank you, sir. Good morning, sir."

Foyle never forgot discipline, which is as necessary, or more necessary within limits, in a detective service as in any other specialised business. To have sympathised with Waverley would have been bad policy. He had been made to feel that he had blundered in some way, and the feeling with which he had entered the room, that he was a martyr to duty, had vanished in the conviction that he was simply a fool.

Foyle lit a cigar and fell into a reverie that lasted perhaps ten minutes. He was glad that Waverley was safe, but a little disgusted that he had failed to baffle the precautions taken while he was a prisoner, and so have learnt something that might have been of value in the investigations. Presently he lifted the telephone receiver and ordered a taxicab from the all-night rank in Trafalgar Square. In a little while he was being whirled homeward.

Not till midday next day did he arrive at the Yard. A slip of paper was lying on his desk — the record of a telephone message from the Southampton police. It read:

"Hewitt, Chief Constable, Southampton, to Foyle, C.I.D., London.

"Car No. A.A. 4796 belongs to Mr. J. Price, The Grange, Lyndhurst. Mr. Price is an old resident in the neighbourhood and a man of means. The car is a six-cylinder Napier."

"As I thought," commented Heldon Foyle thoughtfully, tearing the paper into little bits and dropping them into the waste-paper basket. "The number was a false one. They knew that Waverley would have a look at the number. Oh, these people are cunning—cunning."

Green found him half an hour later, hard at work with the collection of typewritten sheets which formed the book of the case. Foyle was still juggling with his jig-saw puzzle, trying to fit fresh facts in their proper position to old facts.

"Well?" asked the superintendent abruptly.

Green read from a paper in his hand.

Mr. James E. Alexander, of North Hopewell, N.S., writes: "Many strains in my back and hips brought on rheumatism in the sciatic nerve. I had it so bad one night when sitting in my chair, that I had to jump on my feet to get relief. I at once applied your Liniment to the affected part and in less than ten minutes it was perfectly easy. I think it is the best of all Liniments I have ever used."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Who Captured Him?

Was It a French War Detective or a Pretty Girl?

By JOHN Y. LARNED

When the great European war broke out Arthur Eggleston, a young American reporter, anxious to make his way in the world, full of the vigor of youth and not averse to adventure, saw his opportunity. He took the first steamer for London that sailed and in due time arrived at that city.

Crossing the channel with a contingent of British troops, he landed at Ostend during that period when the German forces were hammering at the forts of Liege and the French and British forces were gathering to resist the invasion into France. He applied for permission to attach himself to the British headquarters, but was refused on the ground that no newspaper correspondents would be allowed to accompany the army. At the French headquarters he received the same response to his application.

Eggleston, having crossed the Atlantic ocean and the British channel to report the big fight, determined to follow in the allies' rear, hang about their flanks, anything except get in their way, and report what he could gather. He found himself at Lille when the allied armies had begun their retreat, but before they had reached that city. He also found "the General safety," a detective force used to hunt down and eradicate spies. When one is hunting for any particular thing the identity of which is doubtful he is very apt to find it. With a lot of spy hunters in the field a scarecrow set up to keep the crows away from the corn is not safe.

Eggleston was walking in Lille one day when a file of French soldiers under the command of a lieutenant came down the street, stopping persons here and there. The American did not dream of danger and, when they reached him and the officer demanded to know who he was, where he had come from and where he was going, told him that he was a newspaper correspondent looking for news. The officer, not being satisfied with this, informed him that he must take him to the headquarters of the General safety.

Eggleston was conducted to a building in a room of which an officer, sitting behind a desk, regarded him contemptuously. The Frenchman began asking him questions in French, and Eggleston understood most of them, answering without hesitation, but when his questioner branched into German the American showed plainly that he did not understand. It did not at once occur to him that the man suspected him of being a German spy and was trying to catch him. Presently Eggleston bethought himself of his passport and produced it. This established the fact that he was an American, and he was thereafter treated with great consideration.

Eggleston spent some time in Lille without being permitted to go near the armies. One day he was walking along a residence street when he heard a feminine voice say in French:

"Monsieur, have you any news of the armies? Will they come this way? We are all packed ready to move."

Turning, he saw a pretty girl leaning out of a window. He had studied the French language at school and had picked up a Frenchman on the way across the Atlantic, with whom he had talked incessantly in order to gather enough French to enable him to get on in France. So he replied as best he could that he was profoundly ignorant of what was going on at the front; he was trying to get there, but thus far had been unsuccessful. Noticing that his French was not of the best, the girl asked him if he were not English. No; he was American. The English were very popular since they had come to assist the French, but before that Americans were the best liked. An elderly lady came to the window, anxiously asked for news and gave Eggleston an invitation to come in. He accepted it. A glass of wine was brought out, and the three sat discussing the probabilities of the family having to leave their home and cart their belongings across country to the coast, as the Belgians were doing.

And so it happened that Eggleston, instead of writing up the thunder of guns, the explosion of shells, the rattle of rifles, the groans of the wounded, spent several days dallying with a pretty girl, at the end of which time, since he did not go to the guns, the guns came to him, and while they were yet in the distance he helped his friends, the Legires, to remove their effects—or a small portion of them—to a cart he procured for them and saw them on their way to the southward, after which he began to do some work as a war correspondent.

Eggleston, keeping as near the retreating French and English lines as he dared, preceded their retreat toward the capital. When the tide turned he was on the allies' left flank and one day after witnessing some very hard fighting went into a town on the west bank of the river Oise to write up copy and send it by courier to the coast to be forwarded.

He was sitting in the writing room of the only hotel in the place when a man came in and, handing over him, began to peruse what he was writing.

"Are you a censor?" said Eggleston, looking up with a scowl.

"I am an officer of the General safety corps, monsieur. Who are you?"

"I am an American newspaper correspondent, writing an account of today's battle and in a hurry."

"English?"

"No; American."

"I would like to see your passport, monsieur."

Eggleston took his passport from his pocket, threw it on the table and went on writing. The man picked it up, opened it, read it and compared the personal description with the correspondent.

"Eyes blue, hair light. The Germans all have blue eyes and light hair."

"Germans? What do you mean? Don't you see that the passport reads, 'A citizen of the United States?'"

"Monsieur, you may as well own up first as last. You are a German spy."

Eggleston pushed back his chair and stared at the man.

"German spy! Why, my dear fellow, I am an American. Can't you read English?"

"The passport has been stolen. The Germans took it from an American. You need not try to deceive us. We have received a warning."

"What warning?"

"A German who has lived in England, who speaks English like a native, who looks like an Englishman, armed with the American's passport, is within our lines for information. We have received orders to look out for him and if we take him to shoot him at once. Come."

Eggleston paled. He was aware that the keen scent of spy hunters was leading the detectives to make short work of suspicious persons and supposed he was to be taken out to be shot.

"But, monsieur, I was in Lille a few days ago, where I made the acquaintance of those connected with the General safety. They will vouch for me."

"Ah, but they are not here," with a shrug of his shoulders.

"And I must suffer as a spy because those who are able to identify me are not here?"

"That is one of the hardships of war. We can take no risks. Besides, those men in Lille may have been deceived in you."

"When did the Germans capture the passport you have referred to?"

"Yesterday."

"I met the General safety detective last week."

At this moment another man came into the room and looked at Eggleston as a hound would look at a hare in which he was about to set his teeth. The two Frenchmen talked together in a low voice. Eggleston thought it better not to seem much troubled about the matter and, taking up one of the sheets before him, pretended to read. A third man was called into the room, who, having been instructed, approached the American and said to him in German:

"If you will confess your life will be spared."

Eggleston, who did not understand a word of what was said to him, but recognized that it was in the German language, replied:

"Nicht verstehe."

This was quite enough for the Frenchman, who held that the "nicht verstehe" was full proof that the suspect was a German. However, after deliberation they concluded to refer the case to some one higher up; so they placed Eggleston under guard for the night.

But the allies were at that time too busy fighting for any one in authority to pay any attention to an individual case. The next morning, no reply having been received concerning the suspected spy, his captors concluded that it was best to take no risks, but shoot him, though they did not like to do so on an uncertainty, for in case he should be what he pretended they would be liable to get themselves into trouble.

The roar of battle at times sounded nearer and at times more distant. On one occasion when the guns were louder Eggleston's captors decided to remove him to a town farther west. During the journey they were about to cross a road running north and south and had stopped to let a train of refugees pass when among the latter Eggleston caught a glimpse of the pretty girl he had met in Lille.

"Mademoiselle!" he shouted.

Louise Legire turned and, seeing the American who had assisted the family in the hour of need, clapped her hands with French fervency and called her mother's attention to him.

A halt was called, and the refugees and the detective came together for a conference. Both mother and daughter were horrified when they learned that "le bon Americain" was to be shot as a spy. They told the story of having seen him in Lille about a week before and how he had assisted them. This was proof positive that he was not traveling on a captured passport, for he had shown it to an officer of the General safety corps in their presence, and Louise, who had never seen a passport before, had examined it from curiosity.

Eggleston's captors apologized for having intended to shoot him as complacently as if they were doing so for having unintentionally jogged him in passing. They dismissed him, and the last seen of him he had joined the Legires, and that is the last that has been heard of him. His reports to his paper suddenly stopped. There are those who suspect that this ending of the story is incorrect and that he was really shot as a spy. But such persons do not consider that there is always danger of a man being carried away by a pretty girl even if there are plenty of warriors handy to do the job.

Cannot Censor U. S. Mails.

LONDON, March 9.—A proposal to establish a censorship over the American mails was opposed in the House of Commons yesterday by the Home Secretary, Reginald McKenna. The question was raised by Sir Henry Craik, who said he desired to prevent the distribution in New York of pamphlets emanating from German sources. These pamphlets, he said, accused Great Britain and her allies of treachery in connection with their diplomatic action in Belgium. Mr. McKenna characterized these pamphlets as practically harmless, and added:

"It has not been considered necessary in the past to establish a censorship over postal matter to or from the United States. To do so would involve an enormous addition to the censorship staff."

Dynamite Under Bridge.

KINGSTON, Ont., March 9.—Seven sticks of dynamite were found yesterday afternoon secreted under some planking over the railway crossing of the C.P.R. and G.T.R. at Cataraqui street. Whether it was placed there to do harm is not known. The police are working on the case. A lad who had dynamite in his pocket is being detained. He says he found a stick on Princess street.

Hungarian For Foreign Secretary.

LONDON, March 9. — A despatch from Amsterdam to the Exchange Telegraph Co. says that according to Vienna telegrams Count Stephan Tisza, the Hungarian Premier, will soon be appointed Austro-Hungarian Foreign Secretary. The despatches further add that the count will be given the title of Imperial Chancellor, and will be vested with powers similar to those held by the German Imperial Chancellor.

Humfrey Jordan, author of "The Joyous Wayfarer" and "Carmen and Mr. Dryasdust," joined Kitchener's first army last Fall and has been promoted to the rank of Captain.

W. L. George says that his new novel, "The Second Blooming," which has reached a third printing in both this country and England, is bringing him many letters from married women, who declare that the book tallies with their experiences and observations.

Florence Barclay is in private life the wife of an English vicar, and an enthusiastic church worker. She will soon put a little book, in which she will relate her own personal experiences of the power of prayer.

With Gallic politeness the editor of a Paris paper wrote to the American publishers of Kate Stephen' "The Greek Spirit," apologizing for his inability to publish the review of the book which he had purposed doing, because his entire editorial staff and all his compositors had enlisted in the army and gone to the front, as he himself was about to do.

"It is interesting to note," says Edward Howard Griggs in his new book, "Self-Culture Through the Vocation," "that there is hardly a great pessimist in all the ages who at any time of his life had to earn his living by the work of his own hands."

Arnold Bennett, in addition to working on a new novel, is giving much time and effort to organizing recruiting stations for the English War Department. He has lent his yacht to the Admiralty, and she is now steaming up and down the west coast watching for German cruisers.

Danger Signals Warn You of Approaching Paralysis

You may be restless, nervous, irritable and sleepless, but you think there is nothing to be alarmed at. You have no appetite, digestion is impaired, and there is weakness and irregularity of other bodily organs. You feel tired in body and mind, and find that you lack the energy to attend to the daily task.

MRS. ALLAN.

You may not realize that these are the symptoms of nervous prostration and the danger signals which warn you that some form of paralysis is the next step of development.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most successful restorative for the nerves that has ever been offered to the public. This has been proven in many thousands of cases similar to the one described in this letter.

Mrs. Thos. Allan, R.F.D., 3, Sombra, Ont., writes:—"Five years ago I suffered a complete breakdown, and frequently had palpitation of the heart. Since that illness I have had dizzy spells, had no power over my limbs (locomotor ataxia) and could not walk straight. At night I would have severe nervous spells, with heart palpitation, and would shake as though I had the ague. I felt improvement after using the first box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after continuing the treatment can now walk, eat and sleep well, have no nervous spells and do not require heart medicine. I have told several of my neighbors of the splendid results obtained from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

Germany Endeavouring To Hurt Belgian Industry By Theft of Machinery

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 8.—The industrial annihilation of Belgium is written in large letters in the last order of the German officials to move into Germany the machine tools and machinery of the great Belgian manufacturing plants.

The news of thos desolating action by Germany has been revealed by a statement just issued by the Belgian Legation announcing the protest of the Belgian steel and iron manufacturers to the Governor General in Belgium, against the wanton violation of the 53rd Article of the Fourth Convention of The Hague, and which expressly provides that an invading army shall not remove from the occupied country the machine, tools and machinery of private owned plants.

The Hague Convention provisions stipulate that machinery equipment can be seized from private works only for the immediate use of the invaders, the idea being that such machinery is essential to enable the inhabitants to carry on their means of earning a livelihood and to render them self-sustaining.

The Belgian territory has long been recognized as one of the most important centres of the world for the manufacture of machine tools and machinery of all description. Belgium has lived by export trade, and her iron and steel works have supplied enterprises in almost every port of the civilized world. When the rebuilding of San Francisco was undertaken after the great fire it was Belgian structural material that was drawn upon almost from the outset.

Belgian locomotives are to be found in the Far East, in South America and Africa. The same is true of Belgian mining machinery, bridges, gas engines, railway rolling stock, aerial tramways, dredges and colliery structures.

It is this Belgian export of machinery and machinery for making machinery which for years has been a thorn in the side of German export organizations. Everywhere the German exporters have had to contend against the low prices asked for Belgian iron and steel products, and it is the Belgian industry which the Germans now propose to completely wipe off the surface of the earth by stripping the shops of their tools, patterns, guages and plans; everything, in fact, which would enable these plants to start up work again once the war is ended.

Crushing a Competitor.

In all the gloom of the titantic struggle now going on, the Belgians may have at least hoped that some day it would be possible to again take up their industrial labours, and in time restore, in a measure, the damage that had been done. This hope has now been suddenly dashed to the ground. Germany does not mean that Belgium shall ever again be an industrial competitor. The works are to be destroyed and every piece of machinery that might assist to rejuvenate a stricken community is to be sent across the German frontier.

The blow is aimed directly at the great industrial centres of Liege, Bruxelles, Ghent and Charleroi. Those cities have in the past exported more than eighty per cent. of their products abroad, and the locomotives from the shops of St. Leonard, Meuse, Seraing and La Croyère have for years been in operation in Japan, India, South America, Africa and Continental Europe.

The machine tool industry of Belgium has been located principally at Liege, and included such works as Fetu-Defize, Jaspar & De Longdoz, all having an international reputation, while in addition there were located the Phoenix Works at Ghent; Le Progres-Industriel, at Detti, and the shops of Demorr & Co., at Bruxelles. The total machine tool output of the works mentioned was very large, and the stripping of these plants of their equipment will mean practical annihilation.

The motive of the new order apparently is found in the German intent to completely kill off the Belgian machine tool industry. The German machine tool export trade just before war was declared approximated $80,000,000 annually in Western Europe alone. This trade was independent of the exports beyond Europe.

Belgians Chief Rivals.

It is a well known fact that German machine tool competition in Continental Europe suffered, while it did suffer, from Belgian made machines. The German prices always were seriously affected by Belgian competition. German machine tools have largely been sold in Continental Europe through low prices. American machines almost always—that is to say, machines of the same type and of close comparison—brought higher prices in Europe than did German machines. The American machines secured the higher price through the possession of superior technical merit.

Belgian machine tools in recent years have seriously threatened German exports both in Europe and elsewhere, and the German occupation, it is declared, is now seizing the opportunity against the possibility of German expulsion, to destroy those plants which in the past have caused so much concern and annoyment to the German Machine Tool Export Association.

This association, it is explained, is practically a part and parcel of the German Ministry of Commerce and is guided in its policy and activities by governmental dictation. It has been aggressively opposed to American machinery in Germany and originated the recent boycott which it attempted to carry through on all machine tools of American make exported to Germany.

The very fact that the Germans are sending home equipment from Belgian shops, knowing as they must that this means not only the crippling of works, but the nullifying of all efforts to cause a resumption of Belgian industrial life, can only be explained by possible apprehension that German occupation of Belgium is already doomed.

HASTINGS, March 9.—The pulpit in the Methodist church was supplied on Sunday morning and evening by Rev. Mr. Glover of South Dummer, who delivered two excellent addresses.

Rev. T. H. P. Anderson was in Westwood on Sunday taking the work there.

Mr. Clark left on Saturday morning for his home in Leamington, after spending the week in this locality. On Wednesday afternoon his address for women, "To-day's Opportunity," was highly appreciated by those in attendance. In the evening he spoke to a mixed audience on the subject, "Home and Its Enemies," a subject which was brought home very forcibly to every thoughtful mind. Thursday and Friday were spent at the outside appointments, Bethany and Bethel, the subject for Thursday evening being, "The Power That Builds," and for Friday evening, "The Needs of the Hour." Mr. Clark is a very forcible speaker, and strives to the best of his ability to portray the great temptations to which the youth of our land is daily exposed.

Upon the arrival of the G.T.R. train on Friday morning the remains of the late Dr. Brown of Peterborough were conveyed to Roseneath, where interment was made. Those who knew the doctor here express their deepest sympathy to the sorrowing widow and family.

The members of the Presbyterian church choir drove out to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred English on Friday night and were right royally entertained. A very pleasant evening is the verdict of those present.

Our enterprising milliners, the Misses Paquette, are busily engaged in getting their millinery parlours arranged for the spring opening. The ladies are anxiously watching the windows for the display of the latest creations in headwear.

THE MYTH OF HELIGOLAND

It is Not an Ideal Base and of Little Strategical Value

Herr Ballin, the head of the Hamburg-America Line, admits that "the possession of Heligoland does not give the German fleet a desirable base," writes H. C. Fewaby, the naval correspondent of the London Express.

This admission is of extraordinary interest, and so far as I am aware it is the first time that any German has publicly confessed to a belief that has been quite prevalent in British naval circles ever since the famous exchange was made by Lord Salisbury in 1890. We then acquired Zanzibar, which, both for trading and military purposes, is of value, and Germany took over Heligoland. Many people have contended that the exchange was all to our advantage but I have never been able to subscribe to that view.

The geographical position of Heligoland is very favorable. It has been called the key of the German coast defences, but in reality it stands in so isolated a position, so utterly cut off from support by any other land defences, that in the absence of a battle fleet continually at sea in its vicinity, it offers no menace to any raiding warships.

It would be no exaggeration to say that the British fleet could have reduced Heligoland to dust and ashes before now, if that feat had possessed any strategical value. There is deep enough water all round the island to allow our biggest ships to manoeuvre there freely, and as the battle-cruiser squadron under Sir David Beatty showed, neither the minefields nor the German submarine flotillas are an adequate menace to the attacking fleet. Heligoland has only a certain number of big guns in its forts, and those guns cannot be added to unless the High Seas Fleet comes out to its aid.

German strategical ideas are essentially military; as the egregious Bernhardi most artlessly remarked in his comments on naval warfare, his views "are not confused by any technical naval knowledge, and rest exclusively on general military considerations."

"SYRUP OF FIGS" FOR CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" Can't Harm Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, sore throat, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

A PATHETIC LETTER

Highlander, Frenchman and German Talked of Home: Till Death Came

This, says the London Daily Citizen, is the most moving letter written during the war. The writer was a French cavalry officer and the letter was addressed to his fiancee in Paris. It was written as he lay dying, after being wounded in a cavalry charge. It is a wonderful letter. This is how it runs:

"There are two other men lying near me, and I do not think there is much hope for them either. One is an officer of a Scottish regiment and the other a private in the Uhlans. They were struck down after me, and, when I came to myself, I found them bending over me, rendering first aid.

"The British was pouring water down my throat from his flask, while the German was endeavoring to staunch my wound with an antiseptic preparation served out to them by their medical corps. The Highlander had one of his legs shattered, and the German had several pieces of shrapnel buried in his side.

"In spite of their own sufferings they were trying to help me, and when I was fully conscious again the German gave us a morphia injection and took one himself. His medical corps had also provided him with the injection and the needle, together with printed instructions for its use.

"After the injection, feeling wonderfully at ease, we spoke of the lives we had lived before the war. We all spoke English, and we talked of the women we had left at home. Both the German and the Britisher had only been married a year.

"I wondered, and I suppose the others did, why we had fought each other at all. I looked at the Highlander, who was falling to sleep, exhausted, and in spite of his drawn face and mud-stained uniform, he looked the embodiment of freedom. Then I thought of the Tricolor of France and all that France had done for liberty. Then I watched the German, who had ceased to speak. He had taken a prayer book from his knapsack and was trying to read a service for soldiers wounded in battle.

"And . . . while I watched him, I realized what we were fighting for. . . . He was dying in vain, while the Britisher and myself, by our deaths, would probably contribute something toward the cause of civilization and peace."

The letter ends with a reference to the failing light and the roar of the guns. It was found at the dead officer's side by a Red Cross file and was forwarded to his fiancee.

AN EASY WAY TO GET FAT AND BE STRONG

The trouble with most skin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on dragging their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods; rubbing on various "flesh creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes untombed. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

Thanks to the remarkable new scientific discovery, it is now possible to combine into simple form the very elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into flesh, fat-laden blood. This master-stroke of modern chemistry is called Sargol and has been termed the greatest of flesh - builders. Sargol aims through its re-generative, reconstructive powers to coax the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to every starved, broken-down cell and tissue of your body. You can readily picture the result when this amazing transformation has taken place and you notice how your cheeks fill out, hollows about your neck, shoulders and bust disappear and you take on from 10 to 30 pounds of solid, healthy flesh. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient. Leading druggists of Peterborough and vicinity have it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every package.

Caution:—While Sargol has given excellent results in overcoming nervous dyspepsia and general stomach troubles it should not be taken by those who do not wish to gain ten pounds or more.

Kaiser's Garden Near the Frontier

LONDON, March 9.—The Russkoye Slovo, just received, is responsible for this interesting sidelight of the war, which it publishes under the caption of "The Kaiser's Garden."

It indicates, according to the newspaper, the thoroughness with which the Germans prepared for war.

A Polish magnate living in the Government of Suwalki, Poland, about two and a half miles from the East Prussian frontier, lost his fortune, which compelled him to sell his 16,000-acre estate some four years ago.

It was thought some other local dignitary would purchase the property, which was adorned with an ancient mansion, but at the sale, a stranger, who gave his name as Kiefgenberger, surprised all bidders by running the price up $350,000, which he paid in cash.

The new owner soon transformed his estate by a lavish expenditure of money. He appeared particularly addicted to landscape gardening. He constructed new buildings, improvised mounds and little chains of hills, he installed an elaborate system of irrigation ditches, put in many wine cellars and capped it all by erecting a massive tower.

The article continues that when the war began it suddenly developed that this wonderful garden was nothing more or less than a German fortress. The mounds were for heavy guns, the wine cellars for the storing of armament and ammunition, and the irrigation ditches were perfectly arranged trenches for the German soldiers. It took two weeks for the Russian troops to reduce and capture this floral fortification, and it cost many lives. There was an elaborate system of wireless and wire communication from the tower, which was admirably constructed for observing everything within a range of many miles.

IF MEALS HIT BACK AND STOMACH SOURS

"Pape's Diapepsin" ends stomach misery, indigestion in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache, you can get blessed relief in five minutes.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why they relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepcia, or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion in five minutes.

A BIG GERMAN SUBMARINE IS SUNK

"ARIEL" RAMS AND DESTROYS ONE OF THE PIRATE SHIPS

The U-20 Sinks and Her Crew Surrendered and Are Prisoners in the Hands of the British---She Was One of the More Powerful of the German Undersea Boats and Had a Cruising Radius of 2,000 Miles.

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

LONDON, ENG., March 10.—It has been officially announced by the British Admiralty that German submarine U20 has been sunk.

The Admiralty adds that submarine U20 was rammed and sunk by the British torpedo boat destroyer Ariel, and that the German crew surrendered and were mostly rescued. This gives another "pirate crew" in the hands of the British.

The U20 was one of the more powerful of the German submarines with a cruising radius of two thousand miles. She was of the same class as the U21 whose exploits have made her famous. Another submarine of the same class, the U19, was sunk by a British patrol ship on Nov. 23, 1914.

The Ariel is a 760 ton British destroyer assigned to the task of hunting down German submarines.

PUSHED BACK SIX MILES

PETROGRAD, March 10.—The German army that attempted to sieze the Warsaw-Petrograd Railway at Grodno, has been pushed back six miles, according to reports reaching here from Warsaw to-day. It is now battling with the advancing Russians east of Augustof, and less than twelve miles from the Prussian frontier. In their advance into North Poland following the retirement of the Russians from the Mazurian Lakes, the Germans moved eastward along the railway, and the road leading from Augustof to Grodno. In their retreat, they have been driven from the road. The progress of the Russian advance has forced the enemy to abandon a number of their heavy guns in the swamps, Warsaw reported. It is admitted that the enemy has again taken the offensive at two points north of the Vistula. The latest despatches indicated that the German bombardment of Ossowetz is continuing. The Austrian forces north of Lupkow Pass in the Carpathains, have made slight gains.

DESPERATE FIGHTING

PARIS, March 10.—A narrow stretch of broken country between Four de Paris and Bolante, in the Argonne, is now witnessing the most bloody fighting that is occurring along the Franco-Flanders battle front, according to the despatches received here to-day.

The Allies demolished a block house and pushed the trenches forward about 80 yards. The enemy swept on in vigorous counter attack in the afternoon that drove the Allies from the ground they had captured in the forenoon. Before dusk last night the Allies troops executed another daring charge. They sped forward under a hot machine gune fire and again captured the trenches. The Germans early to-day again counter attacked and the engagement is conitnuing. The ground is literally covered with the dead and wounded.

The fighting in the Champaigne region continues. The Germans are stubbornly resisting French charges and every yard gained is made over the bodies of the German and French dead. North east of Mesnil where the most violent fighting has occurred for several days, the French took a German trench yesterday, and then seized the rest of the bridge commanding the road from Perthes to Maisons de Champagne. The Germans delivered a violent night attack upon the French elevated position in this region but were repulsed.

NORFOLK, Va., March 10.—"We will not intern," was the declaration this afternoon of Captain Thierchens, of the German converted cruiser Eitel Frederick which put into Newport News this morning, to land prisoners, take on coal and provisions and make repairs.

"We will repair and go back to sea," he continued. "We have not been captured this far and will take more chances."

SAYS GERMANS EXPECT PEACE BY JUNE.

LONDON, March 9.—The correspondent of the Daily Telegraph at Copenhagen telegraphs:

"A high foreign official who has connections with the best German sources learns that there is great talk of peace in official circles in Germany, where it seems to be considered that the war will be ended by June. It is said to be certain that the Germans will not risk another winter campaign in Russia."

TURKISH ARMY LACKS AMMUNITION AND FOOD, SAYS DESPATCH FROM BUCHAREST

PARIS, March 9.—A Havas despatch from Rome says:

"The Messagero's Bucharest correspondent telegraphs that the Turkish army is short of rifle and artillery ammunition and says this fact explains the feeble defence of the Turkish forts. The Turkish army in Europe, hte despatch adds, is well equipped, but lacks food and ammunition. Orders have been given to economize in the use of ammunition, since Roumania refuses to allow Austrian consignments to pass through to Turkey."

GERMANS BOLSTER AUSTRIANS.

LONDON, March 9.—The German staff is still striving to avert the final collapse of Austria's campaign. It has sent a fresh army of new German conscripts, mostly about eighteen years old, into northern Hungary with the remainder Austrians. They are moving in great numbers on the Galacian slopes of the mountains and in the broken hills between the sources of the San and the Dniester. Their right wing was secerely cut up Saturday in attempting to cross the Dniester eastward.

MAYOR BULLER IN OTTAWA

As a result of a conference that was held between representatives of the city, including Mayor Buller and Sir Adam Beck of the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario, Peterborough's claim for a hydro radial service will be fully investigated. The conference was held last evening at the Queen's hotel, Toronto. Sir Adam Beck was so enthused with the possibilities of Peterborough as a hub for a net work of electrical railways operated along lines similar to those which govern the light and power system recently acquired by Peterborough under the supervision of the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario that he sent for Mr. Gaby, chief engineer for the Commission and authorized him to send engineers to Peterborough with a view of preparing a report as to the needs.

In conjunction with the same matter, His Worship Mayor Buller is in Ottawa to-day as a member of the Executive committee of the Hydro-Radial Union that is making representations to the Dominion Government for further recognition of the scheme which it seeks to develop. Sir Adam Beck and other members of the organization are also present.

It will be remembered that at a convention which was held in Toronto recently, Mr. T. F. Matthews of this city was elected district president.

Service to Summer Resorts.

The Hydro Radial Union is allied with the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario. Up until a year or two ago Peterborough was not represented so far as the organization went, although the City Council frequently expressed the need for some progressive action. Since that time, however, this city has secured representation on the Board along with other municipalities east of Toronto, so that to-day there has developed a determined effort to introduce radial railways in Eastern Ontario similar to those which exist throughout the western part of the province. In Western Ontario all the principal cities such as Galt, Berlin, Guelph and many others are linked up with electric railways which are used by the urban population and ruralites alike. Many of the cities so served have not the same facilities that are available in Peterborough, such as unlimited water powers and access to one of the best summer resorts in this part of Canada.

Mayor Buller proposes to launch a scheme that will result in the construction of an electric line to Burleigh, taking in the principal points along the route, and another line south. These lines would take in the Kawartha Lakes and other equally important points to the south.

Will Come To Peterboro'

And Arrange For the Installation of Fire Alarm Cable

Ald. Duffus and Fire Chief Howard who were in Toronto yesterday in connection with the fire alarm cable that the city proposes to install, have returned. Ald. Duffus states that he and Chief Howard waited upon Mr. F. D. Mackay, manager of the Independent Telephone Company, who has been offered the contract, and that Mr. Mackay agreed to come to Peterborough and make arrangements respecting the bonding of the cable lines with the street railway. The bonding is necessary to prevent electrolysis which has a tendency to eat into te cable and destroy its usefulness. This is practically what happened last year, resulting in the crippling of the fire alarm system for several days, besides adding to the cost of the work.

LIEUT. CAMERON HONOURED BY MEN OF CO.

A POPULAR OFFICER

The company armouries of D Company of the 57th Regiment was the scene of an interesting event last evening at the conclusion of the Rangers' weekly drill, when the members of D Company gathered to say farewell to Lieut. C. Ross Cameron of D Company, who is going to the front with the 39th Battalion, Third Overseas Contingent. Incidentally, the non-coms and men took advantage of the opportunity to present Lieut. Cameron with a most useful and appropriate gift in the shape of a Wolsley sleeping kit bag. Capt. K. G. Lech of D Company, who presided, expressed the feeling of the officers and men of the company towards Lieut. Cameron, whose work, he said, had been instrumental in making D Company one of the best in the Regiment.

In expressing his thanks for the gift, Lieut. Cameron said that it would be of the greatest use to him. He admonished the members not to cease in their efforts to build up D Company and keep it in its place as one of the banner companies. Some good men were going from D Company in the 39th Battalion, and he hoped that they would see that their places would be filled.

Lt.-Col. Walker commanding officer of the 57th, paid a fine tribute to Lt. Cameron's ability and efficiency. In him the 39th Battalion was securing a splendid officer, one that would be a credit to the 57th Regiment in general, and to D Company in particular. Lt.-Col. Walker also highly praised the 57th detachment to the 39th Battalion. They were, he said, a splendid, well-balanced body of men, and it was a pleasure to watch them drill and to see how earnest and sincere they were in their work.

Major R. T. Hounsell, former commanding officer of D Company, and Lieut. Gemmell, of the same company ,also paid tributes to Lieut. Cameron's work in the 57th Regiment.

Refreshments, in the shape of sandwiches, cake and coffee, were served, and the pleasant affair was brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem and cheers for Lieut. Cameron, Lt.-Col. Walker, Major Hounsell and Capt. Lech.

"LIEUT. KIRBY" POPS UP AGAIN NOW IN OTTAWA

Fake Officer Who Passed Worthless Checks Here Seems to Have the Elusiveness of De Wet

OTTAWA, March 9.—Several Sparks Street merchants are working to-day over several checks given them by a man in a military uniform in exchange for goods.

Saturday afternoon a tall, fair young man of good appearance, dressed in the uniform of a lieutenant, went into Goldsmith's tobacco store on Sparks street, and ordered about $7 worth of choice cigarettes to be sent to a certain room at one of the big hotels. He gave a $10 cheque on a Toronto bank and received about $3 in cash change.

Later a pair of officers' gauntlets arrived at the hotel for the same room, which by the way, has been occupied by the same man since the hotel opened a few years ago. They were from Blair's store addressed with the name of a man who is not registered at the hotel. Blair's had refused the check and the man had left the gauntlets as security.

Shortly after by way of variety, a pair of boxing gloves arrived from Hurd and Company's sporting goods store. A $10 cheque had been given for these and the man given the change.

The uniform and the name of the hotel had been good enough security for the merchants. A different name but the same room number was on the boxing gloves All the goods have been returned to the different stores and now the merchants are expecting notice from Toronto that the cheques were no good. The description given in the first case fitted in the two others and that is why it is considered certain there is something crooked about the purchases.

The names given were Ferguson, Marsden and Mackenzie. There is some doubt as to whether the man is abona fide officer and the police will be notified of the matter.

39TH'S FAREWELL CONCERT TO TAKE PLACE TO-MORROW

Big Programme Has Been Arranged — 57th Regiment's Weekly Drill Last Night— More Battery Recruits

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

The members of the Peterborough detachment of the 39th Battalion, overseas contingent have arranged a farewell concert to be held in the assembly hall of the Collegiate Institute tomorrow (Thursday) night and they expect a large turnout of their friends. The proceeds of the concert will be turned over to the Canadian Kitchener League to assist them in their most creditable charitable work of providing comforts for the soldiers. The concert has been arranged at short notice, but with orders expected at any time to leave Peterborough, it was necessary to hurry matters.

A splendid programme is being arranged, including in addition to talent from the 39th, some well known local artists who have very kindly volunteered their services. A feature will be an exhibition of physical exercise by a team of ten men from the 39th in charge of Sergt-Major Wilford.

The concert will be in the nature of a public farewell to the soldier boys, and on this account and because of the meritorious object for which the proceeds are to be donated, there should be a big crowd in attendance.

Battery Recruits.

Twenty recruits have so far been accepted for the new overseas battery, and this branch of the service seems to be a popular one. There were eleven applicants yesterday, but these have not all been medically examined. A number were added this morning and there are other candidates to face the doctor this afternoon. Word to stop recruiting may come at any time, so that those who want to enlist should not lose any time. Major Hall is at the armouries daily from 9 a.m. to 12 and from 2 to 5 p.m. The battery recruits are drilling with the 39th Battalion detachment. They will likely be mobilized at Kingston in a short time.

The 39th Battalion marched to the golf links this morning and practiced skirmishing and extended order movements. The men enjoyed the novelty of the work in the open air. On their return to the armouries company drill was taken up.

a tendency to eat into the cable and detachment, with the 21st Battalion, Kingston, is home on leave of absence and was a visitor at the armouries this morning

Rangers' Weekly Drill.

It was encouraging to note that the weekly drill of the 57th Regiment at the armouries showed a bigger parade state than last week, but although some of the companies had a good turnout, others were but skeletons of their former strength. Drilling three detachments for overseas service has left the regiment sadly depleted, but the officers are going to leave no stone unturned until it is back to strength. There are hundreds of young men in Peterborough who should be drilling in the regiment and a consistent effort will be made to awaken them to a sense of their duty and responsibility.

May Get New Uniforms.

Lt.-Col. Walker has indented for a new outfit of uniforms for the regiment and in all probability the Rangers will be issued with the service khaki. The drills during the spring and early summer will be of more than usual interest. Tactical exercises in the country on Saturday afternoons are contemplated and the battalion will find the work planned most enjoyable. It is up to the young men at Peterborough, especially the Canadian born to come to a realization of the fact that there is a duty before them. All cannot go overseas, but there is an opportunity for them to be of service at home and they can serve the empire by keeping the regiment, the nucleus of all overseas infantry quotas from Peterborough, at full strength, ready for the calls that will undoubtedly be made for more men for the front.

Peterborough Has Done Well.

Peterborough has done nobly in its recruiting. Probably no centre can show a larger number of recruits according to population, than this city. 150 infantry were sent with the first contingent, along with 20 artillery men, while the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, whose headquarters are here, sent a quota of 35 men. In the second contingent the 57th Regiment sent 80 men. For the third the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons raised 150 men for the Mounted Rifles, the 57th Regiment has 120 for the 39th Batta-

GENERAL ALDERSON CONDEMNED BOOTS SENT TO ENGLAND

In Spite of This Fact and a Complaint From Hon. Mr. Perley, the Same Kind Have Been Supplied to the Second Contingent---Investigation Continues.

SPECIAL WIRE TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, March 10.—That despite the fact that General Alderson, the commanding officer of the first contingent, condemned the boots supplied the men, part of the second contingent has been sent over with the same kind of boots, was brought out in the evidence in the Parliamentary boots investigation this morning. Colonel MacDonald, director of clothing and supplies in the Quartermaster-General's department, was the witness. He read a cable from General Alderson dated November 19, stating that the boots now being used by the men at Salisbury were not fit to stand wet weather, and asking for instructions. On the same day the Quartermaster-General had cabled General Alderson stating that 48,000 pairs of overshoes had been already shipped and asked whether they would meet the requirements.

General G. Watkin had replied: "I realize what comfort overshoes will be in camp but I fear that on the march the infantry will very soon go through them. You had better communicate further with General Alderson."

On December 5, General Alderson had cabled further saying:—

"Overshoes do not compensate for the fauty construction of boots; some pairs are useless after ten days wear."

On Nov. 24, Sir George Perley, acting High Commissioner in London, had cabled Sir Robert Borden to the following effect:

"Consider overshoes impracticable as they are heavy to walk in and will last only a short time on the hard roads. In my opinion the next contingent should be provided with boots made on the regulation army pattern."

"What caution was taken by the Department upon all these cabled advices?" asked Hon. Mr. Murphy.

"I don't know."

"They were disregarded," interjected Mr. MacDonald, a member of the committee. "The authorities here kept right on sending men across with the very same boot as Sir George Perley and General Alderson had complained of. Two weeks ago I saw 5000 at Halifax on their way across and they were the same type of boots as had rotted to pieces at Salisbury."

"There were no other boots to give them," said Colonel MacDonald, the witness.

"Do you mean to imply that there is no power to stop delivery under contract?" asked Mr. Murphy.

"I have no power to do so; other officials of the Department have."

The committee then went into a legal controversy concerning the admissability of the reports made by the divisional boards.

GENEVA, March 10.—The Tribune says it has been learned from Vienna that several Italian warships have put to sea, probably bound for the Dardanelles.

LONDON, March 10.—Chancellor Lloyd-George stated in the House of Commons this afternoon that government offering of two hundred and fifty million dollars of exchequer bonds had been largey oversubscribed, and no underwriting commission had been paid on any of the war loan of one and a half billion dollars.

WANTS REPAIRS MADE

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The German Ambassador has applied to Secretary of the Navy Daniels for permission to have the cruiser Eitel Frederick repaired at Newport News. The request has been referred to a neutrality board of the Navy Department. Under ordinary circumstances this vessel would be allowed 24 hours in port before being compelled to intern but the fact that she has prisoners on board creates a different problem.

EXCHANGE OF PRISONERS

LONDON, March 10.—Germany has consented to an exchange of all civilian prisoners who are invalids, it was announced in the House of Commons this afternoon. Hon. Neil Primrose, who made the announcement, said that Germany gave her consent in deference to the wishes of the people.

ATTEMPTED TO BLOW UP COBALT MINE

SPECIAL WIRE TO THE EXAMINER:

COBALT, Ont., March 10—Three German Poles are under arrest here after the confession by one of them that he broke into the dynamite house of the Nipissing Mine, laid a fuse, and attempted to blow up the place. For some reason the fuse did not go off. If it had, half of Cobalt would have been destroyed and many lives lost.

NO REGULAR OVERSEAS MAIL SAILINGS NOW

Enquiries concerning the Overseas mail brings out the fact that the bags are being closed daily and forwarded to the ports where their ocean voyage must depend upon the boat movements. For some time the postal authorities have not been informed of sailings and hence have had no special closing hours for the English mail. The service has been irregular and will likely continue so for a time. Heave correspondents will have to govern themselves accordingly.

CANADA'S SHARE.

The Mail and Empire editorially, perhaps, sarcastically, remarks:

"It is estimated that the combined fleets now operating to reduce the defences of Constantinople are worth $200,000,000. Someone with leisure may figure out what Canada's share amounts to.

It doesn't need much "figuring out" to decide that Canada's contribution was $1,150,000 paid by the Borden Government as representing Canada. for two submarines. These submarines had been built in Vancouver for the Chilian Government; being somewhat in the class of army boots; they were not up to specifications and were rejected and lay "junked" in Victoria Harbour. When at the opening of the war, British Columbia found her coasts defenceless—the "Rainbow" of the Laurier navy, sent to British Columbia as a training ship, had been allowed to go out of repair. British Columbia feeling itself defenceless, urged the purchase of these submarines, and the Borden Government, in spite of its policy that Dreadnoughts in the North Sea were the best defence of Canadian coasts, purchased for $1,150,000 these two rejected Chilian submarines, that would have been dear at $800,000. That is about the extent of the money Canada, through the Borden Government, has put into the British navy. Australia had a navy of her own, a very present help in time of trouble, a powerful adjunct of the British navy—better than Dreadnoughts on sentry-go in the North Sea, and a sure defence of her coasts. It needs no argument to supplement the logic of hard facts, to show what is the best form of naval policy for self-governing Dominions.

A DOUBLE DUTY.

Mr. Claude Macdonnel, a good Toronto Tory member, takes the right view of our responsibility to the Empire in her time of stress and need. He holds that Great Britain should be helped, not hindered, in waging war. He has presented to the Minister of Customs a request for the removal of duty against rowing equipment coming from Britain. He points out that the Argonaut Rowing Club, which has to pay duty on rowing equipment coming from Britain, has no fewer than 53 members now enlisted and serving at the front. That is direct help to Great Britain; a practical demonstration of patriotism and loyalty. Mr. Macdonnel logically thinks that putting up a tax against British goods is not in the same class of patriotism and loyalty. It is hindering instead of helping Britain. This discriminating taxation against British goods is excused on the ground of financing Canada for the war. It is nothing of the kind. Every dollar of the 150 millions Canada has freely voted for war purposes has been advanced by Great Britain herself, who in addition to financing her own tremendous war expenditures, helps the Dominions and the smaller nations of the Allied group. Britain is straining every nerve to win. She is financing her allies and Dominions, and spending money like water to insure efficiency in waging the war of humanity to a triumph. The House of Commons yesterday gave the Government authority to take the control of the entire engineering trade of the country, to insure a steady and adequate supply of war material. While Britain is doing all this; making every effort to promote success, Canada is sending contingents with one hand and with the other putting on a discriminating tax against the products of Great Britain coming into this country; and that not as a war tax, for Britain has handed out all the money Canada is spending in the war, but to raise money for current expenditures. We might expect Serbia or Belgium, or some of the smaller states to be capable of giving their benefactor a blow in the face like a discriminating duty; but we certainly should not expect Canada to show the first example of disloyalty and ingratitude. Canada needs money to meet the demands of extravagant expenditure; to meet the demands of necessary public expenditure; but Canada, to be consistent, had better do without money than raise it by a discriminatory tax against the goods of the Mother Country, whose purse is open to us for all the legitimate demands upon this country for helping on the war. There is no division of party opinion upon Canada doing everything in her power to help forward the prosecution of the war; men of all parties and creeds are offering themselves for service in the fighting line; men of both parties in Parliament and out of it, are unanimous in contributing every dollar necessary to help Canada do its share and its duty. There must, however, be difference of opinion as to detail and methods of administration. Because we furnish money lavishly for war purposes, that does not mean that we should not strive to get the best value for its expenditure; and that we should not strive to see that other public money is not wasted in the many ways possible. Canada is confronted with a double duty—to do everything we can to help the Empire in its time of need—and to see that in doing this duty to the Empire we do not neglect our duty to ourselves.

THE CANAL AS AN INVESTMENT.

The sum of $2,000,000 has been collected in tolls by the Panama canal in the first six months of its operation. For a beginning, and considering the paralyzing effects the European war is having on interoceanic commerce, this is very good. But it by no means represents a fair return on the investment Uncle Sam has made in the isthmian engineering enterprise. At the rate set for the first six months, only $4,000,000 will have been collected by the end of the year. This is $1,500,000 less than is needed annually to pay the interest on the bonds floated to build the canal and permit their retirement within a reasonable period. But it was never expected that the canal would be self-sustaining for the first few years. And even if it should never be so, it would yet be a profitable venture for the United States, with the vast new possibilities it opens up for intercoastal and interoceanic traffic.—Brockville Recorder.

NO GOLD IN BANKS.

German Government Urges Hoarders To Release Their Stores.

BERNE, March 10.—Careful investigation among the German banks proves that they are cleared of gold, but a comparison between the amount of gold held by the Reichs Bank and amount which should be in the country shows that two billion marks in gold have been withdrawn from circulation. An appeal has been made to every patriotic German to put his last gold piece in circulation, and the appeal concludes with the assertion that the patriotic German cannot do better than exchange his gold for the second war loan stock. I am credibly informed except the Reichs Bank, no bank possesses any gold reserve throughout Germany. The income tax imposed by municipalities is being raised on an average by about 50 per cent.

TO BE SURE OF SUPPLIES.

Britain Will Assume Control of Factories For War Purposes.

LONDON, March 10. — A drastic amendment to the Defence of the Realm Act was unexpectedly presented to the House of Commons yesterday afternoon by Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George. His proposal was that the Government be empowered to commandeer all factories required for war purposes.

Up to the present time firms and factories already producing war material could be taken under Government control. The amending bill of the Chancellor extends the power to cover all other concerns which the Government may wish to utilize for this purpose.

GERMAN CAMP TAKEN.

Gen. Botha Has Occupied Position Near Ukamas.

LONDON, March 10.—Gen. Louis Botha's campaign against German Southwest Africa is progressing. One of Botha's armies, advancing in the south, is reported to have occupied a German camp north of Ukamas, which is 40 miles north of the border, and to have captured a large number of tents, provisions, clothing and transport animals.

These captures, according to the report, showed that the evacuation of the Germans had been a hasty one.

Lieutenant Enlists as Private.

LONDON, March 10. — Among those who enlisted as privates yesterday in the 33rd Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force, was Lieut. William Ruglin of the Royal Garrison Artillery of England. Ruglin came six thousand miles to enlist, he being in Japan on a business and pleasure trip when he decided to join the colors.

The officer didn't object to a place as a private.

"Anything at all to get a chance to strike a blow for the home land."

Russian Flag Took Lead.

LONDON, March 10.—A despatch to The Morning Post from Petrograd says: "In order to emphasize the solidarity of the allied powers, a striking departure from naval custom marked the entrance of the allied fleet into the Dardanelles. The Russian cruiser Askold was gracefully invited to take the Russian flag into the straits ahead of the other flags. The ordinary procedure would have been to give precedence to the flag having the strongest force in the operations."

EXTREME PARTIZANS WHO COMMIT TREASON IN THE NAME OF LOYALTY

"War or no war there is no party truce, and there shall be none, in the politics of Canada!" That declaration, professedly spoken with authority, was made by Hon. A. E. Kemp at a Conservative party meeting in Toronto on Saturday night. Made by a member of the Government, it was interpreted by Conservatives present as meaning, as The World hints, "an early election." With the utmost frankness, Mr. Kemp, for himself and for his associates, repudiated the very suggestion of a party truce. He claimed the right to excite party animosities and to divide Canadian opinion during the time of the Empire's life-struggle, so long as the interests of the party might be served. If Sir Robert Borden is indeed master of the Government situation it remains to be seen whether he authorizes the declarations of his colleague, or whether he again refuses, to be coerced, as he was reported to have refused when the Rogers group tried to force an election several months ago.

It is significant that on the very day Mr. Kemp was making his no-truce declarations in Toronto the Conservative candidate in Lincoln county, nominated for Parliament a few months ago, was protesting against the resolution just passed by the Conservative Association, commending the party-truce action of both Government and Opposition in relation to Parliament's war measures. Only one man was found to join in the sneer at "the loyalty of Liberals." Led by Reeve Fleming, who declared that "the Liberals are just as loyal as those of his own party," the Conservative Association to a man, and in the most emphatic terms, denounced the treason talk of the two leaders who, for the sake of petty partyism, would divide political opinion in Canada and destroy Canadian unity in the face of the Empire's enemies. Decent Conservative opinion, in Toronto and in other constituencies will join with the Lincoln Conservative Association rather than with Hon. A. E. Kemp and the disunionists.

In each instance the purpose was plain. It was the same purpose. It was intended to prepare the party mind and the party workers for a "loyalty" election campaign. In Lincoln the discreditable game was instantly rebuked. The two Conservative candidates, who insinuated the disloyalty of Liberals, were answered by very pertinent and very personal questions: "What about Capt. Lovelace, the Liberal candidate for Lincoln, who retired to go to the front?" shouted one Conservative delegate. "What about his son, Lieut. Lovelace, now in France?" called another. "What about Capt. Begy, at the front in France?" demanded a third. "What about Col. McCordick?" "What about yourself?" "Where's your khaki suit?" "Why haven't you gone?" Ald. Burgoyne, the Conservative newspaper man, protested in the name of "the reputation of the party" against the candidate's slur on the loyalty of any citizen.

We believe that the solid body of Conservative opinion in every constituency will approve the action of the Conservatives of Lincoln, and will denounce as an act of treason to Canada and to the Empire this renewed attempt to force an election campaign with the cry that nearly one-half of the citizens of Canada are disloyal.

But let there be no mistake: The Globe's steady opposition to the Rogers-Reid-Cochrane khaki election manoeuvre has absolutely nothing whatever to do with the probabilities or prospects of either party at the polls. Were the odds overwhelmingly in favour of the Liberals the treason would remain. It may be that the Government's determination to increase the protection duties in the interest of privileged manufacturers, and so add to the cost of living for the unprotected masses, would be condemned by the electors. It may be that Conservatives as well as Liberals would vote against the determined increase of the duties upon British goods at a time when Britain is supplying Canada with every dollar of war-revenue the Canadian Government is spending. It may be that the marked increase of taxes required to meet Canadian Northern subsidies and other extravagances, under the guise of war taxes, would be condemned by the electors. But though all these reasonable things were certain to be done, The Globe would still protest against the indecency and the dishonour of dividing Canadian public opinion at such a time of crisis, and diverting the serious attention of all Canadians from the supreme business of this nation.

And to commit this national indecency with the intention of branding as disloyal nearly half of the electorate of Canada would be an act of treason possible, as The Globe believes, only to that group of party exploiters who have ends to serve which are not their country's, and who have already divided against itself the house of Canada's national Government.

Tens of thousands of Liberals in all the Provinces of Canada have their own flesh and blood in the King's uniform and at the front of battle. To them the sneers of Prussianized politicians matter very little. But this Dominion can ill afford to have itself advertised to all the world as the one nation in all the Empire in which, for the sake of a mess of party pottage, the loyalty of half the citizenship was impugned while the fate of British liberties the world over hung in the balance of war. That would be treason at its worst.—The Globe.

Regarding The Principle Upon Which Taxation Should Be Imposed

Mr. Stewart E. Bruce, of Toronto, has favoured us with a copy of an interesting letter which he has sent to the Hon. Mr. White, the Minister of Finance, on the subject of the new tariff. He holds that this tariff is not based on any equitable principle or formula, but is being placed haphazard, without any thought of its manifest effect on business. We must say at the outset that we disagree with him here. We believe that considerable thought was given to its effect on business, and that it was designed to be a plum for the protected interests quite as much as it was designed to be a revenue-producer.

However, we pass that point, and express our hearty concurrence with Mr. Bruce in laying down the principles that taxes should be taken from the abundance of what the people have, instead of from their necessities; that the burden of the war should be placed as far as possible on posterity; and that the taxes should be placed so as to make it easy for the people to do right and difficult for them to do wrong. In the light of these principles, Mr. Bruce condemns the letter tax. Correspondence is necessary for binding families and peoples together with a powerful bond, and is one of the corner-stones of practical education and of business. Thus the letter-tax is adding 50 per cent. to the cost of a social and business necessity. Further, just as cheap postage increased correspondence, so dear postage will cut it down, and the Finance Department will thus gain at the expense of the Post Office Department. The 7½ per cent. increase in the import duty he condemns because it will largely stop importations and increase the cost of living while defeating its own object, that of raising revenue. Here again we agree with him.

The alternatives which he suggests are original and enlightening. He proposes that the Government should issue stamp books, in one-cent denominations, and that every purchaser of liquor at retail should have to produce a one-cent revenue stamp for each five cent purchase, these stamps to be torn in two by the dealer and placed publicly in a receptacle provided by the revenue department. Last year Canadian people spent $103,000,000 for liquor. On that basis a revenue of $20,600,000 would be available, and further the tax would help "make it easy to do right and hard to do wrong."

Pursuing the argument that luxuries, not necessities, should be taxed first, he suggests that all patrons of theatres and moving picture shows be compelled to affix revenue stamps to their tickets—a half-cent ticket on a five-cent theatre ticket, one cent on a ten-cent ticket, and so on. Further, as diamonds are a luxury, and 40 per cent. of the money paid for them goes out of the country, he recommends that all families owning $50 worth of more be compelled to make a declaration to that effect and pay a tax of two or three per cent. Finally, to pay for the war he suggests a patriotic bond issue in small denominations, interest to be paid once a year, and Canadian banks compelled to loan up to 80 per cent. of the face value of the bonds, so as to provide temporary cash funds for the bond owners in case of necessity.

While not endorsing all the taxes Mr. Bruce proposes, we recommend them to the consideration of our readers. It seems to us that the suggestions are valuable as going to the root of tariff-making, and as indicating how a scientific tariff that would bear least hardly on the people and at the same time be a strictly revenue-bearing tariff should be constructed. — Montreal Herald-Telegraph.

Germa Socialists Split Asunder Over War Issue

BERLIN, March 9—As indicative of dissension in the ranks of the social democra party, Dr. Karl Liebknecht and supporters are criticised severely Herr Wolfgang Heine one of the py leaders in the Reichstag, in a pobiet entitled "Against the Intrigue."

Herr Heinalleges that the Socialist organ Vraerts has been guilty of deception and of causing "disruption of the ber unity of the party, and the protion. on the other hand, of the interests of those who in the time the country's need condemn thposition of the party."

"The soci democracy," he says, "could act ndifferently than it has done; it had to align itself on the side of the thFatherland in this war." He refuses dignantly the assertion of the "intiuers" that the social democrats "hurrah patriots," chauvinists and jingoes, and denies that the wfrom German's viewpoint is an aerialistic undertaking.

"As long, he continues, "as the enemies cnot contemplate any peace that is not presupposes dictating to parate Germany, just so long is it wo than madness, a betrayal of the interests of our people, in fact, to k of peace to them.

"To stick out to the end! That above all tgs is our duty to ourselves. Our onging and our hopes, our sympat and our concern, must not be allo to overpower us, at least not us everything is dark ahead. Even o most pardonable desire and the most comprehensible excess of feelt can do us the utmost harm if giv way to at an unsuitable momer

Touching the future, Herr Heine declares at in these portentious times coure and determination must not b weakened.

"The pat without hesitation chose its rtful place at the outbreak of thear," he says "Now, in the middle the war, while dangers increase and the ability of every man is needed, the party must not vacillate, thereby causing confusion in the ranks of Germany's defenders. This might cause the most serious consequences for the whole German people, including the working classes."

In closing, he calls upon the comrades to stop their attempts to disrupt the party, with consequent danger to the Fatherland.

"The time is not opportune," he says, "to resort to self-deception and to hope that eventually things will not be so bad. Every day now may do much damage. It is the custom of those in the majority to take no notice of confused and untrue attacks on the defence of the Fatherland.

"It is, to be true, neither easy nor comfortable to oppose those who, with the authority of pretended superior learning and intelligence spread abroad a mass of untruths—such, for example, as that the war is a war of conquest by Germany; that it was begun in order to suppress the working movement; that the borders of the Fatherland are no longer menaced, and the like. And yet it is urgently necessary that the party's comrades assume this unpleasant duty.

"The homeliest and most unassuming comrade is in a position to ask for the intriguers, this question:

"Do you want your party, in the eyes of the world, to assume the responsibility in case Germany should be beaten, cut to pieces and robbed of its industry and commerce, or do you want to protect the German workingman from this?"

"He whose eyes are not open by this is surely beyond help, and may, before all the world, be charged with indifference — yes, with enmity toward his people and his country.

"The German social democracy has lived through a great hour, and, as was to have been expected, has proved worthy. May it continue to discard the half true and the untrue, and dare to be of large calibre."

St. James' Choir Concert Success

Provided Very Pleasant Evening Last Night For Large Attendance

There was a large attendance at St. James' church choir concert last night. All the numbers were ably presented and the dialogue was decidedly entertaining and amusing. The programme was as follows:

Programme.

Hymn, 'All Hail the Power'—Congregation.
Opening prayer—Rev. Mr. Clarry.
Chairman's address— Mr. W. McLaren.
Sailors' chorus—The choir.
Solo—H. Hill.
Recitation—Mrs. Clare.
Duet—The Misses Hanson.
'Sweet Vale of Rest'—The choir.
Recitation—Miss Brookes.
Solo—Miss E. Kemp.
Speech from Mr. Wright.
Solo—Miss D. Rathbone.
Recitation—Miss Hill.
Solo—Miss Hanson.
Duet and chorus—By the choir.
God Save the King.

The dialogue was entitled the Minister's Bride. During its progress it introduced a song by Mr. McLaren and a reading by Mrs. Redgrave. A satisfactory finale to quite an enjoyable evening was the refreshments served downstairs. In this number of the night's programme the audience and entertainers spent a pleasant half hour in a social way.

Sure Way to Regain Robust Bloom of Youth

A smooth, velvety-soft skin, with a delicate peach-like bloom, is one of the Creator's most exquisite works. When the first blush of youth is over, this beautiful tint and satiny lustre are rarely seen. How to preserve them—that's the question. Famous beauty experts abroad have known that ordinary mercolized wax works wonders in this direction. It gradually gives a new surface to the skin, restoring that marvellous girlish colour and softness in a remarkable manner. An ounce of this wax, procurable at any drug-store, will convert a faded, freckled, worn-out or discoloured complexion into one of captivating loveliness in less than two weeks. No special skill is necessary in applying the wax, it being smeared on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

To remove wrinkles, or delay their formation, a fresh bath made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel will be found wonderfully efficacious. This tones up relaxed skin, causing it to remain firm and smooth.

COUNCIL MEETING.

The Council met on Monday night last, all members of the Town Council being present.

A number of accounts were passed, including those for the removal of the recent big fall of snow, and some of the labourers engaged on that occasion complained bitterly of the smallness of the wage, $1.50 per day.

A communication from The Municipal World re printing was laid over.

Auditor Skene presented the report of the 1914 audit, which was accepted, and the auditors' salary of $10 each ordered paid. Councillor Lynch, who is especially strong on economy this year, evidently forgot his convictions for the time, and urged the granting of more money to Mr. Skene. Mr. Skene, however, refused to Mr. Lynch's appeal, and the matter dropped.

Rev. Mr. Holdsworth addressed the Council on behalf of the Social Service Association, asking the Council to consider the advisability of a curfew bell for the youngsters of the town, and also on behalf of his congregation asked the Council to instruct the constable to prevent the loading of boys and men on the street corners when service was being held in church. The constable was instructed to see to the latter request, and the first was laid over for further consideration.

One hundred dog tags were ordered to be procured for the canine population.

By a motion the Clerk was instructed to draw up a resolution, asking the Commissioners of North Hastings not to grant a shop liquor license in Marmora as per the request of Rev. Mr. Clark of that village.

The letter from the Hydro Commission, which appeared in The Standard last week, was read, and after the Reeve had intimated that Norwood did not purpose coming in on the scheme, and the Clerk had reported that he had no answer to his request for figures for Havelock alone, it was moved, on motion of Coon and Lynch, that the Clerk write the Hydro and ask them to send their engineer down to confer with the Council and the following committee of our citizens: Messrs. Square, Jack, A. C. Denike, Lancaster, Curtis, E. Williams, Wm. Mathison, Fennell and J. Coon. This committee, with the Council, is to obtain all possible information as to the requirement of the village in regard to light and power, and to frame up the Hydro by-law for presentation to the electors.

The matter of street lighting then arose. Manager Holdcroft claimed that the town was getting better rates than Norwood or Tweed. Norwood, he said, paid $680 for 2,440 watts, or 61 lamps at 40 watts each. Tweed paid $1,012 for 4,980 watts, while Havelock was paying $1,080 for 5,620 watts. Messrs. Lynch, Coon and Wright thought that the local company were getting far too much money. The Reeve and Councillor Scott thought that it would be a big mistake to cut out the lights even at present rates, and that Councillor Lynch's motion that $60 a month was away too low, and in fact prohibitive. After a long discussion, in which Councillor Wright declaimed against the company for not carrying out the improvements recommended by the Hydro last year, Coon seconded Lynch's motion. Scott moved an amendment that the lighting rates be left as they are until after the conference with the Hydro engineer. Wright refused to second the amendment, and the motion carried.

The Council then adjourned.

How to Curl the Hair In Damp Weather

Damp days have no terror for the woman who has adopted the simerine method of keeping her hair in curl. The effect is more lasting than where the hot waving iron is used, and yet the hair is quite manageable, regardless of how it is done up. Besides, the hair has the appearance of being more naturally wavy and curly, and the application is really beneficial to the life and growth of the hair.

In dry weather the hair will of course remain beautifully curly and fluffy for a still longer period. Most any druggist can supply the liquid simerine and one need not pay more than a few cents. A small quantity should be put on before retiring, using for the purpose a clean tooth brush, drawing this down the full length of the hair from root to tip. The effect upon arising is delightfully surprising, and there is no discolouration, no stickiness, greasiness, nor any other unpleasant accompaniment.

Smashing the Turk—Smyrna in Asia, is now being bombarded by Rear Admiral Pierse's fleet, while some of the bigger ships of the main fleet at the Dardenelles are bombarding the forts from the Aegean Sea.

$100,000,000 For Public Works

MONTREAL, March 10.—In an open letter he yesterday morning addressed to Premier Borden, the Prime Ministers of the various provinces, and the mayors of the larger cities of the Dominion, Controller McDonald suggests that the federal, provincial and municipal authorities vote a credit of $100,000,000, to be applied to public works all over the Dominion for the relief of the unemployed. The controller estimates that there are at present 100,000 unemployed in the country, and the $200,000,000 would, in his opinion, provide work for this number for one year. Of the $100,000,000 the sum of $70,000,000 would be expended in wages and the balance in materials for work.

When You Wash Your Hair Don't Use Soap

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

New Crisis Is at Hand

WASHINGTON, March 10.—American citizens have again been warned to leave Mexico City in view of the critical situation that has arisen there. Secretary Bryan announced last night that transportation facilities would be sought for as many as desired to leave. The battleship Georgia and the armored cruiser Washington were ordered by Secretary Daniels to proceed at once to Vera Cruz, after conferences with President Wilson.

Consular messages from Vera Cruz stated that it was reported there that the evacuation of Mexico City began Monday night.

Enrique C. Herente, Washington representative of Gen. Villa, received a message saying the Zapatista forces occupied Mexico City yesterday.

Word came from American Consul Silliman that at a personal interview with Gen. Carranza he had delivered to the latter the formal note from the United States Government, demanding an improvement in conditions for foreigners in the territory under his control.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

FORMER RESIDENT OF ENNISMORE PASSES AWAY

William Brick Was Chief of Police of Park Falls Wisconsin

The following from the Park Falls Herald, Wisconsin, refers to the death of a former resident of Ennismore, in the person of William Brick, son of the late Morris Brick of Ennismore. A number of relatives in this district survive:

After an illness extending over many months death finally came to relieve the suffering of Chief of Police William Brick at 10.40 on Friday evening of last week. While the final summons had been expected almost any day for some weeks past, the sad news of his death came as a decided shock to his many friends, who until recently, had been accustomed to seeing him about the city streets daily for many years past in the performance of his duties as an officer of the law.

Big hearted, whole souled and generous to a fault, his friends were numbered only by those who had the pleasure of making his acquaintance, but only those who were constantly associated with him in business could understand and appreciate all his good qualities. As Chief of Police he performed his duties faithfully and conscientiously, and his record in that office is one which reflects nothing but the greatest credit on him. A loving husband and father, his death in the prime of life and the breaking up of a happy home is an exceptionally sad blow to the bereaved wife and little child, but they may take some consolation from the fact that their burden of grief is shared by a host of friends throughout the entire county.

Wm. Brick was born in Ennismore, Ont., in July, 1870. In 1891 he came to Wisconsin, and for about ten years he was employed in the woods in the vicinity of Glidden, Fifield, and Park Falls. In 1902 he was appointed to handle the duties of police man in the then rapidly growing Village of Park Falls and had held the position continuously with the exception of three years since that time. On Oct. 12th, 1908, he was married at Fifield to Miss Rosie Woodie of the town of Eisenstein. To this union there was born one son, Raymond. Besides his wife and son, the surviving relatives are four brothers, Thomas, Patrick, Michael and Peter Brick, all of Chippewa Falls, and two sisters, Mrs. Kate Van Bergen of St. Joe, Mo., and Mrs. Chas. Kilby of Duluth, Minn. To them the hosts of friends of the deceased, in this community and throughout the entire county, extend the most sincere and heartfelt sympathy in their sad bereavement.

The funeral was held from St. Anthony's Catholic Church at 10 o'clock on Monday morning, Rev. Fr. Kieffer conducting the services. The high esteem in which the deceased was held in the community was testified by the large and imposing cortege which followed the remains to their last resting place in Nola cemetery. The members of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, Catholic Order of Foresters, and Fire Department, in all of which organizations deceased was a member, attended the funeral in a body, and all the local business places were closed during the hour of the funeral.

The Maxwell Stands Pat

No Increase in Price of This Car on Account of New Tariff

If many Canadian importers and manufacturers adopt the same attitude as that indicated by the letter of the Maxwell Motor Co., printed in our advertising columns to-day, the Finance Minister will get the additional revenue he is after while at the same time the Canadian buying public will not be made to pay the shot. But how many Canadian manufacturers and importers will pay the extra duty without tacking it on, with interest, to their selling price? And how many Canadian manufacturers will be patriotic enough not to increase the price of their Canadian-made goods to the extent of the additional protection afforded them by the higher tariff? Canadian manufacturers have a splendid opportunity right now of proving their patriotism to Canada — something they are constantly asking other people to demonstrate.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER WILL MOVE AMENDMENT TO BUDGET

OTTAWA, March 10.—The budget debate was resumed yesterday and will probably not be finished this week. It is understood that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will offer an amendment to-day calling for greater economy in the expenditures of the Government and denouncing any increased tariff imposts on British goods. Upon this amendment the yeas and nays will probably be recorded on Tuesday next.

Mr. Bradbury (Con., Selkirk), in resuming the debate yesterday afternoon, criticised the attitude of the Liberals upon the tariff question. Both political parties in Canada, he said, really favored a protective tariff, but while the Conservatives were honest about it the Liberals were hypocritical.

Mr. MacNutt (Lib., Saltcoats) spoke in opposition to the budget as imposing an unfair share of taxation upon the farmers and artisans. His greatest objection, however, was to barrier against British commerce.

"This Government's policy," he declared, "seems to be to borrow money from Britain and then tax British trade."

At the night sitting the debate was taken up by Richard Blain (Con., Peel), R. Lanctot (Lib., Laprairie), L. Thomson (Lib., Qu'Appelle), J. H. Fisher (Con., Brant), and H. B. Tremain (Con., Hants, N.S.).

Shortly after midnight, Mr. Fred F. Pardee, on behalf of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, moved the adjournment of the debate.

The Prime Minister was greeted with loud applause when he officially announced the arrival of four thousand men at Liverpool belonging to the second contingent. The troops, he said, were safe and well and had been provided with comfortable accommodations.

Urges Gift To Empire

Mr. Rowell Suggests That Ontario Start a Base Hospital

TORONTO, March 10.—The Ontario budget debate came to an end yesterday. Premier Hearst and N. W. Rowell, K.C., in the course of yesterday afternoon made the final speeches and cleared the way for the House to go into committee of supply. This removes the last big debate of the session, and apart from Government measures to come, routine business will have the right of way.

Mr. Rowell began by stating that direct taxation was introduced because of the wasteful expenditure of the Government. The financial trouble had not developed suddenly with war's outbreak but had slowly accumulated. Actual receipts had been 10 millions and expenditures had been 20 millions, or 15 millions from which no return would ever come. The T. & N. O. subsidy, he claimed, was recorded merely "to keep the public in the dark."

Mr. Rowell urged the Government to make Ontario a direct contributing factor in the struggle in Europe by applying the proceeds of the special war tax in such manner, say in establishing a base hospital, as might be suggested by the Imperial authorities.

Premier Hearst, in reply, declared that not a vulnerable point had been found in the Government armor. He would repudiate the suggestion that they were blaming too much expenditure on the war. Crown lands revenue had dropped off in the past three months. But for the war a comfortable surplus would have existed. Even at that, strong measures would have brought many collections, but the time was inopportune.

In the evening session the Premier closed the debate in a short address, declaring the Government intention of giving unlimited aid to the Mother Country. When the war was ended he felt that the ties of Empire would be stronger and more dissoluable than ever before, and he trusted would cement every creed and race in a common desire of freedom and progress.

Father of Local Lady is Dead

Mr. John Alexander Passed Away in Toronto in His 78th Year

TORONTO, March 10.—Mr. John Alexander passed away on Monday at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. T. J. Chadwick, 582 Bathurst Street, in his 78th year. Born in County Fermanagh, Ireland, he came to Canada when six years of age, and settled in Fenelon Falls. For the last ten years he has resided in Toronto. The late Mr. Alexander was a Methodist in religion. The funeral service will take place at his daughter's residence to-day at 3 o'clock, conducted by Rev. T. W. Neal. Interment will follow at Mount Pleasant Cemetery. A widow, three daughters, Mrs. T. J. Chadwick, of Toronto, Mrs. W. Quibell, of Peterborough, and Mrs. J. Atcheson, of Superior, Wis., and one son, W. D., of Toronto, survive.

A S K CLUB WON DEBATE

St. Paul's and Knox Church Young Men Have Interesting Verbal Argument

The young ladies of the Deborah Bible Class and the young men of Mr. Cowan's Bible Class from St. Paul's Presbyterian Church were the guests of the ladies of Mrs. McKenzie's Bible Class and the young men of the A. S. K. Bible Class of Knox Church last night. It was on the occasion of a debate, "Resolved that the World is Not Growing Better," between representatives of the respective young men's classes. The affirmative was taken by speakers from St. Paul's, Messrs. Beavis and Lillico, and the negative by Messrs. K. Kenyon and J. Herron, representing the A. S. K. Class from Knox Church.

By a small margin the negative speakers were awarded the verdict. The judges were Messrs. Jos. Wearing, M.A., J. A. Morrison and H. F. McKeown. In announcing the verdict, Mr. Wearing complimented the speakers upon the splendid manner in which they handled the subject. As the speakers were all new at anything of that kind, and the object of the inter class debating was to develop new material, Mr. Wearing offered a few suggestions on debating which were followed with interest.

Mr. H. B. Cowan, of St. Paul's, occupied the chair. During the evening an instrumental duet by Misses Kenyon and Laing, a solo by Miss K. Tucker and a solo by Rev. J. A. McKenzie, served to add a touch of variety to the programme. Rev. Robert Pogue, who is teacher of the Deborah Bible Class, was also present, and with Rev. Mr. McKenzie, was called upon for a few words. After the programme lunch was served by Knox young ladies.

The visit will be returned in the near future, when the A. S. K. Class has been asked to have representatives compete in an oratorical contest, inaugurated by Mr. Cowan's Bible Class, for suitable prizes.

JOHN SEENEY LAY EXPOSED FOR NEARLY TWENTY-FOUR HOURS

After Sustaining Severe Injuries as a Result of Falling From a Moving Train--Hands and Feet Were Frozen---Lived Two Weeks--Result of Coroner's Inquest.

A coroner's jury that was empanelled to enquire into the death of John Seeney, found that the deceased came to his death on Saturday, March 6th, as a result of injuries sustained by falling from a passenger train, No. 602, on the evening of February 20th. The accident occurred on the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, two and a half miles east of Norwood station. Evidence concerning the accident was heard before Coroner Dr. Greer, yesterday afternoon in Connor's undertaking parlours. The body, which had been forwarded to Havelock for burial, was brought back to the city by Detective Meagher. The latter identified the body as that of John Seeney.

Dr. G. S. Cameron, who was the first witness called, testified to having attended the deceased during his stay in Nicholls Hospital. When he was first called to the hospital in connection with the case he found deceased in a semi-conscious condition. An examination revealed a fracture of the right arm at the shoulder, a fracture of the left leg at the ankle, besides other cuts and bruises. Both hands and feet were frozen. Witness attended him for two weeks. Death occurred on Saturday morning last. Deceased appeared to be rational at times. About a week after he had been in the hospital, Dr. Cameron asked the patient how the accident happened. Deceased replied that he was trying to "save his passage." Witness suggested that he referred to the blind baggage, to which the deceased gave an affirmative reply, adding that the car "lurched and he fell off." Death was attributed to the injuries received as a result of the accident.

Constable Saw him.

Constable Marshall of the C.P.R., stationed at Havelock, recalled having seen the deceased on the day of the accident. He located him on the blind baggage, which is between the tender and the baggage car.

The 'bus driver at Norwood testified to having seen witness at the Norwood station. Norman McKelvie was probably the last person who saw the deceased prior to the accident that resulted in his death. He saw him leave the station at Norwood on the night of the accident, and climb into the blind baggage of the train that was going east. A mile and a half east of the station, the deceased fell off.

Mr. Thornton, who represented the C.P.R., said that the engineer of the train upon which the deceased was alleged to have been riding was prepared to state that he put Seeney off at Peterborough. Mr. Thornton was unable to produce the engineer in time for the inquest.

John Buck of Norwood found Seeney on Sunday following the accident, said that he was lying about ten feet to one side of the track. Witness asked him how long he had been there and deceased replied "about a couple of days. He sent for a vehicle and was about to have him removed when a freight train came along and the deceased was placed aboard. This was between 4 and 5 o'clock on Sunday afternoon. Some matted hair and a piece of skin adhered to a stump close to where Seeney was found. He had evidently struck this when he fell from the train. The deceased told Buck that he was returning to Havelock when he slipped and fell. Some broken glass was found in the right pocket. Nobody could say that the deceased had been drinking.

The jury, which was out for about half an hour, returned a verdict to the effect that Seeney came to his death as a result of injuries sustained by falling from a train. Mr. Jos. Picard was foreman. Crown Attorney Hatton conducted the examination.

39th's Farewell Concert, etc.

lion and for the new battery over 20 have already been secured. And it must be remembered that the great majority were men actually living in Peterborough. In addition there are boys from this city in every branch of the service, engineers, cyclists, Strathcona Horse, R.C.D's, R.C.H.A. and other units.

39th Battalion Figures.

The following statistics in regard to the composition of the local company of the 39th Battalion are interesting. Of the 120 men on the roll up to last night 73, or 61 per cent are English born, 36, or 30 per cent. Canadian born, 5, or 4 per cent are Irish, 3, or 2 per cent. are Scotch, and the other nationalities are one Welshman, one American and one Russian. 38 of the men, or 32 per cent. are married. In religion 108 are Protestant, 10 Roman Catholic and 2 Jewish. Six of the company are over 40 years of age, twenty-nine between 30 and 40, fifty-nine between 20 and 30, and 26 under 20 years of age.

Long Way to Enlist.

One of the most interesting figures among the men of the 57th detachment of the 39th Battalion is Pte. Thos. Turner who came all the way from British Columbia to enlist. Pte. Turner's hair is grey and he is getting near the maximum age limit, but he is big and strong physically and in spirit. When war broke out he was in British Columbia. He was unable to get his affairs straightened out in time to go with the first contingent, but when enlisting began for the second he wanted to go in the Army Service Corps are paid his fare through to Toronto. There he found he would have to undergo a minor operation before he would be acceptable physically. This he cheerfully submitted to, but when he came out of the hospital the Army Service Corps number was complete and there was no room for him. Nothing daunted, after paying his fare east and his hospital and doctor's bills he came down to Peterborough and enlisted for the third contingent. Now he is happy that he is at last started on his journey to the front. Pte. Turner served five years in the United States navy, enlisting at the time of the Spanish-American war, and has also served a year in the British Columbia Horse. He was born in Goderich 42 years ago.

Showing Right Spirit.

There is a message for every Canadian of military age in the spirit shown by Pte. Turner. And his is not an isolated case. When the second contingent was being recruited here, Sergt. Harry Portsmith and Pte. George Butcher, now of the 8th Mounted Rifles at Ottawa applied. They found that varicose veins would bar them unless they submitted to an operation. They went into the hospital, were treated, but were discharged too late for the second contingent. When the call came for the third they were among the first to apply. Other members of the Mounted Rifles underwent a similar experience so eager were they to get to the front.

TORONTO SQUADRON.

Ottawa, March 10.—The Toronto squadron of the 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles, 161 of all ranks strong, arrived in the capital last night, bringing the strength of the regiment up to 576 of all ranks. The new arrivals were inspected by Major-General Hughes, Minister of Militia. Among the men are a number of South African veterans and men who have seen service in British regiments.

War Tax In Nova Scotia.

HALIFAX, N.S., March 10. — The first direct provincial taxation in the history of Nova Scotia since Confederation is now proposed by Premier Murray, who introduced a bill in the House of Assembly called the Provincial War Tax Act. Under its provisions it is proposed to levy a tax of one mill on the dollar on all assessable property in the municipalities, towns and cities of Nova Scotia. The tax, it is estimated, will produce $117,000 additional revenue. The provincial deficit at the end of the fiscal year was $113,000.

Sun, Piercing Gloom of French Wter Brings Smiles to Indian Faces

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, via London, March 8.—The picturesqueness of the Indian troops of the British Empire breaks the monotony of the grim, colourless business of modern war at the British front. The little mule carts of these soldiers move about among the powerful motor trucks from England.

It was first feared the Indians might not stand shell fire well, but they became used to it, and now they are even contemptuous of it. Accustomed to a hot and dry climate, the chill and rainy weather and the miry mud of Northern France have been their worst enemy. When the sun shines a smile spreads over the whole Indian force. Thanks to many layers of warm clothing and careful attention, the health report of the Indian troops is normal.

All the food of these men has to be brought from India. Speaking no word of English the dusky strangers have come from the other side of the world to fight in France for Great Britain. Billeted in barns with thick layers of straw for their beds, each race cooking its food to its taste and according to its caste customs, they form a separate world of never ceasing wonder to the French inhabitants. This morning there were seen three thousand cavalrymen riding by on a muddy road, with a background of flat misty landscape, with all the precision they would show at a royal review. Occasionally among the dusky faces under the turbans there were the white countenances of the British officers who had trained these varied tribes and who have stood with them in the trenches in icy waters up to their waists against the enemy.

"They told me I was too old," he said, "but I replied, 'If you will not let me fight in France I will go to Afghanistan and fight there. I don't mean to die in my bed and I cannot live much longer.' So they let me come."

Although all the cavalry is fighting as infantry in the trenches, cavalry officers keep up their cavalry drills and the horses are in condition. This is because there may be a chance for the cavalry when the expected German break comes. Everybody on the line speaks of the Germans going back as if this was as certain as the coming of spring.

Taxicab Owner in New York.

One of the British officers with whom the newspaper correspondents watched the Indian troops ride past made the remark:—"The Canadians in their trenches are now doing well."

The driver of the automobile in which the correspondents were conveyed to the front revealed his Americanism by the use of New York slang. He had had sixteen taxicabs running in New York, but he came over, as the English say, "to do his bit."

One meets here Englishmen, Irishmen and Scotchmen from every part of the world ready to set in any menial capacity in order to help.

"Now, you take this message to all my Irish friends in America for me," said an elderly Irish medical officer in charge of a hospital tn. "Tell them I have been sleeping that car seat for six weeks, with the harp alongside of me and the Irish flag over my head. It was a fine time we had when they let me loamy train with wounded tight where the shells were falling, but they do t permit that any more."

In the outskirts of a vile where German shells fall at intels there were seen infantry detachments practicing at hand grenade attacks and in the defence trenches. Nody worried about the danger fro German shells while they rent their with their own explosions of bom thrown at close quarters.

At another place the correspondents entered a building whic seemed neither wholly hospital n wholly Y. M. C. A. The reason the location of this and many other places is not given is because no German aeroplane bombs are wante

Warm Baths and Bread ding.

In this particular buildingen overhausted from their vig in the trenches remove their filt clothes, get warm baths and a infecting spray and have a warm m, including bread pudding with raisins or currants in it, of which they are extremely fond. There also are ran cots where they turn in and reading room with games. Here one is kept longer than fourteen days. If in that time they have not fficiently recovered from the exhaing demands of the trenches to turn to the front they are sent bi to the base.

"Doesn't some malingerer I asked, "ever hesitate to face horror of the trenches again?"

"Occasionally there is one was the answer. "That is human nure. We are amazed at how few. ten well enough the average man es. He says he will play the game. You will soon know what he is going do."

Before leaving the convalescent home the correspondents were given each an identification metal ac with his name on it.

"It is best to have one," was the remark. "You are going to the trenches to-morrow."

Canadians at Front Wantpapers.

LONDON, March 10. — om letters received here from Canians at the front it is learned that is impossible to send them too my Canadian newspapers. Canuckmre all over the 300-mile battle li which makes it impossible for a newspaper to serve so many meas was the case when the troops are all practically in one spot.

In the case of one sectit of the Canadian force papers arriv at the front only two days after t troops themselves.

Your King and Country Need You Comes to Women as Well as Men

Put Out of Your Thoughts the Horrors of War and Look Upon the Heroisms--Women's Work in War Times Discussed By Mrs. Willoughby Cummings.

The Assembly Hall at the Public Library was filled yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Willoughby Cummings, Secretary of the National Council of Women, addressed the women of the city on "Woman's Work in War Time."

The male population was represented also by several gentlemen, who as the President of the Local Council of Women, Mrs. (Dr.) F. C. Neal remarked, possibly saw a gleam of hope when they heard of the subject of the address.

Mrs. Willoughby Cummings was introduced and spoke as follows:

"I am pleased to be with you once again and able to address the members of the Local Council of Women. I was here when the Peterborough Council was first organized.

A Call to Service.

The call to service came to us the same as to the men. "Your King and Country need you." We are needed as much as the men. There is work for us as well as for the men. And I am pleased to see that the women of Canada are doing their part. They have responded in every part of the Dominion.

There are two or three things which we are realizing since this war began. One is that enthusiasm is not the only thing. It must be used with common sense. Homes should not be neglected. But we are learning to do our best in a cool systematic way. At the outset it was not hard for a woman to take her needles and knit what was easiest. But they are more and more coming to a systematic way of working.

More To Do Than Knit.

I am closely associated with the Red Cross League in Toronto. We found that things coming in which were not well made were the exception. When we organized in Toronto we did it on a very broad basis, finding that there was more for us to do than knit and sew. There is much unemployment and distress. Each district has a captain in charge who directs operations there. People seeking employment or assistance of any kind are directed to the proper channels in the city.

Teach Housework.

In our employment department up to yesterday, we had 340 women, to register wanting work. A regular army of charwomen, clerks and stenographers. There is also an army of people wanting servants and we cannot supply them. Why is it that these women who want work cannot do housework, the work which should be most natural to a woman?

Our Local Council of Women has a big task looking into the question of why these women do not know how to do housework. If they knew how to do it they would like to do it, and not think it beneath their dignity.

We must realize that there are many women with children who are absolutely dependent upon a good servant to provide a wholesome meal for those children. I want to see the girls taught and then there will not be a superfluity of able-bodied women not able to do the work any woman is supposed to know how to do. In different parts of Canada this problem has been made a study during the past few months.

Keep Up Courage.

Then there is another thing women can do. I think they want to keep up their courage. Keep a bright face upon everything. Let us put out of our thoughts the horrors of war and look upon the heroisms. Do not depress those with aching hearts by talk of the horrors of war.

There is so much difference between the professional soldier and the volunteer. We should be proud of our men because they are the volunteers. No matter how black things may look, do let us keep up our courage. We are so sensitive to the atmosphere round about us. Let us women be brave and courageous and not cry out for peace and arbitration until the right time comes. Have confidence in our leaders to get peace at the right time. We must above all have peace with honour.

Let us, too, make it easier for our sons to go. Do not try to stop them. It is so natural for a mother to say, "Oh, I cannot let you go." We do not need to go around with white feathers as in England. Our husbands and sons will enlist without that.

Do Not Neglect the Home.

At the same time a little word of warning that the truest patriotism is not in the neglect of our work at home. "Business First" is the motto. We want to use sanctified common sense. The war is not going to be over in a few days.

It is so comforting to see women all over the world working. In Japan the Red Cross Society will bear comparison with any in the world.

It would be a very good thing where there are different organizations in the same place engaged in similar work to keep in touch with each other.

In connection with Belgium and the adoption of children from there. I am in receipt of a letter which comes from the Consul-General, saying that they do not want Belgian children to come so far yet for adoption. I think it is as well to let this wait for a while.

Supplies for Belgians.

At the present time we cannot see any way for supplies to go to Belgium. We are sending tons of things, but if the ships do not go direct to Rotterdam they are liable to seizure by the Germans. We are going to send one shipload more and wait to see if the Belgians are getting these supplies because at this time we are not particularly anxious to feed the Germans.

The speaker explained the working of the Red Cross on the field of battle. Forty ambulances were purchased for the field service by the Canadian women. "We never began with the idea that this should be for the special use of our Canadian soldiers. It was our Imperial gift for their absolute use."

Make Employment.

I do not know how far unemployment affects the girls and women in Peterborough. In Toronto we had to make employment. We got a couple of contracts to make shirts for the Government at Ottawa. Every woman working at these shirts is supporting somebody. And the women have learned to work so well.

We have another department too. In this we make cheap dolls. We hope this will be the basis for a great Canadian industry. In the near future we will not need to import any more dolls from Germany.

If you have any positions here for any of our workers let us know. We might co-operate. There are a number of varieties of ways we can help each other. And oh the pathetic side of it. If I could only tell you. There seems to me that out of this war there is a great deal of good growing. I think that the feeling that was growing up that the rich did not care for the poor is vanishing. I feel that there is a great deal the women can do in war time.

Several of the ladies asked questions of the speaker at the close of her address along the lines of work she suggested and the general tone of the meeting augured well for the results which will come in this city among the women from the inspiration received from the address.

Aldermen Weir and Edgar, representing the City Council, tendered a vote of thanks to Mrs. Willoughby Cummings for her inspiring address.

Mrs. Willoughby Cummings met the members of the executive of the Local Council of Women informally in the Y.W.C.A. parlour at 8 o'clock in the evening.

DOG RESENTS "TIPPERARY"

"Stein" Bites Owner With German Name Who Will Be Neutral.

SALEM, Ill., March 9.—No self-respecting German dog, be he dachshund or no, would stand for any one singing "Tipperary" in his presence. And, anyhow, what right has a man named Goeppner to sing "Tipperary?" It doesn't seem right. So reasoned Stein.

Stein is a bulldog, raised by a German family on sausage and discipline and sold to Dick Goeppner, proprietor of the Park Hotel in Salem. Shortly after buying the dog Goeppner was playing with him and chanced to start singing about how far it is to Tipperary. There was a snarl, the dog flashed upward and one of Goeppner's ears was nearly chewed off. Goeppner has announced that strict neutrality will be his future policy.

LIFE OF BIG BRITISH NAVAL GUN LIMITED TO 75 ROUNDS

The Queen Elizabeth, the Inflexible and the Prince George, Shelling the Dardanelles Forts at Half Range Under System of Indirect Fire

the allied fleet is employing indirect fire at the Dardanelles to accomplish the demolition of the Turkish forts. This is the same form of fire used by the Germans at Liege and Namur with the heavy 42-centimetre siege guns.

The British are delivering indirect fire from the Queen Elizabeth, the Inflexible and the Prince George over a range of seven miles. The English war ships are in position in the Gulf of Chiros, just outside and to the north of the entrance to the Dardanelles, where they can approach close up to the shore line and still have ten fathoms (60 feet) of water. The Queen Elizabeth and her consorts demand five fathoms depth as a minimum for safety, and a study of the surroundings show that this depth is not reached until close into the beach. In a ten fathoms depth the war ships can approach to within less than a mile of the shore; and as the beach in their front is flat no opportunity is afforded the Turks to bring guns to bear.

The indirect fire which the British ships are delivering may be resorted to when the object fired at cannot be seen, or when it is desired to hide the guns which are making the attack. As the word implies the guns are not aimed direct, but on the contrary are elevated at high-angle in order to get a high curve to the flight of the shell.

The indirect fire of the Queen Elizabeth and her consorts is just now being directed by lighter ships already inside the straits, and which are acting in the capacity of observers.

The shots of the vessels firing indirectly must be rectified by these observers; that is to say, the observers must signal from time to time if the shots are over or under, right or left. Once the exact angle for laying the guns has been obtained the indirect fire can be kept up by night and day, because being lead by night by lighted projectiles, or tracers, as they are called, the flight of which can be followed by the eye in the darkest night.

Shells fired from guns at high angle plunge downward at the end of their flights in an almost vertical line, and tear and crash through overhead obstructions, finally fetching up deep in the ground. Then comes the explosion, and the chances are always excellent that an enormous crater will result into which will tumble guns, carriages and whatever happens to be within the zone of the burst. At Liege and Namur the burst of the 42-centimetre shells when deep in the earth caused even the armoured cupolas to turn complete somersaults.

The Queen Elizabeth is employing 15-inch guns in the attack on Kilid Bahr. These guns have a range of sixteen miles, and, there, the seven miles' distance over which the present indirect firing is being conducted is over a medium range for those big pieces. Naval men here see, in the plan which the Allies are following, a policy not to expose the dreadnoughts to possible destruction by mines in the straits so long as the forts can be reached by fire from the outside. It will be time enough, it is said, to take the dreadnoughts inside the Dardanelles when the forts are silenced, and the channels doubly swept clear of mines.

The guns of the allied forces are being subjected to excessive strains, it is recognized here, in the sustained firing on the Turkish works. The British are employing cordite for propelling charges, and ordnance men freely predict that probably every British ship, following past experiences, will have to be rebattered if the bombardment continues much longer. The British are prepared for this and have reserve guns, it is said, for all the larger ships in service.

The Japanese just before the battle with the Russian fleet succeeded in obtaining an almost entirely new supply of British pieces which had originally come from English gun plants.

The British 6-inch 45-calibre gun uses 18 pounds of cordite for a charge. This charge affords a muzzle velocity of 2,500 feet a second. By having recourse to 25 pounds of cordite for a charge a muzzle velocity of 2,800 feet a second is obtained. It has been found that so long as the 18-pound charge is used—provided the 2,500-foot seconds velocity is deemed sufficient—there is no serious loss in accuracy and velocity in 400 rounds, but if 25-pound charges are employed there will be a loss of 300 foot seconds in the first 100 rounds. All this spoils loss in accuracy. Specially devised gas checks may check loss in velocity for a few rounds, but no gas check yet invented, it is declared, can stop the wear of bore due to erosion and wash.

Erosion is the outcome of powder gas moving rapidly at a very high temperature, under pressure. Wash is the wear and tear caused by the gases between the projectile and the walls of the gun. Erosion is seldom found serious in the powder chamber for the reason that the gas is not in rapid motion, nor is it serious at the muzzle, since the temperature of the gas has become considerably reduced by the time the muzzle is reached. About the seat of the shot, and a few calibre lengths beyond, the erosive action in big guns after some rounds is truly frightful. The metal is found gouged out in great fissures, and in consequence the powder gases pass the shell, fail to exert full power in the base and even trend by reason of the unequal pressure, to give to the shell a deflective line of travel. In other words not only is velocity reduced but all accuracy is gone.

The British here found that their sixty-seven ton guns had a life of 120 rounds, and the 111 ton guns a life of 75 rounds. The 67 ton guns can fire 40 full charges, or 200 three-quarter charges, and the 111 ton guns, 250 half charges, or 125 three-quarter charges.

The British have in recent years adopted the wire wound system in their heavy gun construction. In this system around the A tube are wound successive layers of flat steel wire, extending from the rear end of the chamber to within a few inches of the muzzle. The ends of the wire are secured to steel rings provided for the purpose. A steel ring forming a step for the wire is shrunk onto the A tube at the breech end. The B tube and jacket are slipped over the wire and are secured by shoulders.

The British wire wound system is strong and reliable. The guns will stand heavy pressures, but what they will not stand is long sustained firing under conditions which obtain in the use of smokeless powder. This statement applies to all services, only it seems to be recognized that the cordite of the British navy is more deleterious in its action on bores of guns than the powder of other nations — certainly more so than the powder of the American navy. But with all its disadvantages and wearing down of bores, cordite probably is the safest powder afloat in its ability to withstand climatic changes, and by this is meant that climatic changes do not tend to bring about chemical changes in the mixture and therefore render it unstable.

The British, it is thought here, will be prepared to relieve the ships of the Dardanelles fleet very quickly after the reduction of the Turkish forts in order to permit of the installation of new guns. The Admiralty long ago adopted the policy that it would be cheaper to undertake the rebattery vessels rather than attempt to substitute some new and less certain powder for cordite. To completely change the entire system for powder making would mean not only new works, new machinery and new methods, but an entire change in design of existing guns.

To Settle With Japan.

PEKIN, China, March 10. — M. Hicki, the Japanese Minister at Pekin, in charge of the Japanese negotiations with China concerning the Tokio demands, has handed to Lochenghsiang, Chinese Minister of Foreign Affairs, a communication which China interprets as implying that unless the demands are accepted by March 12, force would be employed by Japan.

This notice is not considered an ultimatum by the Chinese Government, nevertheless Luchenghsiang, after a series of conferences with President Yuan Shikai, has decided to expedite the discussions with the Japanese legation and to agree quickly to those of the demands which China considers it possible to accept.

FIRE NEAR THEATRE STARTLES AUDIENCE WHO WERE QUIETED BY PLAYING OF "TIPPERARY"

NEW YORK, March 10—While a [illegible] fire [illegible] the audience in Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre was dismissed in three minutes, recently, without the least confusion or indication of panic.

A negro troupe of singers and dancers, known as the "Eight Black Dots," was on the stage, when the front doorman ran back to the stage at half-past ten o'clock and notified Fireman Kessler, on duty there, that there was such a serious fire next door that the flames were spouting from the fourth and fifth floor windows.

Kessler directed William Matthews, house manager, to run the curtain down and dismiss the audience as quickly as possible. The negroes were instructed to terminate their act at once and a signal was given that ran the curtain down, sent ushers and other attendants to open every exit and started the orchestra playing "Tipperary."

Mr. Matthews stopped the orchestra long enough to announce that there was a fire near by, but no immediate danger to the theatre, and asked the audience to leave without crowding. As the last person filed out smoke began to fill the auditorium.

By that time three alarms had been sent in for the fire and apparatus was arriving in such numbers that Twenty-third Street and Sixth Avenue were soon clogged. The thousand or more persons from the theatre added to the many other thousands attracted by the brilliant illumination, so that the reserves from two police stations were called to hold the great throng in check.

When 'Smokey Joe' Martin, deputy chief, arrived, he looked at the burning building, gave a few orders, and said:

"That's the same building in which Deputy Chief Brennan and Lieutenant Rooney were killed on December 29, 1894. They were on the roof when a water tower fell and carried them down to death. That was a bad fire."

A treemndeous amount of water was pumped into the place, while Deputy Chief Martin and several other officers penetrated to the fourth and fifth floors, where the flames seemed to be the fiercest. Later the deputy chief said the theatre had had a close call, that the flames would have gotten into the theatre building within a few minutes, had not the avalanche of water been shot into the burning structure.

At one time, while the audience was leaving the theatre, flames were belching from a dosen windows in Twenty-third street. Those leaving the theatre felt the intense heat.

The building, where $125,000 damage was done before the flames were extinguished, is at No. 137 West Twenty-third Street. The first floor was occupied by Kirkman and Son, as a soap premium shop, and the second by a tailor named Meyer.

The fourth floor was occupied by the Harris Button works, the fifth by the Universal Manhattan Plating Co. These three floors were burned out and the three lower floors suffered extensively from water.

On the other side of the burning building is the structure occupied by the Imperial Chemical Co., and the firemen had a hard fight to save it.

Mayor Buller In Ottawa

In Connection With a Deputation of Hydro Radial Men

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, March 10.—A deputation of Hydro-Electric radial men of Ontario, headed by Sir Adam Beck, and including J. W. Lyon, President, J. Hanning, Secretary, of Guelph, Mayor W. H. Buller, of Peterborough, Henry Clay, of Windsor, and Mayor Church of Toronto, waited upon Premier Borden and on Hon. Frank Cochrane, and urged that the government give a declaration of its policy in connection with the proposed Federal subsiding of radial electric lines. Sir Adam Beck explained that it was not the desire of the association that any money should be given by the government at present. The question was what could they look for in the future.

In reply Premier Borden said it was necessary to proceed carefully until conditions had adjusted themselves. He would consult with his colleagues before giving a definite statement as to policy.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE W. A.

Mrs. Willougby Cummings Gave an Interesting Address

The St. John's branch of the Women's Auxiliary held their annual meeting yesterday afternoon (Tuesday.) There was a good representation of members. Among those present was one of the pioneers of the branch, viz., Mrs. White, residing at 237 Charlotte Street. She was one of the very active members in the "early days" of the society.

Mrs. [illegible], the vice-president of the W. A. in the diocese of Toronto, was the chief speaker and gave a very inspiring and interesting address. She brought out very distinctly the aims and objects of the society and compared them with the present great war. The call to service was just as much for the King of Kings as for our earthly king and did not increase our responsibility as we pray daily, "Thy Kingdom Come."

She spoke of her recent visit to Japan, showing the enormous distances covered by one missionary, Rev. Mr. Short (her brother), to minister to members of his flock among the immense population.

The following officers were elected: Hon. President—Mrs. Archer.
President—Mrs. J. C. Davidson.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. P. Campbell.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Menake.
Secretary—Mrs. R. J. Devey.
Treasurer—Mrs. Aylmer.
Secretary-treasurers as follows: Literature, Mrs. Palmer; Leaflet, Miss Watt; Dorcas, Mrs. Common; United Thank Offering, Mrs. Mulholland; Extra Cent a Day, Mrs. Dean; Organist, Mrs. Fessenden; Junior, Mrs. (Dr.) Cameron; Babies' Branch, Miss Quartermaine.

DIVISION EXPECTED

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., March 10.—When the Budget debate resumed this afternoon the first speaker was Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

It is expected that the Opposition leader will close his remarks on the war taxation proposals by moving an amendment. The party whips have notified their followers that there is likely to be a division, and absentees have been sent for.

The nature of the amendment has not been disclosed, but it is understood that it will voice objection on the part of the Liberals to the increase in duties on British imports.

Sir Robert Borden will doubtless reply to the Opposition leader, while Hon. W. T. White, Hon. Geo. P. Graham and other leaders on both sides will be drawn into the discussions.

EVERY MEMBER WILL BE VISITED

Within the Next Few Days—Forty-four Men Will Meet This Evening

The forty-four leading men of Murray Street Baptist church who are engaged in an every member visit of the entire congregation will meet this evening in the supper room of the church. Every member of the congregation will be visited within five days. This is not a house to house canvass but a house to house visit.

Presentation To Miss Hubble

Pupils of Public School at Young's Point Remember Their Teacher

"On Friday, February 26th, the pupils of Young's Point School, with their parents, met to say farewell to Miss Hubble, the popular and esteemed teacher, who was leaving them to take a position in another school.

During the afternoon a concert was provided by the late pupils of Miss Hubble which was in itself a fine tribute to the character and ability of the teacher.

The chairman, the Rev. Mr. Kingerley, in his address, urged the children to a sense of their duties as loyal Canadians. The goal of education was not only to fit men and women for their vocations in life, but to build up noble characters upon which the foundation and success of their lives, as well as that of the nation rested.

In closing his remarks the speaker referred to the way in which Miss Hubble had stimulated the minds of the children by her lofty ideals and strength of character.

Miss Hubble was then called upon to receive the presentation and gift of a gold-headed umbrella.

The presentation was read by members of the class.

Dear Miss Hubble,—It is with many a deep regret that we are assembled here to bid you farewell. We are very sorry that you are going from our midst. We shall greatly miss your merry smile and words of cheer. During the time that you have laboured among us you have succeeded in winning your way into the hearts of all those with whom you have come in contact, and your place will be very hard to fill. Will you please accept this umbrella as a slight token of our love for you? As you use it we hope that you will sometimes think of the many friends that you have in Young's Point. Our best wishes go with you to your new field of labour, and we hope that success may follow you wherever you go.

Signed on behalf of the school,
PERCY HACKADAY,
LENA BULLOCK,
OLIVE REID,
RUSSELL BROOKS,
HELDA WILSON,
HELEN BROOKS.

After the presentation Miss Hubble replied in a feeling and appropriate manner, thanking the children for their pleasant surprise, and wishing them every success and happiness for the future.

The pleasapt afternoon was brought to a close by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

Local Boys Are Down to Work at the Capital

According to a letter from one of the local boys who left for Ottawa, on Saturday evening last with the Mounted Rifles, the Peterborough members are already down to drill at the Capital. And they compare very favourably with those who were already in camp at Ottawa.

The letter which is in part as follows, shows what the boys are doing:

"Just a line, in a hurry. Arrived here 5.30 Sunday morning and had "skilly" right on the go in. We got our kit, bags, etc., to-day.

"They have a fine-looking bunch of men here, but they have never seen a horse yet. We have it on them so far as rifle practice is concerned as they haven't had any of this yet, either.

[illegible] soon as all equipping was finished we were going to be sent right across and finish training in the Old Country. However, it may only be a rumour.

"The day's proceedings are as follows: Reveille, 6.30 a.m.; physical drill, 6.45 to 7.15; dress, 7.15 to 8.00; breakfast, 8 to 8.45; fall in, 9, and drill to 11.00. Dismissal until dinner, at 12.00. Dress, 1.30 p.m.; fall in, 2.00, and drill to 4.00. Dismissal until supper, at 5.00. All in 7.30. Lights out, 10.15."

An Opportunity to Aid a Work of Charity—The Care of Orphans

Circumstances have awakened to a marked degree not only patriotism, but sympathy, so that a very necessary appeal for help for the orphan and aged will doubtless meet with a greater response than ever. Many good causes are now occupying public attention and making demands on the purse, but if the appeal for the orphan was necessary before the war it is infinitely more so now when so much money is being required for war purposes and usual donations for charity are diminished or cut off as a result.

The Ladies' Aid of St. Peter's have again organized for March 13th with greater enthusiasm than ever, and have an abundant supply of Shamrocks which will be sold in aid of St. Vincent's Orphanage. The ladies are well organized for their day's campaign, having all the necessary arrangements made whereby a systematic street canvass will be carried on, also a visit to public buildings, etc. Each lady will wear a badge by which she will be easily recognized. Every contribution will be gratefully received and the worthiness of the cause should prompt generosity, especially on the part of those who can afford it. Remember Christ showed special solicitude for orphans. Make this an opportunity to give alms, to assist a charitable work and doubtless "Wear a Shamrock for the Orphans" will be as popular as ever.

Music & Drama

THE MAE EDWARDS PLAYERS.

The Mae Edwards Players presented the charming comedy drama "The Woman in The Case" to a somewhat larger audience than Monday night. The varied thrilling situations were admirably handled by this clever Canadian Company, and Miss Edwards, the star, showed to splendid advantage. 'The Woman in the Case' is somewhat different from the ordinary run of plays, having a beautiful [illegible] very pretty dress bill. The vaudeville was all new and the snap and life which this company contains goes to make a very enjoyable evening. To-night the Company presents the greatest farce comedy ever written, "Charlie's Aunt". If you have the blues, the one sure cure is the Grand Opera House to-night, so don't miss it.

An electrically driven machine has been perfected that will seal 20,000 envelopes an hour.

Peterborough's Private Bill

The civic deputation that went to Toronto yesterday in connection with the city's private bill are well satisfied at the outcome. The bill went through with flying colours. As stated in yesterday's "Examiner" the enactment vests in the civic administration the right to raise $80,000 for the general use of the Public Utilities Commission and $90,000 for hydro electric purposes. The latter will be required to meet the extra expense resulting from the recent aribtration and such other items of expenditure as may arise from time to time. The $90,000 will go towards the liquidation of a bank overdraft, the construction of a new water main and if the Commissioners see fit, the installation of an auxiliary pumping plant. The latter will cost in the neighbourhood of $20,000 and is for use when anchor ice prohibits the operation of the turbine wheels.

In addition to this the city obtained the right to grant the sum of ten thousand dollars to the Patriotic Fund, and also had the agreement with the Canadian General Electric Company respecting the use of a disused portion of the old Chemong line of the G.T.R. as a testing track for electric locomotive, confirmed.

The city was represented by His Worship Mayor Buller, Alderman Dobbin, Duffus, City Solicitor G. N. Gordon, City Clerk S. R. Armstrong. The Public Utilities Commission was represented by Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman and Mr. E. H. D. Hall, solicitor.

Commission Can Borrow Money

With the passing of Peterborough's private bill the Utilities Commission will be able to operate on the same basis as the City Council, so far as extensions are concerned. Under the Local Improvement Act this city can undertake the construction of sidewalks, etc., and borrow money to pay for same until such time as the debentures are issued, which is usually at the end of the year. This same privilege has been extended to the Utilities Commission who can undertake the construction of new water mains, etc., and can borrow money in accordance with a special provision similar to that provided in the Local Improvement Act. Formerly, the Commission had no power to borrow money prior to the issuance of debentures.

VARSITY TIED BERLIN IN FIRST OF FINALS--THE SCORE WAS 7-7

BERLIN, March 9.—Playing spectacular hockey, Varsity juniors scored two goals in the last five minutes of play and tied the score with the Union Jacks in the first O.H.A. junior final game here to-night. The final score was 7 to 7 and there is little doubt but that the Blue and White will be able to pull out a victory on their own ice Thursday at Toronto.

There was plenty of things doing during the entire game, close checking keeping much combination play down, although Varsity occasionally broke through with pretty two and three-man work. The ice was heavy and during the last period the going was very hard, which told on the visitors, who are used to hard ice in their own rink. The Union Jacks led until the last five minutes, when Varsity developed some fast work which was too much for the Berlin defence. The teams were tied 4 to 4 at the end of the first period, while Berlin led at the end of the second by 6 to 5.

The locals had the better of the initial period when they drew first blood in three minutes, Karges scoring on a pass. This was followed five minutes later by another, this time Shirk doing the trick. Varsity worked hard and with two of Berlin's men on the fence Ramsay scored on an individual rush. With this Varsity swept down the ice and one minute later tied the score. Krug broke away in three minutes and beat Malone. Both of Berlin's second and third goals were disputed and umpires were changed on each occasion.

Varsity came back strong in the second period and swept through the [illegible] a pretty pass from Saunders in two and a half minutes. It took the locals five minutes to come back and tie the score, coming from Shirk's stick on a pretty piece of individual work. Schnarr scored once more before the close of the period.

There was little to choose in the third period, as the heavy going was telling on both teams, the din continuing to roll and the game developing into a slugging match. Union Jacks increased their lead when White beat Malone on a low shot which slipped under his skate. It was then that Varsity made their great sprint and scored the two goals which tied the score.

On the showing here to-night the visitors were away below their usual form being unable to get away with their usual machine tactics which have meant so much to them this season. While they checked close none of the forwards were able to break away in the usual spectacular style. Smythe and Saunders reached the mouth of the locals' net several times but the cool work of Merner in goal saved almost sure tallies.

This was the first game of the season for Schnarr on the wing, and he put up a great exhibition, checking Stratton to a standstill and having the most wicked shot on the ice. Another wonder on the Union Jacks' team was Shirk, who checked like a demon and was on the puck at all times. Krug on the other wing was taken out of a sick bed to play hockey and he played a strong game. Both Erb and Karges worked hard on the defence and broke up many dangerous rushes.

There were several delays during the game. On one occasion the referee lost his skate, while on other occasions a couple of players received minor injuries. The locals are the heavier, and while the Jacks are fast on their skates, the visitors had them shaded slightly in this department.

The locals got away with combination [illegible] ded down, and after the middle of the second period it was largely individual play. The close checking was what saved the locals from being defeated on their own ice. Varsity brought a special train of over three hundred supporters. About three thousand saw the game.

LONDON CALLS OFF SOCIAL GAYETIES TILL AFTER WAR

LONDON, March 9.— It is now settled that there is to be no London season in the ordinary acceptation of the term. There will be no Italian opera, no university boat race, no Oxford and Cambridge or Eton and Harrow cricket matches, no big horse shows at the Olympia or Richmond, no fashionable gymkanas or polo at Ranelagh, Hurlingham or Roshampton, no lawn tennis championships at Wimbledon, no Coaching Club meets, no military tournament. In fact, all the old landmarks of a London season will be swept away while the war lasts.

There is a controversy going on now as to whether race meetings, especially at Epsom, Ascot and Newmarket, should be continued. The opinion, even among racing men, strongly favours their suspension. Lord Rosebery alone is among the prominent personages in contending that the classic races should be run as usual. But there is little doubt that public opinion will insist on their cancellation for this year.

Visitors to France say that nothing astonished the Frenchmen so much as the continuance of English race meetings, giving the impression that Great Britain is not taking the war seriously.

London is fuller than usual for Lent and is likely to be still fuller as summer comes on. But there will be no big entertainments, as even those who are not in mourning do not feel in the humour for parties.

One result of this is that young officers home on leave are driven for amusements to night clubs and gambling dens, where they lose money they cannot afford to lose and get into serious difficulties. The police are looking round for some way of shutting up the night clubs altogether, but the law as it stands makes this difficult, as there are many loopholes in it.

Empire From the Rhine To The Euphrates Not Possible

NEW YORK, March 9.—Frank H. Simonds, writing editorially in the Tribune under the heading "Gallipoli —1358-1915," says:

There is an appropriateness so far overlooked in the press of the world in the place selected for the landing of the allied troops who are to open the road to Constantinople. By the Gallipoli shore, along which Gen. d'Amade, conqueror of the Shawia Province in Morocco, is leading his polyglot army, the Osmanli entered Europe in 1358.

A century before Constantinople finally yielded to Mohammed II. and the Crescent replaced the Cross on [illegible] Ottoman Turks passed the Dardanelles at almost the precise point where allied artillery is to-day at work, and took the road which was to lead to the Danube and the Bug, to the walls of Vienna by conquered Belgrade and Budapest, and for more than three centuries to feel the tread of victorious Islamic hordes.

It is an inevitable consequence of the greatness and the varied character of the present conflict that the dramatic details should be overlooked. Yet the passing of an empire, the closing days of a State which for nearly six centuries has played its part on European soil, must have an appeal for historians which it lacks for the reader of the daily press. Save for Poland, no European people has disappeared from political existence since the Treaty of Westphalia in 1648 laid down in the map the beginnings of modern Europe.

Turkey's Days of Greatness.

In 1648 Turkey bulked large on the face of Europe, and by 1699 Hungary, Roumania, the Russian shore of the Black Sea, Bulgaria, Serbia and Montenegro, save for a few mountain summits in the last named kingdom, had been conquered; Albania, Scanderbeg long dead, had passed into a subjection unknown since Roman times.

For Europe the coming of the Turk by the Gallipoli Peninsula was an almost unnoticed fact. Not even the gallant and gloriously unsuccessful defence of Serbia at Kossovo roused the West to the new peril. But a century later, when the last Constantine, noblest of the Palaeologi, perished sword in hand in the breach Turkish cannon had opened in the landward walls of Byzantium, the succes of the Ottomans stirred a Europe still incapable of united action against a common foe.

After Constantinople fell two centuries and a half of Turkish prosperity, conquest, advance, temporary repulse, but ultimate success, bridged the gap between 1453 and the eighteenth century. With this century there began the long period of decline which gave Europe the Eastern Question, a dozen wars, long years of unstable peace, leading to the final catastrophe of 1918.

After the Congress of Vienna Turkey retired behind the Danube, the Carpathians and the Pruth. A century ago the whole world read the story of the new Greece, read it in the poetry of Byron, and felt in the Hellenic renaissance an appeal which has endured in some fashion over the century which saw Roumania, Serbia, Montenegro and Bulgaria follow their destinies, become conscious of racial and national unities.

Paying for Selfishness.

A world which followed the progress of the Germans and Italians from chaos and weakness to unity and strength has been less clearly aware of, but not wholly blind to, the struggles of the little peoples, weighed down not by their own weakness, but by the jealousies of the greater nations, by the ambition of Russia to possess Constantinople, of Austria to reach the Aegean and crush the Pan-Slav yearnings on either side of the Danube, of Italy longing to revive on the Adriatic shore and in the Aegean the glories of Venice and of Genoa. For its selfishness Europe is now paying in Champagne, in Flanders, in East Prussia, the price it exacted of the unhappy races south of the Danube.

After six centuries there is now small reason to question that the Turk is going back to Asia. His lease on Stamboul is terminable at the will of the first hostile fleet that passes the crumbling forts of the Dardanelles. Save for the little corner of Thrace about Adrianople, lost and regained two years ago, all the lands in Europe where once his people encamped are lost to the Christian. Two years ago, in the first Balkan War, thousands on thousands of Ottoman Turks in Macedonia and Thrace loaded their few possessions on waggons and began the long trek to the old home. To-day the migration of the people is coming to an end; little remains save the army and the threatened forts, and these have German commanders.

In Asia Minor the Turk has still a land as big as Spain, a population of some 9,000,000 industrious honest, hard-working folk. At home the Turk is as peaceful as he has been warlike abroad. Everywhere he is the gentleman of the East, a single island of honesty and courtesy in the Levantine flood.

A Mile Post of History.

In history the fall of Constantinople in 1453 has long been accepted as one of the mile posts. For the Near East, if not for Europe, the second fall will hardly be less memorable. For the Serb, the Greek, the Bulgar, it will mean the final assurance of freedom from the old master, the in[illegible] and the tyrant. For Russia it will mean the open door to the sea, so long sought, so frequently lost at the last moment, after gallant and successful fighting.

In the Great War it will mean the collapse of the first of Germany's allies, to be followed by a fresh onslaught upon Austria from all sides, perhaps from Roumania and Italy. For it is to Francis Joseph that the Sultan will resign the title of "Sick Man of the East." For Germany it will mean the end of the dream that was embodied in the Bagdad railroad and saw one central empire of the Teuton extending not from the "Etsch unto the Belt," but from the Rhine to the Euphrates, to the marches of India—and beyond.

But to the Turk it may mean rest at last from the conquest of worlds in which he was not interested, escape from that "destiny" statesmen so often seek to impose upon a reluctant people. In the six centuries which separate the two struggles about Gallipoli he has paid the price of empire in full. His passing, the latest fall of Constantinople, will be the most dramatic incident in the war to the present hour. It may easily be a date forever memorable in human history.

THREE GAMES IN THE "Y" LEAGUE TO-NIGHT

Bill Heaslip's "Hustlers" play the first game with Ray Best's "Boosters" at 8 o'clock, in the Y.M.C.A. basketball league, to-night. The former have lost only one game so far and the latter, none.

Cressman's and Excelsiors will furnish the excitement for the second game, and as the latter have yet to lose, some battle may be expected. Chalmers Nicholls has left town and will not line up with the Excelsiors' team, but Captain Alex. Darling promises he has something up his sleeve.

The last game is between the DeLaval and Unknowns, and ought to prove interesting. The Unknowns will not have the services of Walter Flowers, but it is rumoured that they have a dark horse to uncover.

A large crowd of spectators is expected.

Following is the schedule for the second round of basketball, starting March 13:

Saturday March 13—Collegiate vs. Maple Leafs, at 7.30; Excelsiors vs. Business Men, at 8.15.

A Win for Barnsley.

LONDON, March 10—Soccer scores yesterday were as follows:

Barnsley, 2; Birmingham, 1.

London Will Not See Big Soccer Match This Year

The final match for the professional association football championship of England, popularly known as the cup tie match, will not be played in London this spring but in one of the provincial cities.

Professional association football is the game of the British masses, like professional baseball in the United States. The game to decide which team shall hold the English cup is even more important than the English-Scottish championship. It is usually held on the Crystal Palace field and draws a crowd in normal times of about 100,000 persons, of whom perhaps a third are unable to get a sight of the field and leave the grounds.

While it is doubtful if these attendance figures will be reached this spring, the final match will not lack patronage. Notwithstanding the war, 910,000 spectators paid $126,565 to witness the forty-eight matches in the first two rounds of the cup ties. This is roughly 50 per cent. of last season's attendance at the same stage, for the gate receipts at that time amounted to $221,500.

WAR KEEPS OARSMEN IDLE

The Thames Amateur Rowing council of England, which annually allocates the dates of the chief regattas of the rowing season in England, decided at a recent meeting to make no fixtures for the coming season because of the war. As the annual varsity race between the Oxford and Cambridge eights has been abandoned and there is not likely to be any Henley, the decision means that there will be no oneen lest boat racing of any sort on the Thames this year.

The Fitzgerald-Bottom trophy will remain with Bobcaygeon for the next twelve months. Four rinks skipped. Messrs. The games played here a month ago gave the Northerners a lead of 11 shots. Yesterday's visit brought out considerable curling, and the 'Caygeon hosts surpassed themselves.

The five rinks that went to Toronto were idle all day. The Victoria ice had a layer of water and the games

THE MAXWELL STANDS PAT
No Increase in Price on Account of New Tariff!

MAXWELL MOTOR COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED
MANUFACTURERS OF AUTOMOBILES
HEAD OFFICE: 19 PITT STREET, EAST
WINDSOR, ONTARIO

Heard & Northey Co., Feb. 15, 1915
383 Water Street, Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sirs:---

The Maxwell Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. will stand pat. No change in the Canadian price of the Maxwell Car is contemplated as a result of the 7 1-2 per cent. increase in duty. In all the years that the company has been selling its product it has been in close sympathy with general business conditions across the border.

Because of greatly increased production the Maxwell company has been enabled during the past year or two to arrange its distribution in such a way as to place a greater quantity of these justly celebrated cars in the Dominion. We are with you to stay, and it is felt by the officials of the company that in the face of the national stress prevailing in Canada the time is now opportune to convince our Canadian distributors that the Maxwell can show its spirit by carrying the burden.

There is no need to dwell on the extra 7 1-2 per cent. The government of the Dominion has deemed it necessary to tax automobiles 7 1-2 per cent. more, The Maxwell company will absorb this amount. Please remember that no change in distributors' discounts or in list price is contemplated.

Business conditions in Canada are fundamentally sound. The farmer is getting more money for his produce than ever before. The export business of the country will increase and the imports from abroad will decrease. Therefore the Dominion of Canada has before it a great opportunity, in that it can now develop the natural resources that have for so many years been undeveloped in consequence of the people of the Dominion as a whole importing many articles which could just as well have been made at home. The small business man and the farmer are making money. These are the people who buy Maxwell cars. Now is your chance to get business, as you have practically no competition. There is no car to-day which presents so much value for the money as the Maxwell car.

Yours very truly,
MAXWELL MOTOR CO. of CANADA LTD.

Lacrosse Meeting In Y.M.C.A. To-night

A meeting of lacrosse fans will be held in the Y.M.C.A. to-night when the prospects of getting the game under way this year will be considered. With the ball diamond dark considerable opposition is removed. If those who desire to assure the success of lacrosse will determine to make it successful there is some hope of accomplishment, but half-hearted attempts will be entirely abortive. The first necessary step is a careful review of the prospects for the coming year before any decided step is taken. The annual meeting of the O.A.L.A. is only three weeks' distant, and the enthusiasts must get busy.

The Cost of an Inquest is Estimated at $100

Peterborough has had three inquests inside of eight days. Each inquest will cost the municipality in the neighbourhood of one hundred dollars so that the three will total approximately three hundred dollars. Jurymen receive one dollar each for every sitting and the doctors who conduct the post mortem fifteen dollars each, with an additional five dollars for appearing in court. As there are usually two doctors, this amounts to forty dollars for each inquest.

George Evans, who served on the jury empanelled to enquire into the death of John Seeney, yesterday afternoon, has served on all three inquests.

Steady, steady there, number two!

Empty rifles—no need to load—
Night work's close work, stick to steel!

Wait for shadows and watch the clouds.
When it's moonshine, down you go!
Quiet, quiet, as mon in shrouds,
Cats a-prowl in the dark go slow.

Curse you, there, did you have to fall?
Damn your feet and your blind-bat eyes!
Caught in the open, caught—that's all!
Searchlights! slaughter— we meant surprise!

Shrapnel fire a bit too low—
Gets us though on the ricochet!
Open order and in we go.
Steel, cold steel, and we'll make 'em pay.

God above, not there to win?
Left, while my men go on to die!
Take them in, Sergeant, taken them in!
Go on, fellows, good luck—good-bye!

Voice Of The People

Dear Sir and Editor of the Peterborough Examiner,—I desire you to commission a space in your paper and am obliged for past favours shown.

In your issue of March 6th a letter was published by an "Observer" who stopped rather short, by only reading an advertisement of a grand concert which was to be held in St. Andrew's church and wrote so scanty on his observations. The writer goes on to think that churches were for the purpose of preaching the word of God. We must all grant him this, without any doubt. But does it not occur to us all ,that our large churches, with their great and magnificent organs, should be open only one day out of seven, and these organs and church ornaments, represent fabulous sums of money, should be under lock and key, six days a week. I for one, answer, "no," but throw open your church doors and let us have a fortaste of the bliss of music in this world below, when we are taught from our childhood, that "golden harps and blasts of trumpets are promised in the next world, "heaven." If the "Observer" attended this concert, he would have heard the grand and glorious strains peal forth from that organ played by a blind organist, gifted with that heavenly talent by "God" to play "God's music," which is good for the mind, the same as "God's word." Surely it reminds us that we are but a form of clay and that our observations should be broadened. As for churches paying taxes, the people must apply themselves to the paying of the tithes, by giving their tenth, as God has so prospered them, let us hope the "Observer" does. Lastly, I fail to agree with his idea of desecration of the church. All who attended this concert, I trust we God fearing people and they threw in their mite, on the collection plate at the door of the church and went home rejoicing.

Believe me,

A Lover of Good Music.

Her captain has come ashore for instructions from the German ambassador, but it will be impossible to put to sea again without extensive repairs. It is stated that there are three hundred British, Russian and French prisoners aboard, taken from merchant ships sunk.

JUDGE'S RECORD IS 4,186 DIVORCES IN 12 YEARS

Usually Grants Decree to Those Who Honestly Say They "Want to Try Another Leap in the Dark."

HEBER SPRINGS, Ark., March 9.—Chancellor George T. Humphries of this district during the last twelve years of his official career has granted 4,186 divorces, 2,342 of them negroes. He granted 50 in Heber Springs this week.

His reputation as "a divorce judge" has so spread that almost daily he receives letters from persons who have grown tired of wedded bliss and wish to become free once more, asking him for advice as to what course they should pursue. Many tell him the main reason for wanting a divorce is to get married again. Of course they have a reason to put before the Court.

He invariably grants a divorce to a person who is honest enough to state that he is desirous of trying another leap into the dark.

THE HAGUE, March 10. — (Via London.)—The German Foreign Office has sent through James W. Gerard, the American Ambassador to Germany, an expression of regret and an explanation to Henry Van Dyke, the American Minister to Holland and Luxemburg, regarding the interruption of Dr. Van Dyke's correspondence with Luxemburg.

The trouble is attributed in the explanation to a misunderstanding on the part of the military commandant at Treves, and it is stated that orders have been issued to prevent such an incident occurring again.

Bulgaria Has Also a Crisis.

PARIS, March 10.—A Ministerial crisis similar to that in Greece has occurred in Belgrade, according to information reaching Paris in special despatches. MR. G. N. GORDON ON THE PRIVATE BILL

Mr. Gordon, when interviewed today, said that the Private Bill of the City of Peterborough went through without any difficulty, before the Private Bills Committee. The Attorney-General was chairman, and after the Bill had been presented by the City Solicitor, a few questions were asked by individual members of the Private Bills Committee, but they seemed to be satisfied that the powers asked were not unreasonable, and the City was authorized to expend such sums up to the limit of $90,000.00, subject to the approval of the Hydro-Electric Comission, in paying the award, costs and expenses of the Peterborough Light and Power Company's plant.

The Motive Power.

Mr. Gillespie introduced the delegation to the Private Bills Committee, and Mr. E. A. Peck appeared for the Township of Smith, and with Mr. Gillespie, did a great deal of very useful work in explaining to the members of the committee the reasons why the Private Bill should be passed upon favourably by the committee.

Mayor Bull, Chairman Matthews, of the Utilities Commission, Alderman Duffus, and City Clerk Armstrong, were present to assist in supporting the City's claim before the committee.

GERMAN THEORY AND IRISH PRACTICE.

John Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, and prior to the outbreak of war the chief power in the movement for home rule, has loyally co-operated with the rest of the Empire in its fight against Germany. One of the theories held by the Germans was that if Britain became involved in a conflict, Redmond and Carson would fly at one another's throats, or, in other words, that civil war would break out in Ireland. Their subsequent actions have been a keen disappointment to the Kaiser and his war lords.—Journal of Commerce.

RECIPE TO CLEAR A PIMPLY SKIN

Pimples are Impurities Seeking an Outlet Through Skin Pores.

Pimples, sores and boils usually result from toxins, poisons and impurities which are generated in the bowels and then absorbed into the blood through the very ducts which should absorb only nourishment to sustain the body.

It is the function of the kidneys to filter impurities from the blood and cast them out in the form of urine, but in many instances the bowels create more toxins and impurities than the kidneys can eliminate, then the blood uses the skin pores as the next best means of getting rid of these impurities which often break out all over the skin in the form of pimples.

The surest way to clear the skin of these eruptions, says a noted authority is to get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of hot water each morning before breakfast for one week. This will prevent the formation of toxins in the bowels. It also stimulates the kidneys to normal activity, thus coaxing them to filter the blood of impurities and clearing the skin of pimples.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent drink which usually makes pimples disappear; cleanses the blood and is excellent for the kidneys as well.

A table to hold toys which can be converted into a doll house has been patented by a Kentucky inventor.

BRITISH NORTH OF LA BASSEE GAIN VICTORY

Forts of Namazieh Put Up Stubborn Resistance

Orders To Silence Batteries At Any Cost

Four British Warships Are Pumping Shells at the Turkish Fork Namazieh---Queen Elizabeth and Supporting Warships Having Sternest Kind of Opposition.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, Eng., March 11.—Under orders to silence her batteries at any cost, four British warships are pumping shells at the Turkish Fort Namazieh at the entrance to the Dardanelles narrows, according to latest despatches from Athens to-day.

The bombarding battleships are steaming slowly up and down the strait, firing at Namazieh at a range of several miles. Her big Krupps are splashing water with a rain of projectiles while Fort Kilid Bair, nearer the water's edge, interrupts the duel with an occasional salvo from her guns.

All Athens despatches agreed to-day that the Queen Elizabeth and her supporting warships are having the sternest kind of opposition from Namazieh. Twenty four modern Kruppe of various calibres are mounted in the fort's batteries, high on the hill overlooking Kilid Barh. The whole work is supported by three lesser forts, each mounting four guns. German officers are believed to be directing the artillery fire.

No firing has been heard from the direction of Smyrna for 24 hours, according to despatches from the Island of Tenedos. It was rumoured at Athens that Rear-Admiral Pierse, commanding the British squadron, has consented to a suspension of hostilities to give non-cambatants time to leave Smyrna.

Despatches from Mitylene say that the batteries at Renkioi, which have been giving the fleet some trouble, have at last been silenced. During the bombardment yesterday a fragment of a Turkish shell fell at the feet of Rear-Admiral Guespratte, commander of the French division of the fleet, as he was directing the operations of the battleship Suffren, which had executed a daring manoeuvre by penetrating to the extreme limit of the mine field.

Athens despatches received say that two battleships ventured right into the Narrows during the night to protect the vessels engaged in mine-sweeping there. These despatches report that the Kilid Bahr and Frenkeul batteries have been badly damaged and that the fire of the Turkish forts is becoming weaker.

A Central News despatch from Athens says that during the bombardment of the Dardanelles on Monday thirty guns mounted on motor trucks were destroyed by the fire of the warships.

The panic in Constantinople is increasing, according to information reaching here. The Turkish Government has completed arrangements for a flight to Konia. All males are being forced to join the army without regard to nationality, it is reported.

CAPTURED A TRENCH

Interesting Description by a Canadian Writer—"Just Shake Your Bayonets and They Will Run"

GERMANS SURPRISED

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, Eng., March 11. — An interesting description of the capture of a German trench by Canadians has reached London in a letter from one of the men who took part in the charge. The Canadian writer says:

"At 4 a.m. we were ordered to take the German trench 25 yards away. 'Quite simple,' we were told. 'Just shake your bayonets and they will surrender.' With four companions, besides two bomb throwers, we crept forward knee-deep in mud until we were almost on top of the enemy's trench. The Germans, who were apparently surprised at seeing visitors, fired a round apiece at us and then fled. One of our men was shot outright, but we caught the German who hit him and we settled the account. Not one of the lot escaped, I think.

"It was frightful, as the enemy all along the line started firing, also throwing hand grenades and employing machine guns, but we held the position long enough to enable our fatigue party to break down the trench. Then we slowly retreated, taking dead and wounded with us. We were stepping into our own trench when a machine gun caught me."

Italy May Join Allies Now At Any Moment

Italian Government Recalls Reservists---Gen. Garibaldi Will Be Commander of Italian Corps Taking Part in Fighting in France.

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 11.—The news that Italy has cast the die and joined the allies may be expected at any moment. A despatch from Spezia Italy, says:

"Vice-Admiral the Duke of the Abruzzi embarked yesterday on his flagship, the new Italian Dreadnought Conte do Gavour, to command a squadron composed entirely of Dreadnoughts. The squadron comprises the Dante Alighieri, Caoi Duilio, Giulio Cesare and Leonardo da Vinci. This is the most powerful combination of units that Italy has ever had in one squadron."

The following official statement was issued last night by the French War Office:

"As the Italian Government has recalled certain categories of its reservists, the French Government has given liberty to the fourth regiment of the Foreign Legion, to which the Garibaldians belong."

The official announcement that the French Government has given permission to the Garibaldi legion now fighting in the Argonne to return to Italy, presumably in response to a mobilization call, is regarded here as an indication that Italy's mind is made up, and that she is about ot take an active part in the war on the side of the allies. It is believed here that this is a result of the visit to London of General Ricciotto Garibaldi, whose son, Col. Peppino Garibaldi, is commander of the Italian Legion in the French army. Before leaving Rome Gen. Garibaldi said he was going to London to have a conference with Lord Kitchener regarding the future action of Italy, and it was understood that in case Italy joined the allies Gen. Garibaldi would be the commander of the Italian corps taking a direct part in the fighting in France.

MANY PRISONERS TAKEN AND STRONG POSITION IS GAINED

SPECIAL WIRE TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, March 11.—The bombardment of Nieuport by the Germans with their 42-centimetre guns, and an important victory of the British troops near La Bassee are the principal features of the communique issued last night by the French War Office. This is the first time that the enemy has brought his heaviest artillery to bear on Nieuport, which was badly damaged, the cannonading continuing for the greater part of the day.

The efforts of the British north of La Bassee and of the French to the south have been directed for more than a month towards driving the Germans from that town, which they have fortified until it is one of the strongest points on their entire line. The allied offensive has met with varying success, but the advance made yesterday is the most important accomplishment of the war in that region.

ONE THOUSAND TAKEN PRISONERS.

The British troops, supported by heavy artillery, not only captured the village of Neuve Chapelle, north of La Bassee, but advanced some distance towards the town of Aubers, to the northeast. More than 1,000 prisoners and many guns were captured.

German counter-attacks were launched throughout yesterday upon the advanced positions of the French in Champagne, but the War Office reports that they did not gain an inch. The night communique, also recorded successful work by the French artillery on the heights of the Meuse.

In the afternoon communique emphasis was again laid upon the fighting at Perthes and Mesnil-les-Hurlus in Champagne.

WILL INVESTIGATE LA TOURAINE FIRE

Passengers Were None the Worse for Their Exciting Experience—Cause for Suspicion

Special Cable to The Examiner:

HAVRE, March 11—A rigid inquiry already has been begun into all phases of the fire at sea aboard the French Line steamer La Touraine, which docked here at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and landed safely all her passengers.

The passengers apparently were none the worse for their thrilling experience. The fire, which was confined to one of the holds, was extinguished at midnight Sunday and the last stage of the voyage was completed without incident.

Life belts were distributed among the passengers and the boats were prepared for instant use as soon as the flames were discovered, but at no time was there any real danger, according to a statement made by Capt. Caussin.

Capt. Caussin told the story of the fire.

"The fire was discovered at 2 a.m. Saturday, March 6, in the base of one of the ventilators in the boiler room. Heavy smoke found its way to the bridge. While the men in the boiler room sought to extinguish the blaze, which was not serious in itself, I turned my attention to other parts of the ship.

"At this moment one of the night watch reported hearing the crackling of flames forward. I ordered all the crew to their stations, and, as the ship was in a mist, I gave directions to stop the vessel in order that I might leave the bridge for the scene of the blaze. We discovered flames eating their way toward the post-office and beginning to attack neighbouring cabins. We discovered that the flames were spreading to the partitions and floor of compartment No. 2, so as to involve a large amount of freight. Believing that so large a part of the cargo might take fire, and finding we were not able to deal with it easily, I decided to send out a call for aid. Meanwhile through holes made in the partitions we obtained a view of the fire, which then was attacked with jets of water and steam. Sunday morning, the 7th, we had mastered the blaze and the danger was past."

Owing to the early arrival of La Touraine at Havre nearly all the passengers were able to proceed to Paris on the train leaving at 5 p.m.

The ship shows no external sign of the fire. It was admitted that military supplies were included in the cargo which was threatened.

WHEAT SUFFERS FURTHER LOSSES

Wall Street Speculators Move Over to Chicago—Country Short of Wheat

CLOSING PRICES

Special to The Examiner.

CHICAGO, March 11. — The fact was clearly demonstrated on the Board of Trade yesterday that there is "too much Wall Street" in the wheat pit. Some of the high rolling speculators at that market, believing that the chances in wheat are better for money-making than in stocks, have been in the Chicago grain market for some little time past. Owing to the enromous quantities handled by their brokers the eastern men have been enabled to control conditions and have consequently secured a large amount of the money to change hands. One of these big speculators has been on the Board of Trade for several days looking over the speculative conditions and swinging from the buying to the selling side in quick succession, and in time to secure profits.

Wheat suffered losses of 2 1-2c to 3 1-4c and while the reactions and advances were sharp and telling—especially on a big line of grain—the volume of trade was smaller and was confined largely to the Wall Street crowd and the local speculative element. The news from abroad was of both kinds—bullish and bearish. Sentiment in Chicago was bearish and the heavy selling of the over-bought concerns helped to demoralise the entire situation. The cash trade at the seaboard was 500,000 bushels of wheat to exporters; 145,000 bushels of corn, with 76,000 bushels to exporters, and 77,000 bushels of oats. Liverpool spot wheat was unchanged in price, which was a bear help in itself, as there was a sharp upturn in wheat here, yesterday. The prospects are for an increased movement from Argentina, as the wheat is being offered at lower prices and the tonnage there is liberal, with freight rates much lower. The foreign demand for wheat was smaller because of the report that the Italian fleet had sailed to join the allies at the Dardenelles, which was believed to be the forerunner of the shipment of wheat from Russia in the near future.

Coarse grains were 3-4c to 1c lower, with corn showing the greater weakness. A prominent broker says that the percentage of farm reserves of corn in first hands is about the lowest on record; that in comparing the stocks on the farms with those of a year ago, it should be borne in mind that this year's production exceeded that of the year previous by 226,000,000 bushels; that the Government report certainly exploded the theory that the country is full of corn, and also dissipated the general impression that farm consumption has been subnormal.

Provisions were sharply lower on another heavy hog run. Small packers and scattered longs were the chief sellers. The buying was scattered.

Closing cash prices: Wheat, No. 2 red, $1.53 1-2 to $1.53 7-8; No. 2 hard, $1.55 to $1.56 3-4. Corn, No. 2 yellow, 72 1-2c; No. 4 yellow, 69 1-2c to 70 1-2c Oats—No. 3 white, 75 3-4c to 56 1-2c. standard, 56 1-2c to 57c. Rye—No. 2, $1.15. Barley, 70c to 84c. Timothy, $4.50 to $6.50. Clover, $10 to $13.75. Pork, $17.20. Lard, $9.97. Ribs, $9 to $9.50.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF HAIR STOPS FALLING

Girls! Try This! Makes Your Hair Thick, Glossy, Fluffy, Beautiful.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25 cent. bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair, and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

The distribution of wheat is interesting. Exports from the West to date exceed 190,000 bushels, and, on the basis of estimates of 80,000 bushels already sold for export but not yet cleared, the total is 270,000,000 bushels. This would make the largest exports on record, leaving only 79,000,000 bushels to carry over into the next crop.

EXPELLING CIVILIANS

Special to The Examiner.

GENEVA, March 11.—Thirty thousand civilian inhabitants of French territory occupied by the Germans are being expelled through Switzerland in lots of 500. The first thousand passed through Geneva Tuesday. They were chiefly from Lille and Maubeuge, and consisted of very old people and children under ten years. Some of the French children said that they had often gone near the fighting line to get food. The exiles were sent across the French frontier by the Swiss authorities.

"THE GRELL MYSTERY"

By Frank Frocst

"Taylor, who is watching the Duke of Burghley's House in Berkeley Square, has just telephoned that a woman who corresponds to the description of Lola Rachael has just been admitted and is still there."

Into Foyle's alert eyes there shot a gleam of interest.

"You don't say so?" he muttered. And then, more alertly, "Is he still on the telephone? If so, tell him to detain her should she come out before I can get down. He must be as courteous as possible. We mustn't lose her now. And send a man down at once to bring Wills, the butler at Grosvenor Gardens, here. He's the only man who saw the veiled woman enter the house on the night of the murder."

CHAPTER XIX.

From behind the curtains of the sitting-room Eileen Meredith could see two men occasionally pass and repass the house. They did not go by often, but she knew that even if she could not see them they always held the house in view. They were not journalists—they were more sedate, older men. Nor did they molest any one who entered or left the house. They merely exercised a quiet, unwearying, unobtrusive surveillance, and Eileen knew that Heldon Foyle had taken his own way of preventing her from seeing Sir Ralph Fairfield. She felt certain that, should she leave the house the men would follow her. She did not guess, however, that Foyle had intended them to give her an opportunity of discovering their presence. She would be the more unlikely to persist in her rash resolve if she knew it would be frustrated. Nor did she know that Fairfield was equally closely watched in all his comings and goings.

The hysterical outbreak that had been provoked by the superintendent's penetration of her doings when she visited his office at Scotland Yard had been followed by hours of almost complete collapse. To her father enough had been told to make him hurriedly summon a specialist. The doctor explained.

"I have known similar cases follow a great shock. She is mentally unbalanced on one point. Unless anything occurs to excite her in connection with that, time will effect a cure. She must not be opposed in her wishes, and I would suggest that she be taken out of London and an effort made to distract her. Plenty of society, out-door amusements—anything to occupy her mind."

"I suggested that we should leave London," said Lord Burghley gloomily. "She refuses."

"Then don't press her. Ask her friends to visit her, and don't let her leave the house except with a competent attendant."

So it was that Eileen found herself practically a prisoner in her own home. She received the visitors invited by her father at first with a mechanical courtesy, but later on with an assumption of cheerfulness that deceived her father and even to more extent the doctor. She had begun to realise that she would never shake off the vigilance which surrounded her until she had convinced folk that she had regained her normal spirits. Her capabilities as an actress, which had won for her leading parts in many amateur plays, had never been taxed so hardly. But then she had invariably been cast for comedy. Now she felt she was playing tragedy. For night and day she never forgot. Always there was one thought hammering at her brain.

She withdrew into the room as a neat little motor brougham halted at the door. In a little while Mrs. Porter-Strangeways was announced. Reluctantly Eileen condescended to welcome the portly, middle-aged dame, who was tacitly recognised as being the leader of American society in London.

The girl smiled slightly as the woman rose to greet her with both arms outstretched.

"It is so good of you, dear Mrs. Porter-Strangeways," she exclaimed. "I have only my friends to look forward to now."

Mrs. Porter-Strangeways indicated her companion by some subtle means of her own.

"You poor girl!!" she exclaimed, throwing just the right reflection of sympathy into her not unmusical voice. "I called before, but you were unfit to see anyone then. I took the liberty of bringing a friend to see you—the Princess Petrovska."

The name conveyed nothing to Eileen. She knew not how the woman she faced was concerned in the tangle in which she herself was involved. She saw only a slim, beautifully-dressed woman, whose age might have been somewhere between thirty and forty, and who still laid claim to a gipsy-like beauty. The dark eyes of the Princess dwelt upon the girl with a sort of well-bred curiosity. Mrs. Porter-Strangeways imparted information in a swift whisper.

"A Russian title, I believe. Met her in Rome two years ago. She is a delightful woman — so bright and happy, though I believe, poor dear, she had a terrible time before her husband died. She called on me yesterday and asked me to bring her to see you. She's so interested in you. You don't mind?"

The quick thought that she was being made a show of caused a spasm to flicker across Eileen's face. Almost instantly she regained her composure, and for half an hour Mrs. Porter-Strangeways prattled on. The other took little part in the conversation. Eileen could feel that the Princess was watching her closely under her cast-down eyelashes. The woman repelled and yet fascinated her. When the time came for leave-taking she found herself giving a pressing invitation to the other to call again. With a smile of satisfaction the Princess promised.

They had not been gone a quarter of an hour when the Princess was announced alone. Eileen, a little astonished, received her questioningly.

"I had to see you alone," explained the older woman. "I have something of importance to say to you—that's why I made Mrs. Porter-Strangeways bring me. I feared that you would not see me otherwise."

"To see me alone?" repeated Eileen, with the air of one completely mystified. Then, as the other nodded grimly, she closed the door of the room.

With a murmured "Pardon me," the Princess walked across the room and turned the key. "It will be better so," she said. "What I have to say must not be overheard. The life of a—someone may depend on secrecy."

Eileen had begun to wonder if her strange visitor were made. There was something, however, in her quiet, methodical manner that forbade the assumption. The Princess Petrovska had settled herself gracefully in a great armchair.

"No, I am not mad." She answered the unspoken question. "I am quite in my senses, I assure you. I have come to you with a message from one you think dead — from Robert Grell."

The room reeled before Eileen's eyes. She clutched the mantelpiece with one hand to steady herself.

"From one I think dead?" she repeated. "Bob is dead." She gripped the other woman fiercely by the shoulder and almost shook her in the intensity of her emotion. "He is dead, I tell you. What do you mean? I know he is dead. Do not lie to me. He is dead."

The Princess Petrovska glanced gravely up into the strained features of the girl. Her own face was a mask.

"Calm yourself, Lady Eileen," she said. "You have been made the victim of a wicked deceit. He is not dead—but a man wonderfully like him is. I have come here at his request to relieve your mind." She dropped her voice to a whisper. "At the same time, he is in grave danger, and you can help him."

Had Heart Trouble FOR YEARS.

Weighed 87 Lbs.
Now Weighs 138 Lbs.

Miss Beatrice Lougheed, Staples, Ont., writes: "I feel it my duty to tell you what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I had heart trouble for quite a few years. I doctored for it, and altogether my bill amounted to $400, and still no cure. One day when very sick I was lying on a couch close to where some almanacs were hanging. I took one down, and was reading about what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills cured, and thought I would try them. I got six boxes to start with; have only taken three boxes and I never felt so well in my life as I do now. I only weighed 87 pounds when I started to take them, and now I weigh 138 pounds. I hope all poor sufferers will be benefitted by them as I have been."

Wherever there is any weakness of the heart, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will strengthen it and build up a strong healthy system.

STOMACH TROUBLES DUE TO ACIDITY

SO SAYS EMINENT SPECIALIST.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, wind, and stomachache are in probably nine cases out of ten simply evidence that fermentation is taking place in the food contents of the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acids. Wind distends the stomach, and causes that full, oppressive feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the fermenting food. Such fermentation is unnatural, and acid formation is not only unnatural, but may involve most serious consequences if not corrected. To stop or prevent fermentation of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and render it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of bisnrated magnesia, probably the best and most effective corrector of acid stomach known, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water immediately after eating, or whenever wind or acidity is felt. This stops the fermentation, and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments. Fermentation, wind and acidity are dangerous and unnecessary. Stop or prevent them by the use of a proper antacid, such as bisurated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist and thus enable the stomach to do its work properly without being hindered by poisonous gas and dangerous acids.—M. OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

An Indication Of Greatness

By OSCAR COX

My uncle, Dr. James Pulsifer, was a great scientist and an original thinker. He died a bachelor and left me all his property. After his death I examined every paper of his I could find, especially his scientific writings, thinking to publish them. Among an earlier batch written very soon after he graduated in medicine I found a narrative which as I read on interested me intensely. Here it is:

"We all know that many things exist of which the human mind has not yet any conception. I go further than this. I believe that anything of which the mind can conceive, however improbable, may exist.

"Some years ago a certain noted author wrote a story—'The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde'—suggesting that two different personalities might exist in the same man. I believe that the day will come when it will be demonstrated to the world that some, if not all, of us are composed of more than one being. Indeed, I not only believe it; I know it. If you ask me why I know it, this is my reply:

"There was something about Jennie Hatch that impressed me the first time I met her. She was what most persons would call odd. Perhaps one reason for my becoming interested in her was that I was a recent graduate of a medical college and had taken a post-graduate course on the physiology of psychical conditions. It seemed to me that Miss Hatch was abnormal—not that there was anything wrong with her spirit within it. For I am not so given to materialism as to believe that our spiritual and physical parts are one.

"Whether Jennie Hatch mistook my scientific interest in her for love I don't know, but she came to look upon me as a lover. I did not either encourage or discourage her in this. I permitted the relationship between us to drift on without definition. One thing I noticed which I set down to a certain fickleness or apparent fickleness consequent upon the physical makeup of women. I would go to see her, say, on Saturday night, an evening I usually dodged my patients if I could do so without injury to them. She would receive me kindly and be a delightful companion. I would visit her the following Wednesday and she would look at me as though she wondered why I had called. During the first visit she would be a girl, during the second a woman. During the first I would seem to be a proper companion for her—that is, a person of about the same age. During the second she made me feel that I was a boy attempting to entertain a woman who had learned wisdom.

"My observations indicated to me that Jennie Hatch embodied two personalities. My deductions were not based alone on such differences as I have described. There was another and far more important symptom. I became convinced that Jennie sometimes loved me and sometimes did not love me. Not only this—I came to suspect that there were times when she loved some one else.

"On the theory that she embodied two persons it seemed to me that Jennie No. 1 might love me and that Jennie No. 2 might love another. It was not confusing to love, or, rather, comfort, to be interested in one whom other self loved some other person. Nevertheless, I found myself growing fond of Jennie. My theory did not admit of jealousy because I had no affection for Jennie No. 2. Yet, singularly enough, I was jealous of her lover. I suppose it was on account of the two spiritual personalities occupying the same body. Scientifically expressed, my jealousy should be represented by No. 1 (Jennie of the flesh) plus zero (Jennie No. 2, to whom I was indifferent), the product being one-half.

"Nevertheless I was in love, and one evening while thinking the matter over it occurred to me that I could study the case better as Jennie's—I refer to Jennie No. 1—fiance than as we were. On the impulse of the moment I went to her house for the purpose of making a declaration.

"I saw the moment she entered the room that she was her other self.

"I once heard a woman say that if a man has made up his mind to a proposal nothing that she can say or do will stop him. I had gone to Jennie's house to propose to her, and somehow I could not resist the impelling force. I asked her to be my wife. She hesitated, then refused me, telling me that she loved another.

"I had begun this affair with purely scientific motives. Here was an end to it, based on human reasons. I left the house feeling that for me the bottom had dropped out of the universe."

Here the paper ended abruptly. I was much disappointed, hoping to find some confirmation of my uncle's theory, based on his singular love affair. But not another word did I meet with on the subject. One day I was talking about him to a chum of his youth, whom I asked how the doctor came to be a bachelor. The reply was that when a very young man he had been in love with a Miss Hatch, who married an old fellow double her age.

This revelation gave a shock to my admiration for my uncle's scientific attainments until I remembered that when he mistook a girl's indecision between himself and another man for a duplex being he was very young. Nevertheless, the incident indicated his mental bent and foreshadowed his future remarkable career as a scientist.

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cleveland, Ohio—"My left side pained me so for several years that I expected to have to undergo an operation, but the first bottle I took of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound relieved me of the pains in my side and I continued its use until I became regular and free from pains. I had asked several doctors if there was anything I could take to help me and they said there was nothing that they knew of. Hanover, Pa.—"I suffered from female trouble and the pains were so bad at times that I could not sit down. The doctor advised a severe operation but my husband got me Lydia E. SENT CROWN PRINCE TO PRIVATE LIFE

New Version of Kaiser's Dispute With His Young Hopeful

PARIS, March 11—The Auto says it is generally believed in Alsace, which is usually well informed about the German Imperial family, that the Kaiser and Crown Prince Frederick William have been on bad terms since September. The Emperor accused his son of encroaching on his authority and of issuing orders contrary to his wishes. The Crown Prince replied with a criticism of his father's military strategy. A pipe which the Crown Prince presented to his soldiers at Christmas with an address which seemed to ignore his father's supremacy as generalissimo formed another offence.

The Kaiser at that time summoned his son to Potsdam and there was a stormy interview, at the conclusion of which the Emperor relieved his son of his command and army rank, and sent him to private life. The silence in regard to the Crown Prince's doings in recent weeks is due to this disagreement.

HUNGER RIOTS SPREAD IN SPAIN

MADRID, via Paris, March 10. — The economic situation in Spain is becoming steadily more serious notwithstanding the efforts of the government to find a solution for the difficulties which confront the country. It is feared in some quarters that conditions soon will become so bad that they may lead to a conflict fraught with grave consequences.

Despatches from the provinces tell of numerous riots resulting from the high cost of food. In some interior districts and in the Canary Islands the people get food only every other day. Many families are said to be living on herbs and roots.

A woman, said to have been driven mad by privation, drowned herself with her children at Lazaretos.

Fierce rioting resulted at Lacele from the increased price of bread. The civil guards are reported to have fired into the crowd, killing one and wounding many.

Farm and Dairy Market Report

Toronto, Monday, Mar. 8.—Business is improving, but wholesale men report that the volume of orders is much below that of the corresponding date last year. Retailers are sending repeat orders, but it is evident that the tendency all through the country is to buy from hand to mouth in order that no more goods may be carried over to the next season than is necessary. It is believed too that the added taxation imposed by both federal and provincial assemblies will enforce still greater economy on the part of the buying public, and this will be reflected in volume of business.

Chief interest nowadays centres in the market for foodstuffs. The present week has been marked generally by decreases in grains and slight advances in live stock and dairy produce.

WHEAT

The echo from the boom of the allied guns on the Dardanelles resounded all the way to Chicago last week and resulted in a decline of 25c on wheat in one day. Since then there have been occasional rallies, but the declines have been still greater. Similar effects have been felt on all the wheat markets of the world. The amount of wheat that Russia has for export seems to increase with every new estimate, and it is now placed as high as 160,000,000 bushels. Probably the increas-

[illegible] the people in Russia will depend more and more on rye bread and export their wheat. Ontario wheat has been affected in proportion. Quotations here are: No. 1 Northern, $1.53; No. 2, $1.51; No. 3, $1.46½; Ontario wheat, $1.35.

COARSE GRAINS

There has been a general scaling down of prices on coarse grains, in sympathy with the slump in wheat. Corn has suffered less than most others, because quotations were never relatively so high. Oats, C.W. No. 2, 49c; No. 3, 46c; No. 1 feed, 46½c; Ontario oats, 36c to 41c; corn, 69½c; peas, $2 to $2.05; buckwheat, 85c to 86c; rye, $1.23 to $1.25; barley, 85c to 86c. The Montreal market quotes as follows: Oats, C.W. No. 3, 46½c; extra No. 1 feed, 46½c; local oats, 41c to 43c; corn, 69c to 71c; barley, malting, 97c; feed, 85c; peas, $1.85 to $2.00; buckwheat, 97½c to $1.

MILL FEEDS

Prices hold firm here: Bran, $27; shorts, $29; middlings, $34; feed flour, $39 to $43. At Montreal the market is easier, with bran, $25; shorts, $28 to $29; middlings, $30.50; moullie, $34 to $39.

HAY AND STRAW

Little hay is moving outside of the eastern townships and the principal interest there is taken in the government purchase of No. 3 hay, 60 per cent timothy, at $17. It is estimated that it will be a couple of months before the government will collect its full supply, and some dealers doubt if the order will be filled at the price mentioned. Quotations on this market for No. 1 are $17.50 to $18; No. 2, $15.50 to $16 and No. 3, $12.50. The market here is steady.

SEEDS

Seeds are quoted in wholesale quantities a cwt. as follows: Red clover, No. 1, $21 to $22; No. 2, $19 to $19.50; No. 3, $16; alsike, No. 1, $19.50 to $20.50; No. 2, $17.50 to $19.50; No. 3, $15 to $16; timothy, No. 1, $11 to $11.50; No. 2, $9.50 to $9.75; No. 3, $8.75.

EGGS AND POULTRY

Biddy is commencing her spring activities and receipts are increasing at even a greater rate than they did last spring. The tendency in the market is toward lower quotations, the decrease in the week being about 1c. Here fresh eggs in cartons are quoted, 32c to 35c; new laids, 28c to 30c; storage, 25c to 26c. On the Montreal market new laids are quoted 30c to 32c, and the general price through the country is 24c to 25c.

Poultry is quoted here as follows: Chickens, live, 11c to 13c; dressed, 15c to 18c; fowl, live, 10c to 11c; dressed, 13c to 15c; ducks, 16c to 18c; dressed, 18c to 17c; turkeys, 13c to 15c; dressed, 20c to 22c.

POTATOES AND BEANS

The potato market still presents the same colorless condition. Ontario potatoes are quoted in car lots at 45c a bag, while at Montreal there is a local demand for car lots at 55c a bag.

Beans are quoted $3 to $3.10 for primes and $3.10 to $3.20 for hand picked. The Montreal bean market quotes three-pound pickers at $3.65 to $3.75, as compared with $2.40 at the beginning of the season.

DAIRY PRODUCE

The butter market continues to gain in strength. Dealers are holding September creamery at 34½c to 35c and higher prices are being paid for smaller lots. Dairy butter is quoted at Montreal at 29c to 30c for finest Western and 27c to 28c for best Manitoba. Stocks on hand at Montreal [illegible] 23,615 packages as compared with the same date last year. Hence the strong undertone of the market. The grocer price in Montreal is 40c for choicest.

A feature of the butter market on the other side of the line is the importation of butter from Denmark and Argentine, which has had a weakening influence on the market.

Canadian cheese in London is realizing the highest prices ever paid. Practically none is now owned on this side of the water. The effect of high prices is in evidence in the early activity in cheese making, some factories in Western Ontario already turning out fodder cheese.

LIVE STOCK

Feeders evidently are not satisfied with quotations that have prevailed on live stock the last few weeks. Last week we reported the market firming on account of very small receipts. The same condition still continues and quotations at the close of the week were decidedly stronger than on the opening day. The scaling down of quotations on feeding stuffs, if it continues in future weeks as in the past week, will also be an encouragement to feeders to hold on to their stock until the market improves. Quotations average about as follows:

Shipping steers, $7.75 to $8; handy choice steers, $7.40 to $7.75; butcher steers, com. to good, $6.25 to $7.40; choice cows, $6.75 to $6.40; com. to good, $4.50 to $5.75; butcher bulls, $4.50 to $6.00; feeders, $6 to $6.50; stockers, $4.75 to $6.25; canners and cutters, $2.90 to $4.75.

Choice milch cows are in fair demand at $75 to $95; com. and med., $40 to $60; springers, $60 to $95. Calves ranged from $4.25 to $11.

Light lambs are in even greater demand than last week at $9 to $10.65; medium weight, $8 to $8.75; heavy, $7.50 to $8 and cull lambs, $6.50 to $7. Light ewes go at $6.75 to $7.50; heavy sheep and bucks, $5 to $6; culls, $3 to $4.25.

Hogs are looking up, packers now quoting $7.55 to $7.65 f.o.b. country points.

OUR WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

The condition of the country roads is having its effect on the amount of produce being brought into the city. Eggs and pork were fairly plentiful, but beef and butter were scarce on the local market.

The quotations for this week are as follows:

Grains, May.

Wheat, per bushel	$1.30
Barley	70c. to 80c.
Oats	60c.
Peas	$2.15
Flour, cwt.	$4.00
Shorts, ton	$29.00
Bran	$28.00
Baled hay	$20.00 to $22.00
Loose hay	$24.00
Straw	$13.00

Wheat is king—always was and always will be. The intelligent study of its rise and fall interests farmers everywhere. The world's supply and demand will always have an indirect bearing on the local market, therefore the following facts should be of interest:

The export of wheat from New Zealand has been prohibited until further notice. The shortage in the coming crop will be greater than in the past season. This means a continued market for wheat and flour from Canada.

Owing to the tremendous rise in Chile of price of flour and wheat, the government has announced that both products may be imported free of duty—another market for Canada.

On the other hand, if the allies succeed in opening up the Dardanelles, the imports of Russian wheat will be on an unprecedented scale, and before they begin to fall off the exports of wheat from India will begin on an enormous scale. Trade will receive a great impetus.

Dairy and Poultry.

Butter, dairy, per lb.	$ .30 to $ .35
Butter, creamery, per lb.	.30
Eggs, new laid, doz.	.28 to .30

Potatoes, per bag	.65 to 75c.
Onions, per bag	$1.25
Onions, white pickling, qt.	15 to 18c
White beans, lb.	7c
Celery, per head	5c
Carrots, bag	50 to 60c
Turnips, bag	50c
Parsnips, bag	75c
Beets, peck	20c

With potatoes near 60 cents a bushel, ten cents worth—or ten pounds—will give a little more actual nourishment than two one-pound loaves of bread at 5 cents each. The ordinary household, therefore, may find it advantageous to eat more potatoes and less bread.

Meats.

Bacon, per lb.	23 to 28c
Ham	26c
Pork	11 to 12c

ALLIES' FORWARD MOVEMENT BEGINS

BRITISH ARE FOLLOWING UP THEIR VICTORY

BRITISH TROOPS HAVE ADVANCED AFTER CAPTURING FOE'S TRENCHES

Khaki-clad Lads Win a Mile and One-half of German Trenches at Neuve Chappelle and Then Press Their Advantage Beyond That Village With the German Artillery Retiring Before Them.

BEGINNING OF THE SPRING ONSLAUGHT

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PARIS, 3:00 p.m. Official, March 11.—The War Office to-day emphasized the importance of the capture by the British troops yesterday of one and a half miles of trenches in Neuve Chappelle, Belgium, from the Germans, in a series of brilliant assaults. The British have pushed this advantage to-day about a mile and a quarter beyond the village with the German artillery retiring after firing a few shots. It is believed this is the beginning of the Allies' spring forward movement.

INDIANS ADVANCED OVER TWO MILES.

LONDON, March 11.—The Fourth Indian corps is specially commended by the War Office in an official statement to-day.

The Indians gained 4,000 yards in yesterday's fighting, taking positions and trenches.

The location of this advance was not given. It was assumed, however, that it occurred in the fighting north of La Bassee, where the British captured the village of Neuve Chappelle and made progress toward Aubers.

A GERMAN CLAIM.

BERLIN, via wireless, March 11.—British aviators hurled three bombs in the streets of Menin, twelve miles north of Lille, the War Office claims. One bomb exploded, killing seven Belgian civilians and wounding ten. War officials claim successes on the Eastern and the Western frontiers.

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 11.—It is understood that the Neutrality Board has recommended that the German cruiser Eitel Friederich be given an opportunity to make herself seaworthy in a United States port, if her commander desires it.

CHANNEL TRAFFIC IS NOW NORMAL.

PARIS, March 10.—For the information of travellers it is stated to-night that the English Channel packet boats are plying regularly between France and England and will continue to do so until further notice.

POTATO TICKETS ISSUED IN GERMANY.

BERLIN, via London, March 10.—The suburban town of Wilmersdorf has voted to issue potato tickets, similar to the bread tickets recently introduced in all cities in Germany. Wilmersdorf, which is the first town to adopt this method for conserving the potato supply, will allow twenty-two pounds per capita weekly.

NAVAL REPRISALS.

LONDON, Eng., March 11.—Great Britain's plan to give effect to the naval reprisal measures against Germany, to be embodied in an order in-council, was signed to-day by King George. Details of the plans have not yet been made public, but an order will be gazetted shortly.

HAVE SAVED WARSAW.

PARIS, France, March 11.—By two weeks of violent attacks in the Champaign region, the French troops have lifted the pressure upon the Russians who retreated into Poland and have saved Warsaw.

The War Office made this claim to-day in explanation of the recent onslaught against the German positions in Champaign. The explanation was made in the form of an official eye witness' statement. It confirmed the claim made by the German General Staff yesterday and cabled here from London that the object of the vigorous offensive around Perthes, which puzzled military critics, was the relief of the Slavs who retired, from the Mazurian Lakes.

The eye witness, however, denied the Berlin claims that the French had lost 45,000 in the Champaign fighting. It was admitted that the French losses were heavy, but the War Office said that they were small compared to the damage inflicted upon the German troops and the effect upon the campaign in far-away Poland.

Working in conjunction with the Russian General Staff, the French planned a coup that would keep the Germans in France so busily engaged that they could not send reinforcements to Von Hindenburg so he could complete his victory over the Russians. The French suddenly began storming the German trenches in the Champaign. Day and night the attacks continued for two weeks.

The coup has worked out as planned, according to the eye witness' story to-day. The Germans have been compelled to bring up heavy reinforcements in the Champaign region. They have been unable to spare a single soldier for the Poland campaign, and Von Hindenburg has begged in vain for reinforcements.

Furthermore, the French have made important gains in the Champaign region, particularly near Beausejour.

A German fort which they captured in this vicinity is still held, despite unending attacks by the enemy.

Major Higginbotham Dead in England

TORONTO, March 11—Word was received here to-day that Major Geo. M. Higginbotham of Toronto is dead, at the Shorncliffe Hospital, England. He went with the first contingent from the Queen's Own Rifles, Toronto, and was invalided from the trenches in France with appendicitis. He was operated on by Col. Dr. Armour and his condition was reported at first as satisfactory. He served in the North West rebellion, and was a member of a Victorian Order.

"There's a dear little plant that grows in our isle;
'Twas Saint Patrick himself sure that set it;
And the sun on his labour with pleasure did smile,
And with dew from his eye often wet it.

It shines thro' the bog, thro' the crahs and the mireland,
And he called it the dear little shamrock of Ireland,
The dear little, sweet little Shamrock of Ireland."

The Ladies' Aid of St. Peter's have organized for a street sale of shamrocks on Saturday, 13th instant, the proceeds of the sale to be in aid of St. Vincent's Orphanage. 1d.

IS USING WIRELESS

New York Report Says a Secret Station is in Regular Communication With the British Vessels

CANNOT FIND PLANT

NEW YORK, March 11.— British cruisers patrolling the Atlantic seaboard have in all probability already been advised that the German converted liner Eitel Friedrich is at Norfolk, and this despite the Government's earnest endeavour to prevent the unneutral use of the wireless.

It became known to-day that for a month the Government wireless inspectors have been ceaselessly searching for a mysterious secret wireless station, believed to be located in or about New York, and which is regularly every night in communicaiton with the British vessels off the shore.

Its signature is "C.N." Long code messages are exchanged every night with cruisers. The use of such wireless plant is in direct violation of neutrality. But the station cannot be located. It is a high powered plant, according to those who have listened to it sending, and apparently has splendid equipment.

Wireless experts say such a station might easily be located on top of a six story building with its antennae fairly well concealed, and in such a case might defy detection indefinitely.

BAD FIRE IN MONTREAL

Court House Buildings in a Blaze This Afternoon

Special Wire to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, P.Q., March 11—At 2.15 to-day a fire was raging in the Court House buildings here. A general alarm for the Fire Department was sounded. The damage is certainly serious, but the extent has not yet been determined.

Police Court

Arthur William Till introduced a specialty of his own into the show at the Opera House last night without any extra charge in admission, but he paid for his part in the entertainment when he faced a charge in police court this morning of creating a disturbance in a public place and assaulting two officers of the law, Detectives Newhall and Meagher. It cost him $13.75 to be paid forthwith and in default of payment thirty days in jail.

The trouble arose when Till fell asleep in his seat about two rows from the front of the Opera House. A stench was noticeable in his vicinity and an usher tried to keep him awake. Mr. Turner took a turn and had to call the officers to have the disturber taken out. He used vile language and assaulted the detectives, Meagher receiving a jolt on the nose which drew the blood.

John Newell, who was sitting across the aisle from Till incited the audience, asking, "What do you mean by abusing the prisoner?" and turning to three commercial men asked if they were going to stand for it. He was arrested when he came out after the show and appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning, too. He hissed the officers according to the detectives.

Placed in the witness box in his own defence he positively denied hissing and said he did not have anything to say. In fact he did not hear any hissing.

"Are you sure you are the man who was there?" remarked His Worship.

Newall was fined $5.00.

"I will pay this under protest," came from Newall

"Oh I do not expect you to be happy over it," returned the Magistrate. "The management was looking after your comfort in ejecting this man, as well as that of the other patrons. If this was allowed to continue it would soon be that no one would go there."

FIRST DRAFT OF NEW BATTERY LEAVES TO-MORROW

Twenty Artillerymen in Charge of Acting Sergeant Hetherington Are Off for Kingston in the Morning

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

Peterborough's first draft of recruits for the 26th Overseas Battery will leave on the 8.10 G.T.R. train to-morrow morning for Kingston, where the battery is to be mobilized. The squad going to-morrow will consist of twenty men, four others who have been accepted not being included in the quota. Acting Sergt. Geo. Hetherington will be in charge and the men will assemble at the station, there being no parade from the armouries.

The following men will leave for Kingston to-morrow:

John E. Rich, Canadian, age 21.
W. A. Murphy, English, age 36, 491 Elm St.
R. C. Chittick, Canadian, age 19.
C. Watkins, English, age 20, 101 Rubidge St.
Geo. Wm. Thorne, English, age 26.
Jesse Airries, Canadian, McDonnell St., Peterborough.
Roy Castle, Canadian, aged 23.
Thos. Roache, Irish, age 28.
Albert Milliken, Canadian, aged 33.
Thos. Record, Canadian, age 24.
E. E. Munden, English, age 27.
Herb. Wilson, English, age 26.
P. Josey, English, age 20.
John Hogan, English, age 25.
H. Gamble, Irish, age 27.
Geo. Hethgrington, Canadian, age 34.
Fred Revoy, Canadian, age 21.
John Victor, English, age 20.
Albert Mason, English, age 19.
T. H Rice, Canadian, aged 26, Omemee, Ont.

Recruiting for the battery will be continued until further notice and the men will be sent down to Kingston in small squads until orders are received to stop recruiting. There is evidently no lack of recruits in Peterborough, as Major Hall has already received forty-four applications. Twenty-four have been sworn in, some have been rejected as medically unfit, and a number of others have not yet been examined. The battery recruits seem happy over the fact that they are getting away so soon after enlistment.

The 39th Battalion's route march this morning was up to the waterworks dam, going by the Douro side and returning on the Smith side of the river. Afterwards company drill was the order of the day and the smart marching of the men was very favourably commented on by some of the 21st Battalion home on ... from Kingston.

Sergt. F. Hart of the 57th detachment of the 39th Battalion, who has been taking a course in armouries work in the Ordinance Department, Kingston, will complete his course at Quebec. He leaves for the east to-morrow after a short visit at his home here.

Corp. Henry Warde, the efficient orderly room clerk of the 39th Battalion was presented with a safety razor by his former comrades in the accounting department of the C.G.E. yesterday.

WARNING TO SOLDIERS

Examiner Special:

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., March 11—Private Frank Hartley, who shot and killed Private Teddy Burgoyne, while they were both on guard at the Welland Canal, was to-day sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment in the penitentiary for manslaughter. In sentencing the prisoner Mr. Justice Sutherland said the military authorities should take drastic measures with soldiers who pointed rifles at each other, even though only in a joking way.

Judges Have Been Secured

For Next Annual Show of Peterborough Poultry Association

The regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough Poultry Association was held last evening in the Labour Hall. Mr. Joseph Kelly, the newly elected president, was in the chair. For a number of years Mr. Kelly has held the position of secretary-treasurer of the association, during which time the association has made substantial progress. Mr. Marshall, of Brantford, and Mr. C. H. Wilson, of Brockville, have been secured as judges for the next annual show. A number of important items of business were disposed of.

Good Year For The Man Who Intends To Build

In almost every town and city of the country, and especially in the United States, there are united efforts to combat the feeling that the present year will find little work offering. There are civic movements being carried on to further the idea of business as usual, and the approaching months will provide the answer to their present missionary work. It is claimed that the price of labour and materials are all in favour of the builder this year. Whether they are true from a local standpoint is another question, but Peterborough should not be an exception. It is believed that farmers would find this year especially advantageous to them for construction work. Some influential body of citizens could assist in a large measure to hold the war year at or near the level of recent years. It is a matter that concerns not only those who want to build, but also the labourers and merchants.

AN INVESTIGATION WILL BE HELD

Sinking of the United States Vessel William P. Fry by the German Auxiliary Cruiser Eitel Friederich Has Created an Unprecedented Situation Across the Border

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, March 11.—A complete and searching inquiry into all facts concerning the sinking of the American ship William P. Fry by the German auxiliary cruiser Eitel Friederich, now interned at Newport News, was ordered by President Wilson to-day. In ordering the enquiry President Wilson said: "A most searching inquiry will be made, and whatever action is taken will be based upon the result of that inquiry." The President and Secretary of State Bryan were co-operating in the investigation.

The Indians took more than seven hundred prisoners, the War Office announced.

The British aviators yesterday destroyed an important railway junction held by the Germans at Menin and Courtrai, north of Lille.

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 11—President Wilson ... all engagements for the next three weeks in order to assume personal charge of the international situation. He will receive no political callers of any sort, and will only se the officials who are in touch with the various problems that affect America's foreign policy.

This action on the President's part is admitted to be due directly to the sinking of the American sailing vessel, Wm. P. Fry, by the armed auxillary German cruiser Eitel Freiderich. The sinking of this vessel flying the American flag has created an unprecedented situation, and the President believes the time has come when it is necessary for him to be personally on the bridge in charge of the ship of state.

There is no fear in any branch of the Government that the singing of the Fry will be followed by any warlike measures on the part of the United States. But the President intends to insist on the rights of the United States being respected.

An enquiry has already been set on foot to fix the complete responsibility. It is already certain that representations will be made to Germany demanding that she disavow the action of the captain of the Eitel. Government officials and members of the diplomatic corps believe that Germany will not only do so, but that she will accept the financial responsibility for the sinking of the Fry, without any real haggling.

This inquiry began to-day at Norfolk. It will be pushed to completion immediately. If facts are as shown by the preliminary statement of the captain of the Fry, then the United States will insist on reparation which it is generally agreed will be forthcoming.

RELEASE THE PRISONERS.

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 11.—It is stated to-day that all prisoners remaining on the Eitel Friederich will be released to-day under instructions from the Labour Department which places them in the category of ship-wrecked immigrants. No steps have yet been taken to interview the cruiser. Instructions are awaited from the Admiralty at Berlin. The commander and crew are keen to take another chance, though three of the allied warships are waiting off Newport News for the Eitel Friederich.

CHAIRS AND SOFAS.

Have your chairs and sofas repaired, refinished and recovered now. The sale offers tempting price inducements, and to keep the workmen busy special prices prevail. DEBENTURE DEMAND JUSTIFIED.

It is a pleasure to hand over money to an agent or employee, if we have confidence that it will be wisely expended; or that money has been so wisely and prudently expended as to justify another demand. The reasons advanced by the Utilities Commission to justify their demand upon the Council for the issue of $80,000 of debentures, as set forth in another column, are good reading for more than one reason. In the first place the Utilities Commission takes the public, whose servant it is, into its confidence; treats the public as responsible men who should be reasoned with and confided in, and not as children who must do as they are told without question. In the second place the Utilities Commission tells the people what they seldom hear, in an intelligent and open way—how their money has been spent; shows them what value has been received; shows them that inadequate authority to finance improvements has resulted in obligations that have to be met by legitimate, orderly, regular means, and not by make-shift expedients. It is shown that the expenditure liberally and wisely made has been forced by the growth of the city, and the addition of new service districts. While increased expenditure has been necessitated by increased demand, it is a pleasure to note that the demand arose from a public appreciation of a sensible reduction of rates that brings the water rates of Peterborough among the lowest in the province. If the Utilities Commission can bring the Hydro system to the same state of efficiency and reasonableness of service, and with as reasonable financial outlay as it has imparted to the waterworks system, it will doubly justify its existence and the public confidence it has earned.

DIRECT TAXATION A PENALTY

For the past fifty years, the idea has prevailed that the privilege of levying and paying direct taxation was a power, and privilege of the municipalities exclusively. The idea prevailed that it was the exclusive privilege of municipalities to levy direct taxation and spend the resulting money; that no other power had a right except as a constitutional figment to levy or collect direct taxation on municipalities. This contention has always been a practically recognized thing. But in this year of grace, all tradition, all precedent have been disregarded, and Ontario has been treatd to the distinction of direct municipal taxation for provincial purposes for the first time in its history. This is excused on the claim that this direct municipal taxation was made necessary by provincial expenditure in the promotion of the war. This is not the case.

The Government's levy of one mill on the dollar, on all the taxable property in the province, will raise, it is estimated, between one and a half and two millions of dollars. How much does the Province of Ontario intend to contribute directly to helping on the war? Up to the end of the year the expenditure on this account has been only $494,000; whereas the direct taxation will yield some two millions, a million and a half more than the province has already spent, and a million more than she will be called upon to spend. It is fair to say the direct taxation the Government is levying on the municipalities is not necessary for war purposes; is the result of wasteful expenditure of public money. A few figures will show this—show how expenditure has exceeded a constantly growing income.

In 1904 the total income of Ontario was $6,128,368, and the actual expenditure (outside of Hydro and Railway) was $5,268,453, leaving a surplus of receipts over expenditure of $859,915.

Ten years later, in 1914, the actual income of the province had increased to $19,747,796, or 76 per cent.; but at the same time the actual expenditure (excluding Hydro and T.N.O.) had grown to $14,942,239, or an increase of 186 per cent., leaving a deficit of $4,204,471, or a deficit nearly as large as the total expenditure of the province ten years previously. In addition to that, the public debt of the province, which stood at $11,709,651 in 1904, had ten years later (in 1914), grown to the enormous figures $40,405,000, or an increase of 245 per cent.

Of the figures contrasted here those of 1904 are the figures of the last year of Liberal administration, and it will be observed that their Conservative successors were loyal to their party traditions and bettered the "extravagance" of expenditure, with which the Grits had been charged.

But they not only beat the record of the Liberals in spending public money, but they even beat their own record.

A comparison may be made of the finances of the province for the past five years. In 1910 the Conservative Government had had control of the finances for five years. At that time, in 1910, the actual receipts of the province were $9,231,601. In 1914 the receipts had increased to $10,747,768, or sixteen per cent. In 1910 the Government lived pretty close to income. The expenditures, not including Hydro and Provincial Railway, in that year totalling $9,676,074, or $444,473 in excess of income. But look at the financial plunging in the next four years. The expenditure in 1910 was $444,473 in excess of income, but in the next four years the expenditure was four millions—$4,204,471 in excess to income. In 1910, as stated, the actual expenditures, not including Hydro and Provincial Railway, were $9,676,074, and in 1914 this same class of expenditures had grown to $14,942,239, and in the same period the debt of the province had been practically doubled—the public debt of Ontario, in 1910, amounted to $22,963,430. In four years, or in 1914, it had increased to $40,405,000.

We are told that Ontario's contribution to the war makes direct taxation necessary. These figures show that it was not, and is not necessary, except as the result of the waste of the money of the province. In the past ten years the provincial income has increased seventyfive per cent., or from 6 millions odd to 10 millions odd. In the same time the expenditure of the province has increased 186 per cent., or from 5¼ millions to nearly 15 millions, with, at the same time an increase in the public debt of two hundred and forty-five per cent.

Now it is fair to argue that, if the Government had more closely guaged expenditure according to income, there would not have been any necessity of levying a special rate of one mill on the dollar on every ratepayer, great and small, in the province for "war expenses."

We, in the municipalities, we, in Peterborough, gladly consent to impose a mill on the dollar to meet our contributions to the war. We have taxed ourselves for the patriotic fund $10,000, and we have given $40,000 more out of our own pockets, and the County of Peterborough taxes itself $5,000 a year for patriotic purposes. We do all this willingly because we had no other way of contributing, as we are anxious and willing to do. But we meet with bad grace the demand of the Government that we must, in addition, pay an extra mill on the dollar to meet the contribution of the province which might have been met without superfluously "soaking" the municipalities, if the province had not wasted its substance, and our substance in "riotous living"—prodigal expenditure of the public income in excess of receipts, and in excess of the legitimate needs of the province. The extra mill on the dollar levied by the Province of Ontario, is not a necessity of war expenditure, it is a penalty imposed upon the municipalities for wasteful extravagance of provincial administration; and no sophistry can make it anything else.

SEW SEAMY SOCKS FOR SOLDIERS.

There has been sent to The Star a pair of woolen socks given out to the soldiers at Guelph. We do not hesitate to say that they are unfit for use.

To begin with, they are not woolen, but are partly cotton, although that may be dismissed as a minor objection. The wool used in these socks had never been properly cleaned, and scattered through the yarn are small particles of burrs which would torment the wearer. The worst fault, however, is that the socks, which are machine made, have the toe piece so crudely joined to the rest of the sock that a thick, hard ridge is formed, running over and under the toes of the wearer. This, as a correspondent tells us, and as we can well believe, almost cuts the toes off the man who wears them. This toe piece is joined to the foot of the sock by the simple method of turning both wrong side out, laying one edge on top of the other, and sewing them together by machine with red yarn. When the sock is turned right way out it looks very well, but inside a double ridge over and around the wearer's toes. One can imagine the discomforts of marching with such socks on one's feet.

Are socks ever made in this crude way except on army contracts? We have never seen them put together like that. The soldier's feet need to be well cared for, but the man who would try to march with his toes being cut off by a heavy ridge in his socks would not go very far.—Toronto Star.

BRAVE BELGIUM.

The statement of the Belgian press bureau that the Belgian army, despite all it has been through, is still 250,000 strong, is startling enough, and is another evidence of the remarkable courage of King Albert's suffering people. To keep this army at full strength must have necessitated constant recruiting, and that this recruiting has been successful under such trying conditions speaks volumes for the hardihood of the people. The Belgians have shown themselves to be a nation that does not know defeat. They took up the fight for honour's sake, when it would have been easier for them and more in their own interests to have submitted to the violation of their territory and neutrality, and with nearly all of their little country in possession of the Germans, they are still fighting with the same cheerful courage they displayed before Liege. The two little allies, Belgium and Serbia, have shown that strength is not always necessary for the winning of victories, but that undying bravery counts for more.—Ottawa Free Press.

This is a War For Justice Not One of Race Antagonisms

It ought never to be forgotten that we are fighting in this war not against a race, but against wrong ideas and systems of government. A writer in the London Times points out that many of those in Ontario who bear German names are people whom we used to call Pennsylvania Dutch. They were the United Empire Loyalists; they are in Canada to-day because they did not agree with the Americans who separated from England at the time of the Revolution. The London Times writer says:

"In Berlin, Waterloo, Preston, Hanover, Zurich, and other German settlements in Ontario the contributions to patriotic funds have been as generous as in the British communities. Many of these Germans, however, are of Pennsylvanian extraction. In 1685 their forefathers were driven out of the German Palatinate by Louis XIV. of France. They came as refugees to England, and for two or three years were supported in Ulster. In 1688 they were sent out to Pennsylvania by the British Government and allotted free land, which they occupied for a century. They were loyal to Great Britain during the war of the Revolution, and at the peace of 1783 refused to accept the Republic, and came to Canada. Four or five thousand settled in Lunenburg, in Nova Scotia, while other groups established themselves in Welland and Waterloo, and other portions of Upper Canada. It is estimated that their descendants constitute two-thirds of the German population of Ontario. For 230 years they have had a history of association with Great Britain. There is no more thrifty, wholesome, and efficient element in the population of Canada."

This indicates that we must apply an entirely different standard to those persons who bear German names in England and those who bear German names in Canada. England, like Germany, is an old and overcrowded country, and those who change their residence from one European country to another become subject to suspicion in time of war. But Canada is a new country, with an area as large as Europe, and a population only about as large as that of Belgium. The inference, then, is that any European who comes to Canada does so simply to avail himself of those larger opportunities which a new country affords, and not with any sinister purpose. Especially does the more favourable presumption hold good when a person bearing a German name is the descendant of some German who came to Canada a hundred years ago, when there was no thought of enmity between Great Britain and Germany. He may be a member of a family of Pennsylvania Dutch—United Empire Loyalists. He may be a descendant of some German who fought under Blucher and came to the aid of Wellington at Waterloo. The only safe and just rule is to judge men by their conduct, not by their names.—Star.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

ORILLIA ARE CHAMPIONS OF INTERMEDIATE SERIES

WIARTON, March 10.—In one of the most exciting hockey matches of the season for soft ice Wiarton defeated Orillia by a score of 3 to 1. The battle was a gritty one, but Orillia seemed to play lucky. This gives Orillia the intermediate championship, with a score on the round of 6 to 4.

The line-up:

Referee—Dr. Gilllan, Uxbridge.

OTTAWA HAVE FOUR GOALS ON THE WANDERERS

OTTAWA, March 10 — Outplaying their opponents from start to finish, the Ottawas gained a lead of four goals over Wanderers at the local arena to-night in the first of the home and home games to decide the championship of the N.H.A. The score at the finish of 60 minutes' gruelling hockey was 4 to 0 for the home team. Wanderers were never dangerous, and it was only by laying in close to the nets and either tripping or bodying the Senators that they were able to hold the score reasonably low. The ice was hard and fast when the teams started out, and while it was so the Ottawas skated the Wanderers off their feet. After the second period it grew slushy, and it was almost impossible to play good hockey; but while Wanderers tired quickly and appeared lost on the slushy surface, the Ottawas stood the pace far better, and were going strongly at the finish. Play grew very rough and ill-feeling cropped up [illegible] per Smeaton and Dr. Wood handled the game splendidly.

Seven thousand people were in attendance and they went nearly frantic as the Ottawas ran in the goals. Darragh scored the last shot of the match on a golfer's drive from centre which hopped along the ice and landed in the net before McCarthy could catch his eye on it. The Ottawas changed their tactics completely and outgeneraled the Wanderers, though they were crippled in the third period by injuries to Duford and Gerard, who fell victims to wild slashing and chopping by Ulrich. Art Ross again starred against his former teammates, scoring the first goal on an end-to-end rush.

The line-up:

Referee—Dr. Wood, Toronto. Judge of play—Cooper Smeaton, Montreal.

LACROSSE SPIRIT AGAIN DISPLAYED

New Interest Will Be Awakened and Club Reorganized for Coming Summer

It may be a little early to broach lacrosse, but the spring equinoctial rains are almost due and from last year's experience the expected torrents suggest a few observations concerning the prospects of the game here this year.

Last summer a few of the old players undertook to revive lacrosse in the face of manifest difficulties. Curley Blount's "phenoms" were in our midst and added to that diverting interest was the fact that the game had been dormant for years. Another deterrent to success materialized in the games having to be played in the evenings. This was necessitated to accommodate the other teams in the local district who could not get their men away in the afternoons. And the final straw was Jupiter Pluvius, who paid particular attention to the Peterborough team. It rained every day a game was played here, and the hoodoo followed when Tweed came here for a holiday attraction. An attempt to hold a moonlight excursion was likewise thoroughly dampened, and the event was cancelled. These are cited only as principal difficulties.

On the other hand there were a few encouragements. A number of citizens assisted materially to start the ball rolling by fairly generous donations. The owners of Riverside Park lent every support by throwing open their grounds after the players had been chased from Central Park, and above that permitted the use of the grounds for games even when they saw the gates were not sufficient to pay initial expenses. Then, too, former players, some of them at any rate sacrificed their time and efforts in an endeavour to resuscitate what is claimed to be the national pastime.

Of the mistakes made by the management the most dissipating was the effort to interest boys. This required the purchase of junior sticks, and although the idea was a laudable one and in accordance with the general attempt to revive the game, it did not meet with substantial results. Mr. George Robertson was practically the only member of the club who met with any success in that direction.

It is now realized that it would have been better to have centred everything upon the senior team, and let the interest of the boys grow naturally without any forcing.

At last night's meeting in the Y. M. C. A. it was felt that whatever was accomplished last year should not be wasted. It was decided to spend the next two weeks in stirring up enthusiasm. A complete reorganization will be made. The new executive will have less to contend with and should meet with material success.

Curling Club Annual Next Monday Night

The annual meeting of the Curling Club has been called for Monday night next, at the rink. The usual business will be taken up, the election of officers, reception of reports, and the presentation of prizes. There should be a large attendance. The club has practically completed a successful season, and the annual meeting usually provides the final curtain.

WILL ENDEAVOUR TO FINISH THE GAMES

The Curling Club officers are anxious to wind up the inter-rink games as soon as possible and if the weather is favourable to-night they will be continued. The ice was not in very good condition this morning, but even a slight inclination to colder winds should enable the concluding games to be played.

WILL BUY THE BRANTFORD CLUB

BRANTFORD, March 10.—There is a movement on foot here among professional business and industrial leaders to organize a chartered company to take over the Brantford Canadian League Baseball Club, and to give Brantford the best possible, not only in baseball but in other summer amusements, with activities possibly stretching over the entire year. The men behind the movement have secured an option on the local franchise from the present owners, and are now at work selling stock in the new company at $25 per share. There is considerable demand and it is expected that the amount aimed at will be secured without trouble. The company, which will secure the charter will be known as the Brantford Baseball Amusement Company.

The present backers would retain a minority interest.

BASEBALL

Knut Belting, pitcher of the Peterborough Ball Club, has received the following letter. It is signed by B. W. Wyman, but its dollars to doughnuts "Mack" McNeal knows something about it:

At a meeting of shareholders for the Chicago Federal League this evening here at Buffalo, I was advised to write to you in regard to your joining the Chicago Federal ranks. Will give you $1500 bonus, providing you sign our bonus for three years. If satisfactory let me know at once. This is positively the top figure and I am sure ought to be quite satisfactory. You understand that if our club should be the pennant winner you can count on a good extra sum. Hoping to hear from you at once for instruction.

HOCKEY

CHALLENGE ACCEPTED.

The Arrows will accept the challenge that appeared in last night's issue. The game to be played this evening between the hours of ten and eleven o'clock.

Excelsiors and Unknowns Were Winning Teams

The basketball enthusiasts were given their money's worth last night in two rattling good games of ball. In the first game between De Laval and Unknowns, both teams were crippled, one man on each team being out on account of injuries, and another from each being out of town. This made substitutes necessary and kept both teams from producing their best ball. For the first half the Unknowns had things pretty much their own way, scoring 15 points to their opponents' four. In the second half, however, De Laval quintette got steam up and went right after the game, but the lead was too great to overcome. Stan Taylor was pretty much the whole thing when it came to scoring. He got 14 out of the 16 points made by his team, Peter Spratt scoring the other. This Mr. Spratt by the way, is developing into some basketball player. This is his first season at the game, but he certainly has the ear marks. His first appearance was when he tried out with the Cressman team but got his release. But he is sure making good now. Emmerson was another new man out last night for his first time this year, but by the form he displayed it was not his first appearance in the game. This quintette with their regular line-up on the floor will still make the best of them hustle.

The Unknowns lived up to their name, for last night with their patched line-up, they stuck right together, all three forward men taking their share in the scoring, while the backs played a steady defensive game. Score, Unknowns 25, De Laval 16. Line-ups:

Unknowns—Robertson, B. Mulhern, Smyth Brown, H. Mulhern.

De Laval—Dunsford, Taylor, Downing, Spratt, Emmerson.

Referee, Dobbin; timer, Lewis; scorer, Stuart.

The Cressman-Excelsiors game was a scorcher from start to finish. The teams are pretty evenly matched, so much so that it was anybody's game most of the time. In the first half the Excelsiors took the lead, the half ending 23-13 in favour of the Excelsior boys. But in the second half the "yellow sox" got the big end of the score, but not quite enough to pull down their opponents' lead. The teams were so evenly matched it would be hard to pick out any stars. Every man on the Cressman team had a share in the scoring, while every man but one on the Excelsiors succeeded in getting the pill through.

The game was hard and fast all the way through, the kind that keeps the spectators on edge. Score, Excelsiors 30, Cressman's 27. Line-ups:

Cressman's—Bartlett, F. Cressman, Raynor, Carlyle, Palmer.

Excelsiors—Long, Knapman, Stuart, Darling, Austin.

Referee, Carson; scorer, Dobbin; timer, Lewis.

ARRANGING FOR THE WADDELL-CABOR GAMES

The curlers were trying this morning to arrange games with Toronto Victorias in order to play off for the Waddell-Capon trophy. It was felt that the weather was holding slightly and that the ice might be hard enough for games this evening. There is some possibility of the Vics coming down [illegible] their intention of telephoning, as both clubs desire to meet this season if possible. This afternoon it was learned that the idea had been dropped.

LADIES' CURLING

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Curling Club will be held Saturday afternoon, March 13th, at four o'clock in their club room at the rink. Afternoon tea will be served. All members are asked to be present.

The final game for the Vice-President's prize, was played Wednesday morning, Mrs. Coulthard's rink being the winners.

Roberison and Bescher of "Cards"

MARLIN, Texas, March 10 — Although John McGraw refused to commit himself pertaining to the men to be traded to St. Louis for W. D. Perritt, the pitcher, it was reported here to-day that "Bob" Bescher and "Dave" Robertson, both outfielders, [illegible] to the Cardinals in the deal. McGraw said that the men in the trade had been decided upon, but that he was not at liberty to name the players until the St. Louis club should come to terms with them.

Bescher came to the Giants last year form Cincinnati as part of the deal that sent Herzog to the Reds as manager. He was considered one of the best outfielders in the National League, but did not play up to his game with the Giants. Robertson is a youngster who has been nursed along by McGraw for several seasons. He showed exceptional batting prowess at the start of the year last season, but fell down when the race became close in August. He was originally a pitcher, but broke his arm playing football and has been unable to pitch since.

Bescher has remarked that he would not sign with the "Cards" excepting at an increase in salary over the amount contracted for with the Giants. He has openly declared that he did not care to play with St. Louis and says he will retire, or else jump to the "Feds" unless the Cardinals raise the ante appreciably.

MISTAKE IMPOSSIBLE.

German Excuse Regarding Hospital Ship Asturias Very Poor.

LONDON, March 11.—Replying to a question in the House of Commons yesterday as to whether there was any validity in Germany's excuse that the submarine which tried to torpedo the British hospital ship Asturias was unable to discern the distinctive marks on that vessel because of darkness, Dr. Thomas J. MacNamara, Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty, said:

"The master of the Asturias reports that it was at 5.15 p.m. on a clear day and light, leaving no possibility of the identity of the ship being mistaken."

The French Ministry of Marine announced on Feb. 2 that a German submarine on the day before had made an unsuccessful attempt to torpedo the British hospital ship Asturias, "thus violating the formal clause of The Hague convention of 1907, regarding the attacking of hospital vessels." The attack on the Asturias was made near the French seaport of Havre.

Split In Socialist Ranks.

LONDON, March 11.—The Berlin Vorwaerts, as quoted by the Copenhagen correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Co., says that dissension among the Socialists in Germany has led to a split in their party. On one side are the Socialists of the old school and in other the national reformists.

The Vorwaerts laments this schism, and says that German Liberals and Radicals regard it as a national calamity.

INCREASE IN POPULATION HAS BEEN ABOUT ONE HUNDRED AND THREE PER CENT

Since the Year 1902—This is One of the Reasons Advanced by the Peterborough Public Utilities Commission For Borrowing $80,000 by Debenture Issue—Extensions and Improvements

The reasons advanced by the Peterborough Public Utilities Commission why debentures for $80,000 should be issued by the Council, and for which special legislation has been secured, are enumerated in the following statement that was prepared for presentation to the Private Bills Committee of the Ontario Legislature. The Commission was represented in Toronto by Mr. T. F. Matthews, Chairman of the Commission.

The statement is as follows:

Expenditure exceeded debenture issue—

1909-13—on real estate, dam and machinery	$42,430.70
1902-13—on mains, hydrants, and services	38,153.28
Total	$80,583.98

It was found advisable to purchase additional land above the dam to provide against claims for damages to rights above and land below the dam, to provide a better tail race.

The bottom of the river was sounded and showed rock. When it was unwatered, the rock was found to be shale, and had to be taken out for several feet, adding to the expense of unwatering, excavation and construction.

A wing dam had also to be later constructed to prevent the washing away of the bank below the dam on the east side.

Pumping Unit.

The increasing demand on the This mill was some distance from the water mains, and the owners offered to rebuild it if they were given fire protection. The City Council asked that the fire protection be provided, and arrangements were made with the owners and the Council whereby sufficient revenue would be received to carry the annual capital charges of the extension, and the extension was made, but this helped to make the capital expenditure for the year exceed the borrowing limit by over $10,000.00.

Other Special Cases.

Other special cases were, extensions to three new factories, in 1912 and 1913, which helped to overrun the borrowing limit by $5,745.23, although in each case the proper amount of revenue was provided. The Council and Local Board of Health also asked for special consideration in some cases, owing to sanitary conditions, as in 1913, when both the Council and the Board asked that mains be laid on McDonnell street, west of Park Street, and on James Street, east of Mark Street.

Altogether, in the years 1902 to 1913 inclusive, the following sums were expended in extensions:

Laying mains and setting hydrants.	$139,659.21
Laying services	37,895.07
	$177,554.28
Proceeds of debentures issued for this work	$139,401.00
Excess of cost over debentures	38,153.28
Excess of cost over proceeds dam, etc.	42,430.70
	$80,583.98

This excess has ben carried partly by an overdraft in the bank and partly by using surplus revenue over operating expenses. The desire of the Commissioners and Council is that authority be procured to issue sufficient debentures to settle these accounts. If this is done provision will in the usual course be made to retire the debentures, and the business of the department be placed on a better basis.

Will Not Arise Again.

These circumstances will not again arise, as under The Municipal Act as it now stands, debentures can be issued with the approval of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board for the full cost of extensions, so long as the Board is shown that the extensions will bring in sufficient revenue to meet the annual payments in respect of the debt and the interest thereon.

The following information is interesting:

	1902	1914	Increase
Population. .	11,067	22,500	103%
Revenue	$23,864.58	$53,276.88	123%
Mains,	18.48 miles.	41.80 miles	126
Services,	1,150	4,132	259
Hydrant r'l,	$35.00	$27.50	D'c. 22

This tells us that during the time when the population of the city increased 103 per cent. the demand for water services increased 259 per cent. This increase in demand caused, no doubt, to some extent at least, by the fact that during this time the rates to consumers were three times reduced, and now the Peterborough water rates are among the lowest in the Province.

TRANSPORT IS ASTRAY

Artillery Spent First Day in Action at a Disadvantage, According to Story From the Front, But Supply Wagon Reached Destination Unharmed

WAGON UNDER FIRE

LONDON, [illegible] to the latest reliable news the Canadian artillery went into the firing line for the first time after being in at the last billet twelve days. The first day they moved into action they were under a disadvantage, having lost a transport wagon containing their rations. However, this turned up safely after twelve hours delay. The driver had lost his way and wandered all over the country. He was pulled up by the last line sentries when he was about to drive straight into the trenches. It was dark at the time, but German star lights were bursting all round; German shells also began buzzing round the unhappy transport drivers, who were quick to act. They whipped up their horses and reached the rear undamaged. Very soon after they managed to reach the Canadian artillery and gave them their long-delayed meal of bully beef and biscuit. The Canadian artillery on the way to the firing line passed through a lot of villages out of which the Germans had been driven. It was noticed that the buildings most hardily hit were the churches, many of which had been blown up and burned to the ground. Some churches were partially destroyed earlier by the British, as it was found that the enemy had mounted machine guns in the towers, but in every case the Germans had completed their destruction by setting fire to the place before leaving it.

Canada, it should be remembered, gets the first authentic news of any casualties among the contingent, and nothing in the least reliable is made known here concerning such for some time after the official intimation has been received at Ottawa.

DRAMATIC NEWS

MAE EDWARDS PLAYERS.

The Mae Edwards Players presented Charlie's Aunt to a large audience last evening, and true to this Company's announcements "it was a sure cure for the blues." Miss Edwards was delightful in the part of Kitty, while too much cannot be said of Wally Grayson, who played the title role. "Charlie's Aunt." Mr. Grayson is a very clever comedian, and has pleased Peterborough theatre goers, and added a great many admirers to his already long list. Tonight the Mae Edwards Players will present for the first time in this city "The Angel of the Regiment." Miss Edwards will be seen at her best as the "Angel," and if you are in sympathy with the times do not miss this wonderful military play. "The Angel of the Regiment" is just full of good clean comedy, the kind that real Canadians enjoy, wonderful climaxes and all in all one of the best plays of the week. The crowds are increasing every night at the Grand Opera House, which is a sure sign that the Mae Edwards Players have caught on and that before the week is over they will be playing to capacity business.

This Frees Your Skin From Hair or Fuzz

(Toilet Tips)

The method here suggested for the removal of superfluous hair is quick and certain and unless the growth is extremely stubborn, a single application does the work. Make a stiff paste with some powdered delatone and water; apply this to the hairy surface and after about 2 minutes rub it off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. To avoid disappointment, be sure your druggist sells you delatone.

TARIFF IS DISLOYAL

Liberal Leader, In Powerful Speech, Declares That Opposition Must Part Company With Government on Proposal to Strike at Britain in Hour of Her Extremity

AMENDMENT OFFERED

OTTAWA, March 11.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday afternoon denounced the tariff increase and special taxes imposed by the budget now under review.

The Liberal chief declared that it meant the impairment of the British preference. The increase in duties, he argued, would bring little to the public treasury, and was designed to benefit the privileged and protected class. Canada, he said, was attacking British trade by the new tariff in much the same way as Germany was seeking to destroy it by her circle of submarines. We really only traded with two nations—Great Britain and the United States—but in 1911 we had been forbidden to sell to the United States, and were now forbidden to buy from Britain.

"Britain is at war; Canada is at war," said Sir Wilfrid, in conclusion. "And when Britain is at war Canada goes to war to attempt to curtail the trade between Britain and Canada. That is not a Canadian idea. It is a German conception. We have been prepared since the outbreak of the war to go far with our friends on the other side of the House in these strenuous times. We were prepared to give up a good many of our own ideas in order to meet them and to have unanimity of opinion and action. But we are not prepared to go that far. That far we shall not go. Here we part company."

He then offered the following amendment:

"This House is ready to provide for the exigencies of the present situation and to vote all necessary ways and means to that end, but regrets that in the measure under consideration duties are imposed which must be oppressive upon the people whilst yielding little or no revenue; and that the said measure is practically objectionable in the fact that instead of favoring, it is placing extra barrier against Great Britain's trade with Canada at a moment when the Mother Country is under a war strain unparalleled in history."

Finance Minister White denied that the British preference had been impaired, but insisted that the British importer enjoyed a more favored position than ever before in the Canadian market. The financial embarrassment in which the Government found itself to-day was due, he said, primarily to the mad extravagance and the reckless railway legislation of the Laurier Government. Additional money had to be raised by taxation, or no more Canadian troops could be sent to the front. If the Liberals really favored prosecuting the war, they would not oppose the budget.

After reviewing the naval defence question, Mr. White suggested that Sir Wilfrid's zeal for the British preference was probably prompted by pangs of conscience. Two years ago the Liberals had opposed aiding the Empire upon the ground that the Government had no mandate. Would they say now that the Government had no mandate to bring down the budget before the House. If so the Government was ready at any moment to get a mandate from the people.

Dr. Michael Clarke (Lib., Red Deer) followed and Donald Sutherland (Con., S. Oxford) adjourned the debate. A division on the amendment to the budget proposals will take place next Tuesday.

MOTOR TAX DISCUSSED

Many Members Favour License Reciprocity With U. S.

TORONTO, March 11.—The interests of Ontario motorists obtained some attention in the Legislature yesterday and the matters of taxation and reciprocity in licenses with the United States received some general discussion. Without definitely opposing the latter suggestion, Hon. W. J. Hanna expressed his opinion that there were some disagreeable features in connection with the use of provincial roads by strangers. Opposition speakers lined up in favor of returning to the municipalities a large percentage of the license taxes. This money would be used in improving local highways.

The Minister explained that while auto taxes were not "ear-marked," they went largely into good road work. There was a possibility that in future they would be used for maintenance, a system that would work better than that of dividing the returns among municipalities.

The debate on the second reading of J. C. Elliott's bill to grant the municipal franchise to married women continued during the afternoon.

DR. CLINTON LEFT THIS MORNING

After Completing a Trip of Inspection—Visited the Factories and Public Buildings

Dr. George Clinton, District Health Officer, with headquarters in Belleville, left Peterborough this morning after completing a periodical trip of inspection, confined principally to the factories and public institutions. Dr. Clinton expressed satisfaction at the manner in which the factories are responding to the requirements of the health authorities. Some of the buildings visited were the Canadian General Electric Company, the Quaker Oats, the Auburn Woollen Mills, St. Peter's school and a number of others. In some cases where recommendations had been previously made a change for the better was noted.

Dr. Clinton approved of the suggestions advanced by Sanitary Inspector Spence in the matter of sanitary arrangements for some of the institutions named and was pleased to note an improvement. Dr. Clinton also made arrangements to have boats plying on the Kawartha Lakes equipped with sterilizing tanks with which to treat the refuse from the boats and thereby avoid polluting the water.

Canadian Troops Want Newspapers

Also French Dictionaries Are Much in Demand at the Firing Line

LONDON, March 11—From letters received here from Canadians at the front it is learned that it is impossible to send too many Canadian newspapers.

The Canadians are spread all over the 300-mile battle line, which makes it impossible for one newspaper to serve as many men as was the case when the troops were all practically at one spot in camp. In the case of one section of the Canadian force, the papers arrived at the front only two days after the troops themselves.

Among other things desired are French dictionaries. This morning a letter came to the Canadian Associated Press from Sapper Henry ('Sport') Murton of Toronto, who is with the Engineers, asking for papers, and adding, "I would be much obliged, too, if you would get us some pocket editions of French and English dictionaries. We are right up on the firing line, but I cannot give any information."

Souvenir hunting from Canadians by natives of Northern France has resulted in the Canadians reaching the line of battle almost bereft of buttons and badges.

A corporal now in the hospital in England has something to say about the manner of how the Canadians themselves went hunting for souvenirs.

"The first taste of German fire we had was when we were billeted in farm buildings," he said. "A shell came along and dropped in a field about 300 yards away. A lot of our boys started off into the open to pick up bits of the shell as souvenirs. They were ordered back at once, but several got what they set out for.

"There had been no casualties in the Peel County Battalion when I left, although there was a good deal of sickness."

BODY OF WILLIAM WHITTAKER WAS RECOVERED THIS MORNING

Was Found Floating in the Open Water a Short Distance Below the C. P. R. Bridge---Deceased Disappeared on January 5th---Body Badly Decomposed.

The body of William Whittaker was removed from the river shortly after eight o'clock this morning. The remains were found floating around in the open water a short distance below the C.P.R. bridge. The body was first noticed by an employee of the C.P.R. Rueben Castle and R. Butcher, two employees of Matthews-Blackwell Company, secured a boat and towed the body in to shore, after which it was removed to Comstock's undertaking parlours. The remains were in a badly decomposed condition.

DISAPPEARED JAN. 5TH.

The police were first apprised of Whittaker's disappearance on the morning of Tuesday, January 5th, of this year, when some clothing belonging to the deceased was found on the river bank a short distance below the Hunter Street bridge, on the west side of the river. The wearing apparel found, which consisted of a blue coat, dark grey overcoat and brown cap, were removed to the police station, where it was later identified by a son of W. A. Whittaker, as belonging to his father. A small book was found in a pocket, on the fly leaf of which was plainly written, "W. A. Whittaker, Peterborough, Ont." There was also in the pocket a miscellaneous collection, consisting of a tobacco pouch, watch case, box of matches, roll of tape, two pipes, and an old knife.

HAD BEEN DRINKING.

Whittaker had been boarding at 346 Aylmer Street since July last and he was last seen there on the Saturday previous to the finding of the clothes. He was known to have been drinking heavily, and was on the black list for a number of months until November 27. He had been before Magistrate Dumble a few times during the past three years. He was a good workman and was employed by the city.

STRIKING COINCIDENCE.

Older residents will remember the drowning of Mr. George Rogers in the Otonabee about thirty years ago, when he gave his life to save that of two companions. There is a window to the memory of the late Mr. Rogers in St. Luke's Church and one of the men he saved was William A. Whittaker.

At that time the late Mr. Rogers, accompanied by Whittaker and another companion, the late Robert Sheridan, went in a boat to break a log jam at the old dam nearly opposite where the Quaker Oats plant now stands, and the water being rather rough the boat capsized. In securing the safety of the other two Mr. Rogers was drowned. It is quite a coincidence that the Otonabee should at last succeed in its claim for William Whittaker.

MISTAKE SAVES TOWN

German Plot of Cobalt Failed---Miscreants Under Arrest.

COBALT, March 11.—A fortunate mistake made by a German Pole conspirator saved Cobalt from a terrible dynamite explosion which might have caused many deaths, and destroyed much property. In the darkness he cut off a piece of fuse to which was attached the cap for exploding, and thus himself prevented the explosion.

The revelation of this followed out of an investigation of a complaint made by the Nipissing Mining Co. that their powder magazine had been broken into in the latter part of February and an attempt made to blow it up.

Provincial Police Inspector Powell arrested Thomas Szyszkoe, and after some time he stated that, urged by John Szyszkoe and Alec. Henshel, he broke into the magazine and tried to set off 120 case of dynamite which were in it.

The three men are German Poles. Thomas Szyszkoe has been in Canada 13 years, while the others are only 19 years of age, and have been here less than a year.

Mary Pickford at The Empire Theatre

Mary Pickford, the celebrated screen star of the Famous Players Film Company, adds appreciably to her stellar honours in the role of "Mistress Nell," her latest characterization in a five-part feature adaptation of the renowned romantic drama. This feature will be seen at the Empire Theatre during the balance of this week.

"Mistress Nell," of whom it was said, "England would not be as great without her," was never better portrayed than in the skilful characterization by Mary Pickford. All the varying whims and impulses of the famed character, all her loyalty and courage, are winsomely presented in the little star's impersonation.

The costumes and settings are historically and authentically exact, and the other mechanical embellishments of the production in harmonious uniformity with the period of the story. It is perhaps the first time that the gifted Mary Pickford has ever been seen as a boy on the screen, and the creation is as artistic and as thoroughly delightful as may well be expected from the diminutive star.

An excellent cast, including Mr. Owen Moore as King Charles II, assists the star.

Battling With Indians.

BLUFF, Utah, March 11.—Hostilities between the renegade Piute Indians and United States deputy marshals was resumed early yesterday. It is reported here that ten deputies sent out by Marshal Nebeker were attacked at Douglas Mesa, about ten miles southeast of Bluff. Their fate is unknown.

Voice of The People

If those who are finding fault with the administration of justice in the recent Brown murder case know the facts, as they say they do, that would implicate others, and do not divulge the same, either by taking the public into their confidence, or else laying the information before the proper authorities, then they become accessories to the crime, either before or after the fact, as the case may be, and as such are equally guilty in the eye of the law, and subject to punishment in the same manner. What they say about the knowledge, which they allege the authorities possess, is not proved as yet, but what they admit about their own knowledge in the same respect is the best possible evidence of their own guilt. What are they going to do about it, or what are the authorities going to do with them or their own admissions?—Yours, etc.,

JUSTITIA.

11th March, 1915.

I saw it reported in one of the papers yesterday that a farmer while shooting down a bull terrier here in the most friendly manner, was bitten by the brute in a most ferocious manner, its teeth going quite through its victim's hand.

A bull dog is just as dangerous as a German Zeppelin dropping bombs on innocent men, women and children and should not be tolerated in any civilized community certainly not to run at large without a muzzle. They are of no earthly use except for worrying inoffensive dogs and occasionally human beings. They are readily known by their ugly proboscis, and the uglier they are, the more highly prized are they by those whose tastes lie in that direction. An ordinary dog may bite and let go, but his bullship's grip, like Tennyson's brook, goes on forever, until the death of its victim or by adopting some extraordinary means. In these days of hydrophobia and rabies something ought to be done to avoid such dangers.

Yours, etc.,

Safety First.

HYDRO RADIAL LINES FOR WHICH AID IS ASKED

Premier Borden Tells Deputation That Nothing Can be Done at the Present Session—Mayor Buller Has Returned From Ottawa

His Worship Mayor Buller has returned from Ottawa, where, in company with Sir Adam Beck, Chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission; J. W. Lyon, president of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Radial Union; Mayor T. L. Church, of Toronto, vice president; T. J. Hannigan, of Guelph, secretary; Controllers Foster and Spence of Toronto; Henry Clay of Windsor, and others. Application was made to the Dominion Government for assistance for the Hydro-Electric Railway scheme as proposed by the Hydro-Electric Radial Union.

Arrangements Completed.

It was pointed out to Premier Borden that 200 provincial municipalities had requested the Ontario Commission to report for them on the advisability of having built for them hydro electric railways, that the commission had reported that they could be built and successfully operated, and that certain municipalities had already completed arrangements for construction under the Act. The deputation asked that the government declare its policy with respect to subsidies for the projected road so that the provincial public service commissions with powers similar to those of the Ontario Hydro electric commission could anticipate the assistance and "proceed with the immediate construction of the roads."

Ontario's United Wish.

"We are not coming for any special treatment," continued Mr. Lyon, who said that they looked on the Hydro railways as being more important than the Hydro-Electric enterprises that

They would increase production, would be an investment and bring back the money that was spent.

"We realize that war is on," said Mayor Church, "and a heavy drain on the Government. The Province is peculiarly situated. Ontario has contributed per capita to the Intercolonial. This is an electric age. This system will tap every district in the Province. It will do the work that subsidized steam roads have failed to do."

"For a line of thirty miles on Lake Ontario, nearly 800,000 people are there, and we have no suburban service there. The consumer and producer are kept apart. We think that the people should have some of its own money."

Mayor Church said that no more subsidies should be extended to steam roads. "Ontario can well ask that the intercolonial be extended up to Toronto."

People Pay Loss.

Sir Adam Beck said that the people were heartily in sympathy with the Hydro-Radial project. "We considered it a sound principle," said Sir Adam, "that the municipalities should pay any loss if any."

"We are taking into consideration the general scheme of a radial system for the province. The day of steam railway feeders is a day of the past. No one will now admit that steam branch railways will pay. If it is made to pay it must be an electric railway."

There were any number of precedents of such assistance being granted. In 1912—the banner year—nine million dollars in subsidies were voted by the Dominion Parliament.

"We do not wish to validate the hydro-electric radial by-laws passed by the people, and we do not wish to spend a large amount of money in preparing specifications. If we cannot get these subsidies and if we do not get them, it is likely to cause a great deal of dissatisfaction."

Sir Adam said that the steam trunk lines were heartily in accord with the radial policy. He expressed the opinion that no more subsidies should be granted to steam roads and there were now sufficient trunk lines

Premier's Reply.

At the conclusion Sir Robert replied that so far as any legislation for the purposes set forth at the present session was concerned, conditions would not permit the Government to bring it in no matter how warmly toward the projects they might feel. The Government was invited to make a declaration of future policy. So far as that was concerned, he would submit to his colleagues what had been urged. In the absence of such discussion he would not make any announcement as to policy.

GERMANS TRY TO ADVANCE

Russian Front is Again Attacked —New Troops From Interior

Examiner Special:

LONDON, March 11 — Balked at other points the Germans are making another attempt to break through the Russian line of fortresses in Northern Poland. They are advancing from Khorjele, on the East Prussian frontier, along the Orzyc River, and by the roads leading southward to Przasnys. This is one of the routes the Germans took in their great rush from East Prussia in February which finally ended in their defeat at Przasnyz.

For their new attempt they have brought up troops which have been operating in the region of Grodno, and some of the new army which has been training since the outbreak of the war in the interior of Germany. The point selected for the attack is the most favourable along the East Prussian front, for the splendid railway system can bring troops and their supplies to the border, from which good roads lead to Przasnys. A big battle is developing in this region, while one of almost equal importance is in progress further north, in the region of Suwalki where the Russians have pressed the Germans back to their own border.

The Russians appear to have successfully countered the German offensive on the Pilica River, and in the Carpathians they are withstanding continued attacks along the whole front.

Copper Seized By Switzerland

GENEVA, March 11.—(Via Paris.)—Large quantities of copper from Italy, destined for Germany, were seized by the Swiss authorities at Chiasso yesterday. The method employed for some time, according to Swiss officials, has been to send contraband from Genoa in sealed cars labeled Amsterdam. These cars have passed through Switzerland, and on crossing the German frontier have been taken in charge by the Germans, who removed the freight and returned the cars to Italy. The newspapers have published articles exposing this traffic.

No Monopoly of "Catholic."

OTTAWA, March 11. — That the Catholic Truth Society of Canada has no right to monopolize the word "Catholic" without affixing "Roman" to it was the contention of A. E. Fripp, M.P., yesterday, when a bill incorporating the Catholic Truth Society, with headquarters at Toronto, was in committee. "I am as good a Catholic as my friend from South Toronto (Claude Macdonell) but I am not a Roman Catholic."

Mr. Macdonell said the company wanted to erect a building and establish a printing plant. These powers had been given other organizations. It was decided to hold over the bill and redraft it.

SIMPLE WAY TO DESTROY THE HAIR

Stop Falling Hair and Itching Scalp.

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring, use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger-tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve, and entirely destroy, every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you value your hair, you should get rid of dandruff at once, for nothing destroys the hair so quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless and everybody notices it.

Will Let In Sugar.

LONDON, March 11.—The prohibition against the importation of sugar into the United Kingdom from America and other neutral countries probably will be removed within two or three months, Reginald McKenna, the Home Secretary, intimated as much yesterday in the House of Commons.

The importation of sugar into the United Kingdom was prohibited by an official decree last October. The decree was explained as necessary on the ground that Germany and Austria were paying for goods needed for the conduct of the war with sugar, which was being re-exported to England

CALEDONIAN'S DANCE

"The Dance of the Season." That was the general comment of all present at the Caledonian's dance last night. There was a fairly large turn out when the strains of good music set the dance agoing. Supper was served at 11 o'clock, when a most delightful repast was partaken of. One of the most conspicuous points of the dance was the delightful music, which was rendered by Mr. Nichols at the piano and Mr. Hackett on the violin. One could hear an occasional "Hooch" as the various "Highland airs" were struck up. Great praise is due Mr. Hutcheson, who acted as M.C. in a most admirable fashion as he carried the whol, proceedings through without a hitch.

Between the various dances a few vocal numbers were also heard. Miss Duthie sang to advantage 'Come Back to Erin,' as also did Mr. King in that old time Scotch favourite, 'Gae Bring Tae Me a Pint o' Wine.'; then a duet by Miss Hinchliffe and Mr. Smith, 'Come, Sing to Me. The voices blended beautifully and was highly appreciated. Next was a solo by Miss Hinchliffe entitled, 'My Ain Folk.' The manner in which this song was rendered seemed to appeal to all present, especially the Scotch people, as the vocalist had to respond with 'Mother Machree.' Then Mr. Hendry delighted the comany in character dress as a jolly Tar, with Harry Lauder's famous, 'We Parted on the Shore.' He had to respond with 'Tipperary.' Miss Duthie sang 'The Bonnie Brier Bush' in a most pleasant voice. The vocal programme concluded with 'Scots Who Hae,' sung by Mr. King in the stern manner this song requires. Mr. Nichols played the accompaniments for the vocalists in his own inimitable style.

As the clock struck two, the company joined hands and sang 'Auld Lang Syne.' They then wended home at that "wee sma' hour."

Object to Kindness To German Captives

LONDON, March 9—The provision of Donington Hall, a beautifully situated mansion in Leicestershire, and the expenditure by the War Office of $65,000 upon it for the installation of all sorts of modern household comforts and luxuries for German officers who are prisoners of war, are creating widespread public indignation.

Wives of British officers imprisoned in Germany are sending fierce protests to the press here against wasting money on German officers whose country, the wives declare, responds to this generosity by victimizing British prisoners. The demand is made that instead of being housed in Donington Hall the German officers be [illegible] which throughout the country now are almost empty.

Viscountess Templeton declares that the Russians are the only prisoners Germany even pretends to treat with humanity, and that solely because Petrograd notified Berlin that otherwise German prisoners in Russia would be sent to Siberian convict settlements.

"Chivalry Thrown Away."

Chivalry, these ladies declare, is thrown away on the Germans, who merely regard it as weakness and the only way to get fair treatment from them is by severe reprisals on German prisoners.

It was believed in Parliament that the Government must respond to these demands. The feeling among the civil population toward the Germans is much more bitter than among the military. Certain Unionist papers and Members of Parliament, however, are striving to foment animosity in order to embarrass the Government by insinuating that the Ministers are actuated by anti-patriotic Germanism because they won't vie with the Germans in dealing harshly with prisoners of war.

Lord Charles Beresford is prominent in this campaign, but has little influence anywhere, as his action apparently is inspired by his old feud with Lord Fisher, whose success in directing the navy has convinced practically all the people of Great Britain of the luck escape the country had when Lord Charles, with all his powers of intrigue, failed to drive Fisher out of the service. But between treating war prisoners as Beresford and his school demand, and setting up a luxurious country club for them is regarded as a different matter.

What Prisoners Charge.

Last week a batch of two hundred British prisoners were sent home from Germany as being "permanently disabled." In many cases the permanent disablement arose from sheer surgical mismanagement or neglect, and several operations had to be performed immediately on the arrival of the men here which could have been performed earlier with better results.

Keen anxiety is felt as to how British prisoners are faring since the German food scarcity has been admitted officially.

A Meeting May Be Called

To Discuss the Hydro Radial Scheme — Mayor Buller's Suggestion

That a meeting of the municipalities in Peterborough County will be called at an early date by Mr. T. F. Matthews, district president of the Hydro Radial Union, is the expectation of His Worship Mayor Buller. The meeting will be for the purpose of discussing ways and means of furthering the hydro radial scheme and, if possible, evolve something that will be productive of early results. Mayor Buller has suggested that the electric line that is being constructed between Whitby and Port Perry might be diverted this way and extended through to the north of Peterborough. It is said that Lindsay is harbouring a similar scheme. If satisfactory terms could not be made with the power interests as to water power, the city might fall back on the promise of the Hon. Frank Cochrane concerning dams numbers eight and nine, which are said to be available for development purposes. The one transmission system could be utilized for both the radial lines as well as for local distribution in the form of light and power.

GREECE'S NEUTRALITY

New Ministry Issues Statement Regarding Its Attitude.

LONDON, March 11. — A Reuter despatch from Athens says the new Greek Cabinet took the oath of office yesterday, and also gives a Ministerial declaration, which after referring to Greece's need for an era of peace for the development of her resources and home services, concludes as follows:

"In these circumstances, the observance of neutrality was imperative for her from the beginning of the European crisis. It was and always is her absolute duty to fulfil her treaty obligations as an ally and to seek satisfaction for her interests, without, however, compromising the integrity of her territory. The Government, conscious of the duty of thus serving the interests of the country, is convinced that the patriotism of the people will ensure the entire security of those interests."

Boy 16 and Girl 17 Elope, Run Away to Tennesse

NEW YORK, March 11.—Philip Hone Le Roy Jones, sixteen years old, descendant of a signer of the Declaration of Independence and son of Herman Le Roy Jones, and Miss Margaret Forrester Andrew, seventeen years old, daughter of Henry H. Andrew, of No. 507 West End avenue, and a granddaughter of John A. Andrew, war Governor of Massachusetts, last Saturday, and on the following day were married in Bristol, Tenn.

This announcement was made by Rev. T. R. Wolfe, who said he had performed the ceremony, and by request of the boy bridegroom had kept the fact a secret.

While the fact of the marriage was news to Mr. Andrew and his wife, Mrs. Mary Raymond Garretson Andrew, stepmother of the bride, they were not surprised when told of the despatch.

Both said that fifteen minutes after the boy had driven Miss Margaret and her sister, Miss Beatrice, away in a taxicab, ostensibly to a theatre, they knew that they had eloped and had begun a search.

"It was odd that we never thought of Tennessee," said Mr. Andrew, who is a lawyer, "because the day before the elopement the boy had asked me about the marriage laws of the various States and I had told him that couples as young as sixteen could be married in Tennessee.

Had Money, But No Baggage.

"We knew that the boy and Margaret were in love, but we had counselled them to wait until they were older. We believed they had taken our advice. Only a few days before Margaret had asked me to issue invitations for a tea dansant and I had done so. Now I realize that this was a cover to aid in the elopement. Why, we even found a rope where they had tried to lower a trunk from a window but had failed. They had only a handbag and the boy had nothing but $600 or $700. I suppose, however, that they are well provided for because both Philip and Margaret had their own checking accounts in the banks."

Mr. Andrew is a member of the Society of Colonial Wars, Sons of the American Revolution, Metropolitan Club, of Washington, and organized the Light Infantry Company of West Virginia in 1860. He also was colonel of the Second Virginia regiment, National Guard.

Mr. Andrew's wife, Mrs. Mary Raymond Garretson Andrew, stepmother of the run away bride, is a granddaughter of Freeborn Garrison, who was one of the largest land owners along the Hudson River. She and Mr. Andrew have been married about thirteen years.

Miss Beatrice Andrew, twenty-one years old, accompanied her sister, Margaret and Philip Jones in their flight to Bristol, Tenn., and the despatch from there stated that she [illegible] with the latest couple on their honeymoon to Chicago, then to Washington and back to New York city.

Philip Hone Leroy Jones has had an unusually active life. He is a descendant of Philip Hone, signer of the Declaration of Independence and a son of Henry Leroy Jones, who owns a great amount of valuable real estate in Broadway and the upper west side. For many years the family home was at No. 8 East Twelfth street. At present his mother lives at No. 175 West Seventy-second street, in the Van Dyck.

"Good Bye, Daddy, We're Eloping."

The boy has always had all the money he desired and has had the use of a bank account. He has owned several automobiles, and only last August ran one into a ditch near Lebanon, N.Y., injuring himself and four others.

On Christmas he gave to Margaret Andrew a large diamond engagement ring and then it was her father and stepmother learned of the seriousness of the attachment. They believed they had persuaded the girl to wait.

"But, Beatrice was in sympathy with them," said the father last night, "and this is shown by the fact that she went away with them. The boy called in a taxicab for them, to go to a theatre party at two o'clock Saturday afternoon. As the girls left the house they waved their hands to me and cried, 'Goodby, daddy, we're eloping!'

"Fifteen minutes later I realized that they had gone. Mrs. Andrew hurried to the theatre and there found the party of friends. But those young people were in on the secret and told Mrs. Andrew about the elopement. We tried to find the train but could not. So they got away. Now we will welcome them back and try to make them happy."

Both families have held conspicuous places in society and are credited with great wealth. The boy's grandmother was a daughter of Ambrose C. Kingsland, who was Mayor of New York in 1851-1853.

WEDDING BELLS

GORDON—FISHER.

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place at "Fairview," the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fisher, in the Township of South Monaghan, on Wednesday, March 10th, 1915, at high noon, when their daughter, Elizabeth A., was united in marriage to Mr. George H. Gordon, of Sturgeon Falls, Rev. W. L. Wickett, of Fraserville, performing the ceremony in the presence of a company of the most immediate relatives.

Miss Mary Dawson, a cousin of the bride, presided at the organ, and not only played a popular wedding march, but rendered choir selections during the signing of the register.

The presents which the bride received were not only costly but useful, and bore testimony to her popularity among her school-mates and many friends.

After all had partaken of a sumptuous wedding breakfast, the happy couple left amid showers of best wishes for Toronto, Woodstock, and points West.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon's future home will be Sturgeon Falls, Ont., and their many friends wish the happy couple a smooth and pleasant voyage over the sea of life.

The Turkish Commander of Smyrna Refused to Surrender

MILLION TROOPS ARE NOW IN NEW CONFLICT

AFTER 24 HOURS TRUCE AGAIN SHELLING PORT

French War Office Admits That an Expeditionary Force is En Route to Turkey—Australians and Canadians Said to be Aboard Transports

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, Eng., March 12.—The Turkish commander of Smyrna has refused the demand for surrender. Rear Admiral Peirse's squadron, after 24 hour truce, has resumed shelling the port.

This message was received here to-day from Athens. Despatches to Athens from Tenedos Island said the boom of the warships' guns off Smyrna could be heard plainly there.

Despatches received at Tenedos said that the British squadron, having reduced the outer forts, was shelling Turkish batteries from inside the harbour.

The British squadron commander gave the Turkish military governor 24 hours in which to hurry non-combatants out of town. Couriers sped over the city, spreading the news and within a few hours all the civilian residents who had not fled to the hills at the beginning of the bombardment, were moving in panicky procession toward Smyrna-Constantinople railway.

For the first time since the Dardanelles operations and bombardment of Smyrna began, the French War Office has admitted that an expeditionary force is en route to Turkey.

In a despatch received from Paris early to-day it was officially announced that such an army was on its way to Egypt.

British troops and possibly some of the Australians and Canadians are aboard transports bound for the Dardanelles it was unofficially reported.

The official statement from Paris declared that "troops other than native Algerians and these from France" make up the expedition.

Turkey on Verge of Anarchy Say Fugitive Missionaries

Fall of Constantinople Will be Signal for Reign of Terror—Civilized Nations Will be Forced to Suppress Rapine

Special Cable to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, March 12.— The Turkish Empire is on the verge of anarchy unequalled in history, according to refugee missionaries from that country who arrived here recently from Naples on board the Carpathia, of the Cunard line. With the fall of Constantinople, they declare, the empire will crumble and the country will be given over to rapine, which the civilized nations of the world will be called upon to suppress.

Five of the missionaries returned from the vicinity of Jerusalem, where they have been attached to the Christian Alliance and Friends' Foreign Missions. They fled early in January to Alexandria, where they went on board the United States cruiser Tennessee, sent to protect American citizens. At that time, they said, dissension was rife throughout the empire and the army was mutinous.

German officers in command of the regiments are unable to control the Turks, who resent the intrusion of the infidels, as the Teutons are called, and the soldiers are secretly urged to mutiny by the Turkish military officers, who feel that their honour has been smirched.

Loath to Give Details.

So fearful were the missionaries of the effect their reports of conditions might have on other missionaries and foreigners in the Turkish Empire that they were loath to tell their stories. Those who came from Jerusalem and contiguous cities are: Miss Alice Whitaker Jones, principal of the Friends' Girls School at Jerusalem; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Kelsey, of Ramallah, in charge of the Christian Alliance Mission there; Mrs. E. Meade, Friends' Girls School, Jerusalem, and Miss F. M. Parsons, attached to the Jerusalem mission of the Christian Alliance.

The condition of the Jews in particular throughout the Turkish Empire all say is particularly frightful. They are being beaten, robbed and sent out of the country. Those who are strong enough are being drafted into the army and those who through malnutrition, age or infirmities are unfit, are forced to do heavy manual labour.

Miss Jones told of seeing hundreds upon hundreds of Jews marched through the streets of Jerusalem between Turkish soldiers to a railway in course of construction ten miles away.

"They were frail and white, and they staggered from weakness, but the soldiers forced them on with curses and with blows. Many of them rolled into the gutters from utter exhaustion and were kicked aside. I have helped many a poor chap up who was so weak that he could not lift himself.

"The Turks are sending whole families of Jews out of the country; where they go they don't care, so long as they get out. The Turks rob them and imprison them and assess monstrous fines against the more wealthy."

Zionists Stir Turks' Fury.

The fury of the Turks, the missionaries said, was centred on the Jews, because they feared the effect of the Zionist movement in Jerusalem. They foresee the building of a powerful empire within their national limits and are determined to prevent it. When the refugees left Alexandria for Jaffa on board the Tennessee on January 29 they said there were 60,000 refugees there, and Mr. Morgenthau, the American Ambassador, was unofficially urging them to leave the country, declaring that he foresaw the possibility of a time when he could not aid them.

Just before they left a detachment of Turkish soldiers plundered the Anglo Palestine Bank, a branch of the Zionist Bank, controlled by wealthy Jews, the missionaries said. Protests, they declared, were filed with the State Department, and just before they left they understood that American diplomatic agents were investigating to get data for a report.

"The Turks wait for loot," one woman missionary said. "When the allied fleet pierces the Dardanelles — God pity Turkey, and particularly the foreigners and Jews within her borders. The state of the country cannot be imagined here. Everything is disorganized, in all walks of life. The Turkish soldiers are deserting. On February 2, in a battle with the English, 5,000 were killed and an equal number threw down their arms and deserted to the enemy.

"The German officers are hated and disobeyed; their rigid discipline is irksome and will not be borne by the Turk, particularly from a Christian. I have been twenty years in Jerusalem and have lived through many alarms, but this time I knew that if I wanted to save my life I had better go."

Two other missionaries from a far zone of the war were on board the Carpathia. They are Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Crane, who for three years have been stationed at Luepo, Belgian Congo, where Mr. Crane is principal of the Southern Presbyterian Mission. Luepo is far inland in the Congo country, five and a half degrees below the equator, but there, as in Europe, a fierce war is raging between natives and French troops from the French Congo on the one hand and German native troops from German East Africa on the other.

"All about us for months there has been fighting," said Mr. Crane. "The natives fight with great ferocity and comparative enjoyment. They are all well drilled and provided with modern weapons, and in the main commanded by white officers.

"We have seen troops dash through the settlement, and at times have heard the rattle of musketry, but Luepo, when we left, had not been attacked."

Mr. Crane says conditions in the Belgian Congo have been greatly battered since King Albert ascended to the Belgian throne. Until the war broke out scientific forces from that country were combatting the native diseases and trying to stamp out malaria and jungle fevers.

The missionary and his wife are on a year's furlough. They will go to Atlanta, Ga., from here.

Attempt To Sink Liner

Red Star Liner "Lapland" Bound for New York, Carrying 106 Passengers, Was Pursued by Submarine

REPORT NOT CONFIRMED

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, Eng., March 12.—Fresh outbursts of indignation over German methods of warfare are voiced in the British press to-day.

For the first time, according to despatches received here, from Liverpool, one of Von Tirpitz' under-sea fighters has attempted to sink an ocean liner with 106 passengers aboard. The Red Star liner Lapland, bound for New York, was reported the victim. She carried many American passengers. According to the message from Liverpool, the German submarine pursued her as she slipped out of the Mersey.

She crowded on full steam and escaped.

The officers of the Red Star Line refused to confirm the report.

Liverpool correspondents said the news was received there in brief wireless messages.

The British newspapers generally accepted the story as true, and made it the subject of new appeals to the Government to order drastic reprisals.

Sinking of the American Sailing Vessel Absolutely Without Excuse, So Preliminary Reports Say

SPECIAL WIRE TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Preliminary reports placed in President Wilson's hands, covering the sinking of the American sailing ship "William P. Frye," by the German auxiliary cruiser Prinz Eitel Friederich, declare the act absolutely without justification.

It is already considered certain that the complete report will make the same claim. Until he has it too, in his hands, the President will take no action.

Meanwhile officials here were expecting that Germany, of her own volition, will open the matter. They expect the German Foreign Office to take the matter up either with Ambassador Gerard at Berlin or through Ambassador Bernstorff in this country.

But the mere assumption of responsibility and payment of monetary damages will hardly prove satisfactory to this Government.

LEAVES BIG STORE TO SIX EMPLOYEES

ALLENTOWN, Pa., March 12.— Six employees are named as beneficiaries and are to succeed to his business under the will of Thomas Koch, clothing merchant and banker, who died February 11, leaving an estate of $1,000,000. The testators widow is liberally provided for.

The six employees have ten years within which to purchase his store, valued at $250,000, for $160,000, and his real estate, valued at $600,000, at $250,000.

These employes are Willis Kuhns, Harry Jordan and John Ritter, who are each to have four-sixteenths; Samuel Kuhns, two-sixteenth, and Elwood Kuhns and Samuel Ritter, one sixteenth each.

The will was probated to-day and revealed that Mr. Koch kept a secret ledger in which he set down sums opposite his men's names as bonuses for service. These sums are to be credited a payments of their shares in the business.

8 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS.

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Cassesoa, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis, and one said I could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—not a sign of a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

GERMANS ARE AGAIN HAMMERING AWAY

At the Russian Defences North of Warsaw—Invaders May Have to Retreat When Winter in Poland Breaks Up

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

PETROGRAD, March 12.—About a million men are engaged in the great battle which began with the renewed German raid from the north last Monday in the direction of Lomza. They are spread over a front 80 miles in length, starting from Kolno, which is 20 miles south of Johannisburg, westward to the bend of the Narew above Xowo Georgiewsk. The Germans have moved outside their railway supports, but so far the main force is still within two days' march of the frontier. Their strongest blow is aimed from Khorjele along the old Przasnysz road. Besides hoping to avange the Phzasnysz defeat, it has the evident aim of attempting to reach the Narew along the Orpitz tributary. This was the line the Russian cavalry followed in the rapid flanking advance northward leading to the German defeat.

Ossowetz is practically outside of the new battle operations, although the Germans there are again using their 12-inch guns. Shortening the German line by retirement from active operations eastward of Ossowetz has led to a noticeable increase of artillery and motor equipment in the zone between the south frontier of East Prussia and the Russian fortresses. Continued reinforcements for Gen. von Hindenburg's armies during the past fortnight and the recent readjustment on the narrower front have been noticed and provided for by the Russians.

The situation rather is that they must make this determined effort with their utmost strength or retreat altogether, because the country—where their troops are now spread is the worst conceivable for maintaining an army at the break-up of winter. The total enemy force now employed against Russia is estimated at 32 German corps over the entire area. Of these six are with the Austrians in the Carpathians, probably 15 are involved in the new battle between the Vistula and Bobr, and the others are partly distributed along the entrenched lines in Western Poland against the Russian advance, or held in reserve for use either in the Narew battle or developing the fight for the roads along the Pilica.

The change of season is stagnating all operations in the Carpathians as regards covering considerable ground, although collisions continue in the passes with each new division, the Austrians have put in front of their columns. The Cossacks have taken prisoner the general who was the commandant at Etanislau during the Austrian occupation. He signed 200 death sentences during the four days of his term of office.

CANADIANS PARTICIPATED IN NEUVE CHAPELLE VICTORY

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, March 12.—Information has been received here to the effect that one battalion of Canadian infantry assisted in the capture of Neuve Chappelle, fighting with great bravery on one flank of the advancing troops.

The fourth battalion, including the 36th Peel Regiment of Toronto, has been under exceptionally heavy shell fire, but has escaped lightly. Up to two days ago not a man had been killed, and only a few had been wounded. There is very little sickness among any of the Canadian troops.

A Toronto officer, writing from the trenches, says: "The Germans and Canadians cheer each other. The Canadians sing the 'Fatherland' and the Germans sing songs in English. The trenches are only forty yards apart." Speaking of the men, he says they are brave, but cautious, and their discipline is splendid. There have been a number of casualties in the Ontario brigade during the last two days. Another batch of wounded arrived at Southampton yesterday. The French people are treating the Canadians with the utmost kindness.

MESSAGE FROM GENERAL ALDERSON.

OTTAWA, March 11.—The following cable from Sir George H. Perley, Acting High Commissioner for Canada, has been received by the Government:

"Just received letter from General Alderson (commander of the Canadian division), in which he makes the following statement: 'Our men have now been in trenches over a week, and I am very glad to be able to say that they are doing quite remarkably well. I knew they would do well, but they have done much better than I expected, and all has gone with less trouble than I anticipated. All artillery, infantry, engineers, medical people, supply, etc., have settled into their places, and work in a wey that makes me both pleased and proud.'"

Sir Robert Borden read the message in the House of Commons this afternoon.

15 Ships In Over 8,000 "Zone" Record

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 12.— Fifteen British vessels sunk out of a total of 8,734 of more than 300 tons which arrived at British ports or left them from January 21 to March 3 was the record of achievement of German submarines, according to figures issued by the Admiralty.

Vessels of all nationalities are taken into account, excluding, however, those used by the Admiralty for naval and military purposes. Twenty-nine of the crews of the vessels torpedoed lost their lives.

The total number of vessels which arrived at British ports during this period was 4,619, while the number which left was 4,115. The figures given by the Admiralty follow:

Twenty-five vessels, the Admiralty statement says, were unsuccessfully attaked between February 1 and March 5.

"THE GRELL MYSTERY"

By Frank Procat

The girl's hands dropped to her side, and she regarded her visitor helplessly. A new hope was beginning to steal into her heart, but her reason was all on the other side.

"He is dead," she protested faintly. "Fairfield killed him. Why should he hide himself if he is not dead? Why should he not come here himself? Why should he send you?"

"Don't be a fool," retorted the other impatiently, and the impertinence of the words had the effect intended of bracing the half-fainting girl. "He does not come because to do so would be madness—because if he showed himself he would be at once arrested by Scotland Yard detectives. They believe him to be the murderer of his double—a man named Goldenburg. There is a note he gave me for you."

The letters danced before Eileen's eyes as she tore open the thin envelope and held what was undoubtedly Robert Grell's writing in her shaking hand. She was startled as never before in her life save when she heard of the murder. Slowly she read, the words biting into her brain:

"Dearest,—Forgive me for not letting you know before that I am safe. I had no means of communicating with you with safety. The man who is dead was killed by no wish of mine. Yet I dared not run the risk of [illegible] The bearer of this is an old friend of mine who will herself be in peril by delivering this. Trust her, and destroy this. She will tell you how to keep in touch with me."

There was no signature. Mechanically Eileen tore the letter in two and dropped the fragments on the blazing fire. She felt the dark eyes of the Princess upon her as she did so. A spasm of jealousy swept across her at the thought that this woman should have been trusted, should have had the privilege of helping Grell rather than herself. She strived to push it aside as unworthy. He was alive. He was alive. The thought was dominant in her mind. She could have sung for very joy.

"Well?" asked the Princess.

"I don't understand," said Eileen wearily. "He does not explain. There is nothing clear in the note but that he is alive."

"He dare say no more. We—that is—he's succeeded in evading the police so far. If by any chance that letter had fallen into their hands, it would have told them no more than they know at present."

"Where is he?" demanded Eileen. "I must go to him."

"No, that will never do. You would be followed. I will give any message for you. You can help, but not in that way. He is in need of money. Have you any of your own? Can you let him have, say, five hundred pounds at once?"

The girl reflected a moment.

"There is my jewellery," she said at last. "He—or you—can raise more than five hundred on that. Wait a moment."

She left the room, and a smile flitted across the grave face of the Princess. A few moments later she returned with a little silver casket in her hands.

"And now," she said, "tell me what happened. Who killed this man Goldenburg?"

The Princess Petrovska gave a dainty little shrug.

"Mr. Grell shall tell you that in his own fashion," she said. "Listen."

For ten minutes she talked rapidly, now and again writing something on a slip of paper and showing it to Eileen. The girl nodded in comprehension, occasionally interjecting a question. At last the Princess rose.

"You fully understand?" she said.

"I fully understand," echoed Eileen.

SUFFERED FROM BILIOUS HEADACHE.

At Times Thought She Would Go Mad.

Headaches are one of the most aggravating troubles a person can have. They are many and varying; but when the headache starts you may be sure that there is some other chief cause of this most painful difficulty. The stomach may go wrong, the bowels become constipated, the blood may not circulate properly, but the presence of the headache clearly shows that there is some other baneful disease which is liable to assert itself unless the cause of the headache is removed. Get rid of the headache and thus perhaps save yourself many years of trial and suffering.

Burdock Blood Bitters has, for the past forty years, been curing all kinds of headaches, and has also proved itself to be a remedy that cures where all others fail. It does this by removing the cause of the trouble.

Miss Mary A. Roberts, Hampton, N.B., writes: "For about two years I have suffered from bilious headache. At times I thought I would really go mad. Not long ago a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters which I did, and after taking three bottles I have never been troubled with any kind of a headache. I think that B.B.B. is one of the wonders of the world. I can safely recommend it to all who suffer from bilious headache."

Burdock Blood Bitters is the oldest and the best known blood medicine on the market to-day, and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CHAPTER XX.

Heldon Foyle had been prepared to take any risk rather than allow the Princess Petrovska to escape him again. There was nothing against her but suspicion. It was for him to find evidence that might link her with the crime. It is in such things that the detective of actuality differs from the detective of fiction. The detective of fiction acts on moral certainties which would get the detective of real life into bad trouble. To arrest the Princess was out of the question; even to detain her might make matters awkward. Yet the superintendent had made up his mind to afford Wills the butler a sight of her at all costs. If Wills identified her it would be at least another link in the chain of evidence that was being forged.

He carried the butler in a taxicab with him to the nearest corner to the Duke of Burghley's house. A well-groomed man sauntered up to them and shook hands warmly with Foyle.

"She has not come out yet," he said.

"Good," exclaimed Foyle. "Come on, Wills. You have a good look at this woman when she does come out, and stoop down and tie your shoelace if she's anything like the woman who visited Robert Grell on the night of the murder. Be careful now. Don't make any mistakes. If you identify her you'll probably have to swear to her in court."

"But I never saw her face," complained Wills helplessly. "I told you I was not certain I'd know her again."

He was palpably nervous and unwilling to play the prominent part that had been assigned to him. Foyle laughed reassuringly.

"Never mind. You have a look at her, old chap. You never know in these cases. You may remember her when you see her. Every one walks differently, and you may spot her by that. It won't do any harm if you don't succeed."

He led Wills to a spot a few paces away from the house, but out of view of anyone looking from the windows, and gave him instructions to remain where he was. He himself returned to the corner where Taylor, the detective-inspector who had greeted them when they drove up, was waiting. The other end of that side of the square was guarded by one of Taylor's assistants. Lola was trapped—if Foyle wished her to be trapped.

He beckoned to a uniformed constable who was pacing the other side of the road. The man nodded—detectives whatever their rank are never saluted—and took up his position a few paces away.

They had not long to wait. A taxicab whizzed up to the house, evidently summoned by telephone. Wills was staring as though fascinated at the slim, erect figure of the woman outlined on the steps of the house. He half stooped, then straightened himself up again. The superintendent muttered an oath under his breath and nodded to the loitering policeman. The constable immediately sprang into the roadway with arm outstretched, and the cab, which was just gathering way, was pulled up with a jerk. The blue uniform is more useful in some cases than the inconspicuous mufti of the C.I.D.

"Get hold of Wills and bring him after us to Malchester Roy Police Station." And, opening the door, he stepped within as the driver dropped in the clutch.

The Princess had half risen and gave a little cry of dismay at the intrusion. With grim, set face the detective adjusted his tall form to the limits of the cab and sat down beside her. His hand encircled her wrist, and he forced her back to the seat.

"I shouldn't try to open the door if I were you," he said quietly. "You might fall out."

The woman dropped back and did some quick thinking. She was no difficulty in guessing who Foyle was, and she could scarcely have failed to see the staring figure of the butler as she left the Duke of Burghley's house. She fenced for time, doing the astonished, outraged, half-frightened innocent to perfection.

"What does this mean? How dare you molest me Where are you taking me?"

The detective smiled easily as he answered in the formal words of C.I.D. custom: "I am a police officer—perhaps I needn't tell you that—and I am taking you to Malchester Row Police Station."

"To arrest me? You would dare? Do you know I am the Princess Petrovska There is some mistake. I shall appeal to the Russian Ambassador. What do you say I have done? I am a friend of Lady Eileen Meredith, the daughter of the Duke of Burghley. She will tell you I have only just left her. You are confusing me with some one else."

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mrs. Charles Lovell, Arnesis, B. C., writes: "Seven of our nine children had whooping cough the same winter and we attribute their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was for merly completely cured of protruding piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

Cannot Finish Until May.

OTTAWA, March 11.—There is absolutely no chance of the House session ending at Easter, as some had expected. An arrangement was come to between the party whips yesterday whereby the vote on the amendment to the budget, proposed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, will be taken on Tuesday next. It is regarded as hardly possible now that Parliament will prorogue before May.

Villa Defeated.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., March 10.—Gen. Elias Calles received a message from Gen. Alvaro Obregon yesterday saying: "Col. Eugenio Martinez of the first battalion of Sonora, numbering 1,000 men, informed me of the decisive defeat of 2,000 Villa troops, 110 miles north of Mexico City. They were routed after nine hours' fighting, and are fleeing in the direction of San Juan Del Rio, in the State of Queretaro."

Premier Borden Receives Ontario Hydro Radial Deputation.

OTTAWA, March 11. — Premier Borden and Hon. Frank Cochrane yesterday received the Ontario Hydro Radial Union deputation. Sir Adam Beck, Mayor Church, of Toronto, and J. W. Lyon, presented the request of the deputation for a federal subsidy and appealed for fair play for the municipalities.

Sir Adam said they did not wish to validate the hydro electric radial by-laws passed by the people and they did not wish to spend a large amount of money in preparing specifications. If the subsidies were not obtained it was likely to cause a great deal of dissatisfaction.

The Premier stated that so far as any legislation for the purpose set forth at the present session was concerned, conditions would not permit the Government to bring it in, no matter how warmly toward the project they might feel. The Government was asked to make a declaration of its future policy. So far as that was concerned he would submit to his colleagues what had been urged.

German Reichstag To Deal With Means of Increasing Supply.

BERLIN, March 11. — (Via London.)—The Reichstag met yesterday with a large attendance of members, many of whom were dressed in field gray uniforms.

Dr. Karl Helfgerich, Secretary of the Imperial Treasury, submitted the budget and delivered his maiden speech concerning it.

In addition to the budget the Reichstag at this session will only take up a bill providing for ways and means for increasing the supply of nitrogenous fertilizers. A recess [illegible] is in order to give the committee time for their work. It is expected that the session will be concluded before the end of the month

SEE IF THE CHILD'S TONGUE IS COATED

Look at the tongue, mother. If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative;" they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of imitations sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

DETERMINATION WON HIGH MILITARY HONOR

Colonel Logie, Trainer of Portion of Second Contingent, Once Yearned in Vain For Corporal's Stripes

Col. W. A. Logie, who was appointed temporarily to the position of general officer commanding the second Ontario military division is a lawyer, of Scottish origin and United Empire Loyalist descent, and was born in Hamilton in 1866. He is a son of his Honor Alexander L. Logie, judge of the County of Wentworth. He was educated at Queen's University, receiving his B.A. degree and gold medal in classics in 1887, his M.A. in 1888, and his LL.B. in 1892. In 1890 he became a barrister with honors, and entered the legal firm of Chisholm and Logie, of Hamilton. Col. Logie and his partner have a large legal practice, and it is said that the Colonel took his position at a financial sacrifice.

COLONEL LOGIE

Col. Logie's first taste of the business of soldiering was during his college course in Kingston. He entered the ranks of the old 14th Regiment—to be exact, he entered the rear rank and remained there for some time. On several occasions he tried examinations for a corporal's stripes, and each attempt proved a dismal failure. Back in Hamilton, Logie joined the 13th Regiment, and in due course became a captain. He "assisted" in organizing the 91st Highlanders in 1903. Those who know say that the 91st could never have lived if it hadn't been for the energies of Col. Logie. He got business men of Hamilton interested, gathered good men around him, and pulled the regiment into being in the face of much opposition. This also resulted in keener opposition and was mainly responsible for putting Hamilton on the military map. Col. Logie continued the head of that regiment until 1909, when he was placed in command of the 15th Infantry Brigade in Western Ontario. While colonel of the 91st, by order of the King it was made an allied regiment with the Black Watch (Royal Highlanders) and the Princess Louise (Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders). Col. Logie also took an artillery course and qualified as a full colonel.

Personally the soldier-lawyer has the knack of getting the best results out of his men. He is quick to grasp an opportunity and is always picking up ideas. But his friends say his strongest trait is determination.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Drink Lots of Water

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

A MOTHER'S SIX SONS

All Serving Their Country and One Would Like to be

I have seven sons; fine, strong fellows, all of them; but I am sorry to say that one of them, Victor, who is eighteen, cannot answer the country's call, wrote Mrs. M. Stocker of Sloane Street, London, in reply to a request for an article for publication in "Answers."

I say that I am sorry for the boy's sake, because he is almost heartbroken at his failure. He tried different recruiting stations but in each case he was rejected on account of his sight.

Here is a list of the names and ages of my boys:

Frederick, aged forty; William, aged thirty-four; Harry, aged twenty-four; Frank, aged twenty-three; Charles, aged twenty-two; Victor, aged eighteen; Edward, aged seventeen.

My eldest son, Fred, served in the Boer War in the Imperial Yeomanry. He is now a corporal in the 12th Royal Fusiliers, and expects to go to the front very soon.

William, my second son, used to be a stoker in the Royal Navy. Then he emigrated to Australia, where he did very well, and got married. Still, he rejoined, for he wrote to say that he must "have a go at the Germans."

Charles, who is twenty-two and a stoker in the Royal Navy, is now a prisoner of Groningen, Holland. It is comforting to me to know that he is safe, but, from his letters, the poor boy seems very depressed at being "out of the fun," as he puts it.

Harry, my third son, is a private in the 2nd Royal Fusiliers, which was stationed in Calcutta but was ordered to the front.

My next son, Frank, is a corporal in the 4th Dorsets (Territorials). He got married the day after war was declared. He was to have gone to India with the regiment then, but they did not take him because he was married, so now he will very probably go to the front. He is delighted, but his wife wishes that he had gone to India.

Edward, who is only seventeen, is in the 18th County of London Regiment, at present stationed at the White City. But he is just as keen as all the others to get to France.

Yes, as you can imagine, I am very, very proud of my six soldier sons, and so, too, is their father.

Accepted a Hard Task

BARON BURIAN

is the man who succeeded Count Von Berchtold as Minister of Foreign Affairs for Austria-Hungary. He is a Hungarian and it is said that his appointment was caused by the feeling of revolt throughout Hungary because the army's resistance to the Russians was demoralized.

Found Time to Fish

An illustration of how "Tommy" amuses himself at the front is afforded by the following extract from a letter by Lance-Corporal Fairlie, of the London Scottish Transport, to his wife. "I received the fishing tackle all right," he says. "The gentles had very kindly come unstuck and fastened on some puddings. However, I got quite a respectable bag of roach after church yesterday. Several chaps marvelled at my resource and ingenuity and thought fishing for roach on active service the limit. So it is. I don't think they did that in the Crimea."

How to Plan a Home Nursery

THE most satisfactory room in a whole house to fix up is a nursery, because with a very small expenditure it can be made so exactly what its name implies. The shops seem to have out-done themselves supplying the children with things to their liking. Wall paper, china, [illegible] to please them.

There is no paper so pleasing in a nursery as the white striped paper with a frieze of an endless procession of three small Kate Green-away figures dancing with garlands of flowers between them. One little girl in green, one in pink and one in tan color. They are well drawn and give the effect of calm, well-poised action. One child who lived in a nursery papered as described would run back to her room on entering the house, make a low courtesy and say, "Dance, dance ladies!" Children are susceptible to their surroundings. In a nursery papered with a pronounced frieze it is well to keep all other decoration in plain colors, that the child may not be attracted by too many things of interest about it, and lose the power of concentration on any one of them.

White For the Small Child

If a child is small there is nothing so pretty as white; white wood-work, white muslin curtains, a little toilet set of white china edged with a band of pink, or green, or gold, and rag rugs of pale shades. With older children, white and pale shades are not practical. Dirty little finger marks are too apt to appear about the room in unexpected places.

For a child over four or five, or if there are several children in the family, it is a good plan to use what is known as a landscape paper. Some of these have pastoral scenes, some have Dutch landscapes with windmills and quaint figures typical of that country. On these finger marks make little or no impression, and the woodwork can be painted a dark cream or light tan color. A rug of carpet with a small figure will be found very serviceable. Spots or even little worn places do not show up as on a plain rug.

If the baby sleeps in the room with the older children it is a good idea to have a screen around its crib. If the screen is not too heavy it can be easily moved about to keep both sunlight and lamplight out of baby's face when asleep. The screen should be covered with creton to harmonise with the wallpaper and rug.

Pretty Chair Designs Available

Children's chairs come now in the most lovely designs. There is one made after a standard old New England model. It is strong, comfortable, charming in appearance, and helpful in developing a child's sense of beauty. You can also get leather chairs for children made like grown-ups' library chairs. Children's desks are now made in simple good designs and are very cheap. It is well to let a child have book shelves of its own because if its books are within easy reach they become more readily a vital part of its life.

There should always be plenty of deep, roomy shelves in a nursery for the toys and odds and ends that collect in all children's rooms in spite of all the best of nurses or mothers can do to keep them free from trash. And the trash often gives a child more pleasure than its handsomest toys. There was once a child whose mother put thumb screws along the shelves in the nursery, indicating just where each toy belonged. After the baby was asleep the mother would rearrange the toys that had been misplaced during the day, and long before the little thing could read she unconsciously got the habit of putting things back where she invariably found them in the morning. And so the foundation of a life-long habit of orderliness was formed without a word of criticism or nagging.

It is most important that a small child should live in a room furnished with care and taste, so that it may easily learn to love, unconsciously, what is beautiful and fitting.

The raising of swine has from time immemorial been a leading Irish industry. During the last two years a sharp decline has been noted in the number of hogs on the island. Nevertheless live hogs and swine's flesh still ranked third.

Doctor Said She Had Bright's Disease.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED HER.

Bright's disease is a term applied to one of the most serious of all diseases of the kidneys, the symptoms of which are often of a severe character.

Severe pains in the back appear at first and are followed by disturbances of the urinary organs which show that the urine contains a large amount of albumen. Dropsy is also another forerunner of the dreaded Bright's disease. On the first sign of any kidney trouble you should at once put the kidneys right by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. The pill that cures kidney troubles only.

Mrs. C. A. Heistand, Mooswa, Alta. writes: "Last May I was taken down sick. The doctor told me I had Bright's disease. My kidneys got so bad I could not rest day or night. The doctor's medicine did not give me any relief. I used four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, and they put me in good shape again."

Doan's Kidney Pills are the original kidney pill, so when you ask for "Doan's" do not accept any others with similar names.

While We Knit

Song, as sung by the Women's Institute—King East Branch.

Words by Alice A. Ferguson York Co., Ont.

Tune, "Tramp! Tramp! Tramp!"

1. In my cottage home I sit
And I knit, and knit and knit,
While my thoughts are with the boys across the sea.
Fighting there, mid shot and shell,
While the bombs and cannons yell,
Fighting for our country, homes and liberty.

2. While the boys are at the front,
Bearing all the battles' brunt,
We at home are planning comforts while we pray.
Socks and mufflers, sleeping cap—
That's the work we all are at,
While the boys are beating Germans in the fray.

Chorus

Tramp! Tramp! Tramp!
The boys are marching,
Cheer up, Comrades, bravely stand.
And beneath the Union Jack,
We will drive the Germans back,
And we'll fight for our beloved Motherland.

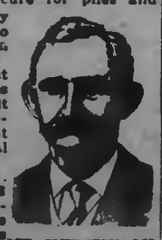
3. While the hissing bullets fly,
O'er the trenches where they lie,
In the midst of winter's snow, or biting sleet.
They will bless the women's thought
That has much of comfort fraught,
As they wear the socks we're knitting on their feet.

4. When the British Lion's roar,
Makes the Kaiser beast no more,
And our soldier boys come marching home again;
We at home who sit and knit,
Will be mighty glad of it,
As we welcome back the boys across the main.

Cured Fifteen Years Ago of Piles and Eczema

By Using Dr. Chase's Ointment—Certifies That the Cure Was Permanent.

Some people have tried so many doctors and so many treatments in their search for cure for piles and eczema that they find it difficult to believe there is an actual cure.



MR. KETCHESON

The strong point about Dr. Chase's Ointment is that it not only brings relief promptly, but brings about actual and lasting cure.

In 1897 Mr. Ketcheson, 88 Douro street, Peterboro', Ont., wrote as follows:—"I was troubled for thirty years with itching piles and eczema. I could not sleep at night, and when I got warm the itching was terrible. Eczema covered my legs down to the knees, perfectly raw. I have tried every preparation I could hear of. Seeing Dr. Chase's Ointment advertised, I procured a box, and this Ointment effected a complete cure."

On Sept. 28, 1912, Mr. Ketcheson wrote as follows:—"I received a letter from you to-day, saying that you found on file a statement made by me 15 years ago. I have always given Dr. Chase's Ointment a good name since it cured me, and shall tell you how I came to use it.

"I had suffered for many years from eczema and piles, and had tried doctors and everything I could hear of in vain. Reading about Dr. Chase's Ointment, I purchased it at once, and was soon completely cured. That was fifteen years ago, so there can be no doubt of the cure being a permanent one. I have met a great many people who have been cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment."

TIMELY to the very tip of the interrogation point is Charles W. Domville-Fife's book, "Submarines, Mines and Torpedoes in the War," just brought out in America by the [illegible] Company.

Germany, with her battle fleet behind her coast defences, has proclaimed a war zone which practically means a blockade of Great Britain. She depends upon her under-sea fleet to starve the British despite their cordon of massive battle ships, through which it is doubtful if the surface craft of any navy in the world could break.

Will Germany succeed? What are these fighting engines which may fairly blow the United States, against the will of her people, into a war which has already assumed almost world proportions? How are these sub-sea monsters operated? How do they attack? What can be done in defence against them? Will Germany be able to cripple, perhaps annihilate, British trade? These questions are on thousands of lips and Mr. Domville-Fife's book answers them all—except the first and the last.

Some idea of the importance of this comparatively new branch of the naval service may be gained from figures cited by Mr. Domville-Fife in his introduction. He says that no fewer than 204 underwater fighting craft are engaged in the present conflict and that nearly 20,000 highly trained men are required for their manning, repairing and overhauling.

In what Mr. Domville-Fife terms the first, or submarine phase of the war, he says no fewer than eight war ships have been sunk by submarine torpedoes. All of these were perhaps not fired from submarines, but technically they come under the heading of sub surface attack.

In a chapter on the construction of submarines the author says:—"It may sound ridiculous, in face of the many accidents which have occurred, to say that one of the greatest difficulties is to make a submarine sink sufficiently quickly, and one of the easiest operations to make her rise, and yet such is undeniably the case.

"When a submarine is travelling on the surface she is in what is technically called the light condition—that is to say, with her water ballast tanks empty—but when it is required to sink her so that only the tiny platform, or deck, and conning tower are above the surface water is let into these ballast tanks, and the additional weight causes her to sink into the sea until her back is almost flush with the surface. This is known as the awash condition.

"To many it may appear strange that total submergence is not accomplished by letting still more water into the ballast tanks, but entirely with the aid of the propellers and rudders. A submarine has two and sometimes three pairs of rudders: one pair of ordinary vertical ones to guide her to port or starboard, and a horizontal pair to cause her to dive and rise.

"In order to make the submarine dive beneath the surface, the horizontal rudders are deflected when the boat is travelling at full speed. The action of the water against the rudders is such that the bows are forced down and the whole vessel slides under the surface.

"From this it will be seen that a submarine is only held below the surface by the action of her rudders on the passing water; should the propellers driving her along cease to revolve and the vessel slow down she automatically rises to the surface because the rudders have no longer any effect.

"Of the many complicated problems surrounding submarine boat construction the motive power and propelling engines have been in the past and are still the most profound puzzles. Steam, compressed air, electricity, petrol and heavy oil have all been used with varying results.

"About steam and compressed air little need be said, for although given a good trial, especially by the French naval authorities, they were abandoned some years ago in favor of a combination of petrol and electric engines, which in turn have given place to more powerful machines using heavy oil and electricity."

American inventors are, however, still experimenting with air engines. Steam also is again being used in conjunction with turbine engines for surface propulsion.

MUST HAVE ELECTRIC ENGINES FOR RUNNING WHEN SUBMERGED

"It being quite impossible, for obvious reasons, to use a petrol engine when running submerged," to quote from Mr. Domville-Fife's book again, "a second motive power, an engine with its additional space and weight, has to be carried to drive the submarine when under water. For this purpose electricity is used in almost all types. This is extremely dangerous, for should salt water in any way gain access to the storage batteries, chlorine gas would be given off in large quantities, although in the most recent vessels of the British, American and French navies this danger has been minimized by enclosing the batteries in airtight cases.

"Perhaps the greatest difficulty which has beset both submarine construction and navigation is the puzzle how to see when submerged. This is now accomplished by means of periscopes or tubes extending up from the roof of the submarine to a height of several feet above the surface—not unlike hollow masts. By a series of lenses and reflectors a picture of the surface is thrown down these tubes onto reflectors inside the submarine. A man with his eyes at the bottom of the periscope can see the surface clearly. Although it may project above the water when the whole submarine is submerged it is far too small an object to be easily seen moving through the water and extremely difficult to hit by gun fire.

"The latest panoramic periscope, two of which are fitted in modern submarines, has a field of vision of about sixty degrees.

"The chief armament of all submarines is the torpedo, which is expelled by a blast of compressed air from one of the tubes fitted in the bow and stern. Several torpedoes are usually carried by each boat.

"The latest submarines built are also fitted with quick firing guns, for use when these vessels are cruising on the surface. The guns are arranged so that when it is desired to sink they can be made to disappear beneath the narrow deck of the submarine. The provision of guns has been made with the object of giving these vessels a means of defence should they be discovered by prowling hostile torpedo boat destroyers or by aircraft."

Mr. Domville-Fife devotes a chapter to the description of the modern torpedo, more than 80,000 of which were owned by the nations at war when hostilities commenced. During the first few weeks of the war the torpedo was responsible for the sinking of war craft to the value of more than £5,000,000. To quote again:—

"The modern torpedo varies in length from fourteen to nineteen feet and weighs up to half a ton. It has an extreme range of 4400 yards, or just over two miles and a quarter. There are three types of torpedoes in use by the fleets at war—the Whitehead, the Schwartzkopf. All these types are alike in their essential features and therefore need not be described separately.

The latest pattern 18-inch Whitehead torpedo is propelled by compressed air stored in that section of the weapon known as the air chamber. (See diagram.) The air on being released is heated and expanded in a tiny three or four cylinder engine which operates twin screws, moving 'clockwise' and 'anti-clockwise.' The 'war head' contains about 200 pounds of wet guncotton, which is exploded on the torpedo striking an object. The essential features of the Whitehead torpedo are shown in the diagram. This torpedo maintains a speed of forty-two knots for 1,000 yards, thirty-eight knots for 2,000 yards, thirty-two knots for 3,000 yards, and twenty-eight knots for 4,000 yards. Thus if discharged at a distance of half a mile it reaches its object in about forty-five seconds.

"Torpedoes are fired, or ejected, into the sea from surface or submerged tubes, and on striking the water are propelled by their own engines in an absolutely straight course toward the target. The [illegible] mechanism of the submerged tube—which is used in surface war ships as well as in submarines—is a naval secret.

When fired from a surface tube the torpedo sinks immediately to a depth of about ten to fourteen feet, and maintains this depth until it strikes its object. When fired from a submerged tube it rises, if necessary, to the same level. A torpedo always proceeds toward its object of attack at a depth of a few feet below the surface. This, combined with speed, renders it almost impossible to destroy an approaching torpedo by gun fire."

Regarding submarine attack, Mr. Domville-Fife says:—

"With the exception of one or two vessels, which it would be unwise to specify, all the submarines engaged in the present war have what are called fixed submerged tubes. This means that the tubes from which the torpedoes are discharged are fitted inside the submarine on a line with the centre of the boat and cannot be moved or aimed in any way apart from the boat itself. It therefore becomes necessary for the submarine to be aligned by the steering rudders on the object of attack before the torpedoes can be discharged. In simpler vein, torpedoes can only be fired by a submarine straight ahead or straight astern. Hence a submarine with a hostile war ship coming up on its beam is compelled to turn and face its opponent for turn its stern toward her) before delivering an attack.

"Generally speaking, however, a hostile war ship could be easily sighted, on a fairly clear day, from the flying bridge of a submarine at a distance of ten miles, but it would be practically impossible to detect the submarine from the deck of a war ship at that distance. On sighting her object of attack the submarine would [illegible] to the awash condition and proceed for from two and one-half to five miles, as might be deemed expedient. She would then submerge and steer by her periscopes, each of which has a field of vision of sixty degrees. He would be a very keen lookout who would be able to detect the few square inches of periscopic tube at a distance of three miles. As this distance lessened it might be advisable, if the sea was very calm and if the object of attack was stationary, for the submarine to slacken speed, so as to prevent any spray being thrown off by the periscopic tube. Assuming, however, that the optical tube was seen by the enemy, it would be extremely difficult to hit it with gun fire at a distance of one or two miles, or to damage the boat itself, which would probably be immersed to a depth of twelve or fifteen feet. At a distance of about two thousand yards the submarine would discharge her first torpedo, following it up with another at closer range from the second bow tube. A rapid dive then would probably be necessary to avoid the hail of shot which would plough up the waters around her. If the first two torpedoes missed their mark the submarine might either dive completely under the object of attack and then fire her stern tubes at close range or else manoeuvre below the surface for an attack from some other point.

"The submarine and the aeroplane are the only weapons against which there is no true means of defence, and yet one is being used as an antidote for the other.

"The aeroplane may be able to distinguish the dark patch in the sea caused by the hull of the submarine in clear water, but she cannot destroy it, neither can she signal the exact locality to an accompanying destroyer flotilla, owing to the speed with which aeroplane and submarine pass over and under each other; furthermore, in rough weather or in shallow muddy water no sign of the submarine when submerged is visible from above. The great value of the seaplane as an antidote for submarines lies, however, in the fact that the water of the open sea is usually clear and the submarine shadow is visible from above, and, second, in the great speed of these aircraft, which enables them to quickly cover miles of sea in their search for hostile submarines and to report their presence in a given locality by wireless to all ships operating within range.

NO RELIABLE MEANS DEVISED FOR ATTACKING SUBMARINES

"Many means of attack on submarines have been proposed and no doubt some of these, in certain cases, would prove effective; but none can be relied upon. Therefore, one of the points in favor of the submarine still [illegible] its antidote. This is the moral effect; for if there is no absolutely reliable means of defence there can be no feeling of security for surface war ships or merchant vessels when anywhere within the danger zone of the submarine.

"Let us now examine briefly what practical methods of defence a modern war ship has against submarine attacks. Great speed is undoubtedly a surface ship's most reliable defence and when combined with a frequent change of course would greatly reduce the chances of a successful under-water attack. Should hostile submarines be on the line of advance they would not know whether to wait and chance the enemy approaching within torpedo range or whether to run to starboard or port. That is, if the surface war ship was steaming in an erratic course—not a zigzag course, for then it might be possible to estimate, within torpedo range, the position of the ship at a given point if the 'tacks' were regular.

"Should submarines be seen approaching a surface vessel would do well to turn her stern to the attacking flotilla, presenting as small a target as possible, and deflecting the torpedoes by her propeller race."

In addition to submarines, the Germans are counting on submarine mines to make effective the blockade of the British coast.

"The system of defence consists of the mooring of mines in such positions as to make it almost impossible for hostile ships to pass without either striking or coming within the destructive zone of one or more of them. What are known as floating mines are those set adrift to be washed about by the tide. They explode immediately on being struck by a passing vessel, and of course do not discriminate between friend and foe. The systems of destroying hostile mine fields consist of counter mining or placing other mines in the enemy's field and destroying it by their explosion and by sweeping. The latter method is the one mostly employed in modern warfare. The boats taking part in the sweep place themselves one on each side of the mine field and between them hangs a long wire rope, weighted in the centre to keep it well submerged. They then move forward, sweeping the mines to the surface or exploding them harmlessly.

"For clearing away the mines dropped by an enemy special vessels are employed. Each vessel is fitted on both sides with a curious contrivance known as the 'picking up gear.' This apparatus is lowered into the water and 'picks up' any mines which may lie in the path of an oncoming fleet. When a mine field is discovered by either destroyers or seaplanes these vessels are immediately despatched to destroy it, and they are aided, in the case of the British navy, by a large flotilla of steam trawlers."

THE REMITTANCE MAN

A Story of a Partnership.

I.

Crittenden stepped out of the post-office at Goldspur, with his usual monthly letter from London town in his pocket.

In front of the store was Mollie Owen, mounted on her brown pony. The sight was enough to make any man pause, but there was more than her beauty and grace to check the Englishman, for a moment later she began to cry.

Beside her stood Lin Dewing, a grin on his face and cheerful contentment fairly emanating from his personality.

From a lounger at the door of the postoffice Crittenden caught a remark that sent the blood faster through his heart.

"Lin's got her dead to rights. She can't meet the payments on the Upper Bend outfit, and he won't give her time. No fool woman can run the ranch, no matter how good looking she is. It needs a man!"

Nobody will ever know whether the spark of British chivalry collided with an instantaneous appreciation of Mollie's charms or whether it was purely subconscious action regulated by fate's decree, sex attraction and opportune propinquity. Suffice it to say that some irresistible current turned Crittenden's footsteps in the direction of the brown pony and Mollie.

"I understand, Miss Owen," he began, with the delightful drawl that gave Goldspur goosefleah, "that you need a foreman over at your place."

Mollie met his eyes and stopped crying. She liked his eyes. There was a glint of humor in them, and they were a relief after the little black slits that furnished Lin's soul with loopholes.

"I'll take you if you want to try it."

She flashed back. "What's your name?"

"John Crittenden."

Mollie felt a slight thrill of disturbance. She had heard of John Crittenden. Everybody around Goldspur had. Rumor said he was a "remittance man" and rode in every month for the purpose of receiving a certain letter from London.

She said to Dewing:

"I've got thirty days, haven't I, Mr. Dewing, if I can raise the balance? The interest is paid up to the 10th."

"Yeh'm, you sure have," responded Lin happily. "And I hope you can raise it. If you can't, I guess I'll have to take the place off your hands."

Mollie smiled and tightened the reins.

"All right. I'll be here on the 10th, then. You'll come over tomorrow, Mr. Crittenden?"

Next morning while the early mist still curled like low campfire smoke up the hillsides he rode to Upper Bend. Mollie was out feeding her chickens when he arrived.

"I've got three other men working here, but they aren't a bit of good," she told him. "Two look after the sheep, and one stays around handy to help me here at the ranch. The place is all run down. It needs a man's hand and point of view. I hope you'll get down to business and work a straight deal with me."

"I will," said Crittenden. "That's what I came for."

But he did not tell her how strange it seemed, this buckling into harness after nearly two years of inertia. He himself hardly sensed the keen, buoyant spur of responsibility.

One day Mollie stopped him as she was riding.

"Things are picking up, John." She called him John quite naturally now. "I think we'll pull through. There's good to pay by the 10th. I've got some sweet bowers in, and I could make those now, folks down the valley want to buy sheep. We could let a bunch go, couldn't we?"

"Would you mind taking in a partner here, Miss Owen?" asked Crittenden slowly. "I like it, and I think I could make a good thing out of it. I can put in my share, and that would pay off Dewing and give us a start."

The color rose in Mollie's face. She did not meet his eyes. It was not an easy thing she had to tell him, but she went ahead bravely.

"John, I want to be frank with you, I like you. You know that, don't you?"

"No, I didn't," said Crittenden, and the look in his eyes almost made Mollie lose her courage.

"You're a bully foreman," she added firmly. "But would you stick? I've heard all about you, of course"—

"What have you heard?"

"That you are a remittance man."

Then Crittenden told her simply, without any show of repentance or excuse for the past. He had made a failure of life at home. He was no criminal, but he had been a spendthrift and general no'er-do-well. He had come to the west to try to find himself, to learn his best in life, to see whether there was a groove that he fitted.

"I think I've found it here," he finished. "This suits me. The money I told you of is my own. I am not paid to stay away, as the rest are. I have a small, a very small, income, but it keeps me going. The trouble has been that I ran into debt at home. Out here the outlook is wide. I will make a good partner, Miss Owen."

"Would you promise to be as faithful as you have been the past three weeks?"

"I'll promise anything if you'll let me stay," he retorted, with sudden recklessness, and Mollie at once discontinued the personal circuit.

II.

She took him at his word. Dewing was bought out the following week, and Crittenden became partner at the Upper Bend. Tacitly a new basis of friendship had been established between the two, however. He rarely came to the home ranch, but spent his time at the sheep camp. Mollie did not mind—not so very much.

One morning he rode back with a brown and yellow pansy in the buttonhole of his gray flannel shirt. The dusky petals reminded him of Mollie's eyes.

That evening Mollie went out in the moonlight and looked longingly up the valley toward the sheep camp, four miles away on the mountain side. She caught a glimpse of the possible future and bent to find another brown and yellow pansy, warming to her finger tips at her own thoughts.

Instead, she found Crittenden's latest letter from London, carefully folded as it had fallen from his pocket.

She sat down on the low stoop, chin on palm, weighing her love's worth. In the clear moonlight Lin Dewing found her there. Mollie barely listened while he explained how he had ridden fifteen miles out of his way to see her.

"It's on account of this here Crittenden you've taken in as partner, Mollie," he told her. "You've turned the whole thing over to him, and he's made a mess of it. The boys won't stand for him any more. They're riding tonight to clear him out of the valley, and Goldmore"—

"What are you talking about, Lin Dewing?" gasped Mollie hotly, crushing the letter in her hand. "You know he's never done a thing that was crooked!"

"He don't know the game nor the rules of sheep grazing. He's trespassed on cattle land. The boys will make him see light!"

"It isn't them—it's you, Lin Dewing!"

Mollie caught up a lantern and started on a run for the corral. After her went Lin, his horse following splendidly. Neither spoke. He knew what she meant to do. As she seized the bridle and saddle from their hooks he caught her arm.

"Don't be a fool, kid! You can't stop them now. What do you want with him anyhow? I only pushed you hard on the payments because I wanted you to have to ask me for help."

"Heaven help anybody who had to ask you for help! You let me go!"

"I won't. Tell, quit all you want to!"

Mollie tore her wrist from his grasp and whistled. Lin swung around at the answering bark, but the big wolfhounds were on him, and he went down like a worried ox.

"Watch him, Scraggy!" Mollie called. "Easy, Monk, just watch him! Don't let him get away!"

The pony was on its way before her right foot had caught the stirrup, and she bent low, laughing recklessly, every nerve on fire at the thought of what lay ahead. She knew Lin Dewing and his crowd of men. They would clean out the sheep camp without a qualm unless she could reach it in time to warn Crittenden and the herders.

So it happened that when the riders rode over the rim of the foothill and looked down at the sheep, close huddled in the moonlight, they met a surprise. Mollie had begged for a revolver.

"It's half my property and half my fight," she told Crittenden. "I want to help."

He gave her one. There was barely time to get the saddle off her steaming pony and sling a blanket across its back before Dewing's mob came, but even in those precious moments he had managed to make her understand what her coming meant to him.

But the fight was his own. Brief as it was a keener sense of enjoyment swept over him than he had known in years. He was fighting for more than Mollie's rights—for his own new hopes and ambitions.

When it was over he sent the herders to look after the three silent figures that lay on the moonlight whitened hillside and turned to Mollie. She saw his eyes and the great longing in them and handed him the letter from his mother.

"I found it by the pansy bed, John," she told him with her old directness. "I didn't read it, but it bothered me. I thought that when we went into partnership you stopped all this sort of thing."

"Let you ride tonight to save me, all the same!"

"To save the sheep," corrected Mollie, avoiding his eyes. "I must get home. Lin may be cheated to mischief if he tries to get away from the dogs."

"I'm going with you," said Crittenden.

She turned at that, one hand on the pony's back, her face parted.

"But why?"

"Why?" He reached for her suddenly. "Because I have the right or mean to have from tonight! Your eyes were the spur that started me on the new road, Mollie. I've been trying to keep the trail since. That letter was only in answer to one of mine ordering the disposal of the property that brought me in the little income I told you of. I'm not going back any more, and I don't want any time to hold me. Thank God, I can stand alone now!"

Mollie's lashes brushed his cheek.

"Not all alone, John!" she whispered.

Greenville, S. C.—"It is with pleasure I tell others of the great benefit I have derived from Vinol, for the past several years. I am 81 years old and I find Vinol gives me strength, a healthy appetite and overcomes nervous disorders. Vinol is the only tonic reconstructor I have used for several years. I have recommended it to a great many of my friends and it has always proved satisfactory." — Mrs. M. A. HUTCHISON, Greenville, S. C.

Such cases as the above are constantly coming to our attention. If people in this vicinity only realized how Vinol invigorates old people we would not be able to supply the demand.

It is the tissue building, curative elements of the cod's livers, aided by the blood making strengthening properties of tonic iron contained in Vinol, that makes it so successful in building up strength for old people, delicate children and for all run-down conditions. Vinol is also a most successful remedy for chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis. If it fails to benefit any one who tries it we return your money.

How Girls May Earn Money

L. O. R., Wentworth Co., Ont.

We often read in farm papers of the advisability of farmers having several sidelines along with some special branch of farming, from which they may add to their yearly income. Why can't country girls who are anxious to have money coming in of our very own, run some sideline apart from our regular household duties which will bring in some ready cash, even though it be only a small amount? Of course I firmly believe that all girls should have an allowance, but even apart from this we might make a little extra if we could strike something that would not require too much labor or take up too much time.

Here is a simple way of earning money at home that I heard of recently. Try catering to the motorists who tour pass your home. An attractive sign placed near the gate might read something like this: "Fresh milk, buttermilk, tea, fresh home-made bread and fruit for sale here." Such a sign should prove quite a drawing card to the motorists who have been swallowing dust for miles. A simple little lunch might be served under a big tree on the lawn or on the veranda if large enough.

Another idea somewhat similar, but requiring more initial expense, would be a farm tea room. Oftentimes in large farm houses a room could be spared and fixed up attractively for this purpose. Such a tea room made in the form of an arbor or pergola at the side of the house would be very unique. The chairs, tables and pergola could be painted white, and if some climbing vines were trained up the posts it would surely be very noticeable and inviting. Simple lunches could be served to the passersby, consisting of bread and butter, sandwiches, biscuits, cake, tea, cocoa, milk or buttermilk. Occasionally home-made candy might be temptingly displayed for sale. This idea, while entailing more expenditure, would bring in larger returns.

Amateur photography is another way in which the farm girl may employ some of her idle moments. Some farm girls purchase a camera and take pictures for their neighbors of their farm buildings, live stock, etc. Farm scenes showing the different members of the family at work and also when they are pleasure seeking, if well taken and properly finished are always saleable to household journals, or illustrated magazines. A girl by studying up the methods of developing and printing pictures may soon become quite expert and take a great deal of pleasure out of this work as well as add to her cash box.

Other girls who are fond of working with flowers grow and sell them in large numbers to city people or even to their farm neighbors who do not grow flowers for themselves.

These are only a few ideas, but they are practical and may serve to suggest a method to some country girls of using their spare moments to advantage.

In some streets of Paris oil still is used as an illuminant, neither gas nor electricity having been introduced.

Told a Story Against Himself.

Lord Aberdeen once told a story against himself. He was speaking at a charity dinner in Liverpool, and he took the opportunity of warning his hearers against trusting to appearances. "I arrived at a railway station lately," he said, "where I was expecting a telegram to await me. So I went up to the nearest porter and asked him would he mind inquiring at the station-master's office whether there was a telegram for me. 'There's none for you, sir," at once replied the porter. 'I've just come out of the office, and there's only one telegram there, and that's for Lord Aberdeen!' Just then an official who knew me approached, and I explained the position to him, remarking jocularly that the porter certainly did not think I looked the part. By way of consoling me he promptly replied, 'Never mind, my Lord, if you don't look it, you feel it.'"

TOMMY ALWAYS READY TO SHOOT AT UNWARY "GERHOYS"

New Name for German Adversary Comes From Trenches in France

British Headquarters, in France, via London, March 9. — "There you are, and keep your head down! It is a fair target at that distance," said the officer who had come out of the shelter to meet the newspaper correspondents who were being permitted to inspect the trenches.

The correspondents were in the defences at the edge of a hardwood grove called the Ploegsteert woods. The British had fought fiercely in order to get possession of this grove, for it meant cover for them. Occasionally bullets whistled overhead and the swish of German shells which were being fired at something in the rear passed higher up, while a hidden British battery was sending its shell in the opposite direction.

At intervals in the defences men were waiting, with rifles laid, to plug any moving thing that looked like a "gerboy."

"If a gerboy helmet appears, can you put a hole through it" was asked one of the riflemen.

"It looks so. They don't put them up very often, sir," was the answer.

Two hundred and fifty yards away was a wall of sand bags. The bare field between the two lines was as lifeless as a desert, and for all one could see the German breastwork was not occupied by a single human being. But there, as on the British side, sharpshooters were waiting and officers were watching through the reflecting mirrors of the periscope.

For three months the trenches have remained in the same position, and never in all that time, here as elsewhere along the line, but some one is on the lookout and the reserves are ready for an attack.

Until the "Big Push" Comes.

"Here we will be until the big push comes," say the men. By the 'big push' they refer to the movement when the new British army is in the trenches.

At night German patrols creep out to see if the British are up to anything new, and the British do likewise to ascertain if the Germans are. And sometimes some of the men are killed.

Those who are not on watch are lounging on beds of straw under the timber roofs. To the rear there are many more shelters where officers and men are quartered.

One South African veteran was planting primroses on the earth roof of his house. "It is getting primrose time at home in England," he said.

Except for thresh of shells and the bang of guns the scene is most peaceful. When the Germans cut loose with some of the rat-a-tat-tat of the rapid fire guns or begin shelling, the men take to their shelters until the storm is over. They always are in danger from sniping and are likely to be called at any minute to suffer heavy losses in repelling an attack. They are veterans who cease to think of possibilities.

"If you are killed, why, you are killed," says "Tommy" Atkins, "and what's the use in worrying about it? The more you worry the better it pleases the Germans."

From Mons to Ypres the British regulars gained familiarity with death. Very proud are all the men who have stuck it through from the time of the British landing until now. When one of them was asked about it, he said, "just luck, that's all. Maybe I'll get it from a sniper when this winter is over."

At night all the work in the neighbourhood trenches is done. Across the fire zone behind the trenches food and timbers and all things needed in the trenches are carried up by hand in a wallow of mud. Yet one hears no one growling or swearing when it would seem that human irritation must have an escape valve.

"'Gerboys' May Hear You."

"Profanity comes too high," said the soldier. "The 'gerboys' may hear you and then turn loose. And it may not only cost you your life but your pals."

Any one who has been much with the British army on campaign has heard the same remark many times, and spoken in the same language it had a peculiar appeal.

With darkness falling over the flat country and the buildings becoming shadowy the correspondents walked away from the cover of a village with the commanding officer of that section of the front, with the rattle of a machine gun growing louder toward the trench. Whenever any one goes near the front he is bound to hear the machine gun, even in this quiet spot of the British front.

"They can't be firing at any definite object in the dark?" queried a correspondent.

"Perhaps—perhaps not," the officer replied. "The gun is laid for the top of their trench. We don't hold down the fire too much, as we want the Germans to know we are on deck."

"Are we in bullet range yet?" was asked.

"Rather—five hundred yards. That's why we don't walk up in the day time. The flares you see are going up from the German trenches," replied the officer.

These flares, like Fourth of July rockets, throw a glare over the sodden fields and revealed the faces of the correspondents and the officer and outlined their figures.

"In that way they keep watch to see that we are not creeping up for an attack," the officer added.

Another three hundred yards of plunging in mud and the correspondents descended into the wet earth behind tiers of sand bags and were walking on a board walk at the bottom of a great ditch. Step off that and one sank over his ankles. The commanding officer pulled aside a curtain and a lieutenant came out of his cellar looking neat enough for a parade. Neatness under any conditions is a point with the British officer, and he keeps his men up to it. It is amazing how "Private Thomas Atkins" in this sea of mud keeps clear of it.

Soldiers Sleep Above Water Line.

"If the men get careless of their appearance and in their habits," says the officers, "this means carelessness in the trenches which would be fatal. Thoroughness of detail and industry are of paramount importance in this kind of war."

Behind curtains in the same kind of cellars as the officers occupy were soldiers lying on board floors on their blankets above the water line. A subaltern was up for questioning, when the commanding officer found one of the pumps was not working. Pumping alone keeps the trenches from being flooded. The commander spoke to every watching man a cheery "good night," and from a soldier came an equally cheery answer.

On in that gigantic zig-zagging ditch in the darkness, slipping off the planks at times and catching one's self by stretching up the hands for support against the wet and slippery walls, for a mile the correspondents proceeded with heads below the parapet, while the German flares lighted the sky and while the British rapid fire guns whirred at intervals and the German snipers made reply. Then the correspondents left the trench and wallowed in the mud back to a point in the road outside the bullet range, where a column of sturdy soldiers was waiting before going up for their turn in the trenches. Behind them were supplies for the trenches and an ambulance to care for any wounded who had accumulated during the day in the trenches or those hurt during the entrance of relief parties or the exist of the men relieved when the German rapid fire guns sent out a spray of bullets in the hope of finding a target under cover of night.

The tired men who come out of trenches find baths and clean clothes awaiting them and have nothing to do but rest until they return to the watch, for the British army regards the care of each man's physical well being as the prime essential.

Where French and British Lines Join.

The trenches to the observer who sees the British army for the first time do not supply the most interesting feature. If one seeks picturesqueness it may be found on the road where the French flank and the British line join—where one sees the East Indian, a trotting battery of French artillery, Belgian reservists at work on the road and the British in khaki.

In the doorways where he is billeted one finds "Tommy Atkins" trying to talk French with the inhabitants, driving a big tractor engine made in the United States, riding out to the front on a bus which once plied in London, sitting on the front of an ambulance seat beside the driver when he has only an arm wounded or poking his head out of a shell proof to see if there is any chance of the rain stopping in Flanders. His remarks about the weather are intelligible profanity.

The extreme thoroughness with which all is done makes a more lasting impression. The fastidiousness about sanitation and the treatment of the wounded recall American methods.

There seems little unnecessary fighting to gain any minor advantage in the trenches. Everything seems submissive to a purpose—when the time comes for the "big push," which will see the deadliest fighting of the war.

Having Her Photograph Taken.

An old Scotchwoman, who had resisted all entreaties of her friends to have her photograph taken, was at last induced to employ the services of a local artist in order to send her likeness to a son in America. On receiving the first impression she failed to recognize the figure thereon depicted as herself; so, card in hand, she set out for the artist's studio to ask if there was no mistake. "Is that me?" she queried. "Yes, madam," replied the artist. "And is it like me?" she again asked. "Yes, madam; it's a speaking likeness." "Aweel!" she said, resignedly, "it's a humblin' sight."

Botanists are unable to discover from what plant the aborigines of America developed the potato, for it is not found growing wild anywhere in the world.

One seed of cotton given the application of all possible care and skill would produce 40,000,000,000 seeds in six years.

Closing of Seas to Germany Sounds Her Doom, Declares French Minister of Marine

PARIS, March — Germany's doom has been sounded; the Allies have answered inhuman warfare with a death stroke, Mr. Victor Augagneur, the French Minister of Marine, declared in an exclusive interview to the United Press to-day.

"Not another ship shall reach Germany if we can help it—and I think we can," said the head of France's navy.

"We have observed from the start all the rules of civilized warfare. Germany has broken all, putting herself on the plane of the savage. We'll starve her out."

The interview took place in his office in the Ministry, overlooking the beautiful Place de la Concorde. The French Minister smiled a grim smile of confidence, as if he had no doubt whatever of the ability of the French and British navies to meet the task before them.

"But Von Tirpitz says that Germany will starve out England" it was suggested.

"Just a bluff," said Mr. Augagneur scornfully. "Germany is utterly unable to make good her threat. People say that Germany has secretly built many large submarines. I know better. I know within two or three exactly how many she has, and neither England nor France is in the least way frightened. She may sink a ship now and then. This is inevitable. But in the ultimate end what good will this do her? The outcome of the war will not be changed an iota.

Laughs at German Threats.

"The German threat to starve out England by torpedoing merchantmen is of the same brand as the threats to destroy London and Paris with Zeppelins. What if Zeppelins actually reached Paris or London? They might kill a hundred, two hundred, or possibly three hundred non-combatants—but what of it? It would be merely an achievement, a record of savagery, but the final result would in no way be affected."

"What could the Zeppelins do if they flew over a British or French fleet?" I asked.

"We don't even consider that," said the Minister, with a little gesticulation to show what he considered the utter inconsequence of such a menace. "They go to pieces without outside aid if they tear. With their tremendous bulks exposed to fire short work would be made of them."

"What is your Mediterranean fleet doing?" was asked.

"Waiting for the enemy to pick up enough courage to show itself," was the laughing reply.

"Since the beginning of the war our ships have been promenading up and down the Mediterranean, sometimes challenging the enemy at his very door, but each time he sees us coming he turns tail and flees. We have done much work in keeping the sea open for the transportation of troops. The fleet is in the pink of condition and spoiling for a chance at the enemy."

I remarked that perhaps the Austrians might leave the Adriatic and give battle with the Anglo-French fleet in the Dardanelles. Mr. Augagneur chuckled.

"We would not ask for anything better," he said. "That's what we have been trying to bring about since the war started."

"You don't anticipate any interruption of your advance on Constantinople, then?"

"We shall not let up until the city falls."

Effect of Constantinople's Fall.

"We don't expect to open the Dardanelles without effort, but we will get through in good time. Just how long that will be I can't say, because that depends upon many things. The hardest work will be from the middle o fthe Dardenelles to the Sea of Marmora. Once the fleet is through — which is merely a question of time—comparatively little will remain to be accomplished."

"What effect will the fall of Constantinople have on the war?" was asked.

"The effect will be far reaching; that is certain," replied the Minister with emphasis. "But it is difficult to foretell the exact result. Certainly it will be one of the war's turning points."

"Do you foresee any trouble between the United States and Germany over the war zone proclamation?"

"I do not believe Germany stupid enough to fire on American ships," was the reply. "I am unable to see what Germany could possibly gain, for certainly such an act would not be calculated to increase American sympathy for her. But still, as Lord Admiral Beresford said to the London correspondent of the United Press, Germany might sink an American ship in order to save her face by bringing America into the war, and then claiming that the world was against her."

"What about the Dacia?" I asked.

"There will be no trouble over the Dacia," smiled Mr. Augagneur. "The relations between France and America always have been friendly. I don't anticipate the slightest trouble in this instance."

"You are satisfied with the work of the fleets so far?"

"Amply. We have done our share with comparatively no losses. If we have not done more it is because the enemy has not given us the opportunity."

Fear of Germany Gone.

"You don't fear a German surprise and loss of the mastery of the sea, then?" I remarked, in leaving.

"We do not fear any surprise Germany has to offer in the air, on the sea or under the sea" said Mr. Augagneur with a satisfied smile. "We will keep control of the sea. Germany's alleged blockade already has proved a fiasco. We are not at all panicky over it. We shall continue to protest as a mater of course against piratical attempts contrary to all the laws of civilization. In the meantime we have taken all precautions to hold the number of victims down to the minimum. As I said before, an occasional vessel is bound to be sunk, but without affecting the result in the least.

"Our real answer to Germany's barbaric methods is this: We will see that no more ships will be allowed to leave her ports. We will starve her out. We are fully satisfied with the trend of events in every theatre of war."

Mr. Augagneur's hair and moustache are almost white. He reminds one somewhat of portraits of General Miles. He loves the navy and speaks of France's battleships almost as if they were his children.

Like the other French Ministers, he is at his desk early and works until late. His health is vigorous despite hard work. He is to the navy what Mr. Millerand is to the French army. He is very democratic and approachable, but a thorough master of his department and a lover of discipline.

"Did you see any sharks when you were crossing the Atlantic, Mr. Butts?" asked Miss Mills. "Yes," replied Butts sadly; I played cards with a couple."

"I see you have recovered from the measles, Johnny," said the primary teacher. "Yes'm," replied Johnny, "but ma says that they are still in my cistern."

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Grey, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the grey hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural colour and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

SHRAPNEL SHELLS

Quite an Intricate Piece of Machinery in Themselves

The shrapnel shell differs in design in different countries. It consists essentially of a case, forged by hydraulic pressure from a solid billet of alloy steel of high tensile strength. This case has a space at the closed end for the the bursting charge, this charge, in the British type, being enclosed in a snugly fitting tin cup. A steel diaphragm, shaped to give a conical spreading effect to the bullets in front of it, separates the charge chamber from the long middle section of the case, which contains the lead balls. The British specification calls for 364 of these per shell, each ½ inch in diameter, composed of an alloy of antimony and lead, and pressed into shape cold. When the required number is in place a matrix of pitch, resin, and other inflammable material, designed to protect the bullets from deformation during the discharge of the shell from the firing gun, is poured in. Sometimes a special smoke-producing mixture is used to facilitate range finding.

Down through the centre of this chamber of bullets runs a tube of drawn brass. It contains quick-burning material and extends from the nose of the shell to the lyddite, or other bursting charge, in the tin cup at the base, threading into the steel diaphragm mentioned above. This central pipe, at its upper end, is threaded or soldered to another diaphragm which is the other retainer of the bullets. In some shells this is also of steel, but in those manufactured in Canada this second diaphragm is a brass cap.

The mechanism of the fuse plug or nose is an interesting and vitally important piece of construction. The plug contains the timing device and a percussion cap. The former is accurately set by vernier, to set off the bursting charge, according to mathematical calculation, after range has been obtained. When the shell is discharged from the gun the shock causes the percussion cap to ignite the primer charge, which starts the fuse burning at a certain point, designated by the vernier. The fuse is thus timed to reach the brass tube and thereby the bursting charge, at the proper time, as found by range; the time allowed depending, of course, upon the distance the shell is to travel, its course being of a parabolic nature.

Besides this time-fuse, the nose of the shell is equipped with a percussion cap which will cause the shell to burst immediately upon impact, should the actual range be shorter than that calculated.

How Thin People Can Put On Flesh

A New Discovery

Thin men and women—that big, hearty filling dinner you ate last night. What became of all the fat-producing nourishment it contained? You haven't gained in weight one ounce. That food passed from your body like unburned coal through an open grate. The material was there, but your food doesn't work and stick, and the plain truth is you hardly get enough nourishment from your meals to pay for the cost of cooking. This is true of thin folks the world over. Your nutritive organs, your functions of assimilation, are sadly out of gear and need reconstruction.

Cut out the foolish foods and fussy cawdust diets. Omit the flesh cream rub-ons. Cut out everything but the meals you are eating now and eat with every one of these 5 grain Sargol tablets. In two weeks note the difference. Five to eight good solid pounds of healthy, stay there fat should be the net result. Sargol charges your weak, stagnant blood with millions of fresh new red blood corpuscles—gives the blood the carrying power to deliver every ounce of fat-making material in your food to every part of your body. Sargol, too, mixes with your food and prepares it for the blood in easily assimilated form. Thin people gain all the way from 10 to 25 pounds a month while taking Sargol, and the new flesh stays put. Sargol tablets are a scientific combination of six of the best flesh-producing elements known to chemistry. They come 40 tablets to a package, are pleasant, harmless and inexpensive, and all druggists in Peterborough and vicinity sell them subject to an absolute guarantee of weight increase or money back.

LULL IN FIGHTING ON WESTERN FRONT

ANOTHER BIG ACTION IMMINENT IN THE EAST

BELGIAN FORCE HAVE MADE SLIGHT GAINS

Otherwise There Has Been Little Fighting in the West According to To-day's Official News Which Speaks of a Lull in the Action—German Report Says British Were Unable to Advance Further.

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PARIS, France, March 12.—Official.—A lull in the fighting in the Champaign region and at almost every other point in the battle line,, was reported in the official despatches to the war office this afternoon. Two divisions of the Belgians gained from 400 to 500 yards at different points near the seacoast, notably in the direction of Schoorbakki, south east of Nieuport.

ANOTHER [illegible]

LONDON, March 12.—The sinking of another German submarine was reported to the Admiralty to-day by the owners of the trawler Alex. Chastie. They telegraphed from North Shields that the submarine was fouled by the ropes of the trawler in the North Sea and foundered in twenty minutes with all on board.

BRITAIN'S ANSWER

WASHINGTON, March 12. — Britain's answer to the American note suggesting that Germany and the allies restrict the sea area of their operations, and that England permit the passage of food intended for Germany's civilian population, will be handed to Ambassador Page in London to-day or to-morrow. The officials here say that in effect it will be a refusal.

AN IMMEDIATE ISSUE

WASHINGTON, March 12.—It is understood that the cabinet meeting to-day agreed that the United States must make the sinking of the Frye an immediate issue and not allow it drag along interminably.

It affords the first concrete case where the Government can define its absolute abhorrence of what this government has not hesitated to characterize as "legalized piracy," the wanton destruction of merchant vessels by belligerent powers and interference with neutral vessels proceeding to and from neutral ports. Therefore it will be made the reason for a definite declaration by the United States of its position regarding the dootrine of the right of might on the high seas.

CAPTURED ANOTHER VILLAGE

LONDON, March 12.—In an official report dealing with the British operations around Neuve Chappelle, General French reported further successes in the fighting between Armentierres and Labassee, including the capture of the village of Lepinette. He also described the British attack that resulted in the capture of Neuve Chappelle on Wednesday. All day Thursday and Thursday night the Germans made counter attacks but were beaten off, the British taking 810 prisoners. During the operations on Thursday night the third army corps occupied Lepinette.

THE GERMAN STATEMENT

BERLIN, March 12.—The German Statement says:

"The fighting still continues around Labassee, but the British who occupied Neuve Chappelle have been unable to advance their lines. The French have abandoned their offensive movements in the Champaign region. In the Vosges heavy snows are hindering operations."

NO INQUEST WILL BE HELD

Into the Death of Mr. Thos. McClelland in the Nicholls Hospital

It has been decided that no inquest will be necessary with regard to the death of Mr. Thomas McClelland, which took place at Nicholls Hospital yesterday morning under very sad circumstances. Dr. Greer, the coroner, who was called to view the body, being satisfied as to the cause of death being self destruction when in a despondent state of mind. About 4.45 a.m. while the nurse was out of the room, he apparently got out of bed, and making his way to where he had a razor in his club bag, secured it and returned to the bedside, where in a kneeling position he inflicted injuries on his throat which caused death by bleeding within a very few minutes. He could not have more than completed the act when the nurse heard him, and going into the room found him bleeding to death.

Deceased was apparently in the best of spirits on the afternoon and evening before, and no one had the least suspicion that he contemplated such a deed. He was not suffering from any disease from which he would not be expected to recover in a short time.

There are circumstances in connection with this death which are very sad. The late Mr. McClelland was to have been married to a lady in Monaghan last Saturday and owing to his illness this had to be postponed. He has been living in the vicinity of Fort McMurray, Sask., for the past fifteen years, where he was very successful as a fur trader. This was the third trip he had made east to be married and each of the other times something had happened which caused a further postponement. The date was set for Saturday last and a few days previous he took ill with jaundice and was removed to the hospital. The lady he was to have married was a widow and when she was married to her husband about six weeks he met death through an accident with a circular saw.

Mr. McClelland had been getting along nicely and the afternoon before his death was the first time he had been able to sit up since the beginning of his illness. He seemed particularly cheerful and chatty and contemplated being out in a short time. He was naturally a little weary after sitting up for the first time and appeared to sleep well all night.

MRS. JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER DEAD

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, March 12.—Mrs. John D. Rockefeller died at Pocantico Hills early to-day. The wife of the world's richest man has been ill for weeks, suffering from anaemia and other ailments. She was precariously ill for a time last summer, and it was on this account, in a large measure, that Rockefeller moved from Cleveland to Pocantica Hills, N.Y.

The Rockefellers were married in 1864. Mrs. Rockefeller was aged 75, and was Miss Laura C. Spellman.

MORE LOCAL BOYS OFF FOR THE FRONT

Twenty-two Recruits of 26th Overseas Battery Leave For Kingston —Escorted to the Station by the 39th Battalion.

NO BAND ON HAND

Twenty-two more Peterborough boys who have heard the Empire's wide call, "Your King and country need you,' started their journey to the front this morning, when the first draft of recruits for the 26th overseas battery left for Kingston. The send-off to the artillerymen was a quiet one, compared to the demonstrations on the departure of other quotas. For some reason the 57th band was not on hand, and without the martial music there was a quietness about the affair that contrasted strongly [illegible] farewell to the Mounted Rifles last week. Only two members of the band put in an appearance.

The artillerymen fell in at the armouries at 7.40 and escorted by the local company of the 39th Battalion at full strength, and with Captain Spencer and Lieut. Cameron in charge, marched to the G.T.R. station. The soldiers made up for the absence of the band by lustily singing "Tipperary" and whistling "The Maple Leaf," as they marched along, while the query, "Are we down-hearted?" brought forth a chorus of "No" that woke up the late sleepers along the route.

A number of friends of the boys had gathered at the station and the few minutes before the train left were spent in saying good-bye. The battery men and the 39th Battalion boys exchanged wishes about meeting in Berlin. "Petawawa's more likely first," said one private. As the train pulled out three hearty cheers were given for the artillery men.

It is understood that the battery will be mobilized at Kingston and do some preliminary training there, after which it will be mobilized with the brigade at Ottawa and then probably go to Petawawa camp.

Major Hall will continue to take recruits in Peterborough. In addition to those who went this morning, five more have been sworn in, making twenty-seven in all and there are a number of applicants yet to be examined. Another draft will be sent to Kingston in a few days. There are no facilities for artillery training here, so that it is the intention to keep sending the men to Kingston until further orders are received. The 26th Battery will go overseas with the third contingent.

Presentation To Mr. Nicholls

Choir Leader of Mark St. Choir Receives a Purse of Gold

An interesting event took place at the close of the weekly practice of the Mark Street Methodist church choir last evening, when Mr. A. Nicholls the choir leader and organist, was presented with a purse of gold from the choir as a mark of appreciation of his services. Accompanying the gift was the following address, to which Mr. Nicholls replied in a neat speech:

We, the members of the choir, have been desirous for some time to let you know how much we appreciate the valuable service you have so cheerfully rendered.

We do not for one moment intend to attempt to express in words or by gift, the feelings of gratitude we feel.

But it is desired that in some way you should be given to understand the place you occupy among the members of the choir, and also the congregation of Mark Street church. You have never hesitated in giving your time and talents to the advancement of the choir and this has all been done in a spirit which makes us feel that you were actuated only by the most unselfish and generous motives.

We therefore desire you to accept this purse of gold as an indication or token of our appreciation of your work.

May you long be spared to lead in the songs of praise with Mark Street choir and congregation.

The secret of the quality in "SALADA" packets is in the immensity of the sales. The more people who buy "SALADA," the smaller becomes the necessary profit per pound, and consequently, the greater value it is possible to give you for your money. MAJOR HALL WILL COMMAND NEW BATTERY

Officer Commanding the 24th Battery Receives Word That He Has Been Appointed to Overseas Forces

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

Major Gerald R. Hall, of Peterborough, Officer Commanding the 24th Battery, Canadian Field Artillery, received official word yesterday that he has been appointed to the command of the 26th Overseas Battery which is being mobilized at Kingston. Major Hall, who is a son of ex-City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall, is a graduate of the Royal Military College, Kingston, and joined the 24th Field Battery and subaltern in 1905. He was made captain in 1906, and acted in that capacity for several years. Afterwards he was absent from Peterborough for a number of years, but rejoined the battery three years ago. For the past two years he has commanded the 24th Battery. Capt. C. P. Fee, second in command of the battery, is now in England as second in command of the 22nd Overseas Battery, while Lt.-Col. Young, officer commanding the 10th Artillery Brigade of which the 24th forms a part is surgean with the Divisional Engineers in Ottawa.

It is understood that Capt. W. C. Ackerman, of Peterborough, formerly of the 14th Field Battery, will take over the command of the 24th Battery.

Recruits are still coming in for the local company of the 39th Battalion, and at noon to-day the company's strength was 126 men, 36 more than the Peterborough quota in the 2nd contingent.

Peterborough has recruited 200 men for the third contingent so far and the supply is evidently not exhausted yet, judging by the applications for positions in the 26th Battery.

KINGSTON, March 11.—Fifteen recruits for the 8th Mounted Rifles left the city to-day at 2.45 via the C.N.R. for Ottawa. This is the balance of the recruits secured in Kingston and Frontenac for this mounted corps. The 8th are over strength, but all recruits will be mobilized at the capital and kept long enough for the commanding officer of the corps to select the most likely among them for cavalry work.

The local company of the 39th Battalion had a five mile route march this morning.

BANK CLEARINGS FOR WEEK

The Bank clearings for the week ending yesterday totalled $375,395, an increase over last week of $63,511. The corresponding week, last month, the clearings were $300,460.

OPENING OF THE TRENT CANAL

Is Looked For at an Early Date So Far as Vessels of Light Draught is Concerned, Says Federal Member.

SUBMARINE DREDGING

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., is responsible for the statement that the Trent Canal from Peterborough to Trenton will be open for vessels of light draught next spring, and in all probability for full draught also. The only delay might be due to the submarine dredging respecting the Rogers contract, which the Government is hastening. The completion of the contract is not necessary to develop the canal for light draught purposes, this summer.

At the present time the canal is [illegible] Lake Simcoe to Healey Falls, so that the contract referred to takes in that portion from the Falls to Trenton, where the canal opens out into the Bay of Quinte. The canal is 300 miles long from Georgian Bay to Trenton, only about twenty miles of this distance is actual canal.

Thieving In South End

Clothes-Line Was Stripped—Police Have Been Notified

Clothes-line thieves are operating in the south end of the city. One place in particular that has been victimized is that of the McNicholl family, 127 Romaine Street. A big family washing was arrayed on the line and in order to give the clothes a chance to bleach, was left out over night. By next morning the clothes-line had been stripped, with the exception of a few odds and ends, also a couple of nurse's uniforms, belonging to a member of the family. The footprints in and around the line were small and might have belonged to a boy or woman. The clothing that was removed consisted of sheets bed spreads, etc., all bearing the initials of Mrs. McNicholl. That the robbery was systematically carried out is evidenced by the fact that the thieves took care to select nothing but the best that was on the line. They also avoided the nurse's uniforms. This is only one of many such incidents that have occurred in that neighbourhood. The police have been notified and steps taken to round up the offenders.

Woman Prisoner In Jail As Vagrant, To S. A. Rescue Home

Mrs. McElhiney left this morning for Toronto in charge of Mary Duncan, who will be placed in the Salvation Army rescue home. This is the latest of quite a number of these cases, and the Army has in each instance relieved the city at a trifling cost. These young women are retained at the Rescue Home for almost a year, and are taught all the details of household science, the care of children, and in fact fit the young women to such an extent that they may become independent when they are ready to depart. The Attorney General in this case ordered that the young woman be removed from the jail provided she would go to the Salvation Army Home. She finally agreed to this, and both the city and county are considerably relieved and with practically no cost to either municipality.

ANOTHER BIG BATTLE DEVELOPING IN EAST

Germans Are Pressing Forward to Attack Russian Fortress of Pultusk—They Must First Recapture Przasnysz and Sweep Czar's Army Back Twenty-five Miles.

(Special Cable to The Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, March 12.—The greatest battle since the Mazurian lakes fighting is now developing around Przasnysz, the war office admitted to-day.

The Germans, pressing in upon the fortified towns from the north and west, are already in contact with the Russian columns that pursued the enemy out of Prasnysz eight days ago.

The main objective of the new German offensive is the fortress of Pultusk. Pultusk lies thirty miles north of Warsaw, commanding the [illegible] the Russian capital leading southward along the Narew. To reach it the Kaiser's forces must recapture Przasnysz and sweep the Grand Duke's armies southward for a distance of 25 miles.

New guns have been mounted at Przasnysz since the Russians recaptured the town. These command the three roads approaches from Chorzele, Mlava and the Orzec River. The most furious fighting in the next few days is expected in the region between Mlava and the Orzec.

SHELLING THE GERMANS

BERLIN, via wireles to Sayville, March 12.—Two British warships, accompanied by several torpedo boats, hurled more than 70 shells upon the German positions at Westende, on the Belgian seacoast, the war office announced to-day.

SAY PARTY WAS REPULSED

CONSTANTINOPLE, via Berlin, wireless, March 12.—An English landing party composed of from one to two thousand men, was repulsed at the Dardanelles, and forced to retire to the warships, according to despatches received here to-day. A number of British soldiers were killed. The war office announces that the bombardment of the Turkish forts continues without effect.

BRIGHT COLOURS PREDOMINATE AT CRESSMANS' MILLINERY OPENING

Influence of the War is Shown by Military Designs and Hues—Wide Latitude in Millinery Offerings Although Small Shapes Have Preference.

HOUSEHOLD FURNISHINGS

Cressman's Spring millinery opening reflects the influence of war, but the new fashion creators have used it as an impetus and inspiration for decidedly novel and bright effects in striking contrast to the limited ideas that prevailed a year ago. The prominence of black and white that reigned so completely last Easter, has been reduced almost to the vanishing point, with a result that admits a profusion of colours that harmonize with the chromatics of of Spring. There is brightness on every hand, suggestive of the vernal blooms and the range of effects allows a wide selection from which individual tastes should be easily pleased.

The millinery designs manifest a preference for small shapes, but they also include medium and larger models. Nearly all of them permit the hair to be shown above the face, thus providing a relief from the close-fitting hats that have too long held sway. Miss Launderville is in charge of the Millinery Department of the Cressman Store, and on the first day of the opening, yesterday, made a good impression by the extensive display of the new fashions. Poke effects are a feature and military sailors are also widely shown. A torpedo design is a novelty that mirrors the war's influence in the world of fashions, and there are also other ideas showing the same trend. In the trimmings, flowers, fruit and ribbons are used generously and with striking effects. Many of the millinery creations, especially in the medium sizes, have streamers that add a note of gaiety to the display. The predominating shades are Belgian blue, battleship grey, military red, Russian green, navy blue, sand and putty. The trimming hues favour old rose, Tipperary green, cerise and purple. But as already mentioned the millinery dictates are rather lax and individual tastes will be permitted considerable latitude in their selections.

Suits and Dress Goods.

Kitchener, Tipperary and Russian suits are three of the leading models shown in this department, and more man might be lead to the opinion that the new designs show considerable improvement. Gone are the bobbles. The skirts are much wider, and many have flares that enhance the effect. Some are quite plain, but many have inverted plaits and panel fronts. The Russian suit secures its name from the Russian blouse idea. The Kitchener shows the straighter military lines. Invariably the coats are of hip length only. The cloths employed are tweeds, serges, gabardines, basket and covert cloth in shades of sand, putty, battleship grey, Belgian and Marine blue.

Black and white stripes and checks are quite prominent in dress goods materials and will undoubtedly be widely selected. The colours are for the most part, those of the suits, and the same applies to the materials to which may be added new weaves and tints in crepes and other light-weight fabrics.

Ladies who wear smart clothes will like the new striped and checked wool velour coats either in the web or already made up. Generally speaking the outlook is for a decidedly bright Easter, in so far as Miladi's Spring raiment may contribute. There are no signs of depression and gloom, but quite the reverse, and Cressman's store provides a very extensive range. The bright Spring colourings should have a decidedly helpful effect in the promotion of the idea "business as usual," if not better.

The Other Departments.

In preparation for the annual house renovation, to which every home, or nearly every home, will be submitted in the near future, the Cressman store has made special provision. New wall paper designs, draperies, carpets, and rugs are shown in an abundance of materials and designs. New scrims of Marquisette and Madras, and novelty curtains are some of the latest ideas, and in the whole house furnishing field the store has been specially stocked for the Spring trade. The new furniture department indicates expectations of business better than usual, and purchasers will find particular accommodation in the convenient arrangement of the House Furnishings and furniture departments on the third and fourth floors. The Victrola section is most inviting, with a big supply of instruments which should have a strong appeal for Spring and Summer enjoyment.

"DUSTING AWAY."

Mr. Sinclair, of Guysborough, speaking in the House of Commons in the budget debate, showed how partisanship was employed to influence public opinion. He said that in spite of the political truce, some of the more practical politicians of the Government party had flooded the country with campaign literature. In one campaign pamphlet it was claimed that the Borden Government knew that the war was coming for the past two years. What object there could be in making such an idiotic statement, is not to be easily seen. For if it were true it condemns the Government for neglect of duty. If it knew that the war was only two years away, why did the Government dismantle Canada's only naval cruiser, the Niobe, to be hastily refitted, repaired and remanned, when the war actually broke out? If, as claimed, the Borden Government knew two years before hand that there would be war, they neglected their duty in failing to make the slightest preparations? If the Government had seen so far ahead, why had they not provided army boots, rifles, army clothing, and other military supplies? If they knew why did they neglect to provide boots, in time and, to obviate the necessity of a rush, when the necessity came, to furnish rotten boots for the soldiers? If the Borden Government knew the war was coming, why didn't it prepare our finances for the expected strain? Instead of that the Government "dashed away and spent the money," as cheerfully and thoughtlessly as if war was a great revenue producer. There have been no great public works to demand public money the past two years; yet in the face of the Borden Government's knowledge that the war was coming, the Government his increased the cost of the public services chargeable revenue in the short course of three years fifty-three millions. In 1911, when the present Government took power, the cost of the services chargeable to revenue, was 87¾ millions; next year, with the war only a year away, the cost had jumped to 127½ millions; and with the war at hand, the total will be 140 millions at the end of this month. That is only a sample of what is occurring in every department of the public service. The Borden Government with even a two-years' advance "tip" of the war, was not ready financially, but has to resort to what it calls a war tax, which consists in penalising every consumer in Canada for the bentfit of highly protected manufacturers, and in placing a tax barrier against British goods imported into Canada.

THE BUDGET AND LOYALTY.

The friends of the Borden Government are inclined to regard criticism of the budget by Liberal members in Parliament as a breach of the political truce. The political truce holds good. The Liberal members of Parliament voted as readily and unanimously as the Goverament supporters for Canada's contribution to prosecuting the war. That is non-partizan support of the principle of Canada giving assistance. We have voted some one hundred and fifty millions for war purposes—to help the Empire and Great Britain has loaned the money, we assuming responsibility for the payment of interest and the repayment of the principle. The budget is not a war measure except in an incidental sense; it is an expedient to increase revenue that has fallen off naturally as a result of the conditions brought about by war now so extensively prevailing in Europe. And while Liberals vote for liberal expenditure by Canada in the interests of helping Britain wage war, they do not thereby forfeit the right to criticise the budget—to consider whether the budget is a help or a hindrance to the promotion of the interests of the Empire in this crisis. We all willingly consent to sending men, and spending money to equip men, as a direct form of help to the Empire. But men alone are not all in waging war. There is the need of money, which in the final analysis is the price of victory. Great Britain is employing the billions of dollars invested in her fleets, and millions of dollars every day to protect her trade, as the chief element in promoting her success in the war. Naturally Canada would help promote this trade. She would do it from gratitude for the money flowing from the fruits of British trade, is placed freely at the disposal of Canada, as the means we could not otherwise have of helping in the war. Yet we, in devising a budget in the name of loyalty to the Empire, put a discriminating tax against British goods—treat Great Britain as an alien and an enemy by devising means of hampering trade between the two countries. Can Canada consider herself truly loyal to British and imperial interests of she allows, or allows, without protest, the government of the country to tax British goods coming into Canada. We, in Canada, gained great credit for practical loyalty and bona fide interest in the imperial partnership when we gave a substantial tariff preference to Great Britain, and imposed a substantial surtax on German goods in the interests of promoting trade with Britain. Now, when Britain needs every trade advantage, and has a right to expect increased trade preference from Canada, we find Canada in Britain's time of need, in her hour of trial and stress; in her battle for national existence, practically placing the German surtax of twenty years ago against British goods imported into Canada. And yet we must not discuss a budget that does that; a budget intended as a war help, but operating as a war hindrance. We cannot very well continue to assert our loyalty with our lips, when we practice disloyalty by act of Parliament—deliberately and of malice aforethought.

A LONDON VIEW OF THE BUDGET.

We are strongly of the opinion that this addition to the cost of living in a new country where prices are already very high will cause much hardships and discontent. Many of these taxes are protective, so that the revenue secured will be much less than the burden imposed upon consumers. But in Canada manufacturing interests are powerful enough to extract advantage even from the embarassments and difficulties of the nation.—London Economist.

ADDS TO THE SACRIFICE.

"The real effect of the tariff," Dr. Clark declared, "will be to raise the cost of living to every man, woman, and child in Canada. It will fill up the fortunes of a limited class at a time when everyone else is learning to suffer patiently. When every other citizen of Canada is learning to spell and write in blood and tears the word "sacrifice," the grim, gaunt, greedy figure of the tariff beneficiary stands with his hand held out for subsidy. We, on this side of the House are glad to stand with those who suffer. At a time when British trade is saving the civilization of the world honourable gentlemen opposite think it is opportune to put obstructions against that trade and add further to the burdens of our people. "It is there we take issue with them."

A CONSERVATIVE VIEW OF THE BUDGET.

While most of the Conservative papers have been chiding Liberals for daring to be so "unpatriotic" as to criticise the Budget, the Ottawa Citizen (Independent Conservative) comes out with a columu article roundly abusing them for not opposing the Budget proposals tooth and nail! It declares that "the increased customs taxes are not to raise war revenue but to subsidise privileged interests," and it virtually appeals to the Liberal party to haul down the flag of truce and use its utmost power to save the country from such "outrageous taxation at such a time." We gather from this article that the Liberals will be recreant to Empire, recreant to the Dominion and recreant to Liberal principles, if they do not mobilise their forces and deliver a smashing blow at the Borden administration. Here are some of this Conservative journal's observations on the Budget:

Taking advantage of the war—while the Motherland is fighting for its very existence as a nation—the protected interests in Canada have presumably forced the present frankly protectionist government to increase the custom tax against British trade.

The most patriotic service any party could give to Canada and the Empire today would be to put the free trade axe to the insidious growth of corruption, too long nourished and sheltered behind the protective tariff in this Dominion.

The present "War Budget" has mutilated the preference absolutely out of recognition. Tariff barriers are now so high against British imports that the very use of the term preference by protectionist Canada is a piece of political cant.

We venture to think there will be many Conservatives who will feel the same way about what the Citizen calls this "outrageous taxation" when the Budget really begins to get in its fine work.—Montreal Herald-Telegraph.

An Interesting Report of Red Cross Activities and Interests

TORONTO, March 11—The report of the work of the joint committee of the British Red Cross Society and the order of St. John of Jerusalem during the first six months of the war, which was issued recently, is an intensely interesting document, and will be read with interest by all supporters of these societies in Canada. It points out that at present the society has on its list some 705 auxiliary home hospitals, containing 19,576 beds, the bulk of which have been organized, opened, and staffed by voluntary aid detachments under the control of the military authorities.

Immediately upon the outbreak of war the societies received offers of convalescent homes for soldiers and sailors. In all, these have amounted to provision of 21,330 beds.

An interesting account is given of the work of the Voluntary Aid Detachment rest station at Boulogne, which has been doing invaluable work, the extent of which may be gauged from the fact that on November 22,300 wounded were fed during the day, and over 200 dressings were done in the waggons. During the three months the unit has been working food has been supplied to 36,000 wounded.

The report details foreign service undertaken by the Red Cross workers in Belgium and France. Two units have been sent to Serbia, which has suffered terribly during the war, and one to Montenegro. Both these little countries have witnessed the most appalling devastation and until Lady Paget went out to Serbia with a number of nurses and doctors, the wounded were dying in the streets of Belgrade. The Serbian Relief Fund, of which Sir Edward Boyle, Bart., is the Treasurer, has been able to come to the rescue of this little kingdom, but they are still in a pitiable plight and need all sorts of medical and other supplies as well as warm clothing of every description. Those who are interested in Serbia or feel for her terrible state may send subscriptions to Sir Edward Boyle, at 63, Queen's Gate, London, England.

The report states that during the six months 170 hospitals have been supplied with nurses and 450 requests for nurses have been met, some of them within an hour. Up to now, about 300 convalescent officers have been sent to convalescent homes. About 25 officers, some of them with their wives, have been sent to Wengen, in Switzerland, their travelling expenses and hotel accommodation being provided. Hospitality has been arranged for in London and different parts of the country for a number of Belgian officers, and their families, and the joint committee has handed over to the Belgian government a house with 400 beds.

This house is now used as King Albert's hospital, as well as another large house containing 300 bedrooms, which will be used as a convalescent home for Belgian soldiers. In round figures the stores department has made purchases to the amount of $101,170. The Red Cross Society is continuously providing the many authorised hospitals in England, in which British and Belgian wounded are being treated with the supplies they need.

These facts will give the people of Canada an idea of the stupendous amount of labour that is entailed in connection with providing for the wounded and convalescent soldiers, and the large amount of money and supplies that are required in order that the work may be satisfactorily carried on. As the war progresses the wounded will increase in numbers and still more supplies and warm clothing, etc., will be needed. The Society is sure that the appeals it is making to the Canadian public will be answered with the generous spirit that has been evidenced ever since the outbreak of war. The Society will continue to appeal to the Canadian people as long as the war lasts and as long as supplies and money are needed.

Through the channels of the public press, which has splendidly supported the society both in the publication of news and in the organization of meetings, etc., the people of this country will be brought face to face with conditions as they really exist at the front and in the hospitals throughout Great Britain and France They will be able to see for themselves what is needed and now that so many of our men are at the front the appeal will come home with greater force than ever before.

In connection with comforts and supplies, etc., that are sent to the soldiers in England or overseas by parties in Canada, the following information from Colonel Hodgetts, Canadian Commissioner of the Red Cross in London, is of interest, Colonel Hodgetts says:

"It must be stated for the information of the senders in Canada, that this office assumes no responsibilities for their safe delivery to the parties for whom they are intended. Our responsibilities cease with the delivery of the goods into the hands of the railway authorities. Further, our Canadian friends must understand that all railways of the War Office, and the delivery of goods often is delayed, and the railway authorities, themselves, will not guarantee the delivery of goods.

"In every case," continues Col. Hodgetts," we notify by letter the party to whom goods are shipped, and we have had instances of goods being shipped to Salisbury and upon hearing they have not been received have found that they have been delivered by the railway to Amesbury or some other station."

The Canadian Red Cross Society desires to point out that those who send comforts for the troops or supplies for the wounded and sick, should do so through the society, which will see that they reach their destination. It is not advisable for anyone to send supplies to individual soldiers, but they should be sent to the different provincial branches, or to the head office at 77 King street, East, Toronto.

"EXPLAINING" TO THEIR MASTERS.

The representative of East Middlesex in the House of Commons lets the cat out of the bag. Loyal Tory though he is, he supported the Government's increase of the customs tax against British trade. With more frankness than Hon. W. T. White, he told the reason why. "If the Minister of Finance had done otherwise," said Mr. Frank Glass, "we couldn't explain ourselves to the manufacturers of this country."

There you have it. The privileged and protected manufacturers! The men who bolted their political creed for the sake of their pockets! The Big Interests that made W. T. White "Hon."! The men who publicly shouted their loyalty to Britain, but demanded pledges that British trade would be burdened for their benefit! Those men now insist upon their pound of flesh. "If the Minister of Finance had done otherwise we couldn't explain ourselves to the manufacturers of this country." No, of course "we couldn't." There's the rub.

Perhaps the farmers and the trades people and the salaried workers and the wage-earners, all who truly love Canada and all who sincerely love Britain—perhaps all these will demand explanations.

Who are the masters of the Government? The handful of Privileged Interests? Or the people? No man can serve two masters: not even the Minister of Finance. The signs and tokens of his servitude are plain enough.—The Globe.

At the Theatres

THE EMPIRE.

Mary Pickford and Owen Moore are back at the Empire for the rest of the week and are shown in a film of gorgeous setting, entitled, "Mistress Nell." It is a story of the days of Charles II and his favourite. The costumes of the Stuart times are apparently reproduced in minuted detail, making an unusually beautiful film. Mistress Nell has a stormy passage to win a decision over her enemies in the court, but she succeeds and Miss Pickford presents her as a very charming Nell. The rest of the bill is also good.

Lillico, the Charlotte Street grocer, has purchased the property at 344 Charlotte Street, known as the Lytle property, and will build a large, modern store of a nature that will enable him to cater even more efficiently than formerly to the needs of the west part of the city. The deal was put through by Mr. A. Brown.

RUMOURS ARE CONTRADICTORY

Italy's Position Regarding the War Still Clouded in Doubt

LONDON, March 12.—Contradictory reports are in circulation in diplomatic circles in London concerning the question of Italy's position in the war.

Officials of neutral countries who have arrived here from Berlin declare that appearances in the German capital indicate Italy's approaching entry into the conflict, while others assert that an arrangement virtually has been reached under which Italy will not intervene on any side.

It is said that members of the Ministry of the Netherlands decline to discuss the war situation, except to reiterate that Holland remains absolutely neutral.

Baron von Muller, the German Minister at The Hague, who is suffering from insomnia, will remain at his post until Easter, when he leaves to take the cure. It was reported recently that the acting Minister of the Netherlands probably will be Dr. von Lyncker, who was attached to the legation at Brussels until the outbreak of the war.

Germans Are Still Strong

Stories of Depletion Not True, Declares Eye Witness

LONDON, March 12.—The official military observer at the British headquarters in the field says, in a report given out here yesterday, that there is no truth in statements to the effect that the German ranks in the west have been depleted generally and to a marked extent.

"The plain truth is that, although the enemy's effectives in the west are much reduced and ours increased, he is still holding an enormous extent of front, as well as carrying out operations on a huge scale in the east," the report continues. "No signs of weakening are yet visible in the morale of the German troops as a whole. There is as yet no reason why an intensely brave, determined and well organized army like that of the Germans should feel discouraged."

Defeated Piute Indians.

BLUFF, Utah, March 12.—Twenty deputies sent by U. S. Marshal Nebeker to a ranch near here, fought and won a skirmish with a band of Piute Indians, the deputies reported to Nebeker. The deputies fought to save a party of three men, two women and several children who had taken refuge in a ranch house while fleeing to Bluff.

FRANCE FACES RENT PROBLEM

PARIS, March 11.—Paris, which has ever been the centre of the world's rental disturbances, is facing at the present moment as a result of the war the most critical problem it has yet encountered.

So acute has become the tension between landlords and tenants that anonymous letters to the Parisian press are calling attention to the fact that it was on the question of rents that the commune had its origin in 1871. Letters have been sent to the papers declaring that if the tenants are forced to pay their rents the "public will witness an incendiary fire of the 'boxes' of the Parisian landlords."

While letters of this nature are few and admittedly do not reflect in the least degree even a small percentage of public opinion, the question has nevertheless become second only after that of the national defense. The inability of the majority of renters to pay and the insistence of the proprietors that they cannot exist without their rents has resulted in a universal appeal to parliament for a solution of the situation.

Problem all Over France.

While the problem is especially acute in Paris, the same situation applies with more or less force to all of France, and parliament is facing the necessity of finding a remedy that will apply to the entire country. So far, a number of experimental reliefs have been put into effect by the government, but these, instead of alleviating the situation, have only increased the discontent of the proprietors and tenants.

With the declaration of war the government extended a moratorium to all soldiers serving under the colours. This provided that they should not be obliged to pay their rents until after the war. From time to time this benefit has been extended in whole or in part to other classes. The last decree gave the extension of time to the widows and families of officers killed during he war.

The Government, however, quickly found itself unable to limit this prorogation of rent day merely to the families of soldiers. The financial, commercial, and industrial stringency entailed by the war brought forth such a universal cry for help from renters generally, but the small ones particularly, that the government could not possibly turn a deaf ear.

This came to a climax with the return of the government to Paris from Bordeaux and which, the citizens of Paris insisted, resulted in an increase in their cost of living.

Adopts Relief Measure.

As a measure of relief the government prorogated the rent day for all tenants paying between $120 and $500 a year from Jan. 1 to March 1. Exceptions are only to be made in cases where the proprietors are able to establish a court of justice that the tenants are able to pay.

To all these measures in favour of the renters the proprietors have opposed the most bitter resistance.

In an effort to appease the proprietors the government provided that the renters who came under the benefits of the moratorium should pay at least per cent. of the rent in order to enable the proprietors to meet their fixed expenses. The latter, however, remained as discontented as before. Ten to fifteen per cent of the rentals is necessary, they insist, to meet these fixed charges.

Want Rentals Cut.

Now, to complicate the situation, a practically universal demand has gone up from all France for the enactment of a law that will reduce all rentals one-third for the period of the war. "What will it mean to us," write the soldiers from the trenches, "that we may one day participate in that greatest event in the history of France — the marching home under the Arch of Triumph with the fatherland safe at last—if upon our arrival home we are to find awaiting us the payment of accumulated rents that will crush the life out of us for years to come?"

As before, the landlords are putting up a fierce fight against this new demand. Their objection that the interest and payment on their mortgages will have to be made just the same has been met by the promise to reduce also all interests and mortgage payments one-third for the period of the war.

MRS. CUMMINGS MET EXECUTIVE OF LOCAL COUNCIL

On Tuesday evening, March 9th, the Executive committee of the Local Council of Women met Mrs. Willoughby Cummings in the drawing room of the Y.W.C.A.

This was an informal meeting for the discussion of various phases of work in which the Women's Council is interested and much valuable detail was obtained from Mrs. Cummings, who is an authority on women's work in general.

The large attendance of members of the Executive committee, and the intelligent interest shown in the questions asked, was most gratifying to Mrs. Cummings and to Mrs. Neal, President of the Local Council of Women.

The work of the Council in the near future will undoubtedly reflect the stimulus of Mrs. Cummings' two meetings in Peterborough.

A musical programme contributed by members of the Morning Musical Club added to the pleasure of the evening.

Mrs. Cummings and Mrs. Neal are now attending the meetings of the Executive committee of the National Council in Ottawa.

Shrewd Shoppers will find this season's D & A & La Diva Corsets compare more favorably than ever with imported ones.

TARIFF UNDER DEBATE.

Conservatives Reiterate National Policy to Support Budget.

OTTAWA, March 12.—The debate on the Laurier amendment to the budget was resumed yesterday afternoon, speeches being made by Messrs. Sinclair (Guysboro), Glass (E. Middlesex), Loggie (Northumberland), Bowman (E. Huron), and Copp (Westmoreland).

Mr. Sinclair said he favored an income tax which would compel the millionaires of Canada to do something more for the Empire than singing the National Anthem. He criticised the conditions at Valcartier camp and the delay in sending the first contingent to the present war.

Mr. Glass said he had yet to hear any complaints from Britain respecting the small increase in tariff duties. The new budget, he said, gave the British importer a greater preference over his foreign competitor than he had had before.

Mr. Loggie referring to some comments made by Mr. Glass on the reciprocity issue observed that reciprocity would not be an issue at the next election. The Underwood tariff had admitted the natural products of the Maritime Provinces to the American market free of duty.

Mr. Bowman followed with a defence of the national policy. The people of Canada, he said, unmistakably declared themselves in favor of a protective tariff at the general elections of 1878, 1891 and 1911. Even in 1896 the Liberals had only been able to carry the country by giving a secret undertaking to the manufacturers that the protective tariff would be maintained.

"No letter has been received from the Auditor-General threatening to stop further credits as reported in the papers a few days ago," is the statement made in a memorandum laid on the table of the Commons yesterday and signed by J. W. Borden, Paymaster-General of the Militia Department, and H. W. Brown, director of contracts.

BLAMES HIS COMPANIONS.

Would-Be Dynamiter Says He Was Urged To Make Attempt.

COBALT, March 12.—No satisfactory ground as to the motive of Thos. Szyszkoe in attempting to blow up the Nipissing powder house can be secured by the provincial police up to the present. He persists that the other two men in custody jointly kept urging him for two days to commit the deed; but he was sober then, and when he did make the attempt he had been drinking.

"They just told me to go and do it for fun," said the prisoner.

About 150 cases of explosive powder was in the Nipissing power house, amounting to over eight thousand sticks of dynamite at the time the fuse was lit and burned itself out.

The penalty in a case of this kind is said to be life imprisonment.

France Will Lend To Allies.

PARIS, March 12. — The budget committee has asked that consideration be taken at next week's session of the Chamber of Deputies of its reports proposing that the sum of 1,350,000,000 francs (approximately $270,000,000) be advanced to the allies or to Belgium; increasing to four and a half milliards of francs ($900,000,000), the limit of issuance of treasury bonds, and also proposing that advances repayable at the chambers of commerce be made for the purchase of grain and supplies for the civil population.

BIG SHIPMENT OF SUPPLIES

The largest shipment of supplies ever sent from the offices of the Canadian Red Cross Society, larger by fifty cases than the last shipment of 500 which was up to that time the record, left the head office in this city a few days ago en route for Halifax, where they will be shipped to England and distributed amongst the hospitals in England and France. The field comforts will be distributed to the men in the trenches through the War Contingent Association under the direction of Sir George Perley.

This enormous shipment of 550 cases comprised shipments from all parts of the country and were sent from the different local depots and provincial branches. From Calgary came 42 cases, from the Toronto branch 33 arrived, and 16 came from Vancouver as well as numbers of cases from numerous other towns throughout the Dominion.

Mr. R. E. F. Dalton, Manager of the Shipping Department, states that supplies are coming in in larger quantities than ever before, but still an enormous amount are still needed. He mentioned that the goods that left this city on the evening of February 5th, left Halifax on board the Hesperian on February 12, which clearly proves that no goods are kept on hand either in Toronto or Halifax longer than is absolutely necessary.

At a meeting of the Council of the Canadian Red Cross Society, which was held recently at headquarters, interesting reports were received from Colonel Hodgetts, Commissioner of the society in England, regarding the work of the society there and in France.

On the representation of Colonel Sir Henry Pellatt, C.V.O., Deputy Commissioner of the St. John's Ambulance Brigade in Canada, and on the recommendation of H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught, Grand Prior of the Order of St. John, a grant of $25,000 was made for the purpose of sending orderlies or male nurses to the front.

It was also resolved at the request of Lady Perrott, Chairman of the Nursing Department of the British Red Cross Society, to send abroad twenty nurses which may be increased to fifty at some later date. They will be supplied by various branches of the Red Cross Society in different cities of the Dominion who will select them and guarantee their expenses for one year.

Aunt Sally's Advice To Beauty Seekers

W. C. D. says: "My face is freckled the year round; nothing I try seems to help much. Is there anything that will really take off these horrid spots?" Have you tried the treatment recommended to Minnie L.? I've known this to remove very obstinate freckles.

Ellen B. asks: "What should I do for deep lines under my eyes and across my forehead?" Such lines, and all wrinkles, are best obliterated by bathing affected portions in a good astringent and tonic lotion, which strengthens and draws in the relaxed tissues. Here's a reliable formula: 1 oz. powdered saxolite, ½ pt. witch hazel; mix and use daily until entirely relieved.

Minnie L.: The undue redness as well as the pimples may easily be removed by using ordinary mercolized wax. Apply nightly like cold cream and erase mornings with warm water. Soon you'll have a beautifully white, clear, soft and velvety complexion. Mercolized wax, sold by all druggists, is better than connection for any complexion trouble. One ounce suffices for most conditions.—Woman's Realm.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Asphaltic Oil Being Considered For Use On the City Streets

Can be Applied at Lower Cost Than Water and Adds to Life of the Road—Board of Works Looking for Information

Street oiling held the attention of the members of the Board of Works during the greater part of the session last evening which was a fairly long one. As the Board of Works will need new tanks if the old system of using water on the streets is continued, it was thought that this was the proper time to get down to business and see if oiling would not fill the requirements more satisfactorily. New tanks would cost about $65.00 each and if it was decided to use oil these would not be necessary.

Owing to the very unsatisfactory results obtained from an experiment by the city a few years ago with a certain kind of oil the aldermen were dubious about trying anything more in that line without first being sure of the result.

A representative from a Toronto firm was present and addressed the meeting with respect to an asphaltic oil which was being used largely in Toronto, London, Brantford, Woodstock, Wiarton and Orillia. The 40 p.c. grade which he recommended for use here would cost the city 6 1-2 cents per Imperial gallon, in tank cars, f.o.b. Peterborough. This provides for using the oil cold only. To use it hot would entail an extra cost of about $3,000.00 for a plant when the 60 p.c. grade would be used at an additional cost of 1-2 cent per Imperial gallon.

The oil cannot be used successfully on the asphalt roads and these will have to be watered.

The following letter from the City Engineer to the Board is a good argument in favour of oil.

Chairmen and Members of the Board of Works:

Gentlemen:—I would call your attention to the advantages of the use of road oil as a dust layer in place of water. Briefly they are as follows:

1. About two applications per season are all that are required.
2. A number of expensive sprinklers are not required. An ordinary sprinkler can be converted into a machine for applying oil for about $160. Only one or two of these machines would be necessary.
3. Oil can be applied to hilly streets which are almost impossible to water.
4. With oil there are not certain periods of the day when streets are dried out and dusty as there are with water.
5. The oil forms a coating over the surface of the road making it nearly water tight and greatly helping to prolong its life. In my opinion this is a great advantage. As we all know the action of water is exactly the reverse of this.
6. The cost of oil will probably be higher the first year than water, but afterwards it will be a little less, owing to less oil being needed.

Our appropriation for street sprinkling is $6,000. $1,000 of this will be needed to sprinkle the central section and for alterations to the sprinklers, etc.

I estimate for $5,000 about 14 miles of street can be oiled for one season. Last year we sprinkled about 17 miles, exclusive of the central district. In order to keep within our appropriation it will be necessary to cut off about three miles of street that was sprinkled last year. Next year this could be added on and perhaps more, due to the lower cost of oiling the second and subsequent years.

I would strongly recommend the use of oil on our streets. It is not an experiment as it is being adopted by all progressive cities.

Yours truly,
R. H. PARSONS,
City Engineer.

It was decided that samples of oil should be secured and that the City Engineer write to London, Brantford and Orillia, with a view to learning what their experience had been with regard to trouble to auto tires and the difference between the respective costs of oil and water. The Board will go into the matter more thoroughly at their next meeting on March 17, when more information will be at hand.

WHAT CAUSES COLDS?

This question and "How to Prevent Colds" is asked a thousand times every day. A cold is really a fever, not always caused by the weather but due to a disordered condition of the blood or lack of important food-elements. In changing seasons fat-foods are essential because they distribute heat by enriching the blood and so render the body better able to withstand the varying elements.

This is the underlying reason why the medicinal fats in Scott's Emulsion quickly overcome colds and build strength to prevent more serious sickness. It contains nature's medicinal fats, so skillfully prepared that the blood profits from every drop, and it is totally free from harmful drugs.

20,000,000 PIGS TO BE KILLED OFF

Special Cable to The Examiner:

BERNE, March 12.—It is estimated that there are twenty million pigs in Germany, and the cry now raised is death to the pigs, because of the quantity of potatoes they consume. Calculated at only sixteen million the pigs must be killed at the rate of 40,000 daily, and their meat purchased by the various communes preserved. Each pig killed between now and mid-April, it is estimated, will ensure the existence of ten Germans until October.

39th's Concert Was A Success

Enjoyable Affair Held in the Collegiate Assembly Hall

The farewell concert of the 39th Battalion, in the Collegiate Assembly Hall, last evening, in aid of the funds of the Canadian Kitchener League, was a most enjoyable event, although the attendance was not as large as the nature and object of the affair merited. The short notice at which the concert was given and the number of counter attractions, kept many away who would otherwise have attended. The programme prepared was a varied and interesting one, and the various numbers were received with every indication of enjoyment. An especially meritorious number was the exhibition of physical exercise by a squad of ten members of the 39th Battalion in charge of Sergt.-Major Wilford. The exercises were carried through with a snap and precision that won hearty applause from the audience.

Fire Chief W. A. Howard made a very acceptable Chairman and the programme was as follows:

Selection — Saxaphone Quartette of the Temple Band.
Recitation—"The Sons of a Thousand Years."—Miss Black.
Physical drill—39th Squad, under Sergt. Major Wilford.
Duet—The Misses Clancy.
Address—Mayor Buller.
Song—"I Love a Lassie"—Mr. C. Coleman.
Song—"Take me Back to Canada"—Mr. Douglas Carlisle.
Sketch — "The Roll Call"—39th Squad, under Acting Q. M. S. Dodds.
Song—"The Veterans' Song"—Pte. George Lightheart.
Humorous Quartette — Hartshorn Brothers.
Song—"Let Me Like a Soldier Fall"—Mr. A. Lee.
Mandolin Duet—Cranfield Bros.
Song, "Tommy Atkins" Sergt.-Major Wilford.
Address — Mr. Meserve, Y.M.C.A. Secretary.
Specialty—"The Curate"—Mr. Fred Hartshorn.

Mayor Buller, in his address, gave an interesting account of his visit to the Peterborough boys in the 21st Battalion, at Kingston, and the 8th Mounted Rifles at Ottawa. In both instances he found them comfortably housed and well fed, while they held the highest regards of their officers. Capt. Gray, in command, of their Company at Kingston, wished he had a hundred more like them, while at Ottawa the officers were delighted with the men from Peterborough. "And we are no more proud of the boys who have gone than we are of these boys here, to-night, who are shortly to leave us," said Mayor Buller.

Refreshments were served by the ladies of the Kitchener League at the conclusion of the programme.

Pte. Harold Follis of the 39th presided at the piano for most of the numbers.

In fact the company is so strong in the merits of the play that they will refund the money to any that wish it after the performance.

The Pirate Chiefs Threaten Reprisals

Do Not Like Decision to Try Submarine Crews as Murderers

Special Cable to The Examiner:

BERLIN, via London, March 12.—In naval circles it is declared that a searching investigation would be instituted into the report that the British Admiralty intends to withhold the customary honorable imprisonment conditions from German submarine crews made captives, and that if Great Britain places such Germans under special restrictions retaliatory measures may be adopted.

The news officials say the investigation will not be made through diplomatic channels, but decline to specify how their information will be gleaned. They claim that should Great Britain take the action she contemplates this will not affect the submarine war plans in the slightest particular, nor have any influence on the spirit of the crews.

Kings Signs Orders For Reprisals Against Germany

United States Sointion For the Problem Meets With Little Favor In London, Where It Is Asked If the Republic Will Enforce Germany's Promise Not to Take Foodstuffs for Troops

LONDON, March 13.—Great Britain's plan to give effect to the naval reprisal measures against Germany, as embodied in an order-in-council, was signed yesterday by King George.

The King signed the order during a session of the Privy Council at Buckingham Palace. Details of the plans have not yet been made public, but the order will be gazetted shortly.

Premier Asquith announced in the House of Commons on March 1 that Great Britain and France, in retaliation for Germany's submarine warfare against British shipping, purposed to stop all trade to and from Germany.

The British reply to the American note suggesting that Great Britain allow all foodstuffs to enter Germany in return for Germany's abandonment of her submarine warfare on merchant vessels and her policy of mining the high seas is expected to be forthcoming at an early date.

There is a strong feeling in Downing Street that the "quid pro quo" put forward in the American note does not go far enough. Officials of the Foreign Office point out that since the opening of the war Great Britain has only once interfered with the supply of food destined for Germany, and then only after the German Government, by assuming control of all foodstuffs, had abolished the old distinction between the civil and the military population.

Authoritative spokesmen of the British view lay stress on the inadequacy of the German proposal from two standpoints. They ask, first, what guarantee is forthcoming that Germany will keep to her agreement. Supposing, they urge, that an understanding were reached on the lines suggested by the United States, would the United States secure its strict observance?

The policy of the Germans which arouses the most indignation among the directors of the British Government is her continued alleged persecution of the Belgians, millions of whom, it is declared, "would be at this moment in a state of semi-starvation but for American generosity and assistance."

Walter Hines Page, the American Ambassador, yesterday presented to the Foreign Office a note from the American State Department asking for information about the proposed British plan for cutting off German trade and the effect the plan will have on neutral countries. An identical note has been presented to the French Government.

PORT HOPE MEN ADRIFT ON LAKE

Were Rescued After Considerable Difficulty by the Life Saving Crew

PORT HOPE, March 11.—Adrift in a frail canoe on the cold waters of Lake Ontario with a stiff northwester blowing down the lake, and pluckily rescued by Capt. "Teddie" McMahon and the life-saving crew after several hours' search in the dark, was the experience last night of two young Port Hopers, Ralph Wilson, son of F. W. Wilson, proprietor of The Guide, and Horace Smith, son of Councillor George A. Smith.

Unknown to their parents, the two boys ventured out of the harbour in a canoe about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and when they got out into the lake they found that they could not return against the wind and sea. Luckily, they headed for Gull Lighthouse, some four miles down the lake and succeeded in reaching it safely. Meanwhile, as soon as their absence was discovered an alram was raised, and the local militia and citizens of the town patrolled the shores of the lake in all directions with lights. Captain McMahon, who already has several lake rescues to his credit, manned the lifeboat at once and headed for Gull Lighthouse as being the only chance of finding them alive. The lifeboat brought the youthful adventurers safely back, apparently none the worse for their experience.

WITH OTHER MUNICIPALITIES.

At Parry Sound, Ont., the police are having difficulty in keeping the peace between interned Austrians and Polanders.

Arbitration.

The prolonged controversy between the ratepayers and the Linwood school section of Berlin respecting the location of a new school building has been settled by arbitration.

Additional Legislation

For Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation of Peterboro'

The Act that has been passed by the Private Bills Committee of the Ontario Legislature, and which concerns the Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation for the Diocese of Peterborough, vests the rights in the said corporation to borrow moneys on the security of promissory notes and bills of exchange and for such purposes to make, draw, endorse, become a party to and deliver promissory notes and bills of exchange, without the necessity of affixing the Corporate Seal thereto.

The reason for the enlargement of the powers of the corporation is that it requires to borrow moneys from time to time for its purposes in various sums and on such terms of repayment as to render it highly inconvenient to execute and deliver mortgage securities on the real estate of the corporation.

It was also ordered that the fees, less the cost of printing the bill, together with the Act in the Statutes, be remitted.

Mr. D. O'Connell appeared on behalf of the corporation.

A FAMINE IN BINDER TWINE

Is Forecast by T. P. Conner Formerly of Peterboro—Mexican Revolutionists Have Bottled Up the Sisal

The possibility of a binder twine famine is so remote to the Peterborough County farmer that the following pronouncement from Mr. T. P. Connor should be of interest. Mr. Connor was formerly connected with the Peterborough Cordage Works. For some time past he has been associated with the twine industry of the Wisconsin State Prison. In writing to a friend in Peterborough, Mr. Connor makes the following observations:

"We are entering a very peculiar twine season, and one promising many surprises to those in the trade. Carranza has blockaded the port of Progresso and no sisal has come out of Mexico since the tenth of February. The mills are straining every nerve to have the Washington Government intervene between the factions in Yucaton and release the sisal, but so far without results. It is predicted that if the blockade keeps up another month or six weeks there will be fifty million acres of grain in this country and Canada harvested without twine. Some of the big mills have refused to name prices and will continue to refuse until they see how things come out in Yucatan.

In referring to the war Mr. Connor holds out no hope for the success of German militarism. He believes that the big men of Germany have come to realize this since they were turned on their march to Paris.

Sweeping Amendment to the Defence of the Realm Act

LONDON, March 12—A drastic amendment to the Defence of the Realm Act was unexpectedly presented to the House of Common this afternoon by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. David Lloyd George. His proposal was that the Government be empowered to commandeer all factories required for war purposes.

Up to the present firms and factories already producing war material could be taken under government control. The amending bill of the Chancellor extends this power to cover all other concerns which the government may wish to utilize for this purpose.

Mr. Lloyd George laid particular emphasis upon his statement that not only the duration but the success of the war depended upon the output of munitions. The government, he declared, proposed to organize the entire engineering community through a committee headed by business men with the idea of assisting in the increase of output. The amendment passed all its stages.

SOAP IS BAD FOR THE HAIR

Soap should be used very sparingly, if at all, if you want to keep your hair looking at its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), it's cheaper and better than soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

MILITARY CURIOS AT E. J. WATERMAN'S STORE

An Interesting Exhibit of Old Guns, Swords, Pistols and Other Objects

An extensive collection of curios fill a large display cabinet in Mr. E. J. Waterman's store at 713 Hunter street. Ancient armament ranging from an old Queen Bess muzzle-loading rifle almost six feet in length, to a small brass cannon stamped V.R. 1837, that fired a one-pound iron ball occupy a prominent place in this exhibit, the result of years of patient gathering. The predominance of military articles is no doubt explained by the fact that Sergeant Waterman has always been interested in soldiering, and has had his share of actual service. Old flint and lock guns in good working order are included in a big showing of guns. Two long Cuban machettes that appear to be exaggerated butcher knives, a Waterloo sword, a tower sword of 1800, various foils and rapiers, Spanish, Russian, German, Turkish and British bayonets of former times, a curved sable of scimitar design, an hierloom of the days of George II. and believed to have been used in the navy, these are but a few of the items in this collection. The big cabinet is practically a miniature arsenal of antiquities used in war.

This is no attempt to catalogue the items, and passing on mention might be made of other curios of more recent history, and of local connection. There are old iron skates with which a former generation used to disport on the ponds; the first helmet and belt worn by the old Peterborough volunteer fire department; water bags and a water gourd of South Sea origin; the spurs worn by the late Gunner Dick Boyle in the South African war, and a pair of Dutch clogs used by Mark Spencely in a song and dance turn over thirty years ago in Rochester.

Mr. Waterman's collection is of more than ordinary interest and will repay a visit to his store.

St. Patrick's Day, March 17, St. Peter's T.A.S. will present the beautiful Comedy Drama, "A Bit O'Blarney." First class specialties between acts and during progress of play. Plan opens March 15. Tickets 25c, 35c and 50c. 4d-60

With Regard to Boundary Roads —Report on Pavement Question

Several petitions for pavements in different parts of the city were dealt with by the Board of Works last evening. Citizens who are looking for local improvements are anticipating the commencement of operations by the Board of Works now that spring is so near.

Engineer To Report.

Petitions for pavement on Hunter Street, from Aylmer Street to Walton Avenue, were discussed and it was decided that the City Engineer should be asked to make a report on three different kinds of pavements he considered suitable and an estimate of the cost of the respective kinds.

A petition for pavement on Belmont Avenue will also receive the attention of the engineer to report.

Encroachments.

Street encroachments was the subject of a communication from the City Engineer. There are numerous cases of buildings encroaching on the streets of the city and Mr. Parsons has quite a lengthy list.

The matter was left over for another month when something definite will be done to protect the citys interests.

Contra Account

An account from the Peterborough Water Commissioners covering items of work done for the Board of Works dating back to the year 1913, which was laid over last year with a view to having the Mayor and chairman of the Board of Works effect a settlement, came up again at last night's meeting. The Board of Works has a contra account.

The Mayor and Chairman Green will go into the matter with a view to effecting a settlement and report at the next meeting of the Board of Works.

Boundary Roads.

The Smith Township Council will be requested to meet with the Board of Works regarding a solution to the boundary roads question. A letter from the Smith township clerk, dated Aug. 8, 1914, regarding the matter, was read by Chairman Green.

The date decided upon to receive the visiting councillors was set for the evening of March 17.

A Member of Battery

Writes Home to His Parents in Peterborough—Now in France

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Luther, 18 Maude Street, are in receipt of a letter from their son, Sidney Luther, who is with the 4th Battery, 1st Brigade, now in France.

The letter, which was despatched from England, reads as follows:

"Just a few lines to let you know I received your welcome letter and package of tobacco. Believe me, I was sure glad to get it, and so were some of my mates. I don't know what we will do when we get to the front for chewing tobacco. I am sorry to keep you waiting for an answer, but we have been shifting around a lot lately. We have moved to Devises, in Wiltshire. It is a nice little town with about 9,000 people in it. We are billeted in houses all over the town. There are six of us in one house, and we are out of the mud, for the streets are all paved. I am sending you a postcard in this letter. I have no badges on, for the girls in London stole them. We had an inspection by the King yesterday, just the guns and gun teams. I was there, for I am lead driver on the gun. We left town 11.30 a.m. Wednesday and got back again at 9 p.m. on Thursday, so you can guess we travelled some miles to get there. I haven't very much news this time, only I must say I am feeling fine. How are all the boys at home and at the Fire Hall? Give my best regards to them all from me. Address all letters now to London War Office, 4th Battery, 1st Brigade.

GERMANS DID NOT SINK THE BEETHOVEN

LONDON, March 12.—The steamer Beethoven, which a Berlin wireless despatch said had been sunk either by a torpedo or a mine, is reported by her owners to be safe at Avonmouth.

The Berlin despatch said the Beethoven was bound from Newcastle for Gibraltar, and that two of her crew had been drowned when she sank.

SATURDAY SPECIALS AND THE LAST DAY OF OUR FIVE DAY DRESS GOODS SALE

The Dress Goods Department during the last four days has seen the biggest selling of its history. Those who have usually left Dress Goods buying till later in the season have eagerly purchased from our new fabrics and not only have secured the latest in weaves and colours but made a big saving, as all our new lines were purchased at old prices and passed into stock before the new duty went into effect. This taken into consideration, along with the fact that it is impossible to secure repeat orders on any lines on account of the great scarcity of wool and dyeing materials, makes early choosing necessary before present stocks are exhausted. Visit the department Saturday.

The Empress Hotel Cup

Contest to Decide Who is the Best Shot in the Home Guard

Starting from an argument about shooting the management of the Empress Hotel have decided to try and find out just which one of the Home Guard would make the best sniper, should the Germans invade our great domain, by presenting a handsome cup to be known as the Empress Hotel Cup, to the Home Guard making the best score on a moving and stationary target. Seven shots to be fired at each, thereby determining the best "all round" shot. Particulars for rules of contest are posted up in Allies' Rifle Parlours, 370 Water street. The contest is now on, and the cup is on exhibition at the Empress Hotel.

BEAN SOCIAL WAS SUCCESS

A very successful bean social, in aid of the Park Street Baptist Church was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. Garside, 199 Reid street, when the members and friends of the Bible Classes were invited to attend. One of the features of the event was an estimating competition for a jar of beans, consisting of three prizes; also several other interesting events and games. Quite a number attended and a very enjoyable evening was spent. Among the visitors were Mr. Goheen, Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin, Mrs. Wright and Mrs G. Harris, whose husband is away with the 8th Mounted Rifles. A sum of between nine and ten dollars was taken in and a most enjoyable evening was spent with games, etc.

Work For The Dog Catcher

Pedestrian Traffic in Peterborough is Menaced by the Increasing Number of Apparently Stray Dogs

The number of apparently stray dogs that are roaming the streets is beginning to cause some concern to the daily pedestrian. As one George Street merchant remarked to-day it is almost as much as one's life is worth to venture abroad unless armed with a cudgel of some description. Let one canine disturber appear on the street and there will be seven or eight more in the space of a few minutes. A "guzzling" match will ensue to the chagrin of the pedestrians, after which the combatants will marathon down the street at a speed which, if equalled by an automobile driver, or even a pedestrian, would call for the intervention of the police. At a certain hour this morning there were seven dogs congregated on George Street at a point between Hunter and Simcoe Streets. Traffic was disorganized and one citizen was thrown to the pavement as a result of colliding with one of the curs. Only two dogs out of the seven could boast of a tag.

It has been suggested that the police might make good use of their automatics in ridding the city of this nuisance or else throw a few of them into the lethal chamber.

Suffered Exposure In the Trenches

Mr. Louis Houedry Who Has Been Invalided Home From the Front May Return Next Month

Mrs. Louis Houedry, Lock Street, south, has yet to receive definite word concerning the return to Canada of her husband, who, since the outbreak of the war, has been serving with the allied army in the capacity of interpreter. Mr. Houedry has been invalided home on account of bronchial trouble, contracted while on active service. Mrs. Houedry received news of her husband about one week ago, but no mention was made as to the date of his return. It was also stated that another attack of the bronchial trouble would probably result in death, so serious was the affliction. The trouble arose through exposure in the trenches and lack of facilities for coping with the complaint. Mr. Houedry, together with his brother, Maurice, rejoined the French army at the outbreak of hostilities. The former was appointed interpreter to the British Army, and the latter associated himself with the work of the Red Cross. Maurice Houedry sustained a severe injury to his foot, which necessitated his confinement to the hospital. He is recovering and expects to resume his duties at the front.

Mrs. Houedry is of the opinion that her husband will return to Peterborough some time next month.

Shamrock Day, Mar. 13 St. Patrick's Day, Mar. 17

A correspondent, good, innocent soul, writes the Examiner, calling attention to a paragraph announcing Saturday March 13th, as "Shamrock Day," in the interests of St. Vincent's Orphanage; and suggests that St. Peter's Ladies' Aid might be glad to know that St. Patrick's Day is on March 17th. "One who has lived in Ireland ten Years," which is the signature to the correspondence, is very kind in giving information; but one is afraid that St. Peter's Ladies' Aid deliberately set apart March 13th as "Shamrock Day" as a day more suitable to the object of the occasion than would be St. Patrick's Day, itself, which, it is no pleasure to know, on the authority of ten years' residence in Ireland, is on March 17th.

TWELVE HAVE RETURNED TO THEIR BASE

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 12.—A despatch to the Daily Express from The Hague says:

"A report has been sent from Cuxhaven to the Admiralty at Berlin that twelve submarines have failed to report at their base, eight of them being among Germany's newest boats.

"The naval council will meet to-day or to-morrow under the presidency of Emperor William to discuss whether or not it would be better to abandon the submarine war."

AMERICAN NAMES FOR STREETS OF LOUVAIN

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 12.—The decision of the municipal authorities of Louvain, Belgium, to give American names to certain streets of the city is set forth in a formal resolution of thanks which was adopted on Washington's Birthday by the Burgomaster and Aldermen of Louvain and sent to the American Commission for Relief in Belgium. The resolution closes as follows:

"The cradle of a university of five centuries' standing, and to-day herself partly in ruins, the city of Louvain cannot fail to associate with the memory of Washington, one of the greatest captains, the name of the learned professor whose admirable precepts and high political attainments, as also his firmness of character and dignity of life, all contributed to carry him successively to the presidency of Princeton University, the Governorship of New Jersey and finally the Presidency of the United States.

"In order to perpetuate to future generations remembrances of these sentiments and our ardent gratitude, the Burgomaster and Aldermen have decided this day that in the new parts of the city, as they rise out of the ruins, three streets or squares shall receive the illustrious names of President Wilson, Washington and American Nation."

The Academy of Fine Arts at Louvain was re-opened yesterday in the building formerly occupied by the staff of the Civil Guard, according to a despatch to the Amsterdam Telegraaf from Bergen-op-Zoom, Holland.

CIVIL PRISONERS HARSHLY TREATED

French Foreign Office Issues Report on Result of an Enquiry

PARIS, March 11—The treatment of French civilian prisoners, men, women and children, at the hands of the Germans is the subject of a report issued by the Foreign Office to-day.

This report is the work of a standing committee appointed by the French Government to enquire into alleged violations of international law. It relates that about 10,000 French men, women and children had been returned from Germany to France prior to Feb. 28, after having been held as prisoners of war in German territory. These were the prisoners questioned by the members of the Investigating Committee. The only men among them were over sixty years of age, or boys under seventeen. The investigaters cite in detail a number of alleged instances of hardship, ill-treatment and suffering. The declarations of the individuals questioned by them show a remarkable accord.

The committee consisted of Georges Payelle, president of the Court of Accounts; Georges Maringer, Councilor of State; Armand Mollard, Minister Plenipotentiary, and Edmond Poillot, Councilor of the Court of Cassation. Their report is addressed to Premier Viviani and it reads, in part, as follows:

"We questioned 300 of the former prisoners under oath. Some of them declare that they were arrested on the false pretext that one of their townsmen had fired on German soldiers, while others were arrested on the high roads, in the fields or in their homes without explanation. Many of them were led to believe that they were being conducted to neighbouring communes to be safe from the danger of an impending battle. Members of the same family were separated and sent to different camps and children were separated from their mothers and women from their husbands. Many women are still in ignorance of the whereabouts of their husbands.

"All the prisoners were obliged to travel long distances on foot, passing their nights in the open or in railroad stations or churches. They were then loaded into cattle cars and so taken into Germany. Generally speaking they were not supplied with food during the journey, and most of them remained several days without food or drink. Many would have perished had they not received succor on their way at the hands of Belgian women."

The report of the committee is about 7,000 words long.

PETERBORO' HOCKEY CLUB SUSPENDED WARRANT ISSUED FOR MOINES

O. H. A. Executive Takes Up Matter at Meeting Yesterday—Junior Players and Management Not Included in the Suspension.

CASE OF THE VICTORIES

TORONTO, March 12.—At a meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association Executive yesterday, it was decided to have information laid at Peterborough and a warrant issued for the player known as Joe Moines, who also played under the name of Tetrault with the Ontario professional team. He will be charged with attempt to defraud, and efforts will also be made to reach others concerned in his appearance in Peterborough, on a criminal charge of conspiracy.

The Peterborough intermediate club having offered no satisfactory explanation of the affair, its players and officers were suspended.

As a result of complaints of rowdyism and riotous behaviour by Oshawa sympathizers during several seasons, it was decided that no more O. H. A. hockey should be played in that town until the association receives satisfactory assurance of the proper treatment of visiting teams.

The executive passed and will forward to his family a resolution of appreciation of Major George M. Higinbotham, of the first Canadian contingent, who died yesterday in a hospital. He was a player in the first games held under the direction of the O.H.A.

At the suggestion of Mr. Macnab it was decided to approach the Provincial Government on the question of inspection of hockey rinks, particularly in places where the lack of local by-laws permits the erection of buildings that are dangerous. Mr. Macnab pointed out that four rinks had collapsed this winter under their burden of snow, and that many were built with inadequate exits, doors opening inwards and other dangerous features. The necessity of changes will be pointed out in a circular to all O. H. A. clubs so that rink owners may be ready by next season.

The situation in regard to the Allan Cup was thoroughly discussed. Notification of the O.H.A.'s intention to play for the cup was made to Secretary Robinson of the C.A.H.A., on February 8, and acknowledged. As is always the case the challenge was not to any particular club, and Melville was not an issue then, as the Saskatchewan season was only under way.

President Farquharson reported that though twice notified by wire from Secretary Robinson that a letter was on the way explaining the business to come before the special meeting of the Canadian Association in Winnipeg next Monday, no letter had arrived.

Secretary Hewitt reported that he had been unsuccessful in his efforts to obtain the same information. He also stated that he had no reply to his enquiry whether the Winnipeg officers had assured the Victorias of their support of a city league in Toronto in opposition to the O.H.A. The information will be demanded from them at the Winnipeg meeting, and they will be required to either deny the Victoria statement, or defend charge of acting in bad faith towards a provincial association having full jurisdiction over this territory.

The suspension of the Victorias for refusal to abide by the instructions of the association in the matter of the game at Melville was formally confirmed; and they will be given an opportunity at the next meeting of the executive to show cause why the suspension should not be followed by expulsion. None of the officers of the club were able to attend yesterday's meeting, the others being in the West, and President Gooch confined to his house from a recent automobile accident.

President Farquharson was in the chair and the other members in attendance were: J. T. Sutherland, Kingston; Sheriff Paxton, Whitby; A. E. Copeland, Midland; R. M. Glover, Peterobrough; Frank Hyde, Woodstock; C. L. Macnab, Orillia; Robert Hamilton, Hamilton; G. B. Dawson, Sarnia; Francis Nelson, Treasurer Dwight J. Turner, and Secretary W. A. Hewitt.

The suspension of the Peterborough Hockey Club affects only the intermediate players and the officers. The resolution passed at yesterday's meeting of the O.H.A. especially mentions that the junior players and junior management are not included in the suspension degree.

Varsity Team Are Junior Champions

Toronto Collegians Beat Berlin 9 to 4 Last Night and Capture the Title Although the Union Jacks Gave Them a Hard Battle—The Score Was Tied on the Round With Only Twenty Minutes to Play

TORONTO, March 12—In a game as thrilling as has been seen here this winter 'Varsity last night at the Arena won the Junior O. H. A. championship when they defeated Berlin Union Jacks by the score of 9 to 4, or 16 to 11 on the round. It was as strenuous a contest as one could wish to see, but in the last period the visitors faded, and the Collegians, showing some of the good work they are capable of, slammed in five goals and held the Union Jacks scoreless. Only bad shooting by 'Varsity kept their score down. The teams were tied at the end of both periods, the score being 3 to 3 at the end of the first, and 4 to 4 at the end of the second.

Over 4,700 saw the contest, and it was one of peculiarities. The first period saw the teams checking closely, but not what one might call strenuously. Starting the second the players adopted different tactics, and for 15 minutes or more pretty nearly everything on the calendar went. A few penalties were handed out, but not what should have been. However, these tactics exhausted pretty nearly everyone on the ice, and after this the teams settled down and played good hockey, especially 'Varsity in the last period. The Collegians in the closing 20 minutes broke too fast for the visitors. At any rate, the forward line of the Union Jacks failed to hold the Students for the first time during the match, and it was in this session that the winners gave as clever a performance of three and four-man combination as has been seen here this winter. It was hockey at its best, so far as offensive work was concerned, but oftentimes was spoiled by bad shooting.

While the score was close in the first two periods, 'Varsity on the play, should have had a good margin at the end of the second period. In the first period they were continually getting in close on Merner, and while his grand work saved the Union Jacks, yet the Collegians missed the net by inches on innumerable occasions. Once, in the first period, they had five tries in a row before they finally bulged the net.

The visitors must be given credit for having the better of the second period, even if the teams each scored one. They were back-checking 'Varsity all over the ice and in this rough and-tumble period they looked, with their superior weight on the line, as if they would stand the gaff better. However, five minutes before this period was over Erb broke a skate and retired, taking Smythe with him, and at six-man hockey 'Varsity had something on their opponents.

Erb and Smythe came back the last period, the teams finishing with seven men aside. 'Varsity showed a complete reversal from the preceding periods, and while Berlin hung on gamely for ten minutes, they began to show signs of weakening, and the issue never looked in doubt after this stage. However, just to show how unluck 'Varsity were in their shooting after getting right in on top of Merner, the goal judge counted eleven occasions where the Collegians missed the net by inches. As he remarked after the contest, "There is a hair line on both sides of the net from 'Varsity's shots."

Gouinlock, at rover for 'Varsity, was the best man on the ice, and it was chiefly through his brilliant work up the visitors, and besides stopped them from going in after any rebounds of their own shots.

Both goalkeepers were good. Merner had to be because he had more to do. In the second period one of Schnarr's cannon ball shots hit Malone on the ear and then dropped on the top netting of the goal. Malone had to retire for a minute until he had his injured ear attended to. Schnarr, by the way, showed himself a great wrist shot, and also demonstrated that he was afraid of nobody by his strenuous checking. He was the bad man on the ice. The teams:

Referee—O. Bernhardt, Bradford.

Old Country Football Notes

Football Clubs Are Feeling the Pinch of War—Leading Goal Scores

Football in Britain is in rather a peculiar position owing to the war, and clubs and players are both feeling the financial pinch. A census of players willing to serve the colours if called on has been taken, and from every club there has been a good response. Meantime, playing goes on as usual, though before greatly reduced attendances, excepting, of course, an occasional extra in the shape of a cup tie, when the crowds are out in force. When the season closes, it is expected that all who have signified their willingness to serve will be called to the colours, and with close-season wages eliminated, professional football will be denuded of many famous players. Largely, football next season may be played by married men, army rejects and mere youths. The game will go on however, for the clubs have too much money invested to stop altogether.

Leading Goal Scorers.

Bob Parker of Everton, still leads the goal scorers of Britain. The Liverpool centre, in 26 games, has found the net on 26 occasions, an average of one per game and one to spare. J. Smith of Bolton, follows, four behind for the same number of games—22 goals. A good third is Dave McLean, of the Wednesday, 21 goals in 24 starts.

In the second division goals are not quite so easy to get apparently. King of the Arsenal, is the premier marksman in this division having 20 for 24 games. Law, of Blackpool, and Smith, of Birmingham, are second and third with 18 and 16 respectively.

The leading marksman in the Southern league is Goodwin, of Exeter, he, like King, has a score to his credit. Dominy, Foster, Puddefoot and Stronghold are all tied with 16 a piece.

Gracie, Hearts soldier centre, has played 29 games and scored 23 goals in the Scottish League. Another ex-English league player, in Richardson, of Ayr United, is close up with 22, Reid of Rangers, always well up, has notched 20.

Clubs in danger of relegation and clubs with a chance of promotion have generally been busy scouting and arranging for transfers about this time in previous years. Now we hear no mention of any move in the nature of an important transfer.

Clubs are here and there asking prices and there may be a slight effort made by Tottenham to strengthen the team for the London club will surely not accept relegation without some effort to stave it off. There are other clubs in the danger zone who may attempt to purchase enough talent to enable them to continue in division one.

An aggregate of 68,181 attended the thrice-played Bolton-Millwall cup tie, the three gates reaching a total of $10,000. In an ordinary season one game between the pair would almost draw that.

Kilmarnock lost six away games in succession this season. Queens' Park have even done worse; seven on end is their record.

It is estimated that over 4,000 Lancashire players are serving with the colours.

The Rangers' veteran outside left, Alex. Smith, has begun to find the pace too hot. No fewer than four men have tried to fill his shoes this season.

To Resume Soccer Next September

LONDON, March 12.—It will interest followers of English socker to know that whether the war is ended or not football will be resumed on September 1 next. The big football clubs, having invested large sums in grounds alone, cannot afford to let their capital remain idle and maintain the large expense of upkeep without making some attempt to continue the game.

It is expected that at the end of the present season all the single professionals will have joined the colours, which will result in the clubs being represented by married men and players who have been rejected by the authorities. The professional football battalion is going strong, a thousand players already have joined. A big effort is now being made to obtain the remaining three hundred necessary for completion, which will enable the battalion to go on active service in about three months' time.

Two Southern League clubs have been forced to give up their grounds owing to the effects of the war. Queen's Park Rangers have moved their headquarters to Kensal Rise, while Crystal Palace will play off their remaining games at Herne Hill.

PETERBORO WRESTLER A WINNER AT GUELPH

Word has reached the city that Will Scott, a pupil of the wrestling class at the local Y. M. C. A., who is attending the Guelph Agricultural College, succeeded last Saturday in winning the welter-weight championship of the college and of getting into the finals in the heavyweight class. Scott did not enter in the middleweight which he might have won, owing to the fact that one of his chums was entered in that class and he did not want to have to compete against him.

There were only two entries in the welterweight class. Scott won this bout easily. In the heavyweight class there were six entries including Clare, who recently won the championship of Toronto University in bouts in Toronto. In this class Clare first defeated a considerably heavier man named Evans. Scott then wrestled against a fellow named Young, a former college champion. Scott defeated Young. Another bout in the heavyweight was one by Dempsey. In the semi-finals Clare defeated Dempsey, and in the finals Clare got the decision from Scott. As Scott weighed only 144 pounds his success in making such a good showing in the heavyweight class is most creditable. Scott learned practically all he knows about wrestling in the class of the local Y. M. C. A.

MEXICAN SITUATION DISTURBING

Special to The Examiner.

WASHINGTON, March 12. — The Mexican situation and the developments growing out of the arrival of the Prinz Eitel Friederich at Newport News, crowded everything else to background at to-day's Cabinet meeting.

The wanton killing of John B. McManus, a former Chicagoan by Zapatistas alarmed the President and his advisers. It was felt this act indicated that Zapata might prove a read source of danger to the control of Mexico City, despite his prompt disavowal and promise of punishment made by him to Senor Cordoza, the Brazilian Minister, who is looking after American interests.

The Cabinet decided that the United States will insist on summary punishment of all the soldiers responsible.

FORMER LOCAL BUSINESS MAN DIED IN TORONTO

Mr. John Gilchrist, former partner with Mr. Richard Hall in the dry-goods firm of Hall and Gilchrist, passed away in Toronto this morning. The word was received by Mr. Ivor Brock, of the Brinton Carpet Co. The late Mr. Gilchrist had been ill for some time, but his death came more suddenly than was expected.

The news was a surprise to Mr. Richard Hall, who received the first intelligence from the Examiner. The late John Gilchrist was a partner with Mr. Hall for about a year or so, coming to Peterborough from Orillia or Barrie. He resided in this city for a time with his family and made quite a number of friends.

A COLOSSAL BLUNDER.

Administration Has Plunged Deeper Into Government House.

TORONTO, March 12. — The new Ontario Government House was the centre of a warm debate in the Legislature yesterday, when Liberal Whip Bowman urged that an item of $200,000 in the estimates be stricken out on grounds of economy.

The Opposition speakers declared that the Government had blundered, and that instead of repenting in a business-like way they had plunged in deeper and deeper. Parallels were drawn with other provinces and municipalities to show that Ontario was too heavily saddled.

Several Government members replied and finally Hon. Finlay Macdiarmid, Minister of Public Works, stated that it would be unfair to abandon contracts already entered. Strict economy in keeping with the past would be observed.

The amendment to strike out the new vote was defeated on a standing vote.

Hon. W. J. Hanna's scheme to supply fish almost at cost prices to inmates of institutions in Ontario has not been dropped. When the matter was referred to yesterday in the Legislature the Provincial Secretary was not in the House, but Hon. Finlay Macdiarmid spoke of it as tentative.

A. B. Thompson of Simcoe brought in a bill designed to assure compensation to workmen failing into loss through employment with companies which fail. The bill would make the guarantee company pay the workman direct when the employing company goes into liquidation.

Would Burn Soldiers' Bodies.

PARIS, March 13.—As a measure of precaution against a possible epidemic of disease after the war, Dr. Dumont, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, has presented a bill in the Chamber, which provides for the burning of the bodies of all enemy soldiers killed on the battlefield, and, in addition, the bodies of French and allied soldiers which are not identified, and of persons victims of contagious diseases.

SHIFTS CONTINUE TO BE CHANGED

Crew on Outfall Sewer Job Will be Chosen According to Circumstances of Applicants

Though the outfall sewer is likely to exceed the first estimates in cost if the present system is continued, the Board of Works will continue to change shifts every two eeks, giving the preference to men who are in very hard circumstances.

The subject came up at the meeting of that body last night when the chairman read a letter from the City Engineer to the effect that he would not be responsible if his estimate of $72,000.00 was exceeded. It was made under normal conditions as he explained, and with a job of that size the only way to handle it economically was to pick the best men available to do the work. Under the present conditions he had to give the preference to those in very hard circumstances regardless as to whether they were good labourers or not. Up to the present time, however, the work has run along quite within the estimate, and the quality of the work has not been impaired by using unskilled labourers.

Chairman Alderman Green explained that it was up to the members if they wished to have the work continue in this way and give the unemployed in the city a chance to work. He realized that the cost might be a little greater, but thought it was in a good cause and that giving the men work was better than making further donations to patriotic funds. It was giving them a chance to earn a living.

Mayor Buller remarked that this job started during the winter months with a view to giving men employment, and assisting to keep down distress. If they were not prepared to stand for a possible extra cost when it meant so much to the men he would say close down the job. He did not believe in giving out money for assistance without letting the men have a chance to work for it. The City would have to spend money to help those who could not get employment and he thought it might as well be spent on improvements at the same time. He had a scheme for a public improvement which would be a means of giving employment to a large number which he would propose to the Patriotic Fund Committee. He intimated that the proposed scheme had something to do with terracing along the Little Lake cemetery water front.

Changes Made In The Code

Special Cable to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., March 12.—The special committee appointed to enquire into changes in the Criminal Code, to-day passed a bill making it a criminal offence for any man to use moneys secured by him from purchaser of piece of property for any other purpose than to secure title of land.

The bill making it an indictable offence punishable by two years' imprisonment for any contractor to sell defective stores or equipment to the Militia or Naval Service Department, was also reported.

The Board of Health

Recommend the Construction of Sewer in North End—Accounts Passed

At a meeting of the Board of Health, which was held yesterday afternoon, it was recommended that the Council construct a sewer on Bethune street from Smith street to Aberdeen avenue, on Aberdeen avenue from Bethune street to the Chemong Road, and on the Chemong Road from Aberdeen avenue to the junction of Stewart and Reid streets, upon the grounds that it is necessary in the public interests on sanitary grounds.

Cannot Be Assessed.

The Board also recommended that the Council's attention be called to the difficulty of constructing sewers on boundary streets as local improvements, as the land outside of the city cannot be assessed for its portion of the improvement. It was suggested that legislation be secured whereby such lands may be assessed or to provide that the boundaries be extended to take in lands to the extent of the depth of a lot on the opposite of the street forming the boundaries.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I beg most respectfully to ask you, through the columns of the Examiner, as to what proceedings should be taken against a man, supposed to be a man of business integrity, in the city, who transacts his business in the following manner: Yesterday my son asked him how much he would give for a goose which we were going to sell. This was about 10 a.m. He told him he would see what they were on the market, and let him know, and that he would deal fair with him. We killed the goose and my wife took it down to him, when he gave her $1.12 for it, which was less than we paid for it three months previous. The goose weighed eleven pounds.

On seeing your market reports last night and the price of geese quoted at 25 cents per pound, I sent my boy down to show him it. He laughed. No doubt he thought he had done a sharp trick. I have a different name for it. That is the kind of action you might expect from outside people, who are doing their business through advertisements, but a supposed upright business man who is working up a trade in the town and does that, I think should be exposed: so if you think it would be any benefit I have no objection of giving you his name. If this had happened when times were better I might have let it pass, but at the present, when it is a case of living from hand to mouth, and barely scraping along, as we were selling the goose to buy butcher meat and other little things, which we required to carry us over a little further into the Spring. I remain,

Yours obediently,
W. A. Robertson.

FRENCH STEAMERS TO DOCK AT BORDEAUX

Special Cable to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, March 13 — The French Line announced to-day that its steamer La Touraine, which put into Havre March 8 after a two-days' battle at sea with a fire in her hold, would leave Havre for New York on March 27.

The announcement also stated that beginning March 20 Bordeaux will be the port of entry for the French Line steamers instead of Havre. The reason assigned to the change of entry ports was because of naval operations in northern waters.

LIVELY FIRE ON FORTS INSIDE DARDANELLES

Queen Elizabeth and Other British and French Warships Continuing Bombardment—Namazieh a Serious Obstacle

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, Eng., March 13.—A determined effort to take Smyrna, the chief city of Asiatic Turkey, is now being made by the allied naval forces in the East.

Six warships from the allied fleet at the Dardanelles have reinforced Rear Admiral Peirse's squadron. The city may fall before many hours.

Among the warships sent to Smyrna was the battleship Triumph, according to Athens despatches to-day. As in the Dardanelles fighting, the Triumph was sent to the head of the fighting line.

All day yesterday the Queen Elizabeth and other British and French warships continued a lively fire against forts inside the Dardanelles.

Towards dusk they advanced to a point near Karantina and destroyed a bridge about two and a half miles from the town of Dardanelles.

The Turkish forts at the entrance to the narrows apparently have received fresh supplies of ammunition. Instead of waiting for the battle fleet to move in to closer range they opened the engagement each day with salvos from the batteries on the hills at the approach of the bombarding warships.

Namazieh continues to present a most serious obstacle to the passage of the narrows entrance. Her batteries are maintaining a steady fire into the channel, according to Athens despatches.

Heart-rending Tales of Last Moments Aboard the "Bayano"

Special Cable to The Examiner:

AYR, Scotland, March 13—Heart rending tales of the last awful moments aboard the British auxiliary cruiser, "Bayano" before she dove to the bottom in St. Patrick's Channel, the victim of a torpedo, were told to-day by Lieut. Commander Guy and the little group of survivors.

"Five minutes after the German torpedo struck us, the Bayano went to the bottom," said Guy. "The last I saw of Captain Carr, he was standing on the bridge, cool and smiling. He waved good-bye to the men at the boats, and shouted: "Good luck to you, boys." I dove from the deck and in almost a minute, it seemed, the Bayano was out of sight."

SENDS BOOKS TO INTERNED GERMANS

Examiner Special:

KINGSTON, March 13. — There are now about 250 prisoners in Fort Henry. Commander-Boy-Ed, German naval attache of the New York Embassy, has sent over 100 books, written in German, that he had received from the North German Lloyd steamers interned in New York, and they are being enjoyed by the Germans at the fort.

HOW FAT FOLKS MAY BECOME THIN

By Elisabeth Thomas.

Perhaps you are suddenly becoming stout, or it may be that you have been putting on weight for years. In either case the cause is the same — lack of oxygen-carrying power of the blood. This trouble occurs in adults of both sexes and all ages, but it may be overcome very easily and without any of the privations that most people imagine necessary to reduce their weight.

Simply go to your druggist and get some oil of orlieno capsules. Take one after each meal and one before going to bed. Weigh yourself so as to know just how fast you are losing weight. Wonderful results have been accomplished by this inexpensive recipe, but be sure to get the genuine oil of orlieno in capsule form. It is sold only in original sealed packages. Any druggist can supply you, or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00. Address D. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1900, Montreal, Can.

ITALY REQUIRES AN EXCUSE FOR GOING TO WAR

Special Cable to The Examiner:

ROME, March 13—The diplomatic negotiations in regard to Italy's position in the war are continuing, and the wildest reports are afloat in the lobbies of the Chamber of Deputies, where the excitement and suspense are very considerable. Baron Sonnino, the Foreign Minister, held numerous conferences yesterday and to-day with Sir J. Hennell Rodd, the British Ambassador; Premier Salandra; Prince von Buelow, the German Ambassador; Gen. Zuppelli, the Minister of War; the chief of staff, the director of the Bank of Italy and the director-general of police.

Despite the reticence of the Government it is now known that Prince von Buelow offered the immediate cession of the Trentino, and the ratification of the Italo-Austrian frontier and proposed that Italy begin mobilization with the object of hastening the consent of Austria to the proposals. Prince von Buelow's offer was not accepted, but the negotiations are continuing. The purpose is that when Italy decided on intervention the Premier will be able to declare that he has vainly exhausted all peaceable means to obtain the lost provinces, and hence war was inevitable.

The negotiations are likely to be concluded on March 16. Further offers are expected, since Germany is determined to compel Austria to make the necessary sacrifices to secure Italian neutrality.

Four deputies questioned the Premier in the Chamber as to the negotiations, which, they declared, were lessening the dignity and damaging the interests of Italy. The Premier made no reply.

Lapland Not Attacked

LONDON, March 13—The report that a wireless message from the steamer Lapland has reached Liverpool, saying she had been chased by a German submarine after leaving Liverpool has been denied by the White Star Company. The Lapland left Liverpool on March 11th, for New York, and she has on board many American passengers. The Company says it has heard nothing from the vessel since she left, and assumes all on board is well.

Canadian Cavalry Reach Canterbury

Fort Garry Horse and Rifles From Toronto Arrive at Same Time

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, March 13.—The ancient town of Canterbury yesterday witnessed a remarkable meeting between two branches of Canada's mounted troops. The Fort Garry Horse, which came to England with the first Canadian contingent as infantry has now been converted into a cavalry corps, as originally intended, and having come along from Tidworth is now located at the barracks here under Col. R. W. Patterson.

Canterbury has also welcomed the Mounted Rifles from Toronto, which came along with that portion of the second contingent reaching here this week. This mounted section, under Major McColl, reached Canterbury almost at the same time as the Fort Garry Horse arrived in the famous city.

Both sections have been warmly welcomed by British cavalry, for which Canterbury has long been one of the most important depots. The health of both corps is excellent.

Things with the Canadians at Shorncliffe are settling down rapidly. Yesterday's weather was springlike. A party of new arrivals from Canada yesterday gave their British comrades initiation into the mystery of baseball.

RUSSIANS BY FLANK ATTACK TAKE 4,000 PRISONERS

Several Detachments of the Enemy Annihilated by the Cossacks—New Advance Has Commenced

SPECIAL MORNING CABLE:

LONDON, March 12.—While the Germans are launching a new offensive movement against the Russian front in North Poland, the Russians have initiated a series of crushing counter-blows against the Austro-German forces in the Carpathians and East Galicia, with disastrous results for the enemy, according to last night's Russian official statement.

Four thousand prisoners have been taken by means of a flank attack upon the Austrian forces in the Carpathian, which resulted in the capture by the Russians of the towns of Lupkow and Smolnik, with the surrounding heights. The booty included two howitzers, two field guns, seven machine guns and a field hospital. The 4,000 Austrians taken prisoner, include 70 officers.

This brilliant operation was in the Lupkow Pass. At the same time the Austrians met with a series of disasters in the region of Gorlice Pass. A party of the enemy, crossing the Senkouka River, were surprised and annihilated while endeavouring to fortify themselves. Austrian detachments at three other points in the region were surrounded by Russian scouts and compelled to surrender.

In Eastern Galicia, on the Dniester River, three squadrons of Prussian Hussars—450 horsemen—were attacked by Cossacks and "nearly annihilated," in the words of the Russian official report. Ten of their officers and 25 men, who survived, were taken prisoner.

ENEMY ATTACKING IN NORTH.

Concerning the operations in North Poland the Russian communication is very reticent. It states merely that the Germans, who still hold Augustowo, have taken the offensive.

The superior transportation facilities of the Germans appear to have counted for them at the outset of the new battle in North Poland. Their ability to shift entire army crops from one end of the eastern battle front to the other has enabled them to place strong forces at two strategic points and thus simultaneously make two hard thrusts south towards the Vistula. One of these along the route guarded by Ostrolenka and Pultusk is moving towards Nowo Georgewisk, the key to Warsaw, and the other, starting due north, is pressing on Prdasnysz and Mlawa, keeping in touch with the railway which they are paralleling.

Lesson For United States Seen in Recent Attack on the Dardanelles

NEW YORK, March 13.—That the success of the allied fleet in its attack on the strong Turkish forts along the Dardanelles is fraught with lessons of the greatest importance to the United States with regard to its coast defences, is the opinion of military experts in this country.

Ordnance men here call attention to the fact that when the Turkish forts at the narrows of the Dardanelles were laid out it probably never was contemplated that ships of war could cover the seven miles range which despatches on Monday indicated as being used by the Queen Eliabeth, the Invincible and the Prince George. The opinion is advanced that the three British battleships probably have caught the Turkish forts in a "dead angle," through which they cannot make reply, and because of this, and also because the battleships are undoubtedly out of sight, the Turks have no way of returning the fire of those mammoth ships.

The question whether the defence characteristics of many of the coast fortifications of the United States are not similar to those of Turkey is being considered here, and it may be expected that the lessons of the great bombardment will be studied carefully by the artillery officers of the country.

The progress of the allied fleet is attributed largely, both to the weight of the projectiles used and the high explosives employed. The British shells are charged with lyddite, while the French are using melinite. The ingredients of the two are almost identical.

Lyddite possesses the advantage in common with guncotton of being capable of detonation. Both lyddite and melinite yield an enormously greater potential energy than gunpowder.

Shells loaded with either lyddite or melinite may be fired with a fuse and detonator, so arranged that they burst immediately on impact, or it may be arranged to delay the action and effect, as it were, a sort of hang-fire. In the latter case the projectile under its remaining velocity, has time afforded in which to penetrate deeper into masonry, or whatever it is fired at, and if it be structural material on an embankment supporting a gun position the deeper the shell sinks below the surface the greater will be the tamp. For heavy 18-inch shells, such as the Queen Elizabeth is firing, it is essential to obtain a good tamp over the explosion in order to obtain the maximum result.

Gunpowder shells do not lend themselves to exploding on impact. The lyddite shells can be detonated immediately on striking if it is desired, and the result is sometimes sought especially when it is desired to sweep ground with an innumerable number of small fragments, and again when it is desired not merely to perforate an armour plate, but rather to blow a whole plate in by the force of the impact detonation.

Gunpowder shells have the advantage when used against ships of setting fire to woodwork. It is also a fact that the radius of action of a gunpowder shell, compared by calibre, is larger than for one loaded with lyddite, but measured in energy exerted the destructive power of the latter is tremendously more than that of gunpowder. Structures which will stand up and actually contain the explosive effects of a gunpowder shell explosion will go down like ninepins under the detonating effect of the same calibre shell loaded with lyddite.

The British navy in recent years has conducted numerous highly important experiments in attacking specially erected gun positions on the coast with guns on board ships of war. It was found that the medium sie guns, the 4.7-inch, for example, produced litle effect unless an actual hit could be scored on a gun mount, and when the ships were moving at, say, ten knots speed there was little sucecss in scoring hits against the shore guns or their carriages. But when it came to employing a high explosive charged shell, fired at high angle in order to permit of a nearly vertical drop, the efforts were phenomenal, and it was clearly demonstrated that if a high explosive shell could be given a vertical fall whereby it would bury itself near a gun stand, it could be counted on to a certainty to destroy a gun position, provided the gun stand came within the one of the explosion.

KEEP URIC ACID OUT OF JOINTS

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Eat Less Meat and Take Salts.

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly; keep the feet dry; avoid exposure; eat less meat, but drink plenty of good water.

Rheumatism is a direct result of eating too much meat and other rich foods that produce uric acid which is absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate the uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness, and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts, put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys, to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which helps overcome uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

By Frank Frocst

It was admirably done. The mixture of indignation and haughtiness might have imposed upon some people, and the threat of appeal to the Russian Ambassador had been very adroit. Heldon Foyle merely nodded. "This is not arrest," he replied. "It is not even detention—unless you force me to it. I am inviting you to accompany me to give an account of your movements on the night that Harry Goldenburg was murdered. I will call your bluff, Lola, and we will call at the Ambassador's if you like."

She made a gesture with one hand, as of a fencer acknowledging a hit, and, turning her head, smiled sweetly into his face. Nevertheless, in spite of everything, she felt a little nervous. She had gone to see Eileen with her eyes not fully open to the risk she ran. Deftly used, newspapers have their uses. In supplying the story of the murder to the pressmen, Foyle had omitted all mention of the finding of the miniature. The woman had not known that Scotland Yard had a portrait of her, and had deemed it unlikely that she would be recognised by the watchers of the house. Although she had lived by her wits in many quarters of the world, she had hitherto avoided trouble with the police in England. She wondered how much Foyle knew. It was evidently of no use trying to impress him with the importance of her rank and connections. Princesses are cheap in Russia.

"You are Mr. Heldon Foyle, of course," she said. "I have heard that you are very clever. I don't see what I can have had to do with the murder, even if I am Lola Rachel—which I admit."

"We shall see. Can you prove where you were between ten o'clock, when you left the Palatial Hotel, and midnight on that date?"

She laughed merrily. "You are not so clever as I thought," she exclaimed. "Do you think that I am a murderess I went straight to an hotel near Charing Cross—the Splendid—and caught the nine o'clock boat train to Paris. It is easily proved."

Foyle shifted to the seat opposite, so that he could see her face more easily.

"Then you don't deny that you visited Grosvenor Gardens that night, that you were admitted by Ivan Abramovitch, Grell's valet, and taken to his study"

"Of course I do," she retorted laughingly. "If that's all you've got to go upon you may as well let me go now."

"Very well. We shall see," he answered.

The cab stopped at Malchester Row Police Station.

CHAPTER XXI.

To the constable who opened the cab door Foyle gave quick instructions in a low voice. The Princess Petrovska found herself ushered into a plainly furnished waiting-room, decorated with half a dozen photographic enlargements of the portraits of high police officials and a photogravure of "Her Majesty the Baby." There the policeman left her.

Foyle came to her a moment later. His couple of questions to the cabman as he paid him had not been fruitful. He had been ordered by the lady to drive to Waterloo Station. It was a fairly obvious ruse, which would have had the effect of effectually confusing her trail, for from there she might have taken train, tube, omnibus, tram or cab again to about any point in London.

"I am sorry," he apologised. "We shall have to keep you here for an hour or two while your statements are verified."

"I don't mind," she countered lightly. "It will be an amusing experience. I have never seen a police station before. Perhaps you would like to show me over while we're waiting, Mr. Foyle."

The superintendent was admiring her confidence a little ruefully. A pleasant-faced, buxom woman tapped at the door, and Lola eyed her with misgivings. Foyle's blue eyes were fixed on her face.

"I am afraid I must deny myself that pleasure," he said suavely. "There are other matters which will take up our time. First, I shall be obliged if you will let the matron here search you."

The nonchalance of the Princess Petrovska had disappeared in a flash, and Foyle noted her quick change of countenance. She had recollected she was carrying Lady Eileen Meredith's jewels. They would inevitably be found if she were searched. She was not so much worried by what explanation she could give as to what would be the result of a questioning of Eileen. Angrily defiant, she was on her feet in a flash.

"You have no right to search me. I am not under arrest," she declared.

Foyle knew she was right. What he was doing was flagrantly unlawful unless he charged her with some offence. Yet there are times when it is necessary for a police officer to put a blind eye to the telescope and to do technically illegal things in order that justice may not be defeated. This he felt was one of the occasions. He ignored her protestations and left the room, closing the door after him. For a brief moment the woman forgot the breeding of the Princess Petrovska in the fiery passion of Lola the dancer. But if she meditated resistance, a second's reflection convinced her that it would be futile. The matron, for all her good-tempered face, was well developed muscularly, and did not seem the kind of woman to be trifled with. The Princess submitted with as good a grace as she could muster.

As the woman drew forth the casket of jewels Lola made one false move. She laid a slim-gloved hand on her arm.

"If you want to earn ten pounds you will give me that back," she said softly.

The matron shook her head with so resolute an expression that the word "twenty," which trembled on the Princess Petrovska's lips, was never uttered. Gathering in her hands the articles she had found, she stepped outside. In three minutes her place was taken by Foyle. He quietly returned to her everything but the jewel case. This he held between his fingers.

"Where did you get this?" he demanded. His voice was keyed to the stern, official tone he knew so well how to assume.

She gripped the side of a chair tightly.

"What has that to do with you It is mine. Give it to me."

"Not unless you can prove it is yours. If you do not, I shall charge you with being in possession of property suspected to be stolen"

She bit her lips until the blood came. Her face had become very pale. If the threat were meant seriously — and she could see no reason why it should not be—she was in an awkward predicament. Ordinarily she had ready resource, a fertile genius for invention. Now her wits seemed to have deserted her. Cudgel her brains as she would, she could see no way out of the difficulty. To boldly state that the jewels had been entrusted to her by Eileen would involve opening up a fresh line of inquiry for the C.I.D. men that might have disastrous results. Nor was there any person who might bear out a story invented on the spur of the moment.

"Well?" he spoke coldly.

"I refuse to tell you where I got them," she retorted. "You must do as you like."

"Then it is my duty to warn you that anything you say may be used in evidence against you. You will be charged." He opened the door and cried down the corridor, "Reserve!" To the constable who answered he indicated the Princess by a nod. "Take this woman to the detention room. She will be paraded for identification in half an hour."

The detention room of a London police station is a compromise between the comparative luxury of a waiting-room and the harshness of a cell. Like a waiting-room it is furnished with chairs and tables, and like a cell its door is provided with a strong, self-acting lock. The Princess Petrovska gritted her teeth viciously as she was left alone, and paid no heed to the magazines and papers left on the table—a consideration for visitors that had not been discernible in the waiting-room.

Meanwhile, Foyle had set every available man of the divisional detachment of the C.I.D. busily at work. A couple had been sent to verify the account given by the woman of her movements on the night when the murder occurred. The remainder had been sent to bring in a score of women, the wives and daughters of inspectors and other senior officers.

Detective-Inspector Taylor had teased up with Wills, who was informed of the part he had to play.

"You say you [illegible] recognise the woman who came out of Lord Burghley's house. Now, we're going to give you another try. We don't want you to pick any one out unless you're absolutely sure. Mind that."

Some of the women who had been fetched in by the detectives were rejected by Foyle as being too unlike the Princess. He intended the identification test to be as fair as possible. The ten who finally took their places in the high-pitched charge-room were as nearly like the Princess in build and dress as could be managed from the choice afforded. They stood in a row on the opposite side of the room from the steel-railed dock and high desk. Then Lola was brought in. Her head was held high, and her lips curled superciliously as she took in the arrangements.

"Please choose a position among these ladies," said Foyle urbanely. "You may stand anywhere you like."

There was an angry glitter in her dark eyes as she obeyed. She was not the woman to risk a scene uselessly. Then Wills was brought in. Foyle put a formal question to him.

MRS. LYON'S ACHES AND PAINS

Have All Gone Since Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Terre Hill, Pa.—"Kindly permit me to give you my testimonial in favor of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When I first began taking it I was suffering from female troubles for some time and had almost all kinds of aches—pains in lower part of back and in sides, and pressing down pains. I could not sleep and had no appetite. Since I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the aches and pains are all gone and I feel like a new woman. I cannot praise your medicine too highly."—Mrs. AUGUSTUS LYON, Terre Hill, Pa.

It is true that nature and a woman's work has produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known. From the roots and herbs of the field, Lydia E. Pinkham, forty years ago, gave to womankind a remedy for their peculiar ills which has proved more efficacious than any other combination of drugs ever compounded, and today Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is recognised from coast to coast as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health—many of them openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; and in some cases that it has saved them from surgical operations.

To Give the Hair a Naturally Wavy Effect

Since the virtues of plain liquid silmerine as a hair curler became known, English chemists, as well as druggists in Canada and the United States, have been having a really extraordinary demand for this remarkable product. Its effectiveness and its entire harmlessness—especially as compared with the ruinous curling iron—doubtless have been responsible for its increasing use for the purpose mentioned. As the curliness is in evidence for a considerable time, a few ounces of liquid silmerine will last a long while.

One need only apply a little of the liquid with a clean tooth brush before retiring and in the morning the hair will have that beautiful wavy and glossy appearance which bears no marks of artificiality. The best way is to divide the hair into strands and moisten each of them from root to tip. There is no discolouration, no streaky or other unpleasant after-effect

A Blunt Excuse.

There is a story of an English clergyman who had taken temporary duty for a friend and who had the ill luck to injure his false teeth during the week. The plate was sent to the dentist for repairs, a faithful assurance being given that it should be returned by Sunday's post, but the dentist or the post proved faithless.

With the assistance of the clerk the clergyman managed to stumble through the prayers, but felt it would be useless to attempt to preach. He therefore instructed the clerk to make some excuse for him and dismiss the congregation. But his feelings may be better imagined than described when, in the seclusion of the vestry, he overheard the clerk in impressive tones thus deliver the excuse:

"Parson is very sorry, but it is his misfortune to be obliged to wear a set of artful teeth. They busted last Wednesday, and he ain't got them back from London today, as he was promised. I've helped him all I could through the service, but I can't do more for him. 'Tisn't any use for him going up in the pulpit, for you wouldn't understand a word he said, so he thinks you all may as well go home."

Gained 30 Lbs. in Few Weeks Never Felt So Well

Was Pale, Weak and Thin, and Had Nervous Headaches Before Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

It is truly wonderful what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food does for women who are weak, weary and run down in health. New, rich blood is what is needed in nearly all such cases, and because Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new blood it brings cure — not mere relief, but actual cure—in the great majority of such ailments.

MRS. H. LAICH.

With an abundance of rich, red blood coursing through the veins the nerves are strengthened and vigor and vitality are carried to every organ of the human body.

With the nerves properly nourished headaches and neuralgic pains disappear, appetite improves, digestion is good, you sleep and rest well, and gain in strength and weight.

Mrs. H. Laich, Cannington Manor, Sask., writes:—"You will remember me writing you last spring. Well, I gave up my doctor and began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This treatment cured me rapidly and I was soon myself again. I was pale, thin and weak, suffered from stomach troubles and liver complaint, and frequently had sick, nervous headaches. "I was surprised to find that in a few weeks' time I had gained 30 pounds in weight. I never felt so strong and well in all my life. Headaches never bother me any more, and I am grateful for the cure. If people would only give this medicine a fair trial they would certainly be cured."

Everywhere people are talking about this great food cure, which cures in Nature's way, by supplying the ingredients to form new blood, and so overcome weakness and disease by an abundance of vitality. THE VALUE OF PERSPECTIVE

With the Household Editor

No doubt many of Our Folks have at one time or another visited the art gallery at the Canadian National Exhibition. While wandering through the building, many of the most valuable pictures do not appeal especially to one upon close examination. In fact, to view them closely, they look almost rough and crude, and as though the paint had in some places at least been piled on regardless of beauty or harmony. By viewing these masterpieces from a distance, however, the result is altogether different. A dark background draws attention to the outstanding features of the painting, and the light falling across it at just the proper angle brings out the beautiful colorings, so that even one unlearned in art can appreciate the beauty.

It is said of Michael Angelo that he always worked with a little lamp fastened to his hat, lest his shadow should fall upon the canvas.

These illustrations are suggestive. The effect of distance creates a great difference in the appearance of many things in life besides pictures. Many of we housewives are prone to get too close a view of our daily routine. We should occasionally, at least, stand back from ourselves and allow a larger scope to come within our vision. Then too we must not allow the shadow of self to darken our pathway or we will become narrow and unhappy. What we get out of life or put into it depends upon our viewpoint. By seeking to make things as comfortable and cheerful around us as possible and to look for the virtue rather than the flaws, can we not so train our mind's eye to see in each humble duty we perform its contribution to the perfecting of a happy home.

DANGERS THAT LURK IN THE SOFT WINDS OF SPRING

(Samuel G. Dixon, M.D., LL.D.)

When nature arouses from her winter lethargy and the first faint promises of spring softens the wind, man in common with all animal life harkens to the foretokening.

The desire for change and relief from the winter routine is strong in us all and while this is the time when caution should be exercised the impulses seem to lead us to throw it aside. The high death rate from pneumonia and tuberculosis which is the inevitable accompaniment of the early spring months is an irrefutable evidence that this change from winter habits requires the exercise of caution to prevent evil results.

The city dweller in particular is apt to over-eat and under-exercise during the winter season. As a result when spring approaches his physical strength is below par, he becomes easily fatigued and therefore susceptible to the attacks of disease germs.

Old people who suffer from the cold during the winter and who do not appreciate that ventilation need not mean exposure, are apt to suffer from the sudden changes of temperature at this season of the year. It is particularly due to these winter habits of poor ventilation and insufficient exercise that when spring arrives we feel debilitated.

The sensible liver who sleeps the year round in the fresh air, eats in moderation and exercises rationally is far less subject to spring fever and spring ailments than the more self-indulgent individual.

During March when fluctuations of the temperature are frequent, care should be taken to maintain an even bodily temperature by proper protection in the way of clothing. Better some slight discomfort at noon than to be chilled on the way home from work at night. Moderation in diet is also advisable. This, with a reasonable amount of exercise and well ventilated sleeping rooms will aid in resisting the dangers accompanying the approach of spring.

LEMONADE STRAW

NEW YORK, March 11.—"Lemonade straw" suggests something cool and seductive for summer headwear, this being the name of a new hat material shown recently at the dress and millinery opening at the J. B. Greenhut store. The millinery novelty is a shiny black straw pressed quite flat. Some of the models are trimed with the new tip ornaments and with cockades of suede or ribbon. These ornaments rise from the centre of the crown instead of at the side.

Twenty-eight model dresses were included in the fashion parade held on the second floor. These were copies of imported designs, with a few original ones added. They show what can be purchased at reasonable prices. Belgian blue, Russian green, French blue and rose were the colours most in favour for afternoon and maize, ceil and pastel shades for evening.

Afternoon dresses have revived the normal waist line, while evening dresses lean toward the Empire effects. Oftentimes the full straight skirts are shirred several times to form a girdle and the bodice part is a mere wisp of chiffon or lace with sleeves all in one.

Short box coats of serge, moire or wolo poplin make attractive tailor fashions, and the skirts are invariably plain and usually circular.

Food: To draw an absolute line between food and medicine is practically impossible, although that is what the average physician has been trying to do for hundreds of years. It is only within a comparatively recent period that cures have been sought for in a really scientific diet.

Any one of common sense and a reasonable amount of observation has from time to time noted favourable or unfavourable effects of various kinds of food. You have found at certain times that various articles disagree with you while at other times there is a great desire for that article, and when eaten the result was very satisfactory.

Some foods are natural laxatives, and if eaten to excess and without another kind of food that will in a measure neutralise their action they may prevent the body from receiving proper nourishment for the simple reason that everything is carried forward at a rapid rate, and evacuation is accomplished before digestion has been completed. Other foods have the opposite effect, and causes great sluggishness of the bowels unless their action is in a measure overcome by a proper combination of the laxative agents. A food ration that is well balanced in neutrative qualities, and at the same time combines the proper elements that will cause the refuse or waste matter to be evacuated at the proper time, is not a difficult problem if a little study is given to the matter.

Just at the present time the members of the big medical associations are following out the plans laid down at their last annual meeting, and are supplying the newspapers with articles about disease, sanitation, etc., but they say very little about the subject of diet or foods, but there is one food remedy upon which they all seem to be agreed, and that is bran. Of course, they cannot recommend any certain kind of pills but bran, one would think, cannot be harmful, and it is not a patent medicine, so it is recommended to one and all.

Now I do not, most positively do not agree that bran is harmless. Bran, the outer covering of wheat, is a hard, woody fibre and contains no nutritive matter whatever. It is no more of a food than the same amount of sawdust, ground to the same fineness. It will have practically the same effect upon the intestines, that is, it will irritate and scratch them to such an extent that they will do their best to get rid of the offensive and useless matter, thus causing a movement of the bowels. If, however, the patient who secured such "good results" continues to use the irritant he will find that in a short time his trouble is greater than ever. The tender mucous lining of the bowels through repeated scratchings and irritation becomes thickened and hardened or calloused and no longer responds to the irritation.

Pure whole wheat flour, made from the wheat after the epicarp or outer covering has been removed, is as near to a perfect food as we can find, but civilized man does not live on bread alone. He very properly adds to the wheat fruits, nuts, and vegetables, as well as meats, and when the combination is selected according to the needs and occupation as well as the physical conditions, good health and good appetite follow naturally.

CHANCE FOR TEAM WORK

A woman has just told us of what she did the night her young husband found himself bankrupt. His factory was closed, he had lost all he owned—plus a good deal more—and, as he looked at it, life was about at an end. He reflected that he had taken his wife from a happy and charming home, and that he had brought disgrace and poverty on her. It occurred to him that a well-placed bullet might be the best all-round solution of his difficulties. His wife, at home, made a poignant surmise as to what he was thinking. Suddenly it occurred to her that here was a chance for team-work—an opportunity to show what being a wife really meant. She prepared a delicious little dinner, she made her home as inviting as she could, and she arrayed herself in her most charming dress. Her husband returned, not to a dishevelled and sobbing woman, to a neglected house and a drama of disaster, but to a home where everything spoke of resolution, of continuity, of expectation. The fire on his hearth, his simple, well-cooked dinner, the courageous eyes of his attractive wife, restored him to a true sense of values. He was able, amid all his confusion of purpose and torment of realisation, to see his failure as only a retrievable episode in his life. He is now a successful manufacturer, his debts are paid, and he has a happy home with a son and a daughter in it. He was saved from being a suicide by the fact that a woman was sportsmanlike at the right moment. Not a bad thing to think about in these days when unaccustomed poverty is bringing dismay to thousands.—Collier's.

Serve with sweetened whipped cream

A "SPOT" SHELF

To stock up with a few remedies for removing spots will save you dollars at the end of the year.

Spots unremoved bring destruction to clothes and furniture, as the case may be.

Powdered pumice stone should always be on hand, in a small wooden or tin box, or even in a bottle. Many things that are usually kept in boxes can be kept in bottles, which are more durable, cleaner and take up less room. Pumice stone is the best thing for removing spots from marble.

Vinegar should always be accessible and a small bottle of it on the spot self is a good idea. Mix it with silver polish to remove deep-seated tarnish from metal. Use it to get glue spots off from wood and furniture.

Salts of lemon is efficacious in removing rust spots. The spots should be moistened and then covered with the salts and exposed to the sunlight. Gasoline or naptha is the best cleansing agent to use on fabrics of all kinds. But they should never be kept in the house in large quantities, as they are extremely dangerous. It is safer not to keep any amount of them in the house. The nearest drug store should be relied on. Powdered French chalk should be used to remove grease spots from all sorts of surfaces—wall paper, clothes and carpets. It is not always successful in one application, but should be brushed off and replenished until the spot has disappeared.

Use any cleansing agent sparingly at first. Too much may spoil the article spotted. Work always from the outer edge to the centre of a stain.

TEETHING TIME TROUBLES

Baby's teething time is a period of anxiety for mothers unless baby's stomach is kept sweet and his bowels regular. No other medicine has been found so valuable during teething time as has Baby's Own Tablets. They make teething painless and by their use baby gets his teeth so easily that the mother scarcely knows they are coming. Concerning the Tablets, Mrs. F. Goldsmith, Nelson, B. C., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets are a mother's greatest help during the teething period." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WHAT A MAN WANTS A WIFE FOR

Women in general have a very erroneous impression of what a man wants a wife for, and often the male biped himself could not say what he wants a wife for at all. He would probably reply, if the question were put to him, that he wanted a wife to cook for him, mend his hosiery, look after him generally, and always be smiling and agreeable.

What a fallacy! Yet he would probably believe at the time that he was speaking the truth.

But it is neither to be cobbler-in-chief for his hosiery, nor manager-in-chief of his home, for which he desires to take unto himself a wife, for he is perfectly well aware that he can enjoy the privileges of these mundane comforts in someone else's home for a very modest sum, and thus escape the burden of rates, taxes, domestic service, and all the responsibilities these entail.

The smiling agreeableness I do not deny goes a long way in promoting the happiness of every man, for affability is the one trait, above almost every other, that a man appreciates in lovely woman. Let her be ever so deficient in accomplishments, ever so insignificant, ever so simply dressed, or ever so uninteresting, provided she has acquired the art of being uniformly agreeable, the average man will find her society refreshing, and she will attract him far more forcibly than her more gifted sister.

The proverb has it that "Pity is akin to love." Yes; but far, far greater is the kinship of sympathy and love. And the agreeable woman is invariably sympathetic, that is why she is so agreeable.

But if a man were asked, "Would you marry a woman solely because she was agreeable?" nine out of ten men would assure you, in all sincerity, that they would never dream of doing such a thing.

Yet this is precisely what thousands of men do marry for, though they are unaware that this is so.

Unconsciously, the woman who is always ready to be kindly sympathetic draws a man to her, until it becomes a habit with him to take his affairs to her to talk over, just as a child takes its little joys and troubles to its sympathetic mother.

True, there are others in whom the youngster might confide, but he is so sure of kind words, sympathy, smiles and comfort from mother, that he goes straight to her in preference to anyone else. And since every man is more or less a child all his life, despite his superior strength and often huge personality, he is inevitably drawn towards the woman on whom he feels he may depend.

The vixen, the shrew, the woman who turns on him with "Well, what did you expect?" "I told you so" or "Serve you right," he is positively afraid of.

She may err through her superbly candid nature, she may do so because she cannot tell a lie; but whatever the cause, you will observe she is never a favourite with the opposite sex.

A man is never at his best in the society of that type of woman, for she has the unhappy knack of causing him to look with depreciation upon himself and all his best endeavours. In fact, she makes him feel he is a fool, and though a man may have long suspected the fact, he is never particularly jubilant in having it brought indisputably home to him.

Obviously, then, that is not the type of woman a man seeks to marry.

Not at all! His heart unconsciously goes forth to the woman who is sympathetic, and who will be to him a real companion, a true and patient friend.

Only too well does he realise that this world has many dreary places that must be traversed, and it is a comfort to him to join hands with a good woman and—secure in her loving sympathy—traverse the way together.

When misfortune overtakes a man and when his way is beset with trials and temptations, he desires one true and staunch friend to whom he may turn for sympathy.

Too many of the women candidates for marriage seek merely to qualify themselves in housework and duties of a domestic nature, which are precisely the things a landlady who is qualifying to take in young men boarders seeks to become proficient in.

But the woman who is qualifying for the position of a wife needs to show qualities of heart and mind neither looked for nor appreciated in a landlady.

When a man marries he wants one who will stand by him in bad or good fortune; one on whose counsel and inspiration he can depend at all times.

And no good man's life is ever quite complete without the love of a good woman.

Life's storm and sunshine, victory and conflict, adverse and favourable circumstances, are sweetened and made more worth while when a woman's love is in the background—always ready to sympathise and help.

There exists in the heart of a man a yearning for a true woman's love. Mother and sister may be dear to him, but the full purpose of life is found only in the mutual love of a good man and woman consecrated at the altar by the marriage sacrament.

Courage, sympathy and happiness are all increased under love's mystic power.—Valentine.

PREPARING CHOCOLATES

A box of home-made chocolates is always an appreciated gift. If you are not very skilful at cooking candy mixtures, the uncooked fondant is far easier to manage than the cooked kind, and it is, besides, delicious. Not quite as creamy is it, perhaps, as the cooked fondant, but it is creamy enough for most palates.

To make it, mix the white of an egg with three tablespoonfuls of cream or lukewarm water and two teaspoonfuls of flavouring extract. Then add confectioners' sugar, sifted, or at least reasonably free from lumps, and a pinch of cream of tarter. Add enough, stirring with a wooden spatula or enamelled spoon, to make a paste stiff enough to handle.

Have at hand a little heap of confectioners' sugar. Dip the finger ends in this and with them mould a little ball of fondant. Practice making these little balls until you can handle rather soft fondant and yet mould even, small balls. Put them on a sheet of waxed paper and let them harden for two hours before dipping them in the chocolate,

These balls, when covered, will be plain chocolate creams. But the fondant of which they are made forms the basis of many other sorts of chocolates. The variation is easy, although it takes time.

Some of the Variations.

Put fondant, that has been flavoured with vanilla, into a small bowl and to it add half the quantity of desiccated cocoanut. If this is too stiff add a little more cream. Then mould the cocoanut fillings into shape.

Have ready some broken walnut meats, and put a piece into the centre of some of the fondant balls.

Any sort of candied fruit can also be used as a filling for the fondant, and so can any nut meats. Half a blanched almond and half a seeded raisin, pressed together, form another good kernel for the ball of fondant.

For cherry chocolates, drain maraschino cherries in a sieve. When all the juice seems to have run off, put the cherries into a dishful of confectioners' sugar for fifteen minutes. Then remove them, brushing off the sugar, which will have absorbed more juice. Now roll them in fondant balls, and if these seem damp from the juice that oozes out, roll the fondant balls in sugar to absorb the juice. Let them get thoroughly dry before using.

To a cupful of fondant add the grated outside rind of an orange, and mix it in thoroughly, adding more sugar if necessary. This is delicious either alone or with walnuts.

Cut dates in quarters, and use these for the filling for other fondant forms and prepare figs in the same way. If you want pistachio creams, use pistachio flavouring and a little green colouring matter obtained by boiling a few clean leaves of spinach in a little water and then rubbing them through a sieve, then straining through cheesecloth, with the water in which they were boiled.

Use almond flavouring for the creams that have almonds in them.

The Dipping.

Chocolate especially designed for covering candies can be bought by the cake, and this is by far the easiest sort to use. So if you can get it, use it.

This should be put in a small saucepan, preferably a new one, in a pan of water set over a small burner, like that of a chafing dish or percolator. Melt it until it is smooth. Then place a centre on a dipping fork, which can be bought for a small sum, and immerse it in the chocolate. Lift it immediately, let it drip a moment, and place it on a sheet of waxed paper. If you do not care to buy a chocolate dipper, use a silver fork. One with long, narrow tines is the best.

If you do not have the prepared chocolate, melt a pound of unsweetened chocolate in a saucepan over hot water and then add two cupfuls of sugar. Melt two ounces of cocoa butter and all that gradually, with a little vanilla extract. Then proceed as before.

The chocolates, before the covering has begun to set, may be decorated with halves of pecans or walnuts or almonds, or with candied cherries or strips of candied citron or pineapple. Or, when the chocolate is still soft, they may be rolled in ground nut meats or shredded cocoanut.

After practicing a little you will be able to form the centres in various shapes, some long and narrow, some like crescents, and others flat and the attractiveness of the finished cannround. These different shapes add to the attractiveness of the finished candies. Those of the same flavour should be shaped alike.

The Packing.

Remember that your task is not finished when the candies are done. They must yet be attractively packed. You can buy boxes covered with holly-decorated paper, or you can buy or make small baskets. Line whatever sort of receptacles you use with fresh waxed paper, which is inexpensive, and place the candies, when they are quite dry, in neat position. Use sheets of the paper between layers and a small sheet on top of the top layer. Then wrap the box or basket in tissue paper and ties with red cord or ribbon.

THE BURDENS OF AGE.

The kidneys seem to be about the first organs to wear out and fail to properly perform their work. The result is weak, lame, aching back, rheumatic pains and failing eyesight. Many people of advanced years have recovered health and comfort by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They ensure the healthful action of liver, kidneys and bowels.

Sour Milk Cake.

Here is a very nice recipe for sour milk cake: One cup of sugar, 1 piece of butter or lard the size of a small egg. Mix into the sugar 1 scant teaspoon of saleratus mixed into a cup of sour milk, pinch of salt, 2 cups of flour, 1 cup of raisins, 1 whole nutmeg.

Dutch Sauce.

Take two ounces of butter, put it into a stewpan with the yolks of four eggs, and stand the pan in a saucepan of hot water over the fire, and keep stirring it well; season it with salt to taste and a dust of cayenne. Stir till it thickens and is quite smooth, and be very careful that it does not boil, or it will curdle. When ready to serve, put in one tablespoonful of French vinegar, one of tarragon, and half the juice of a lemon.

ITCHING BURNING OF ECZEMA INTENSE

Began on Child's Face. Spread all Over Head. Pimples Would Fester and Break Like Boils. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed.

Kincaid, Sask.—"My little boy had eczema when he was about a week old. It began on his face and spread all over his head. It was in pimples and they would fester and break like little boils all over his head, but were like rash on his face. The eczema was very itching and the burning was intense; it made him so restless he could scarcely sleep.

"I tried several ointments and salves and they seemed to do very little good so I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment after he had been sick about a month. When I used Cuticura Soap and a few applications of the Cuticura Ointment I noticed such a difference. He was able to sleep and his face began to get a new skin on it. I kept on using them for three months, and two cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment cured him." (Signed) Mrs. A. F. Thayer, July 13, 1914.

Samples Free by Mail

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for pimples, blackheads, red, rough and oily skins, itching, scaly scalps, dry, thin and falling hair, chapped hands and chapped skin, that it is almost criminal not to use them. They do even more for skin-tortured infants and children. Although sold by dealers throughout the world, a liberal sample of each will be mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. VETERINARY DOCTORS RECEIVING A WOUNDED WAR HORSE FOR TREATMENT AT A BLUE CROSS STATION.

THE work of the Blue Cross at the front is gradually assuming a greater importance. The special function of this latest addition to field organization is the care of the wounded war horses, and this function is being admirably performed. The picture shows a scene at one of the Blue Cross receiving depots in Northern France; a wounded horse has been brought in over the snow for treatment by the veterinary surgeons and attendants. At present there are three hospitals at work—Berqueux, Provins and Troyes. The installations have been carried out with the greatest care. The premises used as stables have been entirely whitewashed and carefully disinfected; nothing has been neglected to insure comfortable and healthy stabling for the wounded horses. In addition to this, some meadows quite near to the stables have been rented, so that every day the horses may be sent out to graze and exercise and also take advantage of the fresh air and sun. Several very remarkable operations have been performed at Provins, and these have excited the admiration of the French military authorities. In addition to the ordinary stables and barns there are also meadows on the banks of the canal and the Seine which insure good grazing to the horses sent from the depots of French horses at Troyes. Three hundred places are ready at present, but only one hundred are occupied; the others will be filled as soon as the French horses at Troyes have been inoculated. Two new hospitals—at Vernon-Giboa and Fontainebleau—will be ready to begin very shortly, proving how rapidly the work of the Blue Cross is spreading in France.

French and German Army Chiefs Sketched Anew

General Joffre Is Pictured as Calm Only Through Power of Will and Field Marshal von Hindenburg's Grim Humor Is Described.

(SPECIAL DISPATCH).
LONDON, March 13.

Portrait sketches and anecdotes of General Joffre and Field Marshal von Hindenburg have been frequent since the war began, but some of the best have been published here recently. One article from the Times concerning General Joffre is as follows:—

"It has been left to a handwriting expert to discover the sensibility of Joffre. His sternness, like his calmness, is a pose, a mask which he has adopted. This much I learn from a person who has exceptional opportunities of judging. Since the 'personal factor' plays so large a rôle in war, I have thought it useful to set down some unpublished facts concerning the Commander-in-Chief. His self-control, the armor that he has forged for himself, does not prevent him from feeling acutely each time he has to inflict acts of discipline upon others. Thus, when he cashiered five generals after the southern manoeuvres of 1913, he suffered as severely, perhaps, as the victims. But he steeled himself to perform what he considered to be his duty—in the name of France.

"His whole duty, as soldier and organizer of victory, is his religion; France is his second mother. He has no formal cult beyond that of country, no higher pleasure than to 'faire du bien.' It explains his character; a deep faith in 'la patrie,' coupled with a natural benevolence. It explains his tenacity in his present post. 'Il faut tenir bon,' his letters are full of such expressions—it explains his popularity with the French soldier.

"Joffre's calmness, then, in the most dreadful hours of conflict is the result of will. He is the master of his fate, the captain of his soul, in the true Henley sense. He trains his mind, like his body, by constant exercise, by setting it tasks. The only way he can support the immensity of his work is by an iron rule never to commit excesses. His strict moderation has enabled him to keep his health even in the heats of Africa and Madagascar and to escape unscathed from seventeen years of colonial service. Scarcely smoking or employing strong drink, he avoids social functions which entail late hours. He leaves his rare dinner parties early in the evening that he may be fresh for the morrow. His day at the Ministry of War in peace times was prefaced by a gallop in the Bois, but this exercise was supplemented by a walk from his bureau to his house at Auteuil—a good three miles.

"He comes from farmer stock, hence his health. His father was a landowner whose fruitful vines, under the careful management of Mme. Joffre mère, brought a small fortune of £6,000 to each of the eleven children—no mean attainment in those times. The great captain inherits his order and method from his mother, who was a careful manager even among the careful managers of the South. For her he had a great affection; with him, as with most Frenchmen and all Southerners, the family tie is strong.

"Tradition and continuity are as much considered as if the château which he now inhabits were the Vatican and he the Pope. Each of his officers is well tried in his personal service, each has been with him at various times in his career. When war broke out Joffre reassembled his old aids to form a harmonious whole. They know his 'system' and methods of work and could replace him in the unhappy event of disablement through illness or the various attempts made against him by the enemy. But Joffre is well guarded by his corps d'élite. A pleasant fiction credits his wife with following him to the field and watching over his food. But the strict fact is that Mme. Joffre never saw her husband during four and a half months, and now rarely receives his call when he descends upon Paris by automobile. Out of deference for the rule that the General has established for his subordinates Mme. Joffre refrains from obtruding upon the master in his great responsibilities. The same feeling of delicacy prompted her at Bordeaux, where she stayed a month, the most trying in the operations, to hide her identity under her maiden name.

"The Generalissimo's ambition is eminently peaceful. He dreams of the time (if he has time to dream) when there shall be no more war and he may settle down in the country with a large garden to give him quietude and air. His concern to-day is for his soldiers; he thinks perpetually of them. His letters to intimates contain frequent allusions to 'mes braves petits soldats,' for whom he fears the wet, cold weather. He has an immense belief in the material at his command, the finest in the world, he thinks. His consideration and the confidence he inspires have earned for him the devotion of his troops.

The Standard in a Paris despatch on the German commander says:—

"A correspondent of the Liberté has seen in Amsterdam an American who left Berlin two weeks ago, after having, by special permission, gone to the Russian front. He gave some amusing descriptions of what he had seen. His picture of the terrible Field Marshal von Hindenburg is worth reproducing:—

"'Hindenburg has two passions—dogs and tobacco. He smokes incessantly, especially when he is sleepless. He then smokes out his plans, and when he has beaten the Russians in thought he dozes off. It is a different business with the dogs. The towns and châteaux of Poland have contributed richly to his collection, and the shortest way to his good graces is to steal and present to him a fine dog. Only the other day a convoy of choice dogs left the front for Hanover, where von Hindenburg lives, under escort of an orderly with a special passport, signed by the Field Marshal himself. If he has two loves, von Hindenburg has also two pet aversions—Austrian generals and Prussian ministers.

German Phrase Book for "Invaders" of England Gives Comic Touch to War

"Show Me My Room! That Dirty Hole?" Vies with "See That I Am Not Disturbed! I Want to Sleep an Hour" and "Give Me a Kiss!" or with "Answer with Your Life!"

(SPECIAL DISPATCH).
LONDON, March 13.

The following, dated "Northeast France," from the Glasgow Herald, is one of the most remarkable of the revelations that have come with the war:—

One of the most interesting souvenirs of the war, which has come into my possession through the courtesy of the Rev. G. Anderson Wells, Church of England Army Chaplain with No. 2 Canadian Hospital, is a little red book entitled "Forsister Worterbuch Englisch." This means an English dictionary for the knapsack, and it constitutes overwhelming evidence of Germany's preparation for the war, and of a still more interesting fact not hitherto revealed—namely, the existence of an expeditionary force especially designed to land on our shores. For the book has not been issued to all the German troops. Others have been given a Franco-German dictionary of words and phrases constructed on similar lines.

The particular copy which lies before me was the property of a German corporal wounded in the recent fighting near La Bassée. He was too badly hurt about the head to talk much, but he insisted on presenting the book as a souvenir to the chaplain and added that there had been issued to other army corps, similar dictionaries not only in French but in Russian.

This little work is another good example of German thoroughness and forethought, coupled with that cocksureness which has been followed by so many disappointments. Of the 4,000 or more words in the actual dictionary more than half of them apply solely to naval and military operations, and there are two chapters of phrases for invading troops which, if they had come to the notice of any British publicist before August last, would have almost infallibly precipitated the world's strife.

Apparently of Recent Date.

Probably the book was issued from the secret storehouse of the German War Office after war broke out, but there is intrinsic evidence that it was printed in 1912, after the Agadir crisis. The Wörterbuch, which gives the English pronunciation phonetically, starts with a list of place names, in which figure most points of military importance in the United Kingdom. Then follow two maps, one of the British Isles, another of London, and equivalents in coin and weights and measures.

Next we find seven pages devoted to the uniforms and marks or rank of officers and men of the British army and navy. All the details about uniforms are headed "Stand von 1912."

A key to English pronunciation and grammar precedes the dictionary. One is immediately impressed with the large proportion of words that would have to be known to a visionary German army of occupation in Britain. Whilst once get unsaddle, repel an attack, cut off the retreat, shoulder straps, aide-de-camp, aeroplane, set on fire, tax, arrest, etc. Later we even see petites Michelgramaschen.

The troops of the German expeditionary force [illegible] to "disembark" and to "[illegible]akround" (not an improbable event at first outset) and to "disband" (quite a likely proposition for those lucky enough to escape Davy Jones' locker), to "fix bayonets" and to "mutiny" (if the other fellows with the bayonets come too close).

If they are in difficulties the Worterbuch tells them what to say to unarmed English fishermen to make them "set sail" ("Absahren aus dem Hafen") for the Vaterland. Every German synonym for that sinister word "Requisition" appears, as well as the words "booty" and "plunder," which recent happenings have associated so intimately with the German soldier.

Shows Military Knowledge.

Evidently the producer of the book—it might have been Bernhardi himself—knew a great deal more about modern military and naval developments than is vouchsafed to the ordinary lexiconeer. "Geisel" (hostage) is a hint that a German army would operate in Britain in the same genial way that they have behaved in the territory they have invaded on the Continent, i.e., by taking hostages and shooting them if a drunken German soldier caused an alarm by discharging his rifle. There is plenty of the gospel of frightfulness in this little manual if not set out in quite so unblushing a form as in the better known book recently dealt with by Professor J. H. Morgan.

The Germans are told the English for "hand to hand fighting" and "extended formation" for neither of which they have shown any particular liking so far. Even the dictates of gallantry are not forgotten, for the phrase "Give me a kiss" is set out especially for their benefit. In any illustration of the use of a proposition of time or place London is always chosen for the example, e.g., "London liegt an der Themse." We read that "Mord" means "murder," and "Mordbrenner" means "incendiary"—words the Germans might think about. The pseudo-invaders of England are instructed in the phrases to "cry quarter" and "no quarter" and "flag of truce."

Finally they are told that "Völkerrecht" signifies international law or the law of nations, but the meaning of "Zerstörung"—destruction—seems to have been much more apparent to the German perception.

Conversation for Invaders.

Now we come to Gespräche (conversation), and Das Quartiermachen—i. e. billeting. What is not in the interrogative is in the imperative, as will be seen from the following representative extracts taken textually from the little red book, each sentence being followed by the phonetical spelling:—

Where does the Mayor (head local authority) live? Show me to him! Send him here!

Give me billets for 5 officers, 230 men and 3 horses.

Send somebody with me who will show me the rooms for the officers.

Is that the room for the officer? Don't you have a larger room? The rooms must be heated to-morrow. Put clean sheets on the bed.

See that the captain may have lunch immediately after arriving.

Have any sick horses been in this stable? Take that cow away!

Give notice by the drum that the inhabitants will have to furnish the food for the soldiers quartered with them.

Every soldier will be entitled to 1½ pounds of meat—in addition to that a pint of beer. For the night every soldier must have at least a straw bed, a pillow and a blanket.

Take care that my orders are strictly obeyed. I shall hold you responsible for that.

Any resistance will be severely punished. The community (or municipality) will have to pay a heavy contribution.

Whoever makes an attempt on one of my soldiers will be condemned to death.

The village will be razed.

The Mayor certainly will be shot.

You will answer with your life for their safety.

In Tone of Command.

Thus, having shown us terror stricken British something of the rigors of a German occupation, the manual tells the triumphant soldier what to say after his billet has been indicated to him:—

Show me to my room! That dirty hole? What do you think!

What? You have no other room in this big house? Open the doors! I am going to choose a room myself. Here I shall stay. Take these things out of the room!

Quick! I should like to have something to eat. A light refreshment will do for the present. Bread, butter, cheese and some meat. Some wine, a bottle of beer, a glass of milk. I am very thirsty.

See that I am not disturbed! Don't make any noise! Now I want to sleep for an hour. At two o'clock you will have dinner ready. Call me when dinner is ready.

Expert Says War Is Likely to End in Six Manths

Agrees with the Russian Military Expert, Colonel Shumsky, on the Speedy Termination of the Struggle, but Thinks an Earlier Date Is Still More Probable.

[BY LIEUTENANT COLONEL ROUSTAM BEK.]

[Copyright, 1915, by the New York Herald Company and the London Daily Express—All Rights Reserved.]

(SPECIAL DISPATCH).
LONDON, March 13.

The famous Russian military expert, Colonel Shumsky, has openly declared in the Russian press that the present war will be over in six months.

A man of great experience and strategical knowledge, who has never been guilty of putting forth exaggerated statements in connection with the situation in the war areas, calmly and firmly announces this conclusion. Studying the ideas of my Russian colleague, I come to the opinion that Colonel Shumsky has taken the most remote date at which the end of this terrible world-drama may be expected.

My personal opinion is that we shall secure a triumph over our enemy earlier than the date fixed by my distinguished compatriot. I will give briefly my reasons for this view.

Numbers and Victory.

The most skilful manoeuvring in the battlefield in a modern war would be always secondary to the moral superiority of the army and the nation concerned as well as the equipment and the number of the troops. The preponderance of men is a most important factor in the present war, and in this lies the real superiority of the Allies over their enemies.

Clausewitz himself has acknowledged it, and in his books it is premised that "the number of the fighters presages the victory; superiority of forces is itself a base of victory in tactics as well as in strategy." Thus we can say that the formula "superiority in forces" was the main base of the creators of the German plan of campaign.

The famous von Moltke said:—"We must concentrate the most numerous forces, find the enemy, and by the preponderance of our troops defeat him utterly." If we study the work of the German General Staff for two years before the war, we shall note that special laws were adopted in Germany in order to increase the army as much as possible.

The Germans have followed the doctrine of von Moltke. They have found the [illegible] of their enemies, but they have been unable to defeat them; on the contrary, they became defeated themselves.

The first successful movement of the German army on Paris depended, as I have more than once shown, on the preponderance of the number of their troops, and their defeats on the Marne and Yser brought about the numerical superiority of the Allies. That is now fully acknowledged, and it will also be acknowledged that the inferior numbers of the forces of our enemy, in comparison with the number of the Russians, caused the German failure on the River Bzura.

The enemy's only chance of victory is for the German and Austrian armies greatly to increase the number of their forces. Can they succeed in this?

The Austrian government has issued an order prohibiting the retirement of Territorial reservists who have attained the age of forty-three years, while the German General Staff has sent to both fronts about 25,000 men of the Landsturm.

Until the present war nobody supposed that Landsturm or Territorial forces could play such an important rôle on the battlefields. The laws concerning the recruitment of these secondary troops of all the countries fixed their rôles only for serving in the rear and for use in secondary operations of small importance.

The Balkan wars have shown that in the moment of need a nation can attain an extreme tension in regard to the recruitment of its forces. The gallant Servians have sent to the front fifteen per cent of the whole population, a circumstance which has never happened before anywhere.

Basing our calculations on this example, we can assume that sixty-five millions Germans were able to mobile 9,000,000 men.

The sources of the reserve, of course, have their limit. This has always been known, but even at the time of the Russo-Japanese war, the divisions formed from the reservists were counted as troops unable to be intrusted with independent and important operations.

The Germans formed twenty-five army corps from reservists not more than thirty-two years of age. Other reservists were to be used only to replace losses and for service in the rear.

During the six months of war the German army, according to Russian information, has lost 2,000,000 of its best men. These have been replaced by men of the Landsturm. It is clear, therefore, that the German army in these circumstances has been getting steadily worse in regard to military quality.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Hackstaff Case

A Story Showing How Justice May Err.

By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS

In the village of Atherton lived a widow forty years old who had a head for business. She would buy an old house cheap for cash, put it in complete order and sell it at a profit. Sometimes she would have several houses under process of repair at the same time. The widow attended to the finances and contracts, but relegated the superintendence of the repairs to a young man not quite thirty years old, named Jack Hackstaff.

One day it was announced that the widow had married her employee. The women exchanged glances, as much as to say: "What a fool she is to tie up with a man ten years younger than herself. She'll rue the day she did it." The men agreed that any young fellow of thirty who married a woman of forty for her money paid a high price for tying himself up with an old woman.

However, the Hackstaff couple seemed to get on very well, at least till Mrs. Hackstaff got tired of repairing houses and found a better field of operation. But even then there was no cause to suspect that they were not getting on together. Nevertheless such suspicion was entertained by persons who noticed that Hackstaff, having been deprived of active occupation, showed some discontent.

"She had better have kept him busy," said the women. "He owes his living to a woman," said the men. "He'll either try to get the funds into his own hands or, if he has a proper pride, will dig out and shift for himself."

When Mrs. Hackstaff stopped turning old houses into new ones it was observed that she had not sunk into idleness. Had she explained what new method of making money she had taken on it might have saved a great deal of trouble.

It was noticed that the Hackstaffs were absent from home a great deal, but that they never went together. When Mrs. Hackstaff was away her husband was at home, and vice versa. It leaked out through banks with which Mrs. Hackstaff's accounts were kept—after her marriage she continued to do business and keep accounts in her own name—that she was steadily accumulating funds and was not only using her capital, but all the credit she could control.

During the autumn the Hackstaffs were observed to be away a great deal. When winter came they remained at home together and appeared to have very little to do. In the spring one—sometimes both—started out very early and remained away till summer came. Once when Mrs. Hackstaff bought her ticket a neighbor stood beside her and noticed that she purchased a long string of tickets on a round trip through the southern states. This the observer reported, and it added largely to the interest of the people of Atherton in the Hackstaff affairs.

The Hackstaff place was on the outskirts of the village and surrounded by woods. One day Mrs. Hackstaff, walking in these woods, encountered a skunk and received the contents of its odor bag on her dress. Returning to the house, she took off the dress, put on another and, giving the first to her husband, asked him to take it to the woods and bury it for the purpose of deodorizing it. This he did.

A few days later the wife conceived a business scheme of importance, and both she and Hackstaff forgot all about the buried dress. For several days she was busy arranging her financial affairs, making arrangements for the honoring of numerous drafts she proposed to make on her bankers.

Having arranged for a prolonged absence, she and her husband talked over matters of domestic nature. Sufficient means were locked in a safe in their house for his use until her return, and to provide for any contingency she signed checks in blank that he might fill in to any amount he chose. These minor affairs having been arranged, Mr. Hackstaff took up a New York newspaper that he had bought that day for the purpose of learning the sailing dates of outgoing steamers and learned that a steamer would sail via the Mediterranean and the Suez canal for China the next afternoon.

An examination of a railroad time table indicated that the only train by which Mrs. Hackstaff could catch that steamer passed through and stopped at Atherton at 1 o'clock in the morning. It was decided that she should take this train. Her baggage was sent to the station, and Mr. Hackstaff purchased a ticket to New York and checked the trunk early in the evening. When the train passed Mr. and Mrs. Hackstaff said goodby to each other on the station platform, and Mrs. Hackstaff entered the train without any citizen of Atherton having witnessed her departure. She was driven up to the dock from which the steamer sailed just as the gangplank was being withdrawn and without having engaged passage.

Many of these details could have been held back for effect at the end of the story or left out entirely. They have been given in order and explicitly that they may the better show how, when fuel is dry and in a fine condition to ignite, a conflagration may be started that will sweep everything before it.

When Mr. Hackstaff buried his wife's dress a small boy was in a tree above the spot where he put it in the ground, about to grasp a birds' nest. The little fellow's curiosity was aroused to know what the man beneath him was going to do, so he kept still till the dress had been buried; then, having captured the birds' nest, he went home and told his mother what he had seen. As a hound who has just caught the scent of game will start and sniff the air, so did the lady throw up her hands at scenting a tragedy.

"Great heavens!" she exclaimed. "I hope he hasn't murdered his wife!" But, having met Mrs. Hackstaff the day before at the bargain counter of the Beehive store, she concluded not to be in a hurry in announcing her suspicions. She determined to keep her own counsel and await developments, which meant confiding the story to several intimate friends, cautioning each to say nothing about it, for if Mrs. Hackstaff was still alive she would appear in the flesh.

But Mrs. Hackstaff did not appear because she had sailed for China. Mrs. Ward, thinking that she might have gone on one of her trips, cautioned those she had told of the buried garment to keep quiet till a proper time had elapsed for her return. Meanwhile she took a number of other persons into her confidence and by the time Mrs. Hackstaff should have returned from an ordinary trip all Atherton was agog. When a month more had passed Mrs. Ward was sure Mrs. Hackstaff had been murdered; many of those she had told of her boy's discovery felt that it was highly probable, while a few poohpoohed the whole matter.

Many believed that the authorities should be given the evidence of the buried dress, but they all considered that it was the duty of some one else than themselves to bring forth the information. There was no certainty that Mrs. Hackstaff had been murdered, and no one cared to be the finder of a "mare's nest." Meanwhile Hackstaff began to show worriment. When asked about what was troubling him he said that his wife was absent and he had not heard from her since her departure. Then he was asked where she had gone, and at this he balked. Turning, he walked away without replying to the question.

One day he went to the bank with a check for $500 payable to himself. It had been written in his own handwriting and bore his wife's signature. The paying teller had heard the whisperings about Mrs. Hackstaff's suspicious disappearance and, asking Hackstaff to wait a moment, took the check to the cashier, who carried it to the president. After a conference it was decided to pay it, but this had no sooner been done than a message was sent to an expert, who came, examined the check and pronounced it a forgery.

A match had been touched to these various items of kindling, and a brisk blaze started. A suspicion of forgery—other experts disagreed with the first—brought out the story of the buried dress, which brought out the fact that no one could be found who had seen Mrs. Hackstaff leave Atherton, that Hackstaff had looked quite as uneasy as if he had committed murder, and various other incidents, all of which combined warranted a grand jury in finding an indictment against him, though the preponderance of evidence of the experts being that the signature to the check was genuine caused the charge of forgery to be dropped.

Hackstaff told his story as it has been told here, with a few additions not bearing on the case. This was that his wife was a cotton speculator and used, with his occasional assistance, to examine the crops in the south, where they were grown. A condition of the cotton market had occasioned a visit to Bombay, and she had gone there, expecting to buy largely. What had worried him was that the steamer on which she had sailed had not been reported since leaving from the Red sea into the gulf of Aden.

There were several missing links in his explanations. His wife's dress, which had been exhumed had become deodorized; the ticket agent at Atherton, who knew Mrs. Hackstaff well, had no remembrance of having sold her a ticket on the date claimed, and owing to her catching the steamer at the last moment her name did not appear on the passenger list.

Opinion which had long been growing against the accused and the fact that the prosecuting attorney was showing great energy in convicting criminals previous to a campaign he was about to make for an important judgeship prevailed over this flimsy evidence, and Hackstaff was given a death sentence.

Mrs. Hackstaff, meanwhile having crossed the Atlantic and traversed the Mediterranean and the Red sea, was wrecked on the Persian coast. She reached the shore with no money and, being penniless in a strange land, went through various adventures before meeting a fellow countryman who helped her out and enabled her to reach Bombay.

All this took time.

A few days before Hackstaff was to be hanged a cablegram was handed him from his wife. Presuming that he had heard of the wreck, she announced her safety and that she had arrived at Bombay. The information contained in the cablegram was limited, but it was enough to save her husband from swinging at a rope's end. He was not set at liberty, however, till the court was satisfied that the cablegram was genuine and then only after he had been pardoned by the governor, which was the simplest way out of the difficulty.

A SPLENDID SOCIETY.

When a woman conceived the idea of having a Women's Organization for the farm homemakers of Ontario and founded the first society at Stoney Creek, the sceptics said, "It's a pleasant enough diversion, but it will soon die out." That was 17 years ago. To-day the Women's Institutes of Ontario has a membership of 25,000 with 840 branches and many places about ready for organization. What is quite as important, the movement has been extended to every province of the Dominion, and never has it shown such intelligent and enthusiastic activity as during this last year.

Unlike almost any other women's organization, the Institute is composed almost entirely of homemakers who do most of their own work. They have no time for interests outside their homes and their families unless these interests are going to benefit some other women's home and family. Perhaps that is why their efforts have been so serious and practical and well-directed. Perhaps that is also why they have shown such perseverance and unity and ready sacrifice during the months since the war began. We might quote the numbers of socks and shirts and pillows and bales of clothing and provisions forwarded to the Red Cross and Patriotic Societies — they have run up to amazing figures—but figures do not mean so much as the fact that nearly every branch responded, from the most prosperous of the old settled districts to the poorest hamlet of the pioneer north, and every branch is still working. Without some organization of this kind it would have been impossible to reach the people of the rural districts so promptly and thoroughly.

How the Work Has Broadened

While the primary objects of the Women's Institute were to improve the home and social life of the farm woman, the scope of the work has broadened from these beginnings to undreamed-of possibilities. The exchange of recipes and little talks on housekeeping methods has led to a systematic study under qualified teachers. Demonstration-lecture courses in cooking, sewing and home nursing are arranged for by the Department and the work is developing rapidly. The Department is also having special literature prepared for the Institutes on the health value and preparation of common foods, labor-saving devices, in the home and other topics of interest and value to the housekeeper.

The early meetings together for a cup of tea and some little pleasant programme of entertainment have developed a broad community neighborliness. The popular printed idea of the "isolated life of the farm woman" has no meaning where there is a live Women's Institute, but the movement has extended away beyond the limits of the members themselves. It has led to the planning of neighborhood entertainments, to putting pianos in public halls, to establishing reading-rooms, skating rinks, tennis courts and swimming pools to keep the young people from undesirable places of amusement. In one town it is responsible for the founding of a People's Institute with rest rooms, a reading-room, gymnasium, kitchen and assembly hall, where socials and meetings may be held. A matron is kept in charge and the place is a pleasant wholesome evening rendezvous, as well as a convenient place for public entertainments.

Most of the Institute members are mothers, but whether they have children of their own, or not, we have found the ranks full of women with the universal motherhood spirit, so child welfare has been perhaps the most outstanding feature of the last few years' work. Naturally, most of this work is done through the public school. School grounds have been improved, school fairs and school gardens encouraged; proper seating, lighting, heating and sanitary drinking fountains secured, bells, pictures, games and supervised playgrounds have been given, while the bringing of medical and dental school inspection to the rural districts promises to be one of the most important child welfare movements that have ever come to the country.

Buoys that make a flapping noise as they pass through the water and leave a wake that is plainly seen are towed behind British warships to guide following vessels in time of fog.

A new electrically driven cloth cutting tool that cuts through many thicknesses of material at once resembles a band saw, as it has numerous knife blades mounted on an endless belt.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

It is the skirt which deserves special attention. There are three gores, the two in front lapping over the back gore in a slanting seam which terminates in a side plait. The placket opening is at the front, under a wider lapped seam, and the back is gathered at the waist line. The cut of the skirt is very pretty, the fashionable flare being introduced into the lower edge. Waist and skirt are joined together, making a one-piece garment. The pattern, No. 7028, comes in sizes from 34 to 44 inches bust measure.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required and age of a child.

FOR THE FIRST TIME JOFFRE REVEALS HIS ARMY AND TRENCHES TO REPORTERS

An Extended and Intimate Tour of Battlefront—200 Miles of Defenses on a 12 Mile Front—Artillery Duel at 21 Feet—French Troops Are Confident of Victory This Summer—Wonderful Organization Manifested on all Sides.

A representative of the New York Times, recently cabled the following account of the first authorised visit to the allies' lines, particularly the French:

Paris.— have just been permitted a sight of the French army—the first accorded to any correspondent in so comprehensive a measure since the outbreak of the war. Under the escort of an officer of Gen. Joffre's staff, I was allowed along a great section of the fighting line, into the trenches under fire, and also received scientific detailed information regarding this least known of European forces.

France has been so silent about her army and her Generals and so indifferent to the use of journalism in the war it is scarcely realized even in France that 460 of the 500 miles of fighting front are held by the French and only the remaining 50 by the British and Belgians. At the outbreak of the war no newspaper men were allowed with the army, and those who managed to get to the front, including myself, all returned to Paris under escort. Although we saw what a powerful machine it was and knew it was getting stronger every day, we were permitted to say very little about it—Germany, meanwhile, granting interviews, taking war correspondents to trenches and up in balloons in the campaign for neutral sympathy.

France, or rather General Joffre, for his is the first and last word on the subject of war correspondents, gradually decided to combat the German advertising.

Spring Campaign Prospects.

I propose to give as few names of places and Generals as possible, first to meet the wishes of the personal censor, who is the same officer who escorted me throughout the trip, and, second, because I believe general facts relating to the morale of the French army and their prospects in the spring campaign will be of more interest than specific details concerning places where the lines have been established for the past six months.

From scores of letters received from America the first question which seems to arise in the minds of neutrals outside the war zone is: What are the prospects of the Germans taking Paris when the second great phase of the war is really under way? First, let me admit that a lurking fear that the Germans might penetrate the lines had caused me to make certain arrangements for the hasty exit of my family from Paris as soon as the spring fighting began. I am now willing to cancel these arrangements, for I am convinced there is no danger to Paris.

The German army, in my opinion, will never for a second dictate terms of peace in Paris. I feel that I am in a position to make the statement, founded on an unusual knowledge of the facts, that should German ambition again fly that high they would need at least 3,000,000 men concentrated before the fortifications of Paris—these in addition to the enormous force to oppose the French and allied field armies.

The defences of Paris since the city had its narrow escape before the battle of the Marne present one of the wonders of the world. Not only has Gallieni's army intrenche the surrounding country and barbwired it until the idea of any forward advance seems preposterous, but every foot of ground is measured and the exact artillery ranges taken to every other foot of ground.

For instance, from every single trench which also contains an artillery observatory the exact distance is recorded to every other trench, to every house, hillock, tree, and shrub behind which the enemy might advance. In fact, the German organization which threatened to rule the world seems overtaken by French organisation which became effective since the war began.

French Organizers, Too.

All through the trip it was this new spirit of organization that impressed me most. I have sent you many cables on the new spirit of the French, but never before dared to picture them in the role which to my mind they never before occupied—that of organizers. I started the trip to see the real French army in the most open but unexpectant frame of mind. For weeks I had read only laconic official communiques that told me nothing. I saw well-fed officers in beautiful limousines rolling about Paris with an air that the war was a million miles away. The best way now to explain my enthusiasm is to give the words of a famous English correspondent, also just returned from a similar trip (he is Frederic Villiers, who began war corresponding with Archibald Forbes at the battle of Plevna, and this is his seventeenth war), who said:

"In all my life this trip is the biggest show I have ever had."

The first point on the trip where the French intelligence proved superior to the German was that I was allowed to pay my own expenses. With the exception of motor cars and a hundred courtesies extended by the scores of French officers, I paid my own railroad fare, hotel and food bills.

"This army has nothing to hide," said one of the greatest Generals to me. "You see what you like, go where you desire, and if you cannot get there, ask."

This General was de Maud-Huy, the man who with a handful of territorials stopped the Prussian guard before Arras shortly after the battle of the Marne and who since then has never lost a single trench. His name is now scarcely known, even in France, but I venture the prophesy that when the French army marches down the Champs Elysees after the war is over, when the vanguard passes under the Arch de Triomph, de Maud-Huy—a nervous little firebrand —will be right up in the front rank with Joffre.

The War Made Plain.

While our party did all the spectacular stunts the Germans have offered the correspondents in such profusion, such as visiting the trenches, where in our case a German shell burst thirty feet from us, splattering us with mud, also where snipers sent rifle balls hissing only a few feet away, almost our greatest treats were the scientific daily discourse given by our Captain concerning the entire history of the first campaign, explaining each event leading up to the present position of the two armies. He gave the exact location of every French and allied army corps on the entire front.

On the opposite side of the line he demonstrated the efficiency of the French secret service by detailing the position and name of every German regiment, also the date and the position it now holds. Thus, we were able to know during the journey that it was the crack Prussian Guard that was stopped by de Maud-Huy's Territorials and that the English section under General French was opposed by Saxons.

Our Captain by these lectures gave us an insight into the second great German blunder after the failure to occupy Paris, which awe the failure immediately to swing a line across Northern France, thus cutting off Calais and Boulogne, where they could really have levelled a pistol at England's head. He explained that it was the superiority of the French cavalry that dictated that the line should instead run straight north through the edge of Belgium to the sea. His explanations went further than this, for he refuted many military arguments to the effect that cavary became obsolete with the advent of aeroplanes.

Cavalry formerly was used to screen the infantry advance and also for shock purposes in the charges. Now that the lines are established, it is mostly used with the infantry in the trenches; but in the great race after the Marne to turn the western flanks it was the cavalry's ability to outstrip the infantry that kept the Germans from practically all of Northern France. In other words, the French chasseurs, more brilliant than the Uhlans, kept that northern line straight until the infantry corps had time to take up position.

My introduction to the real French army was made at the point of junction with the English troops, so I was thus able to make some comparison between the types of the allies. I did not see the Germans except as prisoners, although on this trip I was sometimes within a few yards of their lines. With all consideration for the statement that they are the greatest fighting machine the world has ever seen, all I can say is that the greatest fighting machine I have ever seen is the French army.

High Ideals of the Army.

To me they seem invincible from the standpoints of power, intelligence, and humanity. This latter quality specially impressed me. I do not believe any army with such high ideals can easily be beaten, and I judge not only from Generals in command, but the men in the trenches. One morning I was going through the trenches near the most important point where the line was continually under fire.

Passing from the second line to a point less than a hundred yards from the German rifles I came face to face with a General of division. He was sauntering along for the morning's stroll he chose to take in the trenches with his men rather than on the safer roads at the rear. He smoked a cigar and seemed careless of danger. He constantly patted his soldiers on the back and called them "his little braves."

I could not help wondering whether the German General opposite was setting his men the same splendid example. I inquired the French General's name; he was General Fayolle, conceded by all the armies to be the greatest artillery expert in the world. Comradeship between officers and men always is well known in the French army, but I never before realized how the officers were so willing to accept quite the same fate.

In Paris the popular appellation for a German is "boche." Not once at the front did I hear this word used by officers or men. They deplore it, just as they deplore many things that happen in Paris. Every officer I talked to declared the Germans were a strong, brave enemy; they waste no time calling them names.

"They are wonderful, but we will beat them," was the way one officer summed up the general feeling.

Another illustration of the French officer at the front: The City of Vermelles of 10,000 inhabitants was captured by the Germans after fifty-four days' fighting. It was taken literally from house to house, the French engineers sapping and mining the Germans out of every stronghold, destroying every single house, incidentally forever upsetting my own one-time idea that the French are a frivolous people. So determined were they to retake this town that they fought in the streets with artillery at a distance of twenty-one feet, probably the shortest range artillery duel in the history of the world.

The Germans before the final evacuation buried hundreds of their own dead. Every yard in the city was filled with little crosses—the ground was so trampled that the mounds of graves were crushed down level with the ground—and on the crosses are printed the names with the number of the German regiments. At the base of every cross there rests either a crucifix or a statue of the Virgin or a wreath of artificial flowers all rooted from the French graveyard.

Courtesy in the French ranks.

With the German graves are French graves made afterward. I walked through this ruined city where, aside from the soldiery, the only sign of life I saw was a gaunt prowling cat. With me past these hundreds of graves walked half a dozen French officers. They did not pause to read inscriptions; they did not comment on the loot and pillage of the graveyard; they scarcely looked even at the graves, but they kept constantly raising their hands to their caps in salute regardless of whether the cross numbered a French or German life destroyed.

We were driving along back of the advance lines. On the road before us was a company of territorial infantry who had been eight days in the trenches and were now to have two days of repose at the rear. Plodding along the same road was a refuge mother and several little children in a donkey cart; behind the cart, attached by a rope, trundled a baby buggy with the youngest child inside. The buggy suddenly struck a rut in the road and overturned, spilling the baby into the mud. Terrible wails arose, and the soldiers stiffened to attention. Then seeing the accident, the entire company broke ranks and rescued the infant. They wiped the dirt from its face and restored it to its mother in the cart.

So engrossing was the spectacle our motor halted and our Captain from Great General Headquarters in his gorgeous blue uniform climbed from the car, discussing with the mother the safety of a baby buggy riding behind a donkey cart, at the same time congratulating the soldier who rescued the child.

Our trip throughout moved with that clockwork precision usually associated only with the Germans. The schedule throughout the week never varied from the arrangements made before we left Paris. When we arrived at certain towns we were handed slips of paper bearing our names and the hotel number of our room.

Amazing meals appeared at most amazing places, all the menus carefully thought out days before. Imagine fresh trout served you with other famous French delicacies in a little house in the battle zone, where only a few hundred yards of barbed wire and a few feet more of air separated you from the German trenches. During the German advance, also after the battle of the Marne, there were many towns in the districts where it was impossible to obtain tobacco, spirits, or food staples. This condition has entirely abated, and the commissariat is now so well supplied that soldiers have sufficient tobacco even in the trenches.

A Familiar Paris Bus.

It was my privilege to take a brief ride at the front in an antebellum motorbus of glorious memory— there being nothing left in Paris but the subway. Busses are now used to carry fresh meat, although they have been used in transporting troops and also ammunition. We trundled quite merrily along a little country road in Northern France, the snow white fields on either side in strange contrast to the scenery when last I rode in that bus. Its sides are bullet riddled now, but the soldier conductor still jingles the bell to the motorman, although he carries a revolver where he used to wear the register for fares.

Trench life was one of the most interesting surprises of my trip. Every night since the war began I have heard pitying remarks about "the boys in the trenches," especially if the nights were cold. I was, therefore, prepared to find the men standing in water to the knees, shivering, wretched, sick and unhappy. I found just the contrary—the trenches were clean, large, and sanitary, although of course, mud is mud. I found the trenches in every instance corduroy-lined with modern drains, which allowed the feet to keep perfectly dry, and also the large dug-outs where the men, except those doing sentry duty, sleep comfortably on dry straw. There are special dugouts for officers and artillery observers.

I also visited a large perfectly equipped Red Cross First Aid camp, all built underground, extending from one line of trenches to the other. All observatory dugouts have received names which are printed on shingles affixed to the trenches on little upright posts. For instance, we entered our section of the trenches through Boyau d'Espagne, we traversed Avenue de Bois, Avenues Wagram, and Friedland, and others commemorating Napoleonic victories. The dugouts of officers and observers were all called villas, Villa Chambery, Villa Montmorency being examples. It all seemed like cosy camp life underground except that three times the morning of our visit it was necessary to flatten ourselves against the mud sidewalls while dead men on crossed rifles were carried out, every head in that particular bit of trench being bared as the sad procession disappeared.

The Maze of Trenches.

Although the maps show the lines of fighting to be rather wavy, one must go to the front really to appreciate the irregular zigzag snake-like line that it really is. The particular bit of trenches we visited cover a front of twelve miles, but so irregular is the line, so intricate and vast the system of intrenchments, that they measure 200 miles on that particular twelve-mile fighting front.

When one leaves the trenches at the rear of the communication boyaux, it is astonishing how little of the war can be seen. Ten feet after we left our trenches we could not see even the entrance. We stood in a beautiful open field having our pictures taken, and a few hundred yards away our motor waited behind some trees. Suddenly we heard a "zip zip" over our heads. German snipers were taking shots at us.

In addition to the enormous force of men constantly in the trenches along the entire line there is an equal size reserve line directly behind them in case of sudden attack. The artillery is posted considerably further to the rear along with revictualling stations, aeroplane hangars, and headquarters of the Generals, but through all this enormous mass of men which we passed daily going to and from our front observation posts never once did we get the impression of parade. There were just troops, troops, troops everywhere, every hamlet, every village filled with them, every crossroads with their sentries. All of them hardened by winter and turns in the trenches are in splendid condition and as opposed to the Germans, at least to the German prisoners I have seen, each French soldier has a clear and definite knowledge of what the war is all about. The greatest event of his day is when the Paris newspapers arrive.

What impressed me greatly was that in all the officers' quarters were copies of the French Yellow Book, the English White Paper, and German documents attempting to prove their innocence in causing the conflict. It is not sufficient for French Generals or officers just to go to war; they must know why they go to war down to the last papers in the case. In six months the French privates have acquired one habit from the British Tommies; that is drinking tea. Back of every section of trenches I found huge tea canteens, where thousands of cups are served daily to the soldiers who have decided for the first time in their life they really like such stuff. There one sees more soldiers at the same time than at any other place in the fighting zone; there they sit and discuss the future calmly and confidently; there being a distinct feeling that the war is likely to be over next summer.

No one knows what the spring tactics of General Joffre will be. Along the section of the front I visited the officers are all satisfied that the Commander in Chief's "nibbling tactics" have forced the Germans to retire on the average of two or three miles all along the line. The very name of that great man is spoken with reverence, almost with awe, by his "children at the front."

I, therefore, from the facilities given me can only make one assertion in summing up my opinion of the French grand army of 1915, that it is strong, courageous, scientifically intelligent, and well trained as a champion pugilist after months of preparations for the greatest struggle of his career. The French army waits eager and ready for the gong.

Was Troubled With Choking Spells and Shortness of Breath.

When the heart becomes affected, there causes a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, and dizziness and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety.

Many men and women drag along with weary step, and become worn out and haggard, when otherwise they could be strong and healthy if they would only pay some attention to the first signs of heart or nerve trouble. On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills should be given a fair trial and you will find that they will soon correct both these organs.

Mr. James Leard, Tryon, P.E.I., writes: "Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I had choking spells, and was troubled with weakness of the heart and shortness of breath. I tried three doctors but they all failed. A neighbor recommended me to try your pills, so I got a box and they helped me so much I have taken six boxes. I highly recommend them to all who are troubled with their heart and nerves. I was not able to do any work for over two years; now I can do quite a bit."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

"Fruit-a-tives" are the only pill manufactured, to my way of thinking. They work completely, no griping whatever, and one is plenty for any ordinary person at a dose. My wife was a martyr to Constipation. We tried everything on the calendar without satisfaction, and spent large sums of money until we happened on "Fruit-a-tives". I cannot say too much in their favor.

We have used them in the family for about two years and we would not use anything else as long as we can get "Fruit-a-tives".

Their action is mild, and no distress at all. I have recommended them to many other people, and our whole family uses them".

THE OPENING OF THE SPRING CAMPAIGN

The British Forces Make Further Progress

GERMANS BRING REINFORCEMENTS BIG BATTLE IMPENDING IN WEST

General French Reports That the British Forces are Still Advancing And are Now Attacking the German Positions Defending Aubers. Seventh Division Captured 612 Prisoners Yesterday.

BRITISH AVIATORS ARE SUCCESSFUL

LONDON, March 13.—A big battle marking the opening of the spring campaign in Northern France, is impending between Armentierres and Labassee. All the despatches to-day—official and unofficial—indicated that the Germans are bringing up large bodies of infantry to check the new British offensive north of Labassee.

General French, in another official report to-day, asserted that the English and Indian Troops have made further progress from Neuve Chappelle towards Aubers, and are now attacking the German positions defending Aubers. In yesterday's fighting the seventh British division took 612 prisoners. About 30,000 Germans opposed the advance of the British right. British aviators are harrassing the Germans concentrating in the Arras region. They destroyed the railway junctions at Don and Douai, north east of Arras, by hurling bombs yesterday.

PARIS, March 13.—French official.—Continuing their progress in the Neuve Chappelle region, the British have stormed a series of German positions on the road to Aubers. The Germans have been driven from several groups of defended houses with heavy losses, and the British have taken more than 1,000 prisoners.

This announcement was the feature of the official despatches to the war office this afternoon. They described the most furious fighting in many days in the district north of Labassee, and reaching northeastward in the direction of Lille. There were unconfirmed reports that the British were preparing to bombard Lille itself.

Resuming the offensive early yesterday, the British infantry directed a series of daring attacks against the Germans on the roads leading eastward from Neuve Chappelle. The offical despatches again credit the Indian troops with great bravery in action.

The left and right of the advancing British were supported by vigorous French artillery fire. By a series of charges the British have captured several rods of the enemy's trenches on the route to Aubers, and occuped the hamlet of Pietre. Among the munitions of war taken by the British were several machine guns.

Nearer the seacoast the Belgians took the offensive and strengthened their positions at the bend of the Yser. In the Champaign region the French again attacked, continuing their successes on the slopes northeast of Mesnil and taking 150 prisoners, including six officers.

The Germans attempted to charge the French positions in the Vosges, near Reichackeropf, but were beaten off. The German onslaught was preceded by a violent but ineffective artillery fire.

TYPHUS SWEEPING SERVIA

BERLIN, March 12.—Americans arriving here from Servia report that the entire country is suffering greatly from an epidemic of diseases, including typhus, typhoid and recurrent fever. Typhus, otherwise known in Servia as spotted fever, is reported to be particularly dangerous, because no prophylactic is known. The disease is spread by vermin and the percentage of deaths is said to be high. An American physician, Dr. Cook, who was sent to Servia from Paris, and an American Red Cross physician, have succumbed to the disease. Nine out of twelve American nurses have been stricken with typhus fever. The gravity of the epidemic is enhanced greatly by the scarcity of physicians, whose number was far from adequate even before the war began. No fighting is in progress in Servia at the present time.

THROUGH BY EASTER

PARIS, March 13.—Vice Admiral Cardeu, commanding the British fleet operating against the Dardanelles, has expressed the opinion that the allies will be able to hammer their way through the straits before Easter, says an Athens despatch to the Journal.

LONDON, Ont., March 13.—It was learned to-day that No. 3 stationary military hospital, commanded by Lieut.-Colonel Casgrain of Windsor, will accompany the 18th battalion when it leaves for the front. Another squadron of the Canadian Mounted Rifles will be recruited here shortly.

JOE DUFFUS HAS A 'NEW WRINKLE'

Carrying Service to Owners of Ford Automobiles

The Ford Motor Company has an enviable reputation for the promptness and efficiency of its service to owners which it furnishes at its own branches. It has been well said that go where you will, you are never very many miles from a Ford dealer and Ford service.

Four enterprising dealers are not content simply to be able to furnish service when called upon. They have decided that it is a paying proposition, considering both themselves and Ford owners, to carry the service to the owners.

Accordingly, working in conjunction with the Toronto Branch, these dealers will have special cars fitted out which will constantly travel throughout their territories in search of Ford owners who need service. The dealers are: J. J. Duffus, Peterborough; R. W. Brett, Shelburne; Angrove Bros., Kingston, and M. Williams & Son, Lindsay.

Mr. Duffus has been in the habit of sending a mechanic to call on every Ford owner in his territory, to advise owners as to the proper care of their cars and to make such minor adjustments as were necessary to keep the cars in perfect running condition. The results were so good that it was decided to rig up a special service car which would be in charge of an expert mechanic and which would carry an assortment of small supplies, two or three spare covers, a dozen or so spare tubes, spark plugs, fan belts, etc., etc.

So satisfactory were the results of his work that other Ford dealers fell in line with Mr. Duffus, who are preparing service cars for this line of service. 1d-61-1w-11

Men's Spring Styles Being Shown Now

Cressmans' Men's Wear Department Indicates the New Ideas —The Trend of Designs

Spring styles for men! Certainly. Business as usual overlooks nothing apparently, and the linen wear department at Cressman's indicates that the manufacturers have paid special attention this year to men's clothing. The new models retain the snug fitting qualities favoured by English designers. They are shown in one, two and three buttons. A distinctive feature is found in the lapels, which combine a short soft roll with increased width. The vests button high. In the coat designs there are degrees of advanced ideas for different tastes. A one button style in homespuns or rough-faced fabrics is particularly smart, but there are more conservative ideas with the present tendencies in modified form. A fine range of outing sacks and Norfolks is also shown.

The new short overcoats for spring follow the form-fitting styles in marked contrast to the bag-like futurist fashions without character or individuality which prevailed not so long ago. The Chesterfields are widely shown as usual and possess their own points of desirability.

ARTILLERY AS POPULAR BRANCH OF THE SERVICE

Over Fifty Men Have Applied Here Since Recruiting for New Battery Commenced. Major Hall Leaves Monday.

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

Major G. R. Hall, officer commanding the 39th Overseas Battery, will leave on Monday morning for Kingston on busines in connection with the duties of his new position and to take a special course. It is likely that another quota of battery recruits will also leave for Kingston on Monday morning. Major Geo. F. Hilliard, of Peterborough, lately appointed to the command of the 14th Field Battery, will take charge of the recruiting for the overseas battery in Major Hall's absence and Gunner Jos. H. Crocker has been detailed to act as orderly room clerk. Recruits for the battery are still being taken on and thirty have already been occupied. This branch of the service seems to be popular in Peterborough and over fifty applications have been received in a week for positions.

Company Sergt. Major Harry Wilford of the local company of the 39th Battalion, has been ordered to report for duty at headquarters, Belleville, on Monday morning.

There was no parade of the 39th Battalion this afternoon and the men are enjoying the half holiday after a week's hard work.

Instead of attending divine service in a body to-morrow, the 39th Battalion will parade to different churches according to the denomination to which the members belong.

Overseas Mail Will Be Large

No Letters Have Arrived From Old Country For Nearly Two Weeks

It is a long time between letters from the Old Land. No British mail has been received for nearly two weeks, and inquiries are becoming numerous.

The Toronto postal authorities were unable to give any information as to when the next lot of letters from abroad could be expected. They might come at any time now. The department will be notified by wire soon after the boat reaches port, and then thorough arrangements will be made here to have the mail matter delivered without any delay. The next mail will likely be of considerable volume, and it is expected to contain many letters from the Canadian soldiers who are on active service in France.

SPIRIT OF BRITAIN IS VERY SANGUINE

Pride in Navy Raised Higher than Ever by Destruction of "Subs" and Bombardment of Dardanelles

THE CRISIS IN GREECE

Copyright, 1915, Central News, by T. P. O'Connor.

LONDON, March 13. — The sanguine spirit manifest everywhere last week is even more noticeable this week. One of the factors producing this feeling is the encouraging reports from members of the House of Commons who drop in from the front because of wounds or ill health. They are unanimous in the opinion that the men on the firing line at the front are even more hopeful than the people at home; that the big advance when it comes will bring the war to an early and successful termination.

But even at home where the question of defeat has never been considered, impressions that the war might be prolonged indefinitely have been forced to give way before such a run of luck as England has experienced during the past two weeks following the announcement of Germany's submarine campaign. While the Admiralty authorities said little at the time beyond hinting that naval men would probably find means successfully to encounter this new form of warfare, the success achieved by the torpedo destroyers now prove that their plans were carefully thought out.

The destruction of the German submarines, coming at the same time as the bombardment of the Dardanelles and Smyrna, naturally raises higher than ever England's pride in the splendid world-wide sweep of her navy.

The Crisis in Greece.

There is very little in the London newspapers as yet regarding the crisis in Greece, the more prominent dailies being tongue-tied lest imprudent disapprobation or even too frank an appeal do more harm than good. I know both King Constantine of Greece and former Premier Venizelos personally, and I must confess that I was at first surprised at the turn things have taken. The king is a brave, blunt and successful soldier, who heretofore has been quite daring. On the other hand Venizelas is a natural politician and extremely cautious. It would seem in the light of present developments that their characters would be quite different.

The king has always pressed for bigger demands and advocated more aggressive tactics, while Venizelos oftimes risked his popularity by surrendering too much in his uncertainty as to the attitude of Europe. Kavalla was given Greece largely through the intervention of the Kaiser.

But there is another theory, namely, that the king is quite ready to have his hand forced by popular opinion providing he sees that popular opinion is likely to back Venizelos for war. He will then plead that he was forced to yield to necessity.

I have little doubt that my anticipation of the hypnotizing effect upon
